BONFIRES ON HILLTOPS

Are Touched Off Throughout the United Kingdom

AN EXPRESSION OF RELIEF

At Reports of the King's Progress Toward Recovery—Official Illuminations Not Lighted—Dinner to Poor of London to Come Off as Scheduled

London, July 1.—The general feeling of relief as a result of the favorable reports of the condition of the king vented itself last night by the touching off of the 3000 bonfires throughout the united kingdom which were originally prepared to celebrate coronation night.

The signal to light the fires was given at 9:05 o'clock. A rocket was sent up from the top of the gigantic wheel in Earls court and burst in a cloud of stars a thousand feet overhead. In response to this signal bonfires rose from every elevation of any consequence from the Lizard to the Orkneys. The celebrations were unfortunately somewhat dampened by the downfall of rain.

London was not officially illuminated. It had been hoped that the Mansion house, the Bank of England and Marlborough house would join in the celebration, all their illuminating stands being intact, but none of the official decorations was lit up. The display in London in this line was confined to the theatres, the hotels and the business houses on the Strand, Fleet street and other thoroughfares.

There was quite a celebration at Spithead yesterday, when the nearest approach to a review of the great fleet there was seen in the trip of several transports loaded with volunteers and colonial troops and a number of distinguished persons, who inspected the empire's "first line of defense."

The arrangements for King Edward's dinner to the poor of London to be held July 5 are being rapidly completed. The Prince and Princess of Wales have arranged to visit a number of the localities where the poor are to be entertained, and if King Edward's condition continues to improve, Queen Alexandra will probably make the rounds with them.

The only royal guest who left London yesterday was the Chinese representative appointed to attend the coronation of the king, Prince Chen, who left for Ostend.

Celebration In Dublin

Dublin, July 1.—All the principal streets of Dublin were splendidly illuminated last night in honor of the king's satisfactory progress, and they were so crowded with people that vehicular traffic had to be stopped. Some disturbances were created by a mob of Nationalists, who had to be charged and dispersed by the police several times.

Ten Thonsand May Quit Work

Chicago, July 1.—Unless the general managers of the railroads reverse their announced decision in regard to a new scale of wages, 10,000 freight handlers will in all probability quit work today in all the railroad warehouses and freight sheds in Chicago. Officers of all the railroads replied yesterday to the demand of the freight handlers for more wages, each of the companies submitting an amended scale of wages to go into effect after three months. The men refused to consider the concessions of the railroads. The railroads have determined not to make any further concessions.

Made Over a Mile a Minute

Albany, July 1.—The "Twentieth century limited" broke the world's record for long distance running on its trip yesterday from Albany to Syracuse. It made the 148 miles between the two cities in 145 minutes, including a stop at Utica and several slowdowns. This fast trip was made necessary by the train being delayed at West Albany.

Murderers Were "Delivered"

Manila, July 1.—Two of the moros who murdered Private Lewis have been killed while resisting arrest. Datto Adta Adma promised Colonel Baldwin that he would deliver the murderers of Lewis when they were captured. The mutilated bodies of the two Moros were brought into the American camp suspended from poles.

Teachers May Be Alive

Manila, July 1.—There is a possibility that the four American teachers of Cebu, who have been missing since June 10, are alive. A native who was made prisoner by the constabulary of Cebu says the four teachers were prisoners in the mountains of the island June 26.

Banking Official Arrested

Newburgh, N. Y., July 1.—John Wise, former secretary and treasurer of the Columbus Trust company of this place, was arrested yesterday, charged with embezzling $3000 of the company's funds.

THE HAYTIAN REVOLUTION

American Gunboat Going to Principal Point of Disturbance

Washington, July 1.—Acting Secretary of State Hill received a request yesterday from United States Consul Livingston, at Cape Haytien, for an American warship to protect the interests of the United States during the present revolutionary crisis in Hayti. Secretary Moody ordered the gunboat Marietta at San Juan, P. R., to proceed at once to the scene of trouble with all possible dispatch. It is a 30-hour run from San Juan to Cape Haytien. The Marietta carries a marine guard of only a dozen men.

The state department received two cablegrams from United States Minister Powell at Port au Prince in the afternoon in regard to the situation in Hayti. The first said that the ministers had received a telegram from Cape Haytien saying that the Haytien admiral had fired on the city and that several persons had been killed. The minister's dispatch also said that President Firmin had left Cape Haytien under the protection of the foreign consuls on a Haytien vessel.

Port au Prince, July 1.—The elections for deputies have been interrupted. The various political parties in Hayti are in arms and ready for battle. There has been much firing here and the situation is critical.

Gardener Abandons Charges

Manila, July 1.—Major Gardener, governor of the province of Tayabas, in his testimony yesterday before the board which is inquiring into the charges of cruelty brought by him against American officers and soldiers, said that hostility of higher officers in the army in the Philippines to the civil government existed, but that to summon witnesses to substantiate his charge threatened to result adversely to the interests of the government without benefiting himself. He, therefore, resumed responsibility for this charge.

Sailed In Fluky Weather

Bridgeport, Conn., July 1.—In the first of the trials of the Bridgeport Yacht club yesterday to select a challenger for the Seawanhaka cup the Tecumseh won the first race and the Massasoit won the other two. The first race was sailed in a very light breeze. In the second race the breeze increased and at the finish of the third race there was a good wholesail breeze blowing. On the whole the day could be classed as fluky.

DISBROW IN JAIL.

Arrested in Connection with Drowning of Miss Lawrence, Well Known at Squantum.

New York, July 1.—Louis Disbrow, for whom a warrant was issued last week by the authorities of Suffolk county, L. I., in connection with the deaths by drowning of Sarah Lawrence and Clarence Foster, is now in jail at Riverhead, L. I. Attorney Miles, counsel for Disbrow, left Northport for this city early in the day and it was generally thought he had gone to meet his client, whose whereabouts have been carefully concealed from the public since the bodies of Miss Lawrence and Foster were found in Tiana bay.

The drowning of the two young people has been a mystery which the county officials have for weeks been trying to clear up. All that was positively known was that the two, with Disbrow, had spent the greater part of the night at resorts in the eastern end of Long Island. There were stories told of a carousal. Foster and the girl dropped out of sight. Disbrow went to his home at Good Ground and then disappeared, and three days later the bodies of Foster and Sarah Lawrence were found floating in the bay. No one could be found to tell how they came to be drowned and there was a call for Disbrow to come forward to explain what he knew of the case. The coroner, after an official examination of the bodies, could find no trace of violence. Disbrow stayed away and at last a warrant was issued for him. Just what the warrant charges is not known.

Disbrow arrived at Riverhead from Long Island City accompanied by his counsel. He was at once placed in the county jail where he will be kept until he is given a hearing. Further than to intimate that he met Disbrow in New York city, Attorney Miles refused to say where he found his client.

Marlboro, Mass., July 1.—It is feared that more deaths may result from Saturday night's accident on the Marlboro street railway, as some of the injured are said to be in a serious condition. This will be a serious matter to the railroad, which already has a heavy debt.

Venezuelan Ports Blockaded

Washington, July 1.—The state department received a cablegram yesterday from United States Minister Bowen at Caracas confirming Associated Press dispatches in regard to the blockade established by the Venezuelan government at a number of points. Early Closing.

Good Afternoon.

It has often been said that when at loss for a subject of conversation there is always the weather to talk about; well there is plenty of it this year, but all the conversation about it is not printable.

Twenty-seven thousand of the municipal debt of the city is due and payable today and it seemed to have an influence on the City Council last night for they passed the $55,000 fo the new ten-room schoolhouse at Quincy Point, and several other improvements were advocated by the Mayor. The sewer extension order which is without the municipal debt limit was reduced from $80,000 to $60,000 and passed. The improvements under consideration at the meeting amounted to about $125,000. Perhaps it will be necessary to take a long [illegible] can be appropriated without exceeding the limit. Meanwhile it may be found that the Quincy Point school house cannot be erected for $55,000.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The New York board of education's regulation limiting the licensing-age of women as teachers to thirty-five years, and the age for promotion above the fifth grammar grade to high schools and principalships to forty years can offer no claim for approval. A woman's age, alone considered, cannot determine her fitness or unsuitability for a position. One may be better qualified at forty for a position than she ever was before in her life, while another may have passed her best by that time. The teachers have a right to demand that every case be considered on its merits. So sweeping a rule could only have been adopted to save the school board bother.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ And speaking of ordinary, commonplace life, let us not forget how strenuous it is—this daily struggle for bread, to discharge our business and professional duties, to the end that we may obtain money wherewith to supply meat and coal for the families whose needs we must supply, not to speak of the comfort and culture we all covet for ourselves and for those dependent upon us. There is abounding heroism in this, if of so homely a sort that public honors never come—only the reward of an approving conscience and the love that duty performed at home so abundantly yields. Humble life has ever been strenuous. Lucky is the man so fortunately situated financially that he can early choose a public career and pursue it with honor and success. If he can get out into the refreshing life of the forest or the plains for relief and rest, now and then, so much the better. There is plenty of joy in public service, however strenuous it may be, and its sure rewards are to be coveted. As for appreciation in any station of life, that is secondary to duty, but merit brings it in the measure deserved, whether soon or late. That is one of the philosophic certainties of this queer life. Let us continue to be strenuous, whether in office or out, and at the same time cheerful, happy and just, not boastful but steady. Thus are the millions who adjust values and remain faithful.—Springfield Republican.

Two Large Appropriations by City Council.

$55,000 for Ten-Room Schoolhouse in Ward Two.

The longest session of the City Council of 1902 was held Monday evening, lasting from 7.35 to after 11 o'clock. Two large appropriation orders for sewer extensions and the Quincy Point schoolhouse had reached their final stage and caused debate. The hearing on the double tracking of Saville street was also protracted and there was an attempt to reduce the appropriation for improvements at the John Hancock school which caused debate.

Councilmen Meyer and Polk were the absent members.

The chair and desk of the late Councilman Craig were draped in mourning.

HOUGHS NECK FIRE STATION.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner stating that $3,350 was not sufficient to build the two-way engine house at Houghs Neck. The lowest estimate he had obtained was $6,500.75. To Committee on Public Buildings.

EXTENSION OF TIME.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner stating that upon investigation he found the street railway was doing all it could on building its double track on Hancock street, but that it could not be completed by July 1 and suggested the time be extended to Aug. 1.

Laid on the table until later when the time was extended.

POLICE SIGNAL BOXES.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police asking for $400 for two additional signal boxes. One on Adams street near Newport avenue and one on Copeland street. Laid on table.

AT ALMSHOUSE.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Overseer of the Poor relative to needs of new sanitary arrangements at the Almshouse also from the Commissioner stating the cost would be $1200. Laid on the table.

SCHOOLHOUSE APPROPRIATION.

The Mayor in a communication stated that the appropriation for the Ward Two schoolhouse was not sufficient to include furnishing and grading and recommended that these be stricken out, or the amount increased $5000. Laid on the table.

F. R. Comstock asked permission to submit sketches for new school buildings. Placed on file.

FOURTH OF JULY CONSTABLES.

The Mayor announced the appointment of the following constables, who were confirmed:

David W. Glover, William H. Whitney, John J. Fallon, Dennis Creedon, Hiram W. Campbell, Newman A. Savage, Edward J. Lennon Waldo W. Ladd, Colby Sampson, Alexander Shirley and Samuel P. Hanson.

PETITIONS.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for permission to lay underground conduits on Quincy avenue between Elm and High School avenue. To Committee on Streets.

POLICE WANTED.

The residents of East Howard, Winter and South streets petitioned for day and night police protection. To Executive department.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to the order authorizing the Mayor to lease the Quincy reservoir to W. T. Shea for ice privileges at $300 per year, making the amount $400. Amendment adopted and order took its second reading.

JOHN HANCOCK SCHOOL.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $3,500 for new sanitaries in the John Hancock school building.

Councilman Bass moved to make the amount $3,000. He had looked the building over and could not conceive where more than $3,000 would be needed. In reply to Councilman Langelier he said the Committee had received no reliable estimate, but off hand statements.

Commissioner Knowlton in reply to questions stated that he went into the matter carefully. He had estimates from reliable contractors. There has been no meeting of the Committee since I gave my estimate until tonight and I could not therefore present plans.

Councilman Bass said he should oppose the order until he saw detailed plans.

Councilman Freeman when this order comes before the Finance Committee if they find the amount excessive they will amend the order.

Councilman Nichols asked what it was proposed to do. Councilman Langelier replied that the present sanitaries were to be ripped out and a new system installed and connected with the sewer. No detailed plan had been presented.

Councilman Nichols—I gather the committee does not know just what is to be done, but it is left to the commissioner. It was due the Council that it should have some idea or plan.

Commissioner Knowlton—I went over the building and figured the lay out. Then I got a sanitary engineer and had plan made. The idea was to clear away the present out houses and install new sanitaries in the basement. The water system will require new service and an unusual amount of sewer pipe will be required.

Councilman Freeman—The Council passed the other schoolhouse plumbing orders on a similar order.

Councilman Smith—This has been before the committees since Jan. 27, and they have had plenty of time to go into this matter.

Councilman Nickerson—If detailed plans were here, no one would know any more about them than now.

Councilman Bass moved to recommit. Motion lost.

The order then took its second reading and went to the Financial Committee.

SAVILLE STREET TRACKS.

A public hearing was held on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for a change of location on Saville street.

W. G. A. Pattee for the company, said this petition arose from a request of the Committee of the Council. The present petition placed the track now on the street two feet south of its present location which would give sixteen feet of street on the northerly side.

In reply to questions Lawyer Pattee said it was to accommodate the East Weymouth cars. He considered it would be safe without widening the street. It would keep the square free from cars. We would be glad to build a loop from Saville to Depot street but the New York and New Haven road would not permit. The West Quincy cars under the new arrangement would go up Depot street coming to the [illegible] of the tracks the East Weymouth cars could not use the present track on Saville street. As the plans are now laid out the track on Temple street would be removed. There was a plan under consideration to run the Saville street tracks to the depot platform.

Henry H. Faxon said he was a "little old" but wanted to say a word. The railway had been a great benefit to Quincy. The Council are here to represent the best interests of the citizens. He believed the benefit to the people would be advanced by letting the railroad go up Saville street. A circuit would be of great benefit and he hoped the time would come when it would be built. Although "old" he drove his carriage without difficulty up Saville street. He would sell a right of way through the Hancock House if they want it, and at a fair price.

William B. Rice opposed granting the location. The railway is a great benefit to the people but others who have used the privileges of this street have rights. At night, with cars left on the tracks, the utmost care is necessary on this street. Now we are asked to give up further rights and double the present objection. If this is granted it will be necessary inside of ten years to widen this street and then at expense of the city. Here is another view. With the ever increasing rate of taxes you should not only attract those who pay a personal tax but avoid driving them away. Just so long as you interfere with carriage driving to the depot, so long will you drive away personal estate. He was not present to oppose the railway, but these rights should not be given away. If you had today the rights already given, you could let them annually for enough to pay for the care of all our streets.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on the petition of the Telephone Co. to attach wires to poles of other companies.

The Committee on Licenses reported

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

AT THE SHIPYARD.

The Masts of the Lawson Being Stepped.

One of the big steel lower masts of the schooner Thomas W. Lawson was stepped Saturday. The big seven-master is still on the stocks at the Fore River yard and the mast, which is 135 feet from step to cap and weighs 17 tons, was hoisted into place by a pair of heavy wooden shears set up on the deck so that they can be warped along for stepping each of the other six masts. The mast is a steel cylinder 32 inches in diameter and was moved alongside the ship on rollers, the new yard locomotive assisting in the work.

Another building has been added to the small village that the Fore River plant at Quincy Point already makes. It is two stories high and contains offices for the foremen of the different departments under the hull division. It is located south of the ship-tool shop where it is convenient to all the shops.

Excursions to the Fore River works by scientific and engineering societies and other large parties, some of them from a considerable distance, are almost daily occurrences. Recently the visitors included the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution from Taunton, Whitman and Hingham, who came to Quincy on a historical pilgrimage. The following day, 50 boys from the English High school, of Somerville, inspected the plant. On Wednesday of last week 200 members of the New England Water Works Association, with their ladies, visited the yard.

George S. Andrews.

The death of George S. Andrews of East Milton on Monday of diphtheria was a great shock to the community and he will be a great loss not only to his immediate family but to a wide circle of friends. He had just taken his examination for Harvard and was at an age, not quite twenty, when everything looked bright for the future.

Owing to the nature of the disease public funeral services could not be held at the house, but a most beautiful service was held on the lawn, Monday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Mulnix and Rev. Mr. Rogers officiating. There was singing by Miss Emily Baxter, Miss Woodbury and Mr. Baxter.

On Sunday memorial services will be held at the East Milton Congregational church.

July Magazines.

It is difficult to imagine a better balanced selection of domestic matter than is found in the July Delineator, adapted as it is to the trying needs of hot weather. Housewives will appreciate especially the suggestions contained in Summer Salads and Cheese Dishes, the chapter on mayonnaise, the recipes for preparing cherries, and the directions for hot weather beverages. In addition is an article useful at any season on braising, frying and sauteing meats.

The July Country Life In America is a vacation number with suggestions for many things to do and to see in midsummer. Articles on dogs and horses, summer homes, garden making, camping, and varied topics of the outdoor world in July, form a superbly illustrated number, as usual, of this large magazine. "Wyndhurst," a picturesque summer home in the Berkshire Hills, is the country estate feature this month, and "Japanese Gardens in America" shows how the quaint and weird fantasies and the vegetation of the Japanese can be naturally adapted to small areas of landscape gardening.

The above portrait is that of Countess Mogelstud, of Chicago, Ill., whose gratitude for the benefit received from the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine prompted her to make this statement:

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to the very excellent merits of Dr. Miles' Nervine. Although I am past 80 years of age I find it soothes the tired brain, quiets the irritated nerves and insures restful sleep. I never feel contented without a bottle of it in the house." an order granting a license to Music hall for $25.

Councilman Newcomb moved to make the amount $50.

Councilman Bass and Faxon remonstrated.

Councilman Nickerson read the city ordinance fixing the fee at $25 which closed the debate. The order was adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported on a number of petitions for minor licenses.

The order granting the Electric Light Co. a location of poles on Hall place was passed, after Councilman Whiton had been informed where the street was located.

SEWER EXTENSIONS.

The order for $80,000 for sewer extensions came up on its final passage.

Councilman Smith moved to make the amount $60,000.

Councilman Freeman opposed. This matter had been carefully considered by the committee. The first plan was to build the main through Bent's creek but boreings had shown a large amount of ledge and the route had been changed to Washington and Pond streets. Bay View avenue and Curtis street. The cost of the main sewer was from $35,000 to $40,000 and the lateral $24,000 to $28,000. The balance was for other parts of the city, also for tanks for the dissolving of vault and cesspool matter.

Councilman Smith asked the Commissioners if they thought they could use up the $80,000 this year, and they said no, but that the balance would lay over until next year.

In reply to questions, Commissioner Badger said last year's work was carried on all winter. It was found it would cost $1,500 to close up the wells and open them in the spring. As it was by working all winter, the cost was not over $800 extra. We never ask for more than what we consider for the best advantage of the city. If we have but $60,000 we can not lay out the work with that certainly as if we knew we were to have $80,000. Not less than that amount will be necessary for the work we have planned for next year. If we are going to get any returns we could not expend $80,000 to better advantage.

In reply to questions, Engineer Branch said the plan is to go to Quincy Point with main sewer and lay laterals in most thickly settled sections. Ward Four has got to wait until the Metropolitan sewer is ready for use. We now have petitions that call for the expenditures of $10,000 or $15,000. The plans of the City Council call for 100 miles of sewer. We have now 30 miles of sewer. One third of the houses of the city were on streets that have been sewered.

Councilman Nichols thought the order for $80,000 not unreasonable.

Councilman Freeman said the Commissioners have been unable to contract for any work this year. The unexpended balance will be placed to the credit of the city and will draw interest. The difference in cost of interest between $60,000 and $80,000 would not be over $200.

Councilman Bass—The question is whether the Council wants to put $108,000 in the hands of the Sewer Commission to expend this year. This is a large sum and beyond the limits of good government.

Councilman Whiton—No one who walks to Quincy Point would object to the sewer being built there.

Councilman Fallon asked how large the main sewer was to be and the cost of laying it.

Engineer Branch replied that a 20-inch main would be laid and the cost would be from $3 to $12 per foot or an average of $4 per foot.

Councilman Fallon thought a bulk sum of $80,000 uncalled for. If we are going outside of Quincy for labor let it be by contract. Engineer Branch by his errors paid Long & Little $500 more than was coming to them, and it cost $200 to collect it. He did not doubt but it would cost more by citizen labor, but he objected to having it done under the present superintending. If $40,000 will carry them to next spring that is enough. He thought $60,000 liberal.

Councilman Piper asked about the tanks.

Commissioner Badger said it was proposed to dump the contents of the vaults and cesspools into the sewer and these tanks were to separate the solid matter so as to keep tin cans, etc., out of the sewer pipes. It was not proposed to build them in every ward.

Engineer Branch says no city has anything of this kind, but he had consulted other engineers and they thought the plan a good one. If the amount was cut to $60,000 it would not be enough to cover the Point and lateral sewers in other wards.

Commissioner Badger—We have a suit of $16,000 as the result of contract work and we do not know what the award will be. It will have to be paid out of our appropriation.

Councilman Whiton was in favor of anyone who would do the work the cheapest wherever he lived.

Mayor Bryant—It does not make any difference whether you appropriate $60,000 or $80,000. The conditions at Quincy Point are changing every year. We want to get our money back and I think it unwise to cut the appropriation. It would be better to have $80,000 so that more lateral sewers could be put in. It was very obnoxious to have vault matter dumped upon land, and it was for the public health that it was proposed to build tanks so that vault matter could be dumped into the public sewer.

The proposed amendment of Councilman Smith failed to pass, and the order was put on its final passage.

It failed ty get a two-thirds vote, 14 being in favor and 4 against, as follows:

YEAS—Adams, Diack, Elcock, Faxon, Freeman, Lassett, Hadlock, Hughes, Langelier Newcomb, Thompson, Whiton.—14.
Nay—Bass, Fallon, Piper, Smith.—4,
ABSENT—Meyer, Polk, Stewart.
Not Voting—President Alden.

The vote was then reconsidered and laid on the table.

Later upon motion of Councilman Freeman the sewer order was taken from the table and amended by making the amount $60,000. It was then passed by a unanimous vote.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE.

Councilman Freeman moved to take from the table the Mayor's communication relative to new schoolhouse at Quincy Point and also the order appropriating $55,000 for a ten-room building. Voted.

On Councilman Freeman's motion it was also voted to strike out "furnishing and grading" which will be provided for later.

President Alden was about to put the order appropriating $55,000 when Councilman Nichols remonstrated. He thought it was rather springing the order.

Councilman Freeman could not see it in that light. He said the plans had been on file since June 1, and it was understood order was to be put on its final passage July 1.

Councilman Nichols objected at length, claiming that the Council was not informed. All know the reason for the delay in making the appropriation, and it behooves us to keep away from the debt limit. I am told a schoolhouse cannot be built on these plans for $55,000. The School Committee were not unanimous for these plans. Am told there is no necessity for a 10-room building with a hall. Further that in the near future another schoolhouse will be necessary at this end of the ward. It was a question if schoolhouse should have a hall. Would be a good thing if we could afford it, but we cannot. More important than the hall is an enlargement of the High school. The Council should economize, instead of elaborating on plans. The 9-room Cranch building cost $40,000 and the city has the plans. The plans for the new schoolhouse are more elaborate, which add expense. He quoted from the School Committee in praise of the Cranch building, and moved to lay order on table.

Voted down.

Councilman Freeman said the original desire was for a 12-room building, which to reduce expense had been scaled down to 10 rooms. Superintendents of school generally advocate halls in school buildings. Building can be built for $55,000. Sufficient time had been given for examination of plans.

Councilman Nickerson said he had been told by Chairman Porter of the School Committee that a second building would be necessary in Ward Two within four years. If so we must not be too extravagant on this one.

Councilman Nichols further claimed that opportunity had not been offered to consider plans. Some members think they are the whole thing. If they are informed, it does not matter whether others are or not; that they have only to vote yes. We should have chairman of School Committee here. We cannot get too much information. Better to further consider. Moved to recommit to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Freeman said it was too late now to change plans, which had been approved by the School Committee and State authorities. We must now accept or reject.

Councilman Nichols had never seen plans.

Councilman Bass favored referring to Committee on Public Building.

Councilman Whiton said it was too bad to delay work now as the school had just closed and there was a good chance to get to work. A hall had always been included in plans, and was needed at Quincy Point. He was willing to take the approval of those who had passed upon the plans as a guarantee of a good building.

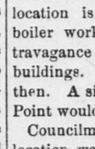

Councilman Thompson was surprised at objection. The second building don't cut any ice now. This building should not have been delayed as long as it has. There is urgent need that it be built.

Councilman Nickerson said Councilmen had a right to get information if possible. How many children are there in Ward Two?

Councilman Whiton said only 30 per cent of the Fore River employes now lived in Quincy. That they would as soon as houses could be obtained. That the increase in school children would be rapid.

Councilman Nichols said a member of the School Committee had told him that the board had had but little choice in plans. That board would approve of plans for building without hall.

Councilman Langelier gave figures showing the increase in school children by wards for 1900 and 1901, and argued that the need of two buildings was not apparent for some time.

Councilman Adams said plans had been drawn up a year ago. It was found that 12 rooms would be too expensive, and reduced to 10 rooms. When a second building is erected it will relieve the Washington, Coddington and Adams. He cited the jam at the grammar graduation held at the High school, and the need of halls in the different buildings for graduations and other purposes. Quincy Point had no hall, and for this reason a school hall was urgent. It was outrageous for any Councilman to delay building at this point.

Councilman Newcomb was surprised at the stand of the Wollaston Councilman against Ward Two. Wollaston was generally pretty particular, and usually got all it asked, and it should not object to Ward Two having something. It was discourteous to Ward Two.

Councilman Nickerson said it was right some Councilmen should be zealous and not vote "yes" on everything without inquiring.

Councilman Whiton argued a new schoolhouse was an absolute necessity and that there was no argument against it.

Councilman Fallon believed the location was not right, but we havn't seen plans, and architects are not above criticism. The location is too near the boiler works at Hanleys. It was extravagance to put halls into school buildings. If in one all others will not then. A six-room building at Quincy Point would be ample for present.

Councilman Whiton claimed the location was not noisy. At least no more so than the Packard lot.

Councilman Nichols maintained it was wholly a question of finance. The Wollaston school cost but $28,000 and the Massachusetts Fields school $37,000, but Quincy Point wants $55,600 and more for furnishings, etc.

Voted not to refer to Committee on Public Buildings.

Order for $55,000 pased by vote of 16 to 2, as follows:

YEAS—Adams, Bass, Diack, Elcock, Faxon, Freeman, Gassett, Hadock, Hughes, Langelier, Newcomb, Nickerson, Piper, Smith, Thompson and Whiton—16.

NAYS—Fallon and Nichols—2.

DISORDER CONTINUES

While Pawtucket Fails to Provide Means For Extra Policemen

Pawtucket, R. I., July 1.—With the highest state authorities urging a police commission for Pawtucket because of belief that the city police force cannot control the lawless element, with a police force which has but one officer to each 1000 population, and with cars attacked day and night, the Republican members of the common council last night deliberately failed to attend a meeting called to provide funds for the payment of special police, the appropriation being exhausted and overdrawn.

A special meeting of both branches of the city council was called to make appropriation for the pay of special officers. The board of aldermen passed a resolution making appropriation of $3540, the Republican members opposing the resolution because the sum was too large. When the resolution reached the council eight of the nine Republican members were in the city hall, but seven of these absented themselves and there was not a quorum present. The president of the council was the only Republican member who remained.

From noon yesterday until 9:45, when the cars were withdrawn, cars were attacked in this city and Central Falls. One conductor was considerably hurt, and windows, headlights, and fare registers broken. At Central Falls James Lawry, an employe of the local system, insulted several citizens, was arrested and was found to be armed. His two companions, after Lawry's arrest, were set upon and roughly handled.

Concord's Postal Distinction

Concord, N. H., July 1.—It is claimed that the local postoffice, including city and rural carrier service, begins the new postal fiscal year today with the largest free delivery system in the country, covering nearly 700 square miles of territory. With a city population not exceeding 20,000, the office handles 10,000,000 pieces of mail a year. It is the depository for the postoffices in six of the state's 10 counties.

Electrician Electrocuted

Springfield, Mass., July 1.—Roger E. Sumner, employed in the mill of the Ludlow Manufacturing association as chief electrical engineer, went to one of the departments last evening to make a wire connection with a 550 horse-power motor. He shut off the electrical current, but evidently did not completely close the circuit, and was killed by an electric shock.

Mistook His Father For Hen Thief

Boston, July 1.—At a late hour last night officers arrested James Stanley, 18 years old, on the charge of assault with a revolver on his father, Joshua Stanley, at the gypsy camp on Washington street, Roslindale. The father was looking after the hens, and James says he mistook him for a hen thief. The ball from the revolver entered the father's right hip.

Engine Struck Obstruction

Boston, July 1.—On the way to a fire yesterday chemical engine 10 ran into an elevated railroad support and Driver Connell and Fireman Getchell were seriously injured. The pole of the double-hitch broke and the horses dashed down Washington street, knocking down a pedestrian. The horses finally were caught by Michael Casey.

Found In the Merrimack

Haverhill, Mass., July 1.—The body of Miss Jeanette M. Thurston was found in the Merrimack river yesterday. A woman's hat and chatelaine bag were found on the bank of the river two miles below the city and the police began a search which resulted in the finding of the body. The police believe the woman committed suicide.

CONGRESSIONAL DECKS

Almost Cleared by Agreement on Philippine Bill

HOUSE ADOPTS THE REPORT

Filipinos to Have Legislature After Two Years of Peace and Good Order—Buffalo and Charleston Expositions Get Aid From Government

Washington, July 1.—With final adjournment probably today the house worked under high pressure from noon yesterday until far into the night. As a preliminary, several resolutions were adopted to grease the legislative wheels. The rule providing for the printing of conference reports before consideration was suspended until the end of the session and a resolution was adopted making a motion to suspend the rules in order at any time. The house then got down to business.

The conference report on the Philippine civil government bill, which is considered the last obstacle in the way of adjournment, was adopted by a strict party vote with the single exception of McCall (Mass.), who voted with the Democrats. A partial report on the general deficiency appropriation bill was adopted and after a prolonged fight the house, by a vote of 118 to 101, accepted the senate amendment to appropriate $500,000 for the Buffalo exposition and then sent the bill back to conference.

The senate amendments to appropriate $160,000 for the Charleston exposition and $1,000,000 to pay the Hawaiian fire-bubonic plague awards were defeated, the former by a vote of 71 to 118. Subsequently, at the night session, the house reversed itself and assented to the senate amendment making an appropriation for the Charleston exposition.

A number of bills were passed under suspension of the rules, including the senate bill to allot lands in the Cherokee nation and to provide corporation laws for Alaska.

At the evening session the Dick militia bill, which is to be used as a stop gap for the remainder of the session while the house is waiting for conference reports, was taken up. The adjournment session is to be withheld until the conference report on the Philippine bill is adopted by the senate.

The Philippine civil government bill, as finally agreed upon, provides for a Philippine legislature of two houses, one the Philippine commission and the other an assembly elected by the natives, except the Moros and pagans. But this legislature is not to be created until after a census has been taken and a condition of general peace and good order shall have prevailed for two years. The legislature is to elect two commissioners to represent the islands in Washington. The powers of the legislature are defined and an extended bill of rights sets forth the individual rights of citizens and their protection against unjust laws.

Authority is given to issue bonds for the purchase of the friar lands and when purchased these become part of the public domain. The public lands are to be open to homesteaders, similar to the American system, and to prevent corporations from absorbing the lands, corporation holdings are limited to 1024 hectares, or 2500 acres. Corporations also are stringently regulated in holding mining and agricultural lands. The money standard and the permanent money system is left for future settlement. The banking system is also postponed. Provision is made for subsidiary and minor coins. Authority is given to issue bonds for harbor and other improvements.

In the senate Mr. Elkins delivered an earnest speech in favor of the annexation of Cuba, maintaining that it would be in the best interests of both countries. Mr. Elkins' remarks drew a sharp fire from Mr. Platt (Conn.) and Mr. Hanna, who deprecated any annexation proposition at this time, and urged that the United States ought to be sensible of its obligations to the civilized world, if not to Cuba. After a lively colloquy in which General Wood was criticised, by inference, for using Cuban funds to advance the reciprocity propaganda, Mr. Elkins' resolution for annexation was referred to the Cuban relations committee.

Among the many bills passed was one giving Rear Admiral Schley the pay and allowance of a rear admiral on the active list of the navy.

The Bailey-Beveridge episode proved the sensational feature of yesterday's session.

Americans Were Game, but Lost

London, July 1.—A large company assembled at the National Sporting club last night to witness the boxing contests in connection with the coronation sporting tournament between Harvard and Yale students and English amateurs. All the amateur bouts resulted in victories for the Englishmen, but the Americans gave remarkable displays of gameness. The contests were limited to three rounds each.

Sheriffs Riddled With Bullets

Guthrie, O. T., July 1.—Sheriff Bullard and Under Sheriff Coburn of Roger Mills county were killed yesterday in a battle with horse thieves, while the officers were attempting to arrest members of the band of outlaws. The fight continued for about 30 minutes, the outlaws finally surrounding the two officers and riddling them with bullets. The entire band made its escape, supposedly uninjured.

An Idol With Diamond Eyes.

It is a curious fact and one scarcely known outside of Russia, and there hardly ever mentioned, that the famous Orloff diamond was once the right eye of the great idol Serringham in the temple of Brahma. This precious gem was stolen at about the beginning of the eighteenth century by a French soldier who had made a pretense of being converted to the Hindoo religion in order to gain the confidence of the priests and admission to the temple. The Frenchman first sold the diamond for £2,000. On the next turn it was bought by a banker of Constantinople for £12,000. The banker kept it until 1774 and then sold it to the Russian empress for £90,000 and a life pension. The gem has been in the Russian royal family ever since. As it is now set in the imperial scepter of Russia it presents a flattened, rose cut surface and weighs exactly 194½ carats.

Vanity Tickled.

During the early excesses of the French revolution a rabble of men and women were rioting in the streets of Paris. Lafayette appeared and ordered a young artillery officer to open fire upon them with two cannon. The officer begged the general to let him try first to persuade them to withdraw.

"It is useless to appeal to their reason," said the general.

"Certainly," answered the officer, "and it is not to their reason, but to their vanity, I would appeal."

The officer rode up to the front of the mob, doffed his cocked hat, pointed to the guns and said:

"Gentlemen will have the kindness to retire, for I am ordered to shoot down the rabble."

The street was cleared at once, for none could brook the idea of being classed with the scum of the city.

Why He Wasn't Impressed.

The following story is told of a garrulous victim of the Johnstown flood of 1889, who when he reached paradise ascended a cloud that served within the pearly gates as a rostrum and undertook to thrill his new made acquaintances among the shades with an account of the disaster through which he had passed. He was interrupted by a gray bearded old man in the group. "A mere bucketful—a mere bucketful!" the old fellow piped. "Don't waste so much time talking of a small affair like that!"

The Johnstown man resented this and hunted up St. Peter, of whom he asked, "Who is that old codger who seems to think our flood such a trifling matter?"

"That?" said St. Peter. "Why, that's Noah!"

A Church In Wales.

Wrexham parish church is known as one of the seven wonders of Wales. It dates as a structure from the fifteenth century and is cathedral-like in its proportions. A "chained" Bible, now kept under lock and key, is among the curious relics, and beside it is a handsomely bound "visitors' book," sent by the students of Yale university, United States, for the use of Yale students visiting the church. In the churchyard is the tombstone of Elihu Yale, with its quaint epitaph. The soldiers' chapel, which is entered through an exquisite arch, has a beautiful memorial window to the Welsh fusileers who have fallen in battle.

ENCOUNTER IN SENATE

Bailey of Texas Throttles Beveridge of Indiana

THE TEXAN FELT INSULTED

At Remarks Made by the Senator From the Hoosier State, and Which the Latter Refused to Withdraw—Parted With Great Difficulty

Washington, July 1.—Senator Bailey assaulted Senator Beveridge last night just after the senate had adjourned from executive session. The Texas senator was dragged away and separated from his opponent by some of those about the senate. He was very angry and threatened severe harm to the Indiana senator.

The episode was the result of a heated controversy which the two senators had during the afternoon, when Beveridge had said that Bailey had made "an unwarranted attack" on Solicitor Penfield of the state department. In executive session Beveridge, like other senators who smoke, lighted a cigar and took a seat on the Republican side. He was still sitting there when the senate adjourned. Bailey crossed the aisle and walked through the seats until he was facing Beveridge.

"Beveridge," he said, "I don't want to have any trouble with you, but I want you to withdraw those words which charge me with making an unwarranted attack upon Penfield."

"I didn't intend to insult you," replied Beveridge, "and there is nothing in my language that you could consider offensive."

"I don't allow any one to say that I libel a man, and that is what you do in making the charge. Now, if you won't withdraw the words when I ask you I'm going to make you withdraw them."

Senator Bailey had been getting more and more angry and excited as he talked. He had been sitting down part of the time or leaning against the desk immediately in front of Beveridge. The latter, in reply to Bailey's last remark, still remaining in his chair, said: "I repeat that I did not intend to insult you and that I have nothing to retract."

As these words were uttered Bailey threw himself upon Beveridge, who is a man hardly up to the average in physique, and seized him by the throat with both hands. The rush was so sudden and fierce that the chair in which Beveridge was sitting was pushed back against a desk and the desk was toppled over. Before the assault could go any further senators who had been sitting near had moved up between the desks. Senator Hansbrough seized Bailey by one arm and Senator Spooner seized the other. The Texas senator is a powerful man and it was with great difficulty that the two senators were able to drag him away from Beveridge, and when they succeeded a part of the Indiana senator's neckwear was ripped and torn away in the vigorous grasp of Bailey.

Senator Bacon and Assistant Doorkeeper Layton came quickly forward and assisted in pulling the Texas senator further away, Bailey meanwhile struggling to get free and lunging toward Beveridge. As he was removed a little distance he was heard to utter something that sounded like a threat about killing.

Without further effort, however, he walked away, when Senator Bacon urged him to be quiet and led him toward the Democratic side. Bacon engaged Bailey in conversation for some time, advising him to cool down. Mr. Spooner also went across the aisle and discussed the matter with the Texas senator, urging him to apologize and if possible fix it up at once, but Bailey refused all such proffers, declaring that Beveridge had insulted him in the senate and that he had taken the only course left, as the Indiana senator had refused to withdraw his remarks.

Senator Beveridge remained in the chamber for some little time and continued to smoke his cigar. He remarked to those who spoke to him on the subject that it did not amount to anything. He made no effort to resist or resent the attack made on him.

Mr. Bailey had criticised the state department for its handling of the case of an American citizen, Dr. Scott, and reflected on the competency of Judge Penfield, solicitor of the department. Mr. Beveridge characterized the words of the Texas senator as an "unwarranted attack." This characterization Mr. Bailey regarded as an insult and demanded that the Indiana senator withdraw his words. Mr. Beveridge declined to withdraw them, unless Mr. Bailey first withdrew his language in respect to Solicitor Penfield, although he disclaimed any intention of insulting Mr. Bailey.

The trouble grew out of a resolution offered by Mr. Bailey calling for the papers in a Mexican mining case in which, he maintained, Dr. Scott had been unfairly treated, not only by the Mexican courts, but also by the American ambassador, Mr. Clayton, and the officials of the state department. Mr. Bailey declared Ambassador Clayton was either incompetent or dishonest, and his remarks led to some tart rejoinders.

Voluntary Increase In Wages

Indianapolis, July 1.—The street car company has increased the pay of motormen and conductors 1 cent an hour. This makes an increase in the payroll of the company of $25,000 a year. The increase was entirely unsolicited on the part of the men.

The Dinner Pail

Of the American working man is generally well filled. In some cases it is too well filled. It contains too many kinds of food, and very often the food is of the wrong kind—hard to digest and containing little nutrition. As a consequence many a working man develops some form of stomach trouble which interferes with his health and reduces his working capacity.

Where there is indigestion or any other indication of disease of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition, the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will almost invariably produce a perfect and permanent cure.

Mr. Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub Station C, Columbus, O., Box 103, writes: "I was taken with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble and my back got weak so I could scarcely get around. At last I had all the complaints at once, the more I doctored the worse I got until six years passed. I had become so poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to die, thinking that I could not be cured. Then one of my neighbors said, 'Take my advice and take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and make a new man out of yourself.' The first bottle helped me so I thought I would get another, and after I had taken eight bottles in about six weeks, I was weighed, and found I had gained twenty-seven (27) pounds. I am as stout and healthy to-day, I think, as I ever was."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PERIOD OF ANXIETY

Relieved by Queen's Appearance In Public

SEES THE COLONIAL TROOPS

Fighters From Remote Parts of the World Give Vigorous Cheers For Their Sovereign—King Continues to Maintain His Advancement

London, July 2.—The reappearance yesterday of Queen Alexandra as a participant in a public ceremony practically marks the end of the period of anxiety caused by King Edward's condition. Her presence at the review of the colonial troops by the Prince of Wales greatly increased public enthusiasm over what in itself was a picturesque and interesting event.

Upwards of 2500 colonials were brought in from the various encampments and marched through great crowds down Constitution hill, which was lined with troops, past Buckingham palace, and along the mall of the Horse Guards' parade. The contingent present represented all parts of the British empire with the exception of India, whose troops will be separately reviewed today. The Canadian detachment numbered 600 men, and was far the largest body on parade. The smallest detachment consisted of three natives of the Island of St. Lucia. Borneo, Ceylon, Fiji, the West Indies generally, Cyprus, the Gold coast, Nigeria, Uganda and other remote colonies were represented by native troops in clothing of a striking variety, while straight from the fighting line in South Africa were details from the Canadian scouts, Kitchener's horse, and contingents from a number of local levies raised during the war.

The queen's appearance while on her way from the palace to the Horse Guards was greeted with salvos of cheers, and she cheerily acknowledged the congratulations of the public at the uninterrupted progress of the king.

The queen was seated in an open carriage, beside her the Princess of Wales, and opposite her majesty were the Princess Victoria and Princess Charles of Denmark. Several carriages containing the Duke of Cambridge, the Duchess of Connaught and others followed.

The Prince of Wales was accompanied by the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince Frederick, Prince Charles of Denmark and their suites, and by the foreign attaches, including Major E. B. Cassatt, the United States military attache.

The troops marched past the queen's carriage, the Prince of Wales receiving the salutes. The queen then drove slowly in and out of the lines and the Prince of Wales closely inspected the troops and dismounted and conferred medals and crosses on those who had merited the honor, shaking hands with the recipients of the Victoria cross.

Then followed the most picturesque feature of the day. The Duke of Connaught, at the head of the troops and facing the Prince of Wales, gave the command, "The parade will give three cheers for the king." In a second the refrain was taken up and there rose cheers such as London seldom hears. Helmets, caps and campaign hats rose in waving confusion at the bayonet's point and the assembled crowds joined in with equal vigor. A man in the Canadian ranks shouted "and a tiger," at which the troops and crowd once more yelled themselves hoarse. It was the first occasion since the announcement of the king's illness that the general public had an opportunity to vent their feelings and the people took advantage of it.

After this the Life Guards rode up to the queen's carriage to the accompaniment of "God Save the King" and cheers, not unmingled with tears of the women, many of whom were deeply affected. The queen drove slowly past the troops to Buckingham palace, constantly bowing and smiling acknowledgments of the people's greetings. The Prince of Wales and the other members of the royal family followed, the colonials reformed in columns, and, amidst hearty cheers from the crowds, returned to their encampments.

The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham palace last evening:

"The advancement in the king's condition is maintained. His appetite is improving and the dressing of his wound is less painful. His majesty is still easily fatigued on the least exertion."

Yesterday afternoon the king completed the seventh day since the operation was performed, and unless any dangerous symptoms manifest themselves before the eighth day the king may be confidently expected to recover.

Railway Employes Assaulted and Cars Blocked In Pawtucket and Vicinity

Pawtucket, R. I., July 2.—The most riotous scenes enacted since the departure of the militia, 10 days ago, in connection with the street railway strike, were those last night in this city and in Central Falls.

Bonfires and other obstructions were placed on the tracks, missiles of all kinds were thrown at passing cars, and several shots were fired by the mob which lined the streets.

The attacks became so determined and general over the entire system in Central Falls that all cars were withdrawn early in the evening.

An organized mob invaded the vicinity of Pawtucket and East avenue and Garden street and every car was attacked, two employes of the railway company receiving severe injuries by being struck with stones.

The police made an effort to clear the streets and yards and their efforts were successful, although it was found necessary to abandon the service at 10 o'clock.

Two arrests, one of which by his confession may prove the means of disintegrating a particularly unruly mob, were made. A dozen persons in jail for stone throwing and for obstructing cars will be arraigned in the district court today.

Independents Join Coal Combine

Pittsburg, July 2.—The Dispatch says: Uniformity in the price of selling bituminous coal in the Pittsburg district has been established and the prospects are that an advance in price will soon be announced. This was decided at a secret meeting of the independent operators last night. The independents have finally fallen in line with the combines, and the finishing touches are to be put on the agreement at another meeting to be held a week hence.

BOLD THREATS MADE.

Unknown Would Kidnap Daughter or Burn House Unless $6,000 is Paid Over.

North Andover, Mass., July 2.—George G. Davis, a wealthy business man of Boston, who conducts a machine factory in this place, has placed in the hands of the local police evidence which appears to establish a case of attempt to secure money by threats of violence.

In a letter from Boston Mr. Davis was ordered to deliver $6000 in gold and notes to the writer between his house and the Catholic church. A police patrol of the road did not result in any arrest, as no suspicious looking person put in appearance; but next morning Mr. Davis was called up by telephone at his office and requested to explain. Mr. Davis notified the police of his second experience, and a careful investigation is in progress.

Mr. Davis last night gave The Associated Press a copy of the letter received by him. The postmark on the envelope showed that the letter was mailed in Boston at 4:30 p. m., June 26, andd it was received by Mr. Davis the following morning, Friday, at 8 o'clock. The letter, which bore no signature, was as follows:

"June 26.

"You don't want your girl adrift in the slums of New York, do you?

"Dear Sir: When you receive this, don't be surprised. If you value your life, don't show it to a single soul, and if you don't want to lose your young daughter you had better do as this letter says. There are three of us, and we have got to leave for Europe July 5, and we want $6000, $2000 each; and, so help me God, if you don't give it to us I will shoot you as quick as I would look at you, or even burn your d—— house over your head. We need the money, and ask for a small $6000 because we have got to get out of the country. One of us is watching you now, and any attempt to go away or even tell the police will finish you, old man. We need that money and we are going to get it, even if we have to go and break into your room to get you. You might as well give it to us, for you don't want your wife to come back from Europe and no home to come to, do you?

"We have discovered your room by your shadow on the curtain, and if you want to try us and won't send the money, why, d—— you, I will put a rifle ball through your window when you go to bed tomorrow night (Friday).

"Now, then, for the money. Your coachman has a young boy, I see, about 15 or 16, and you can do the money up in a bundle and let him leave your house 8:30 Friday night, the 27th, and walk down Main street to the Catholic church, and one of us will meet him. Tell him if nobody asks him for the bundle to walk back the same way to your house again, and if you have anyone watching there tell the boy to be careful, for if anyone tries to catch our man there will be some shooting. If you don't want any notoriety send the money and this letter with the boy, half gold, the rest in small bills. Don't forget to send this letter back with the money. You can give the boy any excuse you wish. If you don't send the money, say your prayers, for you are not the first one we have killed, by any means, and your old carcass don't amount to much to us.

"Six thousand dollars tomorrow night, Friday, the 27th. Put some good strong paper around the money, the gold in a bag. Tie it all together. Let the boy leave your house at 8:30, go down Main street to the front of the Catholic church, Friday night, the 27th.

"It would be easy to pop you off going to your office, then get the girl. Your wife would give $20,000 to get her back. Your town is very quiet in the daytime. Send $6000 by the coachman's boy tomorrow, Friday night, at 8:30 (half past eight), and not tell a soul, and we will be off to Europe next week and you won't ever hear from us again. $6000."

The letter was written on ordinary cheap note paper, in a disguised hand.

The police have not yet been able to find any clue as to the identity of the person who wrote the letter. Mr. Davis' house and place are being guarded night and day by the local police, and Davis and his men servants are armed with revolvers.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation here. Davis' wife and an older daughter have been in Europe over a month.

Good Afternoon.

It is unusual for Henry H. Faxon to go into figures or to write to such length as in today's issue, and his comparison of the town in 1885 with the city of 1901 represents a considerable patient research which is valuable.

It must be admitted that the comparison is astonishing, and that while the growth in population has been rapid, the expenses of the city have increased out of all proportion, either to population or valuation. And Mr. Faxon holds that the valuation is excessive.

That the city is on the "verge of bankruptcy," as claimed by Mr. Faxon, cannot be maintained. The total debt on Jan. 1, this year, for all purposes was $1,566,635.64, which is a big sum, but the Assessors valued the school buildings owned by the city at $523,725.00; and the city also has a city hall, police station, fire stations and apparatus, almshouse, bathhouse, etc., worth about $300,000 more; to these are to be added a water system worth $1,000,000; a sewer system worth several hundred thousands; parks, playgrounds and real estate worth over $200,000, etc., etc.

While the assets are double the liabilities, it cannot be charged that the city is on the verge of bankruptcy, but at the same time the increasing taxes are a burden on real estate, so that it is not profitable for investment or rental. There may be other causes besides taxation, including assessments for sewers, sidewalks, street sprinkling and water rates; increased cost of materials, shorter hours of labor, etc., but nevertheless real estate needs relief from high valuation, and the outlook is not encouraging.

The increase in cost of all city departments, and numerous improvements, are at a too rapid pace; almost a reckless pace. It may be said that Quincy is not an exception, but the recent statistics prepared by a Boston department show that we are. That only four cities have a larger per cent. of net debt to assessed valuation, and if the valuation is higher than it should be, the situation is even worse. This year the Mayor went to the limit on amount which could be appropriated for current expenses, and the limit for municipal debt has been reached, so that as fast as one note is paid another is contracted. Outside the debt limit the city has borrowed extensively for water, sewers and playgrounds.

The advantage of having a Quincy member of the Norfolk County Commissioners is shown by the insertion of Quincy granite in the specifications for the new $200,000 Registry building for which proposals are asked. Of late Quincy quarrymen have received better prices for stock for monumental purposes and have not catered for building work, but here is an opportunity to again enter the building field. Years ago Quincy granite was extensively used for buildings, and in this city we have the City Hall, Unitarian church and Police station built of it, and in the Quincy Savings Bank building, High school and other schools it is used with good effect for trimmings and entrances. In Boston the post office building, the custom house, the old court house, old Trinity church, and other buildings are of Quincy granite; also custom houses at New Orleans, Mobile, Savannah, Portland, and San Francisco; exchanges at New York, San Francisco and elsewhere; and courthouses, dry docks, etc. The new Norfolk registry should be of Quincy granite. Marshall P. Wright is making a valuable County Commissioner.

In point of attendance the Washington school of Quincy Point has not as good a claim to new school building as some of the other districts The report of attendance, published today, shows an average of but 270, or 34 to a room. The Coddington has an average attendance of 359 or 45 to a room.

The advertisement of W. E. Burke for houses to let and the statement that there is a "great demand" indicate a rapid growth in population, and suggest an opportunity for investment in providing houses.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ One of the most attractive spots in the Public Gardens in Boston is the sand garden which runs the length of the garden on Boylston street. Here are boxes and piles of sand where every hour of the day and way into the evening are found scores of happy children, busy making mud pies and building castles. The benefit in happiness and health, derived from these few loads of sand cannot be measured.

☞ When the United States government shall buy the coal fields of America, and operate them in the name of all the people, there will be no more strikes. Miners will be paid living wages for fair hours of work. Coal consumers will escape the regular annual gouge. Boys who are now forced into the mines before either body or mind is fit for the task, to eke out with their pitiful wages the meager earnings of their fathers, will then be kept in school to learn the lessons of useful citizenship. It has several thousand times the amount of wealth needed for the transaction. When will it acquire the common sense?—Frank Putnam, in July National.

☞ It would be worth while recording if it were possible that the rooter had been extinguished with other things more worthy of life. The practice which has gone on increasing and increasing, until it has become an actual discourtsey, of yelling a game through to the finish should be abandoned. It is picturesque, from the cowboy point of view, and would appeal with strange emotion to howling Dervishes, but from the standpoint of intercollegiate athletics it is not baseball. We shall bail with crown and jewels the baseball administration which drives the leaders in cheering from the field, and makes natural and easy those demonstrations of encouragement which used to characterize these meetings. It is time the rooter was disposed of. He is a nuisance and an exempler of bad manners.—New Haven Regiser.

The advertisement of Edwin R. Shunk, Judge Avery finds upon the testimony that he came to his death April 4 in consequence of various wounds and fractures of the body caused by being struck by a railroad locomotive of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., about 8 30 A. M., a short distance south of the Wollaston station. The said Shunk, just before the time of hi death, was driving an express wagon. He handed the reins to a companion, jumped the fence, ran down the embankment and then ran toward the coming train, not paying attention to the warning whistle. Just a few feet before the train reached him he turned his back to the engine. He was thrown to the track and rolled over and over underneath the train. The whole train passed over him. I find that in all probability he was actuated by suicide intent, and that he placed himself intentionally in front of the train, and that there was no criminal negligence on the part of any other person which in any way contributed to his death.

Birthday Party.

A very enjoyable evening was spent Monday at the home of Miss Louise Hinckley, Billings street, Atlantic, the party being in honor of her fifteenth birthday. Miss Hinckley was remembered by her many friends with a silver chain. David Moffat made the presentation speech and Miss Hinckley gracefully responded. During the evening games were played and a dainty collation was served. Among those present were: Ruth Pratt, Helen L. Curtin, Lettie M. Burke, Louisa W. Hinckley, Ethel Hill, Mabel Sawyer, Martha Jenkins, Florence Hill, Edna Stainford, Bertha M. Nichols, David Moffat, Charles B. Hoxie, Adin P. Wilde, Ernest Moore, Howard Terril, Clifford M. Snow, Harry Hinkley, Perley Blanchard, Horace Jenkins and Henry Swanson.

Quincy's Opportunity.

The plans of Peabody & Stearns, architects for the new Norfolk registry of deeds building, at Dedham, have been approved, and bids are now asked. The exterior material called for is the best quality of light Quincy granite. Will Quincy granite manufacturers rise to the opportunity, or do they prefer to remain, as in the past twenty-five years, almost exclusively monumental workers? Bids for other light granites will also be considered by the Commissioners. The proposals will be opened July 29.

The appropriation for the building is $200,000, and the contract will not be awarded unless the building can be erected within that sum.

Free Delivery in Milton.

Milton has been added to the Boston postal district, and will have free delivery. Ralph C. Dunham, who was formerly postmaster has been appointed superintendent of the Milton station.

BOTH SUICIDAL.

Findings on Thorndike and Shunk Inquests.

Judge Avery has made the following findings as a result of inquests held before him on the death of Eva M. Thorndike of Weymouth and Edwin R. Shunk of Wollaston.

In the case of the Thorndike woman he finds that she came to her death at Weymouth, Feb. 25, in consequence of loss of blood caused by the opening of a large vein in the left forearm and the partial severance of an artery at the bend of the left elbow. The circumstances attending death and the preparations made by the deceased just prior thereto indicate a premeditated suicide.

It appears that the body of Eva M. Thorndike was found by Samuel Drew in an outbuilding on the premises of Henry T. Bicknell at about 7 o'clock in the morning. At this time the woman was still alive though unconscious, and she died a short time afterwards. Against the door of the bed room occupied by the deceased, was a table to bar entrance from without. The bed appeared to be undisturbed but when examined it was found that a rubber sheet had been placed thereon and a large quantity of clotted blood was disclosed. A new knife, very sharp, covered with blood was on the bed. The left sleeve of the night dress, carefully cut off, was found on the bed. A window in the room was open, underneath which, on the outside, were marks or impressions in the snow, indicating that the deceased had fallen onto her right side. On the snow were imprints of her bare feet with traces of blood extending to a fence some yards away, and from this point on, there were impressions in the snow which indicated that she had drawn herself to the outbuilding where she was subsequently found.

It does not appear that her death was caused wholly or in part from the unlawful act of any other person or persons. I find that the wounds which were the proximate cause of death were inflicted by her own hand.

In the case of Edwin R. Shunk, Judge Avery finds upon the testimony that he came to his death April 4 in consequence of various wounds and fractures of the body caused by being struck by a railroad locomotive of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., about 8 30 A. M., a short distance south of the Wollaston station. The said Shunk, just before the time of hi death, was driving an express wagon. He handed the reins to a companion, jumped the fence, ran down the embankment and then ran toward the coming train, not paying attention to the warning whistle. Just a few feet before the train reached him he turned his back to the engine. He was thrown to the track and rolled over and over underneath the train. The whole train passed over him. I find that in all probability he was actuated by suicide intent, and that he placed himself intentionally in front of the train, and that there was no criminal negligence on the part of any other person which in any way contributed to his death.

Presentation.

About twenty of the Park and Downs society assembled in the church one evening recently for the purpose of presenting their pastor a beautiful Morris arm chair. Rev. Henry G. Megathlin modestly and with surprise accepted the gift which was entirely unexpected. Mrs. Megathlin received in addition a beautiful bouquet of pinks. Rev. Rufus A. Tobey sent a letter which was read by Mr. Farwell. Mr. Tobey spoke quite humorously of Mr. Megathlin whom he has known for years. He spoke of the advancement which the latter had gained since his early association with him. He also quite pleasantly referred to the time when he united Mr. and Mrs. Megathlin in marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Megathlin were greatly pleased with their gift and responded graciously after which a reception with light refreshments followed.

TOWN AND CITY.

Faxon Writes on Rapidly Increasing Expenses.

Comparisons of 1885 and 1901.

Population Doubled but Expenses Increased Five-Fold.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The number of orders and petitions that are constantly being presented to the City Council calling for money for all sorts of purposes, causes many to ask, how long must this reckless expenditure continue before the taxpayers will rise up and demand a halt?

Quincy today is on the verge of bankruptcy. Every heavy taxpayer knows it. Year after year valuations are jacked up in an endeavor to keep the tax rate down, and furnish the money necessary to run our city. If property today was assessed as it should be, and relieve the city of its debt, the tax rate would be nearer $30 per $1000 than $17.60. A low tax rate may blind some people, but those who pay the taxes know that just so long as we continue our present reckless extravagance, just so long will taxes be burdensome. When we were under a town form of government everybody had a voice in the expenditure of money. Appropriations then were thoroughly discussed and made on merit. Now we delegate that power to a body of twenty-three men, many of whom lack business ability, and trades are not infrequently made in order to carry through some pet scheme.

Of course all of the expenditures are recorded in the city book, which makes its appearance several months after the money is gone. How many of our population of 25,000 ever see a city book? Comparatively few, and half of those who see it, do not read it understandingly. They see a confused mass of figures that would puzzle anyone but an expert.

How many citizens realize that in 1901 $71,098.57 was expended in various ways upon our streets, outside of street watering and lights. How much better are our streets today than in 1885 when but $20,263.07 were expended? Do our citizens realize that last year our police department cost $13,588.57 in addition to $2,545.59 expended toward the new police station? That our fire department, that makes such a spectacular show, cost $32,947.86 to maintain? That the sewer department expended $62,276.71, and the water department $54,441.10? That $13,022.00 was expended for sidewalks and that interest on borrowed money amounted to $64,895.49, while in 1885 but $2,389.36 was paid for interest.

You ask in wonder, how is it possible to expend so much money and have so little to show for it? Look at the big army of political bums and hangers on that are being supported in luxury by the taxpayers, and then will you wonder that valuations, especially on real estate, are beyond all reason.

Just think, in 1885 with a population of 12,145 the total expenditures were $181,447.09. In 1901 with a population of 25,000 the total expenditures were $1,097,710.59, an increase of $916,263.50 in fifteen years. Our population has only doubled during this time yet our expenses have increased five fold.

In 1885 the largest salary paid any one official was $800. In 1901 the largest salary was $2400. In 1885 George L. Gill, the town clerk, received $50 for his services. In 1901 we paid the city clerk $1200 and gave him an assistant at an expense of $420. In 1885 the selectmen also acted as assessors, overseers of the poor and surveyors of highways. We paid them $800 each or $2400. In 1901 the salary of the mayor, assessors, overseer of the poor and commissioner of public works cost us $5,964.61 besides $2,453.18 for clerk hire. In 1885 the total amount paid for salaries of town officials was $3,815.00. In 1901 the sum paid for salaries of city officials was $18,290.00, and for clerk hire $4,169.68. This does not include the small army of foremen, inspectors and other feeders on the city treasury whose names or salaries do not appear in the city book, but who are there just the same under that mysterious and misleading head called "Pay roll."

It is interesting as well as instructive to compare the expenditures of 1885 and 1901 side by side, and it will also open the eyes of the taxpayers. Too much time would be required for the ordinary mortal to take the reports and summarize the different amounts paid for streets, sidewalks, etc., as they are scattered all through the auditor's and treasurer's reports. That the public may see how the money goes, I have prepared the following table taken from the town book for the year ending February 1, 1886, and the city book for the year ending January 1, 1902. Every item can be verified by referring to these books.

In view of the financial condition of our city, as shown by the foregoing data, one thing must be apparent to all readers of this article, viz., that men of sounder business qualifications and those of sterling integrity of character must be elected as members of our City Councils of the future. Many of those who have had the management of our municipal affairs are not capable of running a peanut stand without getting financially involved.

AT NAVY YARDS.

One or More Warships to be Built There.

One and perhaps all of the battleships just ordered by Congress will be built at government yards, and may strike a blow to the Fore River and other large private shipyards. A special to the Herald says:

After one of the most prolonged and determined contests over an item in a naval appropriation bill waged for many years, the Senate conferees on Tuesday yielded to the House and accepted its provision for the construction of a 16,000-ton battleship at one ot the navy yards to be selected by the secretary of the navy.

The conferees have disagreed on this subject for several days and were as far apart as ever when they again assembled Tuesday morning to compromise the difficulty and allow the bill to be passed.

The Senate committee on naval affairs, backed by the unanimous opinion of the the naval experts and the secretary, have insisted that no warships should be built at navy yards and that the practice followed since the development of the navy began of awarping contracts to private yards should be continued with the new program of increase.

Powerful commercial influences have been exerted by boards of trade and other bodies to secure the building of warships at the various yards, but have been met by steadfast opposition from the navy department, which has declared that no warships can be built as cheaply or in the same time as they can be at the private stations.

The disputed question finally settled in conferences Tuesday provides for building of the largest battleship yet designed for the navy, and probably the most powerful ship in the world, at one of the first class navy yards, and opens at once a contest between Boston, New York, Norfolk and Mare Island for the privilege of undertaking the experiment, as well as control of the political patronage which may be at the disposal of the congressional delegation of the state in which the yard is located.

It is still further provided in the same section of the bill that should the secretary of the navy find that a combination exists among shipbuilders in bidding on the other vessels, two armored cruisers, a battleship and two gunboats, that they shall also be built at navy yards.

The delicate question is therefore placed before the department of judging whether or not a combination does exist when bids are opened, which, it is declared, will be exceedingly difficult to determine.

The building of such a great ship will mark a policy in the history of the new navy's upbuilding that may be adhered to in the future if the experiment proves a success, and lead to the adopted of the plan followed by Great Britain and other great powers of constructing a large part of their floating fighting force at government navy yards. The shipbuilders will unquestionably meet any such tendency on the part of Congress with all the powerful influences they are capable of exerting.

A surprising feature of the conferees' action is that, considering the wide and strong opposition, the present plan should have finally prevailed. The navy department's opposition is not confined to the secretary and his predecessor, Mr. Long, but includes every bureau chief and officer of rank stationed at the department. Their objections are on the sound theory, they claim, that no ship can be built as cheaply at navy yards, where the men work but eight hours a day for the same wages that men are paid who work nine and 10 hours a day at private yards, and that in addition navy yard workmen are granted 15 days' leave annually, and have all the holidays with full pay.

The further objection is made that the building of a ship at a navy yard will interfere with any large amount of repair work that may be required there.

Should the claim of the experts and the bureau chiefs that it will cost at least 25 per cent. more to build a warship at a navy yard than under private contract prove true, the experiment will naturally be most costly and in the case of the 16,000-ton vessel would bring the total price of the ship completed to not less than $6,500,000 as compared to about $5,000,000 under yard contract.

Rear Admiral Bowles, the navy's chief constructor, and Rear Admiral Melville, the engineer in chief, are both strong advocates of maintaining the present policy of leaving ship building subject to contract in the open market, and have only repair work performed at the navy yards, for which, they assert, the navy yards were originally intended.

The New York yard, as the best equipped station, will probably be the yard selected for constructing the new vessel. Provision is made in the bill for $175,000 to purchase additional tools and machinery which may be necessary at any yard building the new vessels.

THING OF THE PAST.

No More Municipal Conventions in Quincy.

Quincy and all other cities of the Commonwealth will hereafter nominate all candidates for elective city offices under the new Luce bill, so called, an act to provide for direct nomination in cities. The bill was several times curtailed and amended during its passage through the Legislature, but as approved June 28 reads as follows:

Section 1. Every nomination by a political party of a candidate for representative in the general court, or any elective city office except a member of the school committee of Boston, to be voted for only in two or more wards in one city, shall be made in caucuses by direct plurality vote.

Section 2. All ballots and returns for such candidates shall be returned by the clerks of the several caucuses as ballots and returns of elections in such cities are returned, and the city clerk with the registrars of voters, or in Boston the election commissions, shall determine and tabulate the results of all such ballots and returns, shall certify to the facts required by law in certificates for nomination of representatives to the general court, and shall file such certificates with the secretary of the Commonwealth on or before the Thursday designated by law therefor. The secretary of the Commonwealth shall place on the official ballots to be used at the state election the names of all candidates for representatives nominated as aforesaid; and the city clerk, or in Boston the election commissioners, shall place on the official ballots to be used at municipal elections the names of all candidates nominated as aforesaid.

Sect. 3. Where nomination papers for candidates at caucuses are required by law such papers shall, for nominations under this act, be signed by a number of voters equal in the aggregate to not less than five for each ward in the city or district. Such voters shall be members of the political party holding the caucus and they shall add to their signatures the street and number, if any, of their residences.

Sect. 4. All provisions of law relative to caucuses of political parties shall, so far as applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, apply to caucuses at which direct nominations are made as herein provided.

Sect. 5. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved June 28, 1902.

Hereafter candidates for party nominations, both Republican and Democratic, will be balloted for direct in the ward caucuses, and the two candidates receiving the most votes, whether a majority or not, will become the nominees for Representatives.

For Mayor and Councilmen at large, votes will be taken in caucuses in each ward for all who have been placed in nomination therefor, and the candidate for Mayor receiving the largest vote will become the party candidate, and the five candidates at large who receive the most votes for Councilmen, will be the nominees of the party. The candidate for School Committee at large will be nominated the same way.

The new law promises to make the fall elections more interesting.

Arraigned for Murder.

The charge against Louis Disbrow at Good Ground, Long island, on Tuesday was wilful murder of Clarence Foster and "Dimple" Lawrence, the latter a daughter of Mrs. Sarah Lawrence, a summer resident of Squantum, and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. George Schiller.

Disbrow has not spoken and he will not be permitted by his counsel to speak. The prosecution must present its facts and unless the unforseen happens, Disbrow will make no reply. He does not believe a conviction can be obtained against him, except from his own evidence. Remarkable interest has been aroused in this case which involves love, hatred, passion, revenge and remorse. At Riverhead, at Quogue, at Good Ground and at Southampton, crowds gathered and jostled, all clamoring for a glimpse of the frail youth who has brought keen sorrow on at least five families.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Cornors, Arthur Smith and John Wright were arraigned for disturbing the peace at Weymouth. Cases continued until July 16.

The liquors seized from James St. Onge at Quincy were forfeited.

LIBERTY TREE ★ ★

.... By Thomas Paine

Written In 1775

In a chariot of light from the regions of day
The Goddess of Liberty came;
Ten thousand celestials directed the way
And hither conducted the dame.
A fair budding branch from the gardens above,
Where millions with millions agree,
She brought in her hand as a pledge of her love,
And the plant she named Liberty Tree.

The celestial exotic struck deep in the ground,
Like a native it flourished and bore;
The fame of its fruit drew the nations around
To seek out this peaceful shore.
Unmindful of names or distinction they came,
For freedom like brothers agree;
With one spirit indued they one friendship pursued,
And their temple was Liberty Tree.

Beneath this fair tree, like the patriarchs of old,
Their bread in contentment they ate,
Unvexed with the troubles of silver and gold,
The cares of the grand and the great.
With timber and tar they old England supplied
And supported her power on the sea;
Her battles they fought, without getting a groat,
For the honor of Liberty Tree.

But hear, oh, ye swains, 'tis a tale most profane,
How all the tyrannical powers,
Kings, commons and lords, are uniting amain
To cut down this guardian of ours.
From the east to the west blow the trumpet to arms;
Through the land let the sound of it flee;
Let the far and the near all unite with a cheer
In defense of our Liberty Tree.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

His Only Regret Was That He Had Missed So Much.

It was the evening after the Fourth, as the glorious sun was sinking to its gorgeous couch of red and white clouds and blue sky, and the small boy, packed in cotton lint and a splint or two, was lying with his face to the west, while his father sat by his side fanning him. He was doing as well as could be expected and was already able to talk.

"Papa," he said in a dreamy, languorous tone, "did they have a Fourth of July when you was a little boy?"

"Oh, yes, my son," answered the father.

"Just the same kind they have now?"

"Just the same."

"And did you celebrate when you was a little boy?"

"Yes, but I was more careful than you were and didn't get hurt so."

"I guess you didn't have much fun, did you?" he asked, trying to turn toward his father.

The father looked at the combination of bandages and boy on the bed and smiled.

"I thought I did, but perhaps I was mistaken," he replied.

At this point the doctor came in and made it unpleasant for the boy for some minutes. Then he went away, and the boy sniffled awhile and resumed conversation with his father.

"Is the Fourth going to keep on every year?" he asked.

"There's nothing on earth can stop it, I guess," replied the father with patriotic pride.

"That's good, ain't it?"

"We all think so in this country."

"And how long since it started?" persisted the boy, who should have been trying to go to sleep.

"Ever since 1776—about 135 years."

A shade of disappointment swept over the boy's face.

"Gee, pop," he exclaimed, "how much I've missed!" And then the father insisted that he must stop talking and try to get some much needed rest.—Washington Star.

A Delicate Remonstrance.

"When I get to be a man," said the boy who has a good memory for phrases, "I'm going to strive to cultivate an unselfish nature."

"That's right," replied his father. "How are you going about it?"

"Well, in the first place, if I have any little boys I'll let them shoot their own fireworks instead of telling them they must let me do it for fear they will hurt themselves."—Washington Star.

Merchants' Savings Bank Shown to Be a Complete Wreck

Providence, July 2.—A deplorable state of affairs was revealed yesterday in the report of the commission appointed by Governor Kimball, after the attempted suicide of Cashier Anthony S. Sherman, to inquire into the standing of the Merchants' bank of Newport. A more complete wreck is scarcely conceivable. The deficit is shown to be $326,093.49; and, aside from the bank property, which is valued at $8800, scarcely $1600 worth of value remains. The entire amount of cash on hand out of the $322,565 worth of capital stock and deposits was only $150.64. No further attachments will be placed on the property and steps will immediately be taken to place the bank in liquidation.

Cashier Sherman shot himself on June 19, and died a week later. Immediately after the attempt at suicide the stockholders petitioned Governor Kimball to appoint a commission which should determine the exact state of affairs, and this request was readily acceded to. The depositors will lose practically everything, and whether the deficiency shown to exist in the bank covers the entire peculations has not yet been determined for the reason that no statement as to Cashier Sherman's personal accounts is available. It is understood that a large amount of money was given over to the cashier at various times for investment.

Attachments on Plant Property

New Haven, July 2.—Incident to the suit brought against the executors of the Henry B. Plant estate by C. E. and H. G. Hoadley of Waterbury, who are contesting the removal of the Plant property to New York, an attachment was placed yesterday on $17,000,000 in stock held by the Plant Investment company. This company is owner of the Plant system of railways and steamships. Attachments amounting to $100,000 have been placed also in the same suit on real estate of the late millionaire in Connecticut.

Edge Trimmers' Complaint

Brockton, Mass., July 2.—Edge trimmers in the employ of the Field Hazzard company, shoe manufacturers, left the factory yesterday on strike. The firm introduced gauges a few days ago for measuring the edges after trimming, requiring the employes to do it. They claim that the additional time consumed will make a difference of $1 a day in their wages and asked for an advance of 5 cents a case, which was denied. The present price is 40 cents a case.

Want Liquor Law Enforced

Rockland, Me., July 2.—A spirited convention was held here yesterday by representatives of Knox county citizens who desire to have the prohibitory liquor law enforced with vigor. After adopting resolutions condemning the Republican party for the way the law has been applied Edward S. Vose was nominated for sheriff. It is the plan to have his candidacy endorsed by the Prohibition county convention.

SINGING AND CHEERING

Enlivened the House Upon Its Adjournment

THE SPECTATORS CHIMED IN

Speaker Henderson Thanks Congressmen and Congratulates Them Upon Their Good Work—Senate Adjourns In Its Customary Sedate Manner

Washington, July 2.—Amid a scene of enthusiasm that has not been paralelled since the exciting and stirring days of the Spanish war, Speaker Henderson at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon declared the house of representatives adjourned without day. In doing so he said that no house of representatives since the adoption of the constitution had done as much work as this one.

The audience to which he made his brief address was a brilliant one. The galleries were banked to the doors and almost two-thirds of the members were in their seats on the floor. The speaker's appreciative words to the members in thanking them for their co-operation during the session touched a responsive chord and they gave him a remarkable demonstration of their friendship and good will.

While the cheering and applause were still in progress the members on the floor began singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." It was taken up by the correspondents in the press gallery and by the spectators in the surrounding galleries and soon the vast hall was ringing with the swelling chorus. Other patriotic airs followed as the members exchanged farewells. "The Star Spangled Banner" alternating with "Dixie."

The speaker came down from his rostrum, his appearance on the floor being greeted with "For he's a jolly good fellow" and a perfect rush of members to grasp his hand. Standing in the area in front of the clerk's desk, he too, joined in the songs, and there was a wild scene when General Hooker of Mississippi, the old one-armed Confederate veteran, took his place by the side of the speaker and together they sang "Dixie."

Mr. Chandler, a Mississippi Democrat, jumped upon a desk and let out a yell of jubilation that fairly shook the rafters. For almost half an hour the jubilation continued. All this time the spectators remained standing in the galleries watching the animated scene below and joining in the singing.

The adjournment came at the end of a 7½ hours' session, during which much minor business was transacted. In all 70 bills and resolutions were passed. The general good feeling in the house had been heightened by the victory won over the senate on the item in the naval appropriation bill for the building of a battleship in a government yard.

The closing hour was occupied with a spirited debate between Mr. Cousins of Iowa and Mr. Richardson, the Democratic leader, over the report on the investigation into the charges made by Captain Christmas concerning the sale of the Danish West Indies. Mr. Cousins ridiculed Mr. Richardson for bringing the matter to the attention of congress. The latter defended his course.

After a session marked by some of the stormiest debates ever heard in the American congress, the senate adjourned sine die at 5:30. During the last hours of the session there was a tart debate on the Philippine question participated in by Messrs. Carmack, Spooner, Culberson, McComas and Lodge.

The conference report on the Philippine government bill was adopted without very serious opposition and then, when the decks of the senate were cleared for adjournment, Mr. Carmack called up his resolution providing for a continuance of the investigation of the Philippine committee and for a visit to the Philippine islands by the committee during the present summer. This started trouble and for more than an hour a battle of words was waged. Mr. Spooner delivered a scathing denunciation of the minority of the Philippine committee for what he declared was an attack upon the American army.

Mr. Carmack denied that any attack had been made upon the army and declared that any fool could charge such a calumny and any parrot could be taught to repeat it.

The resolution was referred to a committee, thus effectually killing it.

Just before adjournment, the usual resolutions were adopted, including one offered by Mr. Cockrell, the venerable Democrat of Missouri, cordially thanking President Pro Tempore Frye for "the dignified, impartial and courteous manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the senate."

After the adoption of the resolution, Mr. Frye delivered a feeling response and then declared the senate adjourned without day.

No Semblance of Bribery

Washington, July 2.—The report of the special committee of the house of representatives which investigated the charges in connection with the purchase of the Danish West India islands, shows that "there is not the slightest semblance of evidence that any member of congress, either directly or indirectly, was offered or received any bribe or was paid any valuable consideration of any kind or character to vote for or assist in procuring the proposal, adoption, or ratification of a treaty of sale of the Danish West Indian islands to the United States."

BUFFALO IS EXCITED

Over the Arrest of a Chinaman Who Is Charged With Killing a Child

Buffalo, July 2.—Charley We, Chinese laundryman, is held on a charge in connection with the murder of Mary Murphy, 6 years old, who mysteriously disappeared on June 17 and whose body, bound with ropes and wrapped in newspapers and coarse cotton cloth, was found floating in a small pond in Forest Lawn cemetery. The autopsy showed that the little girl had been outraged and strangled.

Public feeling runs high and every Chinese laundry in the city has been closed and policemen stationed in front of them. The officers who reported at the various police stations last night after being on duty all day were ordered to remain for reserve duty.

Chief of Detectives Cusack and three officers made the arrest yesterday afternoon. We's place was thoroughly searched and the police say they found ample evidence on which to hold the man. Pieces of rope similar to that found on the body were found in the shop. The coarse cotton goods used in the laundry for the purpose of covering ironing boards corresponds exactly in texture with the piece of cloth found on the body of the girl. In a room upstairs which was used by We as a bed chamber, the police found blood stained bedclothing. The wall behind the bed was bespattered with blood.

A second Chinaman who was visiting We at the time the arrest was made was also taken into custody.

Bills Signed by President

Washington, July 2.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Secretaries Hay, Shaw, Moody, Hitchcock and Wilson and Postmaster General Payne went to the Capitol yesterday in order to facilitate the work of congress, and in his room in the senate wing of the Capitol the president signed the Philippine civil government bill, the naval appropriation bill and other measures that went through in the closing hours of congress.

Gaynor and Greene May Go Free

Quebec, July 2.—The extradition proceedings against Colonel Gaynor and Captain Greene, the two American contractors and fugitives from justice in connection with the wholesale frauds alleged to have been perpetrated on the United States government, are fast drawing to a close. Legal men predict that the accused will be tried at Quebec and be accorded their liberty.

Senators Going to Hawaii

Washington, July 2.—Acting in accordance with a resolution recently adopted by the senate a sub-committee was appointed yesterday to visit Hawaii during the recess of congress for the purpose of making an inquiry concerning conditions in that territory. The sub-committee consists of Messrs. Mitchell, Foster, Burton, Cockrell and Blackburn.

Lipton Sued For Commissions

New York, July 2.—Application was made yesterday in the United States court for a summons in a suit brought by David M. Barrie against Sir Thomas Lipton. Barrie was American agent for Lipton, but recently he terminated his business relations with the Lipton corporation. Barrie claims $7000 in commissions from Lipton.

Washington, July 2.—The terms of the general amnesty proclamation to the Filipinos have met the approval of Acting Governor Wright of the Philippines, to whom they were submitted for inspection. Its general terms already have been stated.

Newfoundland Is Prospering

St. Johns, July 2.—The colonial revenue for the financial year ending June 30 was the largest in the history of the colony. It amounts to almost $2,200,000 and is $120,000 in excess of the revenue for the preceding fiscal year. A large surplus is certain.

Regulars Will Be Last to Leave

London, July 2.—The war office has issued plans for the demobilization of the army in South Africa which show that there are 70,000 volunteers, colonial troops, yeomanry, reservists, etc., to be sent home before any of the regulars are moved.

Drastic Measure Adopted

London, July 2.—Owing to the continuance of incendiary fires at the royal military college at Sandhurst, Lord Roberts has given the cadets 48 hours to deliver up the culprits, failing which all the cadets will be "rusticated."

Want Roosevelt Again

St. Paul, July 2.—Minnesota Republicans yesterday nominated Samuel R. Van Zant for governor and a full state ticket. A specific endorsement of President Roosevelt for re-election was embodied in the platform.

Cambon May Be Transferred

Paris, July 2.—The Figaro this morning intimates that coming changes in the French diplomatic service may possibly include the transfer of Jules Cambon, the French ambassador at Washington, to Berlin.

KING EDWARD PLEASED

At the Expressions of Loyalty From Indian Troops

HEARD MUSIC AND CHEERS

As He Lay In Bed In Palace— Queen Alexandra Witnessed the Review and Prince of Wales Represented His Father In an Official Capacity

London, July 3.—King Edward has passed another good day. The quiet and routine of the royal sick-room was varied yesterday by the excitement of listening to the music and cheers of the Indian troops as they marched past the palace and greeted Queen Alexandra on the balcony.

King Edward demanded a full account of the review and the formal report made by the Prince of Wales was supplemented by the personal narrative of the queen. The king dictated a letter to the Duke of Connaught commanding him to compliment the colonial troops upon their excellent appearance and to thank them for their expressions of loyalty and sympathy which he had heard with pleasure in his sick-room.

King Edward was somewhat disappointed that he was not able to see the march past of the troops. He had hoped that this would be possible from an invalid couch in a window of the palace, but the king's doctors were unwilling that their patient should risk this exposure and excitement, and his majesty had to content himself with hearing the troops without seeing them.

The review of the East Indian troops was largely a repetition of Wednesday's function, but the varied coloring of the uniforms of representative corps from all parts of Hindustan formed an altogether most picturesque spectacle. Queen Alexandra was again the central figure of the proceedings, and the public welcomed the opportunity to testify once more its sympathy with her on account of her recent anxiety, and its congratulations at the continued good news regarding King Edward's condition.

The review procedure of Wednesday was followed. About 1300 dark-skinned troops, headed by a detachment of the bodyguard of the viceroy of India, reached the Horse Guards' parade to the strains of Sousa's "Hands Across the Sea." Members of the royal family traversed the lines of the soldiers of the Indian empire; the Prince of Wales, representing the king, standing by the side of his mother's carriage, took the salute, and the proceedings ended with cheers for the king, led by the Duke of Connaught, the Indians drawing their swords and waving them wildly as they joined in the cheering.

On returning to the palace the queen appeared at an upper window and took several snapshots of the Indian troops as they marched past on their return to camp. The Indians recognized the queen-empress and each detachment cheered as it passed.

The British fleet, which assembled off Spithead for the proposed coronation review, dispersed yesterday.

At a late hour last night the king's improvement continued. It was announced that he had partaken of a fairly good dinner and smoked a cigar.

The Prince and Princess of Wales gave a brilliant dinner party at York house last night in honor of the visiting Indian princes.

A unique and impressive scene was witnessed in St. Paul's cathedral last evening, when some 2000 physicians assembled beneath the dome of the building and offered prayers for the king's recovery. Many of the doctors wore their academic robes. A litany was sung in procession, the doctors joining in the singing. At the conclusion of the service the congregation sent a message to Queen Alexandra expressing its fervent wishes for his majesty's speedy recovery.

Shipping Combine Worries France

Paris, July 3.—At a meeting yesterday of the colonial group of deputies, M. Etienne, vice president of the chamber, pointed out the danger which threatened French naval defense and the merchant marine from the formation of the American shipping combine. He declared that vigorous measures must be adopted if the French flag was not to disappear from the Atlantic ocean. It was decided to present an interpellation on the matter to the chamber.

Students Rusticated

London, July 3.—The time limit of 48 hours given by Lord Roberts to the cadets of the royal military college, Sandhurst, to deliver up those who have been guilty of starting the many recent fires at the college, in default of which the "rustication" of all the cadets was to be ordered, expired last night. It is understood that 27 cadets will leave immediately, but the war office is endeavoring to suppress all information on the subject.

ASSAULT IN BARROOM

Boston Man's Refusal to Treat to Drinks Cost Him His Life

Boston, July 3.—A murderous assault, from the effects of which Michael Sullivan, 56 years old, died last evening, was committed in a Beach street saloon about 4:30 yesterday afternoon, and William Lahey, 24, is under arrest, charged with the murder. Sullivan, who had gone into the saloon to speak to the proprietor, who was a friend of his, was standing by the bar when Lahey and a companion entered the place. Walking up to the proprietor they asked him to give them a drink, but he refused to stand treat. Sullivan then started for another part of the room, when the two men followed him and asked him for the price of the drinks. He declined their request, whereupon one of the men, said to be Lahey, struck Sullivan a heavy blow, knocking him to the floor. In his fall his head struck the brass railing and he was rendered unconscious. The police were soon on the spot and Lahey was taken into custody while Sullivan was removed to the emergency hospital, where he died about 8 o'clock.

Chief "Mourners" Absent

Sterling, Ills., July 3.—The funeral of Mrs. John Seibert of Mount Morris was about to occur yesterday and the house was filled with sorrowing neighbors when some of them discovered Seibert in another room, hugging and kissing Mrs. Theodore Wolfe, sister of the dead woman. The crowd quickly dragged the couple to a cornfield. A plentiful supply of tar was poured over the victims and the feathers from a pillow were emptied on each. Then the two were driven from the village and ordered never to return. The funeral then proceeded. Mrs. Seibert died of consumption and during the two years of her sickness it is alleged that her husband was continually making love to his wife's sister.

Daring Performer Badly Hurt

Louisville, July 3.—In the presence of 5000 spectators witnessing an open-air performance of the "Last Days of Pompeii" last night, James Duil received injuries which probably will cause his death. It is Duil's part of the performance to be hurled high in the air by a bomb which explodes, releasing a parachute by which the performer returns to earth. Last night the bomb was shot into the air as usual, but when it reached its height it failed to explode and started to the earth with Duil unable to release himself. As the missile was within 100 feet of the ground it suddenly exploded and Duil was dashed to the earth.

May Get His Old Position

Washington, July 3.—United States Consul Dickey has been completely vindicated of the charges brought against him by Richard R. Neill, secretary of the legation at Lima, and as a result of which he was removed from his post at Callao. The charges made by Neill included padding of expense accounts. As a result of his vindication Dickey is to be reinstated in the consular service and it is believed that an arrangement can be made with his successor at Callao, allowing Dickey to regain his old position.

Uncomplimentary to Andover

Princeton, N. J., July 3.—A most flagrant case of "cribbing" in the Princeton entrance examination has been discovered by the committee on examinations. It is said at the registrar's office that 22 of the 31 papers sent in from Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., had to be ruled out because of conclusive evidence of cribbing. A member of the examination committee said it was the worst case of cribbing that had ever come before the committee.

Killed 25,000 Gophers

Minneapolis, July 3.—A great gopher hunt by boys of North Dakota has resulted in the collection of 25,000 gopher tails. The tails are turned over to the Soo railroad for prizes offered by the road to four boys in each town along the lines in North Dakota turning in the largest number of tails. The hunt was planned for the benefit of the farmers, who suffered great loss annually by the ravages of the little pests, which very much resemble eastern chipmunks.

President Signed Them All

Washington, July 3.—The records at the Capitol show that every bill presented to President Roosevelt was signed by him before congress adjourned. This is exceptional, as it generally happens that some measures are overlooked or forgotten in the hurry. The total number of bills introduced in the house during the recent session was 15,330.

Aided From the Outside

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 3.—A mysterious jail delivery occurred last night when eight prisoners in the county jail escaped. Those left behind say a mirror on the end of a broomstick was used to enable those inside to pick the locks with a long wire through the cell bars.

Electrical Student Killed

Schenectady, N. Y., July 3.—T. H. Heath of Rugby, Eng., a student in the General Electric works, aged 30, was instantly killed yesterday while engaged in making a test. Two hundred and forty-five volts in alternating currents caused his death.

CREWS LEFT THE CARS

Could Not Stand Persistent Attacks by Mobs

LACK OF POLICE PROTECTION

Gives Disturbers Full Swing In Pawtucket and Neighboring Towns— Railway Men Charged With Carrying Concealed Weapons Discharged

Central Falls, R. I., July 3.—So persistent were the attacks on passing street cars in this city yesterday that the crews refused to operate cars and service was abandoned before 8 o'clock last night. The usual supply of stones and other missiles gathered by strikers and sympathizers was on hand during the afternoon and early evening and the passage of a car was the signal for a volley.

One employe in this city and two in Valley Falls were injured by missiles. In the latter place the attacks were frequent. Little or no police protection was afforded by the city authorities.

In Pawtucket only a few minor cases of annoyance to cars were reported. The 17 special officers on duty there during the strike were yesterday discharged because of lack of funds.

By the decision of Judge Shove in the district court at Pawtucket, street railway men during a strike have a right not only to protect themselves, but the passengers and the property of their employers against the violence of mobs by use of firearms.

Five motormen and conductors in the employ of the Pawtucket Street Railway company, who have been arrested at different times since the inauguration of the strike, on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, when arraigned yesterday, admitted that they had revolvers upon their person at the time of their arrest, and Judge Shove ordered their discharge.

Justices of Peace Kept Busy

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 3.—A number of justices of the peace in Luzerne county were kept busy yesterday giving hearings to men charged with inciting and participating in riots at coal mines. Deputy Sheriff Eckert brought four men from Freeland, charged with engaging in a riot at that place. At strike headquarters it was claimed that the arrests were an outrage and that the men should have been given a hearing at their homes instead of being railroaded to Wilkesbarre. The magistrate held the defendants in $500 bail for trial, which they were unable to furnish.

Militia's Services Required

Woonsocket, R. I., July 3.—The American Woolen company, which concern on Tuesday morning brought 30 Italian strike breakers into the Saranac mills in the place of their former workmen at North Smithfield, is planning to send the foreigners away this afternoon. It being thought that the town constabulary would be unable to restrain the crowds from wreaking their vengence upon the Italians at that time, a militia company will escort the men from the mills to the railroad station.

Won't Strike In Sympathy

Louisville, July 3.—The Courier-Journal says: The United Mine Workers of Kentucky will not sanction the calling of a sympathetic strike. Reliable information was obtained yesterday that a secret vote had been taken on the matter with the result that the men declared that they must regard their contracts with the operators. Word of the result has been sent to the Illinois miners, who are understood to have taken the same action.

Negotiations Are Off

Hartford, July 3.—A committee representing the striking carpenters met the builders yesterday and after a long session it was announced that it was impossible to reach an agreement. The carpenters refuse to refer the matter to an arbitration committee, thereby putting an end to the negotiations which have been in progress for some time.

Shot at Guard First

Roanoke, Va., July 3.—Estill Jones, a belligerent striker, was shot and killed at Simmons Creek, W. Va., while trying to force himself through the guard line. Jones was asked to leave the premises, which he refused to do, and fired at the guard a number of times, after which the guard returned the fire, killing Jones instantly.

Features of New Warships

Washington, July 3.—The navy department has its plans practically complete for the four big warships, just authorized by the new naval law, and to bear the names of Louisiana, Connecticut, Tennessee and Washington. The battleships will be built for a speed of 18 knots. Their batteries will consist of four 12-inch guns, eight 8-inch guns, twelve 7-inch and twenty 3-inch guns and a large number of smaller weapons scattered over the ship.

Boer Prisoners Return

Cape Town, July 3.—The steamship Canada arrived here yesterday with 400 Boers, who were formerly prisoners on the island of St. Helena, on board. The Canada is the first transport bringing former Boer prisoners back to South Africa to reach here.

Victor Emmanuel to Visit Nicholas

Rome, July 3.—King Victor Emmanuel, accompanied by Signor Prinetti, the minister of foreign affairs, will start for St. Petersburg July 9 to visit the czar. He will remain there three days.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Friday, July 4.
Sun rises—4:12; sets—7:24.
Moon rises—3:22 a. m.
High water—10 a. m.; 10:15 p. m.

The weather has been fair in the great majority of districts. The temperature has risen east of the Rocky mountains. Showers are indicated for New England. The temperature will fall temporarily over the rain area. The winds will be fresh south.

Czar Wants to Learn Facts

London, July 3.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Express asserts that, in defiance of the advice of his ministers, the czar has decided to give private audience to over 200 representative Russians of all ranks, with a view of thoroughly probing social problems and discovering the motives for the assassinations of ministers and officials. They will be invited to tell the czar frankly how the threatened revolution may be averted and by what peaceful means the distress and dissatisfaction of the lower classes may be met.

Franchises Valued at $25,000,000

Youngstown, O., July 3.—Messrs. Park and Hamilton of this city have been granted franchises authorizing them to construct and operate electric street railway lines throughout the city of Havana. The concessions are said to be worth fully $25,000,000, and include all the franchises in Havana.

Nebraska Towns Flooded

Auburn, Neb., July 3.—The Nemaha river is the highest for 19 years and is still rising. The whole Nemaha valley is flooded and Auburn is cut off from the east and north. Crops on the bottom lands are ruined. At Elmwood seven inches of rain fell last night, flooding the town.

Good Afternoon.

The decorations on many of the houses at Winthrop, which had been beautifully arranged for the big carnival tomorrow and Saturday, were badly damaged by the blow and rain today. But there will be a big time there tomorrow, celebrating the semi-centennial, if the day is pleasant.

The editorial of Miss Floretta Vining of the Hull Beacon is attracting considerable attention from the press. Doubtless there is considerable truth in her presentation of facts about drinking and morality among society people. Her words of warning are timely. Will they be heeded?

Secretary Root's recent communication to the Senate contains a significant statement of the gradual reduction of the military forces in the Philippines. In 1901 there were 70,000 American troops in the islands. Today there are but 23,000 and orders for the return of 5,000 more have been issued. No better evidence of the pacification of the islands could be desired.

Many will be surprised to learn that the gain in assessed polls was larger this year in Quincy than in Boston. The Boston assessors report a net gain of but 207 over last year, while the Quincy assessors report a net gain of 515. The number of polls indicated a population of 26,853 in Quincy on May 1, a gain of 3,000 in two years, and the census of 1905 will undoubtedly show a population of upwards of 30,000 which would be a gain of fifty per cent. in ten years.

The population figures of Quincy read much like those of a boom city, but the growth is more steady:

In 1880,	10,570
In 1885,	12,144
In 1890,	16,723
In 1895,	20,712
In 1900,	23,899
In 1902,	26,853
In 1905,	over 30,000

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Whether those who will take no vacation will fret as much when the hot weather comes, as do those who are to take vacations over the prospect of having comfortable weather at home remains to be seen. It is amusing to hear the persons who are to seek the shore or mountains later grumble because they are not more uncomfortable now. Presumably with them the greatest joy of their vacation is knowing that others at home are sweltering in discomfort. It comes to the old question on which some clergymen took great delight in preaching some time ago, "Could I be Happy in Heaven With My Loved Ones in Hell?" For some people the answer would be an emphatic and unqualified "Yes."—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ With the approach of the Fourth the question again arises how far the plea of patriotism shall serve as an excuse for unrestrained disorder. There are times and occasions when a little noise may be permitted; and perhaps firecrackers and other offensive weapons are too closely identified with the traditions of the festival to be forbidden altogether. But surely there is no excuse for holding high carnival in this fashion in the city streets. Even if the nerves of the quiet adult population need not be considered, there are many practical reasons for forbidding the use of any explosive under conditions where it can be neither annoying nor dangerous. The possibility of loss of life and property must be taken account of. Providence has suffered severely in the past from the reckless demonstration incident to the time, and the police should rigidly enforce the laws, especially in the thickly settled portions of the city.—Providence Journal.

SALUTE TO FLAG.

Flag Raising at Swingle & Falconer's this Noon.

The shrieking of many whistles in the quarry district this noon led to the belief that something out of the usual run was going on. Later it developed that the whistling was a salute to a large flag that had been raised by the employes of Swingle & Falconer at their quarry.

The flag was raised to the top of their large derick and as the derick itself stands on one of the highest points of the quarries, it can be seen for a long distance.

When the flag was raised, the firm's engineer blew a salute upon his steam whistle which was taken up by neighboring engineers.

Adjourned Meeting to be Held Next Tuesday Afternoon.

In response to a call, signed by Dexter E. Wadsworth, Charles F. Pettengill, Lester M. Pratt and George W. Jones, and sent or delivered to every retail store keeper in Quincy Centre and South Quincy, eighteen proprietors met in the rooms of the Master Builders and Traders' Association Wednesday afternoon to consider what was for the best interest of Quincy in regard to afternoon and evening closing.

Dexter E. Wadsworth presided and Lester M. Pratt was secretary. A general discussion on the closing movement followed, nearly all of those present expressing themselves. Some thought the present arrangement satisfactory and others that the stores were already closing too many evenings, and that it was a detriment to business and to Quincy.

All were unanimous in regard to one matter, however, and that was there should be some uniform method adopted by the retail dealers in regard to closing and that this could be best brought about by an organization.

It was then voted to form a Retail Store Keepers' Association, and a form of association was drawn up which all of those present signed.

Officers were then elected as follows:
President Dexter E. Wadsworth.
Secretary, Henry L. Kincaide.
Executive committee, George W. Jones, Lester M. Pratt, Charles F. Pettengill, C. F. Derby, Bernard Fritz.

A committee consisting of Dexter E. Wadsworth, Lester M. Pratt and Henry L. Kincaide was appointed to circulate the form of organization among the retail dealers for signatures.

Another meeting, to which all retail dealers are invited, will be held next Tuesday afternoon at the rooms of the Master Builders and Traders' Association in the Savings Bank building. The meeting will be called to order at 3 o'clock and will last one hour only.

Flint—Rickards.

On Monday evening, June 30th, Miss Nellie Frances Rickards of Melrose was united in marriage to Mr. George Walter Flint of Quincy, the event taking place at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Ernest Hope, No. 58 Florence street, Melrose.

Owing to the serious illness of Mr. Flint's mother, the wedding was quiet and informal, only the relatives and a few friends being present.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James F. Albion of Malden, the wedding march from Lohengrin being played by Miss Alma Leighton of Melrose.

The bride wore white muslin trimmed with applique lace and satin ribbon, and carried lilies of the valley, and was attended by her niece, Miss Doris Adelaide Melchert, who wore pale yellow muslin and carried a basket of flowers.

The house was tastefully decorated with asparagus vine, carnation pinks, palms and wild flowers.

After September 1st, Mr. and Mrs. Flint will be at home to their friends at No. 1053 Hancock street, Quincy.

NEW FOOTBALL RULES

Graduate Advisory Committee Makes Radical Changes.

SIDE LINE COACHING CENSURED.

Considered Harmful to the Game and Most Unsportsmanlike Conduct. Teams Must Change Sides After Each Touchdown Scored or Field Goal Kicked.

As the result of a secret meeting of the graduate advisory committee held in New York a few days ago it has just leaked out that there will be radical changes in collegiate football next season, says a Philadelphia dispatch to the New York Evening Journal. The meeting, which was held at the Reform club, was attended by the following: Walter Camp of Yale, chairman; John C. Bell of Pennsylvania, Alexander Moffatt of Princeton, Robert D. Wrenn of Harvard, Paul J. Dashiel of the United States Naval academy and L. M. Daniels of Cornell.

So radical are two of the changes decided upon that the committee suggested that each member talk over the new rules with the football authorities at his particular college or university, and if any objections are raised word to that effect will be sent to the chairman, Walter Camp, and a call for another meeting will be issued. If no objections are raised, then the new rules will be printed in the official football guide for 1902.

The most important revision, and one favorably passed upon by the entire committee, is a rule providing that the opposing teams shall change sides after each touchdown scored or goal kicked from the field. The other radical change is in the kicking of a goal from touchdown.

The new rule provides for the bringing out of the ball to kicking distance—say, twenty yards from the goal posts—that this point shall be a line of scrimmage, and the try for goal can be made by snapping the ball either for a place kick or a drop kick from behind the line of scrimmage.

It is suggested that the opposing teams shall line up together not farther than five yards apart, so that the defending team shall have an opportunity to prevent the goal. The exact wording of the rule will be decided upon later. This new rule will make goal kicking from touchdowns a most difficult feat and will add considerable spectacular interest to the game. Briefly the other changes in the rules, all of which have been adopted, are as follows:

Rule 16B.—In snapping the ball back if the player so doing is off side the ball must be snapped again, and if this occurs once more on the same down the ball shall go to the opponents. This rule was changed so that the penalty for offside play shall be the loss of five yards by the offending team instead of forfeiting the ball. It was felt that the loss of the ball was too great a hardship.

Rule 28F.—The penalty for tripping an opponent or tackling him below the knees has been changed to five instead of ten yards.

Rule 28B.—This rule, referring to passing or batting the ball toward an opponent's goal, is changed so that the side offending shall be penalized ten yards instead of the loss of the ball.

Rule 28F.—In the case of unlawful starting before the ball has been put in play for a scrimmage this rule is changed so that the penalty shall be ten yards instead of the surrender of the ball, the down remaining the same.

Rule 28 (Note).—Whenever a foul is committed which in the opinion of the umpire did not affect the play the offended side may decline the penalty. In case of a run being made from this play not more than fifteen yards from the spot where the foul was committed shall be allowed.

There was considerable discussion over this rule, several of the members of the committee feeling that the full distance gained should be allowed. It was decided, however, to make the limit of allowance twenty-five yards instead of fifteen, as heretofore. In addition to the penalty provided in the rules of last year for side line coaching it was decided to add the following: "Football rules committee of the American colleges feels that side line coaching is harmful to the game and should be viewed as thoroughly underhand and unsportsmanlike conduct."

Laying Dust With Tar.

Visitors to the Riviera will be thankful if the experiments now being conducted by the authorities at Monte Carlo result in remedying the great nuisance caused by the dusty roads, says London Truth. Owing to the heat, watering is of little use, while obvious disadvantages attach to the utilitarian American method of using petroleum for laying dust. A local doctor has, however, been experimenting with an application of coal tar to the road surface, and the result has surpassed expectations. The surface becomes so hard and compact that it is difficult to break up, no dust is formed, rain fails to penetrate the layer of tar, and even after forty days' subjection to traffic there is no sign of wear and tear. Now the municipal authorities and the hotel keepers are taking the matter up, and the result of their labors should not be without interest to municipalities at home.

Threats From Vesuvius.

It has been known for some time, says the Popolo Romano, that Vesuvius again threatens eruption. The latest phase of its activity is a constant emission of smoke of great density and of an intolerably nauseous odor. There is no flame or lava.

TAKING SHAPE.

Work Being Rushed on Battleship Rhode Island.

The hull of the battle-ship, Rhode Island, which is being built at Fore River, is rapidly taking shape. Meanwhile the work is being rushed on the fitting-out dock and its equipment, which will be utilized to step the military masts and install the engines and boilers and heavy armor plates on the big sea-fighter. The 75-ton gantry crane is on the ground and the concrete mixer for building the dock which will support it has been installed and rapid progress can now be made.

The steel ship house, with its four over-head electric cranes, at the Fore River yard, is proving a great source of economy in constructing the battleship New Jersey. A large quantity of finished steel is being put in daily and mean-while preparations are being made at the fitting-out dock for handling the military masts, engines, boilers, and heavy armor plates, which will be put in place as soon as the battle-ship is launched. The concrete mixer has been installed at the fitting-out basin and as soon as the foundations are built, the gantry crane will be erected.

By means of its exceptional facilities the Fore River Ship and Engine Company has been able to cut in half the guaranteed two months delivery of forty tons of heavy engine forgings for the New York Ship Building Company.

The parts of the new 75-ton gantry crane are being assembled along the fitting-out basin of the Fore River shipyard, at Quincy Point, and work on the concrete dock that will support it is being hurried so that everything may be in readiness to bring the cruiser Des Moines alongside as soon as she is in the water. The machine shop is finishing the cruiser's propeller hubs and her engines are being set up. The ports and hawse-pipes have been cut, specially designed machinery operated by compressed air being used for the former. The caulking of the pine sheathing below the water line is nearly done.

The Fore River yard now has a locomotive of its own in place of the engine which it formerly leased from the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The new engine is one of those which used to run on the Manhattan Elevated road in New York and which have been displaced by the adoption of electric power.

The last vestiges of the old Fore River plant at Weymouth have been removed and the lumber is piled up in the yard at Quincy Point. It will probably be used for the contruction of store sheds.

July Magazines.

Perhaps the most striking article in The World's Work for July is Commander "Dick" Wainwright's story of the Naval Academy at Annapolis of which he is superintendent. The pictures with which Miss Frances B. Johnston has illustrated the famous veteran's article are as fine a series as The World's Work has ever published. Donald Murray, the well-known inventor tells, with illustrations, the vividly interesting story of the great cable systems of the world—how they draw together the various nationalities and countries with a band of wire.

The July Woman's Home Companion contains much seasonable matter, both in fiction and feature. A humorous story of the War of 1812, "The Battle of Quahaug Neck," opens the number. Rheta Childe Dorr writes of "The First Declaration of Independence." "The Independence Hall of Today" is an article by Mr. Landon Knight. Two charming outdoor articles are "Little Journeys to the Woods and Fields" and "Making a Country Home."

To describe adequately "The World's Great Disasters" is the task set C. Bryson Taylor, in the July Everybody's. He has written in superb style the stories of the destruction of Pompeii, the earthquake at Lisbon, the passing of Port Royal and the cataclysm at Yeddo, picturing the life of these cities at the moment of destruction. Photographs of the ruins of St. Pierre accompany the article.

The Review of Reviews for July is notable for well-considered editorial discussions of the South African peace and its probable results, our own problem in the Philippines, the Cuban crisis, the isthmian canal question, the work of Congress, the coal strike, the shipbuilding and steamship combinations, the crop prospects of the year, and many other topics of timely interest.

In "Tent Life for Health," in the July National, Jessie A. Pratt, now in camp with her family at Garnet, Idaho, relates their experiences during three years of nomadic life in the west and southwest, illustrating the article with numerous photographic views.

Lippincott's Magazine for July is given over to fiction, with out one exception in favor of a timely subject. The complete novel is written by Mabel Nelson Thurston, and has for its title "On the Road to Arcady." It abounds in whimsical humor and promises to be of the right sort wherewith to while away idle summer hours. Following the novel are half a dozen stories varied in length and subject. Beulah Marie Dix, the author of "Hugh Gwyeth," contributes a tale of love and bravery in early New England days.

—The great advantages that have accrued to California cities from using oil to lay the dust, instead of water, are being recognized by many cities, and especially in those in which the supply of water is rather limited.

WATER QUESTION.

To Come Before Voters of Milton at Special Meeting.

The Milton selectmen have issued a warrant for a special town meeting to be held on the evening of July 14, to see if the town will vote to accept Chapter 307 of the Acts of 1902, entitled "An act to supply the town of Milton with water." Under the provisions of this act it must be submitted to the voters within six months of its passage. If the act is accepted and the Water Company thereupon notifies the Selectmen of its desire to sell its property, action will be taken to see if the town will vote to purchase the property and rights of the Company and to authorize the issue of bonds or notes for the payment therefor.

Another article is, to see if the town will establish a sinking fund to provide for the payment of all loans, and if so to elect three or six commissioners, one-third for one, two and three years respectively.

Other matters will be: To appropriate $2,500 for land damages caused by street widening in 1898, and for damages by change of grade on Blue Hill avenue, and $4,600 for land damages caused by widening Brook road. Also, to see if the town will accept the reserve space on Blue Hill avenue, Brush Hill road, and Milton street for electric cars.

MILTON.

Great preparations are being made for the lawn party of the Mission of Our Saviour church next week and a grand time is assured.

Miss Sadie Graham and Miss Sadie McKay sail from New York next week for Europe.

Adams street near Milton is being resurfaced.

Two children of Christopher Graham are sick.

The East Milton post office is now a sub-station of Boston and the residents are enjoying free postal delivery, the change going into effect last Tuesday. There is but one carrier at present, a Mr. Rollins who comes from the Roxbury office. He will make two collections and two deliveries daily.

Wednesday night the office was moved to its new rooms in the addition built to the Ellsworth building. The new office is nicely furnished. It has a general room, and a private room for the superintendent. The carries' rack is in the post office proper.

There are no call boxes in the office but it has been supplied with 115 lock boxes. The Milton office also has free delivery and four carriers.

HOUGHS NECK.

Representative Fred Gilpatric and family of Dorchester are in their cottage at Rock Island.

Work has been commenced building the section of the Metropolitan sewer on the south side of Sea street where the marsh was filled in.

C. H. Gould and family of Somerville are in the Sprague cottage on Great Hill.

A gypsy fortune teller has arrived at the beach and another diversion is added for the summer visitors.

A large load of brick for the Metropolitan sewer arrived at the steamboat wharf on Tuesday.

Store keepers are hoping for pleasant weather soon.

The theatre at the Fensmere opens this evening for the season.

Accidental Shooting.

There was considerable excitement Monday afternoon at the sewer trench on Adams street over the shooting of John Torpey, one of the workmen by Percy Miller, a 16 year old boy also employed upon the work. The boy claims that the shooting was accidental, and the police who have investigated the affair are inclined to believe him.

According to the boy's story he had two revolvers in the shanty and a box of cartridges which he bought to celebrate the Fourth with. Thinking that the revolvers were empty he pulled the trigger of one. There was a loud report and the bullett, a 22 calibre, struck Torpey in the side of the head grazing the skull and making a bad looking flesh wound.

An examination of the revolver showed only one chamber loaded and that cartridge had been exploded.

NEW WARSHIPS.

Work to be Rushed on the New Order.

The battleships, armored cruisers and gunboats authorized by Congress in this year's programme of increase will be laid down and completed within less time than any similar vessels have ever been constructed for the navy, says a Washington dispatch to the Herald.

This is due to the readiness of the navy department to issue at once a call for bids, and the preparation of designs which were agreed to last autumn and submitted to Congress early in the session, and on which all the new ships will be built.

Instructions have been issued by the secretary for the advertisements to be prepared, calling for the submission of bids within 60 days for the building of the vessels, with the exception of the battleship to be built at some navy yard, and plans are to be made simultaneously for securing structural steel and the other necessary material for the navy yard-built vessel.

It is proposed to make every effort to show just what a navy yard can accomplish with a project of this magnitude when practically all of its resources are employed.

The battleships will be the most formidable war vessels designed in any country, and in battery power will exceed all in weight of metal they can discharge. The batteries of these vessels are tremendous and far more powerful than those of the Kearsarge, now in commission, the Ohio, building, or any single craft under construction abroad. Their largest guns will be four 12-inch, mounted, two in each turret, located amidships.

The armored cruisers are to have a displacement of 14,500 tons, and a speed of 22 knots. The batteries will consist of four 10-inch guns, 16 six-inch and 22 three-inch guns, and a large number of smaller ones.

The navy yard at either New York or Norfolk, probably the former, will be the site adopted for the construction of one of the battleships. Boston is more of an equipment than a ship building yard, and League Island is not fitted to perform construction work. It is impossible for a battleship to reach the Mare Island yard on account of the lack of water in the channel leading to Vallejo, where the yard is established.

requires physical and mental ability of a high degree to withstand its hard labors. The high tension to which the nervous system is constantly subjected, has a depressing effect, and soon headache, backache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, etc., develop in severe form. Such was the case of Mail Carrier S. F. Sweinhart, of Huntsville, Ala., he says:

"An attack of pneumonia left me with muscular rheumatism, headache, and pains that seemed to be all over me. I was scarcely able to move for about a month when I decided to give Dr. Miles' Pain Pills and Nerve Plasters a trial. In three days I was again on my route and in two weeks I was free from pain and gaining in flesh and strength."

Fires Which Never Go Out.

There are domestic fires burning in England today which have never been out for hundreds upon hundreds of years.

At the old fashioned farmhouses in the dales of Yorkshire peat is still burned. The fuel is obtained from the moors, and stacks of it are kept by the farmers in their stack garths.

The country roundabout is noted for its "girdle cakes," which are made from dough baked in quaint pans suspended over the peat fires.

These fires are kept glowing from generation to generation, and the son warms himself at the fire which warmed his sire and his grandsire and his grandsire's sire and which will warm his son and his son's son.

There is a fire at Castleton, in the Whitby district, which has been burning for over 200 years. The record probably is held by a farmhouse at Osmotherby, in the same district. This fire has been burning for 500 years, and there are records to show that it has not been out during the last 300 years.

Could Not Pass the Examination.

A southern woman speaks with pride of the many years of faithful, loving service rendered by her dusky housekeeper. Not only is "Aunt Ca'line" valued for her executive ability, but her judgment is so wise in most cases that her mistress has come to depend greatly upon her opinion in certain matters.

"Do you think James would be a good man for us to take up into the mountains with us this summer, Aunt Ca'line?" she asked one day, referring to a handsome young darky who had been for six weeks in her employ.

Aunt Ca'line folded her arms and assumed her most judicial aspect. "Missy Kate," she said firmly, "I done watch dat boy eber since he come hyer, an' I done test him. When I tested him in de case ob de spring bed I foun' out dat when it come to liftin' dat boy was all take hold an' mighty little raise, Missy Kate, an' dat's a pore sign ob character, in my opinions."

Like Any Other Man.

The following story is told in reference to Mr. Lowell's second marriage: At the time when rumors of the event became current among his friends one of them, a stanch admirer of the first Mrs. Lowell and a firm believer in her husband's permanent widowerhood, took it upon herself to deny the gossip every time it met her. Finally, however, the announcement came to her from such extremely good authority that her faith was shaken.

She wrote frankly to Mr. Lowell that she had heard the reports and persistently denied them, but now began to doubt her right to do so. She begged him to let her know the true state of affairs, whether she was to believe him a never-to-be-consoled husband or, after all, "just like any other man."

The answer was prompt and brief:

"Dear Madam—Yours, like any other man."

NOMINATIONS HELD UP

Several Refused Confirmation by the Senate

PRESIDENT PLANS NO WAR

Will Substitute Others Where He Finds There Has Been Reason For the Senate's Action—President Will Settle Colorado Factional Warfare

Washington, July 3.—The adjournment of congress with 19 of the president's nominations for postmasters unconfirmed by the senate, besides two absolute rejections, and the failure of the senate to act on several still other important nominations, is one of the significant facts of the day. During the administration of President McKinley there was practically nothing of this sort. He occasionally withdrew a nomination, and in a few instances where it was felt in the senate that he had unwittingly made a mistake, and was so tactily acknowledged by him, the senate allowed nominations to lapse. There was very rarely a straight rejection. It should be noted, however, that President Roosevelt has made a good many nominations, at the suggestion of senators, very reluctantly, and has so expressed himself. Hence the senate's final action should not be construed as indicating to the whole extent of these rejections a disagreement between the president and the senate over patronage.

During President Cleveland's second administration there was a long list of this kind with the close of each session. He about as promptly made the men who had failed of confirmation "recess appointees," and in that way continued them in office until the next session of the senate, when their names were again submitted. The failure of a second session to act favorably necessitated his selection of somebody else.

This was a course of war in dealing with the senate which President Roosevelt will not attempt. He will instead go over the nominations which have failed to find approval, and wherever there was any proper reason for the senate's action he will substitute another man. If he finds cases where the senate's delinquency was wholly unwarranted he will make those recess appointees and try to secure their confirmation in the fall.

George C. Koester, who was nominated for internal revenue collector of South Carolina, was selected as a McLaurin Democrat, but shortly afterward was confronted with charges of having participated in the lynching of a negro. The president believed him innocent, but when friends of his argued against the candidate the president was willing to defer to their judgment.

The failure of the senate to act on the nomination of Dewey C. Bailey, nominated for United States marshal of Colorado, involves a factional warfare in which the president will be compelled to express preference. Bailey is ex-Senator Wolcott's right-hand man, and Senators Teller and Patterson, Democrats, in absolutely refusing to allow his name to be considered, have had, it is said, the support of the old silver Republican element of Colorado which has now gone back into the Republican party. Wolcott is desirous that the honors shall go to those who stood with the party during the dark days of 1896, when its condition in Colorado fell very low. The other faction wishes to recognize the thousands of Bryan supporters of that year who have returned to the Republican party. The president has heretofore recognized Wolcott, but this may make a turn in his course. Bailey is charged with violating the rules regarding political activity, and with making his office the rendezvous of all the Wolcott politicians in the state.

Joseph W. Jones, pension agent at Columbus, who failed of confirmation, it is alleged, is hardly equal to the duties of the office.

The president has appointed W. L. Harris postmaster of Charleston. Mr. Harris was nominated for the office some weeks ago, but the renomination was withdrawn on the lodging of a protest that he was not entitled to vote under the state law. The president since has been satisfied that the best business interests of Charleston still favor Harris' appointment and that there is no legal bar whatever to his taking office, though he cannot vote until next December. He has adopted Charleston as a permanent residence. The commission was issued today.

President Roosevelt yesterday determined upon the appointment of Major Micah Jenkins, his army comrade and friend, as collector of internal revenue, district of South Carolina, vice George E. Koester, who failed of confirmation.

RUSSELL'S PREDICTION

Serious Trouble Will Follow If Irish Evictions Are Carried On

London, July 3.—During a heated and exciting debate in the house of commons yesterday Thomas W. Russell (Liberal) notified the government that serious trouble and probable bloodshed was inevitable in Ireland unless steps were taken to curb some of the landlords.

The particular case where the greatest danger is threatened is in Roscommon county on the estates of Lord De Freyne.

Mr. Russell, who was formerly a supporter of the government, moved an adjournment of the house in order to discuss the pending evctions from the estate of Lord De Freyne, in connection with which Lord De Freyne recently had writs issued against a large number of the Irish parliamentary party, whom he charged with conspiracy in the matter.

Mr. Russell declared that unless the government intervened to prevent these evictions, an era of trouble and turmoil would be inaugurated in the west of Ireland, where there was trouble enough already.

He said that he had visited the De Freyne estate three times, and that he was thoroughly convinced of the injustice under which the tenants of the estate suffered. The people in question were the poorest of the poor.

Continuing, Mr. Russell said he believed one word from Mr. Wyndham, the chief secretary for Ireland, would settle the whole trouble, and that he thought the reduction of the rents collected on the estate by 33 percent would not be excessive for those boglands, which were now renting for more money than was obtained for decent arable land in Ulster county.

Mr. Wyndham replied with some asperity, and said that he was surprised to find the latter siding against law and order. The rents from the De Freyne estate, he said, had been reduced 37 percent in the past 20 years, and he asserted that he knew some of the organizers were making money out of the agitation. His advice to the tenants was to pay up. Hundreds had done so, said Mr. Wyndham, and many would like to, but were intimidated. Mr. Wyndham said it was impossible to carry out the land purchase scheme in Ireland when it was interrupted by agitators who desired to make government there impossible.

After other members of the house had spoken on the subject, Mr. Russell's motion for an adjournment was defeated by 231 votes to 132.

"I take pleasure in writing to let you know the great good I received from your 'Favorite Prescription' and your 'Pleasant Pellets.' says Mrs. Nora Gaddie, of Rio, Hart Co., Ky. "I took seven or eight bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one or two vials of the 'Pellets.' Think I would have been in my grave had it not been for your medicines. It has been about four months since I took the medicine. I was all run down, had loss of appetite, could not sleep at night, was nervous, had backache, black spots on my limbs, and sick headache all the time. I have not had sick headache since I took your medicine."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

ALLEGED ABDUCTION

Missing Boston Boy Is Located on a Farm In Maine

Boston, July 3.—Mrs. Eva L. Randall of this city was arraigned before Judge Emmons yesterday charged with having abducted William Petro, 13 years old, son of Charles Petro of Beachmont. She pleaded not guilty and at the request of counsel the hearing was postponed to July 10. The alleged abduction occurred on May 4 last, when the boy left his home to go to the house of Mrs. Randall, who had long taken a great interest in him, and had expressed a desire to adopt him. She is said to be a woman of means. When questioned, she denied all knowledge of his whereabouts.

A letter was received on May 16 postmarked Canada, and addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Petro, signed "William's interested friend," saying that he had fallen into good hands and was well and happy. On June 11 Mrs. Petro received a letter bearing no date in the boy's handwriting telling how good his benefactress was to him and expressing satisfaction with his surroundings.

Bucksport, Me., July 3.—Willie Petro has been at the farm of James Bennett, the father of Mrs. Eva Randall, since early in May. He came to Bucksport from Boston alone. The Bennett place is on Verona island, about two miles below Bucksport. Mrs. Randall came to Verona a short time after the boy arrived and stayed about a week. She has not been here since. The boy seems contented here and evidently came without force.

Twenty-Five Hurt In Wreck

Bennington, Vt., July 3.—Twenty-five persons were injured, two of whom are reported to be in a critical condition, by the derailment of an express train at a switch one mile west of White Creek, N. Y., yesterday. The train consisted of an engine, four passenger cars and a mail car and belonged to the Rutland railroad. While passing a switch a flange broke on one of the locomotive tender wheels throwing the train from the track and totally wrecking three of the coaches. The train was running about 40 miles an hour when the accident occurred.

From Paterson to Fitchburg

Fitchburg, Mass., July 3.—The silk manufacturing firm of Cornforth & Marx of Paterson, N. The payroll will be $80,000 yearly. The firm comes here to avoid labor trouble at Paterson.

Bloodhounds to Be Employed

Beverly, Mass., July 3.—Bloodhounds were expected to have been used to find traces of the missing Wilbur Clark of Beverly, at Chebacco pond, yesterday, but the trailers did not arrive in time. The state police are still working on the case and are following up several clews which they have. The boy has been missing since June 17.

Revenue Receipts at Boston

Boston, July 3.—In the fiscal year just ended the United States collected nearly $27,000,000 in Boston in the form of custom duties and internal revenues. Though the accounts are kept in this city, the figures represent the whole of the commonwealth, but a comparatively small amount comes from outside ports and cities.

Messenger Charged With Larceny

Boston, July 3.—The larceny of $911 from the Earl & Prew Express company is the charge upon which Hiram S. Congdon of Attleboro, Mass., was arrested yesterday. Congdon was employed as messenger by the company and the money he is said to have retained was collected upon "C. O. D." packages.

Cordial Welcome to Soldiers

Rochester, July 3.—Nineteen officers and 261 men of the Ninth United States infantry, Colonel Robe commanding, arrived in this city last evening, and were the city's guests until midnight. Bells were rung and whistles blown. After the formal welcome by the citizens' reception committee a parade was formed which passed through the principal streets of the city and received a continuous ovation. The soldiers were then tendered a banquet.

Attributed to Anarchists

The latter fired upon them, but his assailants escaped. A similar attempt was made Sunday evening and it is believed that anarchists intended to blow up the magazine.

THREE SMART SHIRT-WAIST PATTERNS.

The real art of dressing well on a small income consists in avoiding costly fabrics, and putting as much money as possible into the cut. Fashion changes so often that we quickly tire of our frocks, and, therefore, she who has to study economy had better give a very little for her materials, and have it made up properly, than to pay for gorgeous goods and have them spoiled by amateur fingers.—From The Shopper's Guide.

EX-COUNCILMAN DEAD.

Was on School Committee which Elected Col. Parker Superintendent of Schools.

James H. Slade, the ex-Commodore and ex-Councilman died on the morning of the Fourth after several weeks' illness.

Mr. Slade, who was born July 24, 1843, was the son of James Slade, city engineer of Boston. He went to the public schools in that city, and was one of the class of 1856 of the English High school.

When the Civil war broke out, he enlisted as 2d Lieut., 3rd Maryland Infantry; at eighteen years of age he was further promoted and came home to raise Co. K. of the 38th M. V. M., going out again as captain.

Later he took up the study of stenography with reference to the practice of law, rising to the head of the profession. He was connected with the Union Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Maine. Was vice president of a railroad brake company, going abroad in the interests of this company. Returning, his illustrated lectures upon English Cathedrals and upon Spain held interested audiences. He was always a student, and a lover of the best in literature and with a phenomenal memory he was one who had Shakespeare at a moment's call. When he was in California he sent timely quotations elegantly written upon shells to the various members of the Shakespeare club of which he was a valued member.

He was also secretary of the Quincy Point church and in the First church he delighted childish audiences as he held the attention of older people. His first speech in public was at the age of nineteen, with the Hon. Edward Everett.

He was one of the founders of the Quincy Yacht club and was its first commodore. He also served as Councilman in 1890.

We are indebted largely to him for our educator, Col. Francis W. Parker, while he was a member of our school board for eight years.

Starting as a Republican, he was in the company of mugwumps to emerge into the Democratic party.

He was hospitable in a generous degree, brilliantand witty, and an untiring worker. His life was truly strenuous. His last work was a return to his first professional work in stenography.

He has two sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Wise of Boston and Mrs. John Shaw. He married Mary B. Thayer in 1865 and four children survive: James H., Charles P., Mrs. W. E. Skinner of Chicago, and Mrs. Charles A. Andrews of Holyoke.

"It is better to wear out than to rust out," and "it is faith in something and enthusiasm for something that makes life worth living." These words apply to our friend, and are dedicated to him in respectful remembrance.

A. E. F.

Flag in Bonfire.

George Waul of Houghs Neck was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Curtin for mutilating a United States flag. Waul, it appears, was cleaning up about his cottage and was burning up the rubbish. Among this rubbish was a small American flag which it is alleged that Waul threw upon the fire and burned. The arrest followed, Waul war arraigned in court this morning and the case was continued until July 9.

In the Milford Cabinet, N. H., we find under the Mont Vernon items the following about Miss Mary A. Keefe of West Quincy, a graduate of Woodward in the class of 1900. The East district school has been taught by Miss Mary A. Keefe of Quincy, Mass., an uncommonly bright and ready young teacher. The closing exercises showed a most intelligent literary spirit on the part of the scholars. It was evident that the Miss Keefe and good progress on the part of teacher is a first-rate disciplinarian, an dthat the children are bound to learn intelligently under care.

During July and August the Milton Public library will close at 6.30 every evening except Wednesdays and Saturdays when they will close at nine o'clook as usual; a little longer than Quincy library hours.

Pacified Through Noble Deeds of Our Soldiers

JUSTICE TO NEW REPUBLIC

Demands That She Should Have Reciprocity, Which, President Roosevelt Says, She Shall Have—Lessons Drawn From Industrial Combines

Pittsburg, July 5.—A tremendous audience listened to an address by President Roosevelt at Schenley park yesterday. The president was escorted to the park by a parade of 3000 troops. The line of march was four miles long and he was greeted by cheering crowds the entire distance.

After an invocation the Declaration of Independence was read and then the president was introduced. He said:

"You have just listened to the reading of the great document which signals our entry into the field of nations 126 years ago. That entry was but the promise which had to be made good by the performance of those men and their children and their children's children. Words are good if they are backed up by deeds, and only so.

"The declaration continues to be read with pride by us year after year, and stands as a symbol of hope for the people of all the world because its promise was made good, because its words were supplemented by deeds, because after the men who signed it and upheld it and done their work, the men who come again after them, generation by generation, did their work in turn. The Declaration of Independence had to be supplemented in the first place by that great instrument of constructive and administrative statesmanship—the constitution under which we now live.

"And then over 70 years passed and there came again upon the nation the days of iron need. There came again the days that demanded all that was best—the life itself of the bravest and the truest of the nation's sons. And with Sumter's guns awakened our people, and America, until then the incarnate genius of peace, sprang to her feet with sword and with shield, a helmeted queen among nations; when the thunder of the guns called the nation's children they sprang forward to do the mighty deeds which if left undone would have meant that the words to which we have listened today would have rung as meaningless platitudes.

"Those were the two great epochs in the nation's history, the epoch of the founding of the union and the epoch of its preservation; the epoch of Washington and the epoch of Abraham Lincoln. Those two generations had the greatest tasks to do, but each generation has its tasks and woe to the generation which regards the deeds of the mighty men of the past as an excuse for failing to do in its turn the work that it finds ready to hand. The great deeds of those that have gone before us must ever serve not as a reason for inaction on our part but as the keenest of spurs to drive us forward on the path of national greatness and justice.

"We have had our tasks to do in the last four years, or rather we have had, as every generation must have, many tasks to do, tasks affecting us abroad, and one of those tasks, being done as it has been, has signalled our entry to a larger world. And it is most appropriate that on this Fourth of July, this anniversary of the birth of the nation, it should be our good fortune to have promulgated the declaration establishing peace in the Philippines and the acknowledgement to the army of the praise so richly due our fellow Americans who wear the uniform of the United States for all that they have done in tropic islands during the past four years.

"We said that Cuba should become a free republic and we have kept our word. To have turned Cuba over to the hands of its own people immediately after the withdrawal of the Spanish flag would have meant ruin and chaos. And then when in the fulness of time we felt they could walk alone, we turned over the government to them, and now the beautiful queen of the Antilles has started on her course as a free republic among the nations of the earth.

"But there is one thing—our policy toward Cuba has not yet met with its entire fruition. It will meet with it. Cuba must occupy a peculiar relation to us in the field of international politics. She must in the larger sense be a part of the general political system in international affairs of which this republic stands as the head. She has assented to that view and in return this nation is bound to give her special economic privileges not given to other nations. I regret that a measure of reciprocity with Cuba is not already embodied in statute or in treaty, but it will be just as sure as fate.

"And now a word as to the Philippines. There are yet troubles in the Moro country, the country of the Mohammedan tribes, but in the Philippines among the Filipinos, among the people who have been in insurrection, peace now reigns.

"It may be that here and there some seeming dead coal of insurrection may for the moment be fanned into a live piece of ember, and burst into a fitful flame. If so, that flame will be stamped out. But speaking broadly and generally peace has come. Our army has received its reward. And what was the reward of our army? The reward of the consciousness of duty well done. Today the proclamation of peace and amnesty has been promulgated and at the same time our generals have been notified that the civil government is supreme in the islands.

"By law we are allowed an army at a maximum of 100,000 men, at a minimum of 60,000. While this war has gone on we have steadily reduced that army until now its limit is 66,000, and as a matter of fact we have two or three thousand fewer actually under arms. That speaks well for our institutions. It speaks well for the triumphs of the policies with which as a nation we have been identified during the past four years and it shows how slight was the warrant for the fears expressed by those of little faith as to what would follow authorizing even the small army that was authorized.

"Nobody of our citizens deserves franker and more generous recognition at the hands of the country than the officers and enlisted men who wear Uncle Sam's uniform. For there is no body of our citizens which gives more disinterested service with less thought of material reward proportionately in any way to them.

"And now we have great problems at home to face. I am speaking in one of the great industrial centers of the world and here you are brought face to face with those problems which affected our entire civilization at the opening of this new century. The very intensity of the progress that has been made has meant that new and infinitely difficult problems have arisen which we must strive to solve as best we may.

"Under our form of government with its great decentralization of power, some of those problems must be solved through the work of private individuals working by themselves; others, by the association into organized bodies of groups of private citizens, and others yet through the various governmental agencies of municipal, state and nation. Especially great, especially difficult are the problems caused by the growth and concentration of great individual and above all great corporate fortunes. It is immensely for the interests of the country that there should be such individual and corporate wealth as long as it is used right, and when not used right then it becomes a serious menace and danger. The most important department of civilized government is the department of justice. Think what it means. The department of justice—justice which means that each man, rich or poor, big or small, strong or weak, shall have his rights and shall not be allowed to do wrong to his fellows. And you here have a right to feel proud of your representative in the cabinet, the man under whom we can guarantee that the department of justice will be such in fact as well as in name. When it comes to practical work the ounce of performance outweighs the ton of promise. And under Mr. Knox there has been very much more than an ounce of performance.

"As we face these infinitely difficult problems let us ever keep in mind that though we need the highest qualities of the intellect in order to work out practical schemes for their solution, yet we need more still, character. We need common sense, common honesty and resolute courage.

"We need what Mr. Knox has shown—the character that will refuse to be hurried into any unwise or precipitate movement by any clamor, and on the other hand, the character that will refuse to be frightened out of the movement which he thinks it right to undertake, by any pressure, still less by any threat, express or implied.

"We have great problems. We can only solve them by degrees. Much can be done along the lines of supervision and regulation of the great industrial combinations which have become so marked a feature in our civilization, but if we recklessly try to do too much we shall do nothing or else we shall work a ruin that will be felt most acutely among those of our citizens who are most helpless.

"It is no easy task to deal with great industrial tendencies. To deal with them in a spirit of envy and hatred and malice would be to invite a disaster which would be so widespread that this country would rock to its foundations. We cannot turn back the wheels of progress. If we could it would mean the absolute destruction of just such industrial centers as this. We will either do nothing or we will do damage if we strive ignorantly to achieve the impossible. But that fact does not excuse us for failure to strive to do what is possible. Special legislation is needed: some of that legislation must come through municipalities, some through states, some through the national government, but above and beyond all legislation we need honest and fearless administration of the laws as they are on the statute books. Honest and fearless administration of those laws in the interest of neither the rich man as such, nor the poor man as such, but in the interest of exact and equal justice to all alike, and such administration you will surely have while Mr. Knox remains as attorney general in the cabinet at Washington."

The exercises consumed just one hour. The president immediately afterward re-entered his carriage and was driven to the residence of H. C. Frick. Just before the president left the Frick residence for the dinner at the Schenley hotel, he reviewed the Sheridan troop, which had been his escort all day.

STRIKE-BREAKING PLAN

Coal Company Gives a Ten Percent "Bonus"

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW SUIT

Indications That It Is Chiefly Designed as an Incentive to Men to Desert Ranks of Strikers—Mitchell Declares That There Is No Break

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 5.—An advance of 10 percent has been given to all its workers by the Erie Coal company, and the plan, it is understood, is to be followed by all the other companies, there being an agreement to this effect. This increase, which is officially termed a "bonus," has a double purpose, being a reward to the men for their faithfulness to the company and an incentive to the strikers to apply for work.

As the plan is understood here, it was proposed by the coal carrying companies as one of the several they have in view for breaking the strike, and was designed to get men to return to work so that an effort may be made to resume at some of the collieries. Coming at this opportune time, when there has been for a week, and is now, much unrest among the men, it is an indication of an oft-repeated hint of the operators that there will be some aggressive move after this week.

If the increase is given by all the companies and is followed by an attempted resumption of work, with the understanding that the working force will be considerably reduced and the increase paid to all workers, it will, it is believed, induce a number of men to leave the ranks of the strikers. That the increase was not offered from the first to the men who were faithful to the company since the strike started, and that it applies only to the last two weeks, during which the companies have gained men, makes it seem chiefly designed as an incentive to other men to desert the strikers.

President Mitchell, who has returned from the west, declares that the report of desertion from the strikers' ranks are without foundation. The election of delegates to the convention is now proceeding throughout all the organized districts, and within 10 days all will be chosen. In the meantime, the arrangements for the convention will be completed by President Mitchell.

Five Men Slashed

New Haven, July 5.—In a fierce street fight last night murder was almost committed, and five participants were badly wounded with knives. Six of those engaged in the fight were arrested. The worst injured men are A. H. Miles and W. F. Baumer. The wounded men say that while on their way home the sidewalk was blocked by a party of Italians. When they attempted to pass they were attacked. They say they had no weapons and the wounds inflicted upon the Italians were done by the latter in the encounter.

Hub to Gotham on Cycles

Boston, July 5.—A two-days' endurance race between this city and New York for motor cycles was started from Copley square at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, 31 machines of various horsepower setting out on the long run via Worcester, Springfield, Hartford and New Haven, a distance of 254 miles. The winners will be those who come nearest to averaging 15 miles an hour.

It's Impure Blood.

"What is it?" asks the mother as she notices the smooth skin of her child marred by a red or pimply eruption. It is impure blood, and the child needs at once to begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the best and surest remedy for impurity of the blood. It entirely eradicates the poisons which corrupt the blood and cause disease. It cures scrofula, boils, pimples, eczema, saltrheum and other eruptive diseases which are the direct result of impure blood. It enriches as well as purifies the blood.

"Dr. Pierce's medicine has not only benefited me greatly, but it has done wonders for my two sons," writes Mrs. M. Hartrick, of Demster, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Both had scrofula. I have lost two daughters in less than five years with consumption and scrofula. My eldest son was taken two or three years ago with hemorrhage from the lungs. It troubled him for over a year. He took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and has not had a hemorrhage in over a year. My younger son had scrofulous sores on his neck; had two lanced, but has not had any since he commenced to take your medicine."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Business Continues to Be In a Generally Satisfactory Condition

New York, July 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Large interest payments testify to the prosperous condition of railways, industrial corporations and financial institutions, and, aside from the labor troubles, the half year just ended was remarkably satisfactory. Decreased exports were mainly due to poor crops and a heavy consumptive demand at home.

In the iron and steel districts there have been no developments of importance. Eastern footwear factories are more actively engaged, orders for fall goods coming forward freely. Quotations are still weak, buyers insisting on bottom figures.

In the textile markets cotton goods sold freely at recent concessions, and the tone was steady, while woolen mills are more actively engaged and buyers are in the eastern markets for raw material.

The general level of grain prices is higher for the week, especially corn and oats. Both receipts and exports have been light.

ONE BULLETIN A DAY

All That Is Considered Necessary In Reporting King's Condition

London, July 5.—The progress of King Edward continues satisfactory. Beginning July 6, only one bulletin a day concerning the king's condition will be issued.

The fact that Queen Alexandra, in company with the Duchess of Aosta, Prince Waldemar of Denmark and Prince George of Greece, drove out yesterday afternoon is taken as a sign of the king's satisfactory condition. This was the first recreation of this kind that the queen has indulged in since the king was taken ill. The king is allowed to read a good deal now, and he enjoys looking at the newspapers.

Clemency Recommended

Providence, July 5.—The jury in the Albert Dixon murder case, after being out nearly 22 hours, returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation for clemency. The crime for which Dixon stands convicted was committed in Burrillville, and was the result of a quarrel over a woman. Dixon struck Amos D. Perrin on the head with an axe, inflicting injuries which resulted in death three days later.

Two Suspicious Fires

Lynn, Mass., July 5.—Two arrests, each on the charge of arson, were made yesterday, but the fire loss was slight. In a fire in a carriage shed the police arrested Charles Knowles, who they discovered secreted on the premises. A Chinese laundry was discovered on fire and William Curry, who was found in front of the building, having made no effort to turn in an alarm, was taken into custody.

Cockran Talked to Tammany

New York, July 5.—Tammany Hall's celebration of the 126th anniversary of American independence differed little from that of the Fourth of July celebration held at the wigwam in former years. W. Bourke Cockran, who recently returned to the Tammany fold, delivered the principal address and the other long talk was made by Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman.

Champion All Round Athlete

New York, July 5.—Adam B. Gunn of Buffalo, who won the title of all around athletic champion at Buffalo last year, ably defended his title yesterday at Celtic park. The other contestants were Edward S. Merrill of Milwaukee and Myer Prinstein of Syracuse. Gunn outranked his opponents and won with a total score of 6260 1-8 points.

Point For Greene and Gaynor

Quebec, July 5.—Judge Caron yesterday granted the motions made by the counsel for Greene and Gaynor for writs of certeriori, addressed to Extradition Magistrate La Fontaine, ordering him to produce without delay all documents in his possession and in relation to these cases before the superior court here.

Amateur GOLF Tourney

National Championship At Glen View July 15-19

GOLFERS are waiting with great expectancy the holding of the national amateur championship tourney scheduled to begin July 15 on the Glen View course, near Chicago. Every amateur of prominence will be on hand to compete for the coveted title, and all indications are that the field will comprise the largest list of entries that ever appeared in an American match.

The playing of Walter J. Travis, the present national champion, will of course be the main attraction. He is in rare form these days, and, while it is generally believed that his superior is not to be found in this country, several of the men he will meet are sure to make him extend himself to the limit of his ability.

Findlay S. Douglas, the old time rival of Travis, is to try again to wrest

H. M. HARRIMAN.

the leadership from the champion, as also will H. M. Harriman of the Meadowbrook (N. Y.) Golf club and C. B. Macdonald, long a well known golfer of considerable experience in national championships. The work of William Holabird, Jr., of the Glen View club cannot fail to be of a caliber that will cause Travis to worry a trifle over the outcome of the tournament. Holabird holds the record for the club course, and, as he will be playing on his home grounds, every nook and cranny of which he knows as a ship's rat knows the galley, his chances will be correspondingly brighter. Considerable discussion has arisen as to whether the national tourney will bring about a lowering of the record established by young Holabird. He covered the distance in seventy-one strokes, and it is doubtful if Travis himself will be able to come inside the mark. The playing of Holabird in last year's matches at Atlantic City, N. J., attracted wide attention, and if his technique has improved he should not finish lower than second this year.

Western golfers are to be out in full force at Glen View. They have long desired permission to hold a national tournament, and now that they have got it they may be counted on to make the best of the opportunity. Western golfing interests were never more prosperous, and the coming meet will give increased impetus to the boom which started about two years ago.

The amateur tourney is open to all members of the United States Golf association. Secretary Maturin Ballou has announced the conditions as follows:

The winner of the competition will be the champion amateur for the year, and the trophy will be held for one year by the club from which the winner is entered.

The winners will receive, first, a gold medal; second, a silver medal; third and fourth, bronze medals. The conditions are as follows:

The contestants shall play eighteen holes medal play. The best sixty-four scores shall then be taken, and the contestant making the best score shall then play eighteen holes, match play, until but four competitors remain, who upon separate days shall play the semifinal and final games, consisting of thirty-six holes each, match play.

Competitors shall enter for the championship through the secretaries of their respective clubs, and an entrance fee of $5 must accompany each entry and must be received by the secretary of the association not later than 6 p. m. Tuesday, July 8.

All entries are subject to the approval of the executive committee of this association, whose decision shall be final.

Any person paying his entrance money shall be considered thereby to have submitted himself to the rules of the association, both as to restrictions enjoined and penalties imposed. On these conditions alone he is entitled to enjoy all the privileges and advantages of the association competition.

The programme for the week is as follows:

Tuesday, July 15—Medal play round, amateur championship (eighteen holes). Three prizes are offered by the association for the three lowest scores in this competition.

Wednesday, July 16—9 a. m., first match play round, amateur championship (eighteen holes); 2 p. m., second match play round, amateur championship (eighteen holes).

Thursday, July 17—9:30 a. m., third match play round, amateur championship (eighteen holes); 2 p. m., fourth match play round, amateur championship (eighteen holes).

Friday, July 18—10 a. m., semifinal match play round, amateur championship (first round, eighteen holes); 2:30 p. m., semifinal match play round, amateur championship (second round, eighteen holes).

Saturday, July 19—10:30 a. m., final match play round, amateur championship (first round, eighteen holes); 2:30 p. m., final match play round, amateur championship (second round, eighteen holes).

The executive committee of the United States Golf association, which prepared the official list of pairing for the first round at match play of the sixty-four men who will qualify for the amateur championship, now acknowledges that the system proposed by Lionel H. Graham, president of the New Jersey State Golf association, is the best of all systems.

The winner of all championships is generally found among the first four who qualify in the preliminary round at medal play and always among the first eight. Figuring on the basis that the lowest qualifying score wins, only the first four men could reach the fourth round according to this plan, while Mr. Graham's system makes it possible for the first eight to meet in the fourth round.

Only on three occasions in the history of the United States Golf association has the man who made the lowest score in the qualifying round followed it up by winning the amateur championship. Walter J. Travis did it in 1900 and again in 1901, while J. H. Whigham did it in 1896. Charles Blair Macdonald had the low score in 1899, and Whigham, who won the championship, was second. In 1898, when Findlay S. Douglas won the championship, J. H. Coates, Jr., had low score, while Douglas qualified seventh. Herbert M. Harriman, who won the championship in 1899, also qualified seventh, John Reid, Jr., having the lowest score.

The executive committee has adopted officially the system suggested by Mr. Graham, which is as follows:

Nos. 1 and 33, 9 and 41, 13 and 45, 17 and 49, 5 and 37, 21 and 53, 25 and 57, 29 and 61, 31 and 63, 27 and 59, 23 and 55, 7 and 39, 19 and 51, 15 and 67, 11 and 43, 3 and 35, 2 and 34, 10 and 42, 14 and 46, 18 and 50, 6 and 38, 27 and 56, 26 and 58, 30 and 62, 22 and 64, 28 and 60, 26 and 56, 8 and 40, 20 and 52, 16 and 68, 12 and 44, 4 and 34. Second round—Nos. 1 and 9, 13 and 17, 5 and 21, 23 and 29, 31 and 27, 23 and 7, 19 and 15, 11 and 3, 2 and 10, 14 and 18, 9 and 22, 26 and 30, 32 and 28, 26 and 8, 20 and 16, 12 and 4. Third round—1 and 13, 5 and 23, 27 and 7, 15 and 3, 2 and 14, 6 and 26, 28 and 8, 16 and 4. Fourth round—1 and 5, 7 and 3, 2 and 6, 8 and 4. Semifinals—Nos. 1 and 3, 2 and 4. Final—Nos. 1 and 2.

It is decidedly the fairest method that has yet been suggested, as often under the old method of drawing, or even placing, some of the very best men in the tournament were brought together early in the competition, and much of the interest in the tournament has been destroyed. The men from whom the most can be expected will be those who are well up in the list during the preliminary play.

McFadden and Gans.

George McFadden, the lightweight fighter of New York, who is matched to box Joe Gans for the lightweight championship of the world in San Francisco, has arrived at the coast and has begun training for the contest. Billy Roche, manager of McFadden, is confident his protege will beat Gans in less than twenty rounds.

Hard Hitting Collegian.

Arthur Williams, the Tufts college representative on Selee's team, leads the "recruits" in batting, with the splendid average of .363. Chance has an average of .357, Kling of .338, Slagle of .337 and Davy Jones of .319.

SOLDIER SLAIN

Shot Down by a Man In a Street Row at Cambridge

Cambridge, Mass., July 5.—As a result of a street quarrel here early yesterday morning, Henry H. Kane, who recently returned from army service in the Philippines, was shot and killed by an unknown man. The affair took place near the corner of Cambridge and Seventh streets.

Kane had an argument with a party of young men, which resulted in one of the crowd pulling a revolver and firing two shots, one of which penetrated Kane's lung. The wounded man died before reaching a hospital.

The man who did the shooting ran toward Somerville and threw away the revolver. His companions escaped with him. The police have a good description of the man.

The identity of the man who killed Kane remains unknown, although fully 100 persons witnessed the affair. The revolver and hat of the man give no clew to the police.

Busy Day For Doctors

Boston, July 5.—Just like other fourths in Boston there were scores of minor casualties among those who celebrated with powder yesterday. In the rooms of the South Boston wheelmen three members were wounded by the explosion of a rifle. Patrick Coyle and John Kane are in the city hospital with their names on the dangerous list. Cartena Caravajeto, 4 years old, received a 38-calibre ball in her head and may die. Walter Somner, aged 25, was arrested, as the police understood that he and friends were firing at a target on the fence near where the child was playing.

Electric Lamp Trimmer Killed

Fall River, Mass., July 5.—William Wager and Michael Oates, electric light trimmers, were sent to put in a new lamp on a street corner. Soon after beginning work Wager received a shock which temporarily disabled him, but he returned to work. His companion stood on a box for insulation, while Wager held a lantern with which he accidentally touched Oates on the arm. The current passed through Oates' body, and Wager dropped to the ground dead. Oates received only slight burns on the arm.

Willie Petro Returns Home

Boston, July 5.—Willie Petro, over whose absence from his father's home in Beachmont there has been quite a stir this week, resulting in the arrest of Miss Eva Randall on the charge of kidnapping, came home on the Bangor boat from Bucksport yesterday. He had been at Verona island. He says he had no intention of leaving home, but went to Bucksport to have a good time.

Gregg Gets His Money Back

Bristol, R. I., July 5.—Through the vigorous efforts of local officers the entire $900 which Robert Gregg lost through indulging in a three-card monte game here has been recovered. The sharpers were traced to Kingston, R. I., where arrests were made yesterday and the money recovered. Gregg will be obliged to pay the expenses of the officers, which amount to nearly $300.

Elkes Smashes Records

Providence, July 5.—Harry Elkes created havoc with world's records in his 25-mile motor-paced race with Bobby Walthour here last night. The full distance was made in 35:41 2-5, 15 seconds faster than the previous mark, the five and 15 mile records were lowered several seconds and his fastest mile was done in 1:21 1-5. Walthour was defeated by a mile and two laps.

Unable to Reach Agreement

Plymouth, Mass., July 5.—The jury which had the Bagni murder trial under consideration reported a disagreement. The court asked if a further consideration would help them to an agreement, and they answered no. They were then discharged after a session lasting 24 hours and 45 minutes. The trial lasted 10 days. The jurymen are silent regarding the way they stood.

Two Canoeists Missing

Springfield, Mass., July 5.—A capsized canoe, with cushions and a hat found in the Agawam river yesterday, indicate the drowning of a young man and young woman. A. R. Forgotte recognized the canoe as one he let to a couple in the afternoon, and identified the hat as that worn by the man. Grappling for the bodies has been unsuccessful.

A Venerable Prelate

Newport, R. I., July 5.—Right Rev. Thomas M. Clarke, Episcopal bishop of Rhode Island, celebrated his 90th birthday at his home at Middletown yesterday. He was remembered by many clergymen of the diocese and friends, who sent him a number of floral offerings. The bishop continues in excellent health.

Girls Struck by a Train

Greenwich, Conn., July 5.—Nellie Riley and Jennie Price, two young girls employed as waitresses at a local hotel, were struck and instantly killed by an express train last evening. The girls attempted to cross the tracks near the station instead of taking the underground passage.

Found Floating In Bay

Providence, July 5.—The body of a man was found yesterday in the channel off the Edgewood shore of Narragansett bay. It had been in the water about a week. It is supposed that this is the man that jumped from a bay steamer at this point last Saturday.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded

Methuen, Mass., July 5.—Miss Blanche Blodgett was accidentally shot yesterday in the leg by William F. Williamson, who did not know the weapon was loaded. The wound is a serious one.

THE DOINGS OF THE THEATRICAL FOLK.

Hall Caine's "Eternal City"—Two New Stars For the Coming Season. A Society Light as an Actress.

Hall Caine's play, "The Eternal City," bids fair to be one of the notable productions of the coming season in England as well as in this country. Here, as is well known, Viola Allen will enact the role of the heroine, while to E. M. Holland and Edward J. Morgan respectively will be intrusted the characters of Rossi and the pope of Rome. Bonelli, the wily statesman, will be cared for by a competent player.

That the three masculine roles here enumerated are all of unusual strength may be assumed when it is known that Beerbohm Tree, who owns the English rights of the play, is undecided as to which of them he will reserve for himself. Had Franklin MacLeay lived it is certain that Tree would have given him Bonelli, but as matters stand he appears to be unable to find any one who measures up to his standard of the role. It is therefore not at all improbable that he will yet decide to take it himself.

There is a very general impression that Mr. Caine wrote his play from the novel, but the reverse is the case. The happy ending of the play was always there, and, as the pope is a purely fictitious character and the drama has been passed by that sometimes oversqueamish person, the play censor of London, there need be little fear that it will offend the religious sensibilities of any class of persons.

Arthur Dunn will next season be the star of Lee Arthur's dramatization of Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn." Dunn ought to fit into the role like a snail into his shell. It is surprising that this little comedian has so long escaped the attention of the starmaking fraternity. He is at conservative estimate about a billion times as funny as most of the eccentric stars of the present day pretentious musical comedy productions. Arthur Dunn is certain to "make good" if his play should be a good one. What is more, he will come pretty near to being the best thing in the country of his own peculiar kind.

Another star of next season is Harry Woodruff, of whom the newspapers are fond of speaking, as having "first attained prominence by reason of his reported engagement to Anna Gould, now the Countess de Castellane." That episode was a hindrance rather than an aid to Woodruff's professional advancement. He is a gentleman and a mighty good actor, and, inasmuch as "Rex," the play by Augustus Thomas and Eugene W. Presbrey in which he will star, is highly spoken of by those who have seen it, there would seem to be no reason why Woodruff should not succeed in his stellar venture, particularly as his role is said to be broadly similar to that of the imp in "When We Were Twenty-one," in which he scored a prodigious success.

Grace Barber, a debutante in James K. Hackett's company, is an amateur from Buffalo who, in addition to fresh, piquant, girlish beauty, rejoices in an aureole of what poets call "sunset hair" that rivals Mrs. Leslie Carter's celebrated hirsute crown. When Miss Barber made up her mind to become a professional and secured an opportunity in Mr. Hackett's company, her mother accompanied her and assumed the position of general chaperon for the young ladies of the organization. Miss Barber made her first appearance in the wordless role of one of the gypsies in "Don Cæsar's Return," but was speedily promoted to the role of Antonia, maid to Maritana. In Mr. Hackett's latest production, "The Crisis," she appears as Maude Catherwood, one of the belles of St. Louis before the war. One of the merriest scenes of the play is when the youth and beauty of the old southern city dance the Virginia reel in the moonlight on the lawn of Colonel Carvel's country place at Glencoe. This is said to be the prettiest southern scene produced on the stage since "Alabama." "The Crisis" will have its first New York production at Wallack's theater Thanksgiving week.

Good Afternoon

The weather and temperature after sunrise on the Fourth were all that could be desired, and were appreciated, especially after the unfavorable prediction on Thursday when the storm promised to continue.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Few, however, can really afford any considerable degree of luxury. There are in the United States about 15,500,000 families, and one percent of these own more than half the aggregate wealth of the country. These 15,000 families presumably, can afford to be luxurious in their own living, but the standards they make are not safe standards for any one but themselves. The man with $5,000 a year is sure to come quickly to grief if he tries to live as the man does who has $50,000 a year. And so on down the whole list. If we do not regulate our luxury according to our means "demnition is our certain portion."—John Gilmer Speed in Ainslee's.

☞ If you cannot easily resist the temptation at the table, or would incline to overeat, select a moderate quantity of that which you most desire and take it away from the table, and sit down in a sunny window, on the veranda, the lawn, under a tree, anywhere that you may have a bit of life and gladness outside of yourself, and also consume an abundance of fresh air, for there is plenty of life in the air we breathe, the only trouble being that we do not get half enough of this very positive element to assist in disposing of the negative food. Now, having seated yourself, do not be in haste; you have plenty of time for all that is necessary for you to do Enjoy every mouthful of that rare meal, and chew it until it is so liquid you scarcely perceive just when it goes the narrow way of all food. Do this and it's very doubtful if you ever enjoyed a dinner more thoroughly, and you need not indulge in a twinge of conscience, nor look into the stomach, for everything will take care of itself down there if we do our part. This experiment will teach a valuable lesson to all those who ruin digestion by eating at railroad speed, and later by giving other people plenty of hard, nerve-racking work catering to the capricious appetite that is not hunger.—Health Culture.

☞ A movement is afoot to suppress the Irish character. It has been inaugurated by the Irish themselves who consider that their character has become so perverted to caricature that the resultant notoriety has become unbearable. Like the Chinese, the Irish must go. The policeman and the serving girl who have figured on the corner so long—in Puck, in the kitchen—in Life, who have upheld the law and the digestion, are no longer personæ gratæ to their own countrymen. Spell it with an "I" and it is all right. Spell it with an "Oi" and it is all wrong. The Irishman has determined that the Oirishman shall be suppressed. He is undertaking a gigantic task, which successive British Parliaments since the Battle of the Boyne have not been able to accomplish. But the Irishman has a way with him, and we look on the outcome with active interest.—St. Paul Despatch.

☞ The king proposes and parliament disposes of a quarter of a million in cash as award to Lord Kitchener for his part in the military and diplomatic achievement in the Transvaal. The reward will come in a title. Thirty thousand pound were given him three years ago for similar service in Egypt. In England a considerable part of the population is in such permanent poverty as to be classed "the underfed." A per cent. of the inhabitants, reckoned by some students of social problems at at one fourth, goes regularly the down grade to the workhouse and the almshouse. In such a country to spend a billion and a quarter in a war of extermination, and to wind up by voting largesses, after the manner of the Roman empire, to the generals who conducted the cruel business, is not to appeal very strongly to the popular sense of justice, nor to invoke the approval of heaven. It is intended to show that it pays to serve the crown. It is not calculated to make the people bear their burdens with cheerfulness.—Rev. Dr. I. M. Atwood in Universalist Leader.

Old Home Week at Braintree.

At the meeting of the Old Home Week committee and delegates of various organizations at the Town house last Saturday evening considerable enthusiasm was manifested for the celebration the week of July 27th.

Major W. E. Morrison was present and expressed his willingness to be marshal of the day Monday, July 28th. The representatives present of lodges, etc., held a private meeting with him to formulate plans for the parade.

Brockton's City band and Cuff's orchestra have been secured for the day.

The line of march has not been decided upon yet. We hear that the start will be made from Braintree passing through the principal streets of Braintree and South Braintree. It will not be a trade display parade. Conveyances will be in line for those who are unable to walk a long distance.

Another meeting will be held this evening from which some definite plans will eminate. Wednesday evening there will be a town meeting to appropriate more money for the celebration.

Mr. N. E. Hollis has consented to the use of his large field, bounded by Monatiquot avenue and Washington, West and Ash streets, for a muster field. The tubs will be located on Ash street near West.

It is reported that the Cochatos have accepted the challenge from the Braintrees for a game of ball on French's common Monday, July 28,

Death from Accident.

Nathaniel, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Albert N. White of Braintree, passed peacefully away at his home Friday morning, July 4, at 11.15 o'clock. On Wednesday while driving a horse attached to a rake, at Joshua Wilkins' place, he was kicked from his seat by the horse becoming frightened. Later in the afternoon he was taken home and medical attendance summoned. Thursday it was deemed necessary to perform an operation, which was done by Drs. Richardson, Frasier, Sheahan and Bullock, Thursday evening. The operation disclosed a severe rupture of the bowels and although for a time he seemed to rally, the injury was too severe and he gradually succumbed, conscious until almost the last. Nathaniel was a bright, interesting and manly boy, the pride of his parents and exceedingly popular among his associates. He was a member of the graduating class of 1902 of the Jonas Perkins school, receiving his diploma only two weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. White have the sincere sympathy of the community in their affliction.

DEVILTRY.

Which May Result Fatally at West Quincy.

Damage by Dynamite Explosions.

People Frightened and Windows Smashed.

Every year there are many rumors about West Quincy of the quantities of powder and dynamite that have been stolen to celebrate "the night before the Fourth." The rumors have proven false so many times that people this year did not place much stock in them.

A terrific explosion about 3.30 A. M. on the Fourth in the vicinity of Grove street followed by the rattle of breaking glass, made it apparent that this year the rumors were true.

A keg of powder had been placed in an out building in the rear of William Corcoran's store and when it exploded the building went flying through the store window and made a wreck of the place.

About the same time a keg of powder was exploded in the yard of the Gridley Bryant school, which uprooted a tree and smashed many windows in the school building and in the houses of John Fitzgerald, John Shevelin, Daniel C. Little, Patrick Sullivan, William Harper, Fred Emmett and Mrs. C. Leavitt.

In the Fitzgerald house, Mr. Fitzgerald's sister was sick, and it is feared the shock may prove fatal to her. Eleven panes of glass were broken in Fitzgerald's house, and twenty-eight in the house of John Shevelin.

It was reported that a man having fifty-six sticks of dynamite was about West Quincy early in the evening offering to sell them to boys, and if it can be found that he sold any of this high explosive he will probably have an opportunity to explain in court.

New Office for Ledgor.

As soon as Messrs. Sanborn & Damon vacate their present store it is to be thoroughly renovated and the building occupied by Geo. W. Cramped for room it has been hard work to maintain the excellence in newspaper and job work, for which the firm is noted not only in the city but by the newspaper fraternity.

Roger E. Sumner.

Monday evening at Ludlow, Mass., a sad accident occurred, by which a former, well-known citizen of Braintree was instantly killed. Mr. Roger E. Sumner, formerly lived on Middle street, in the house now occupied by Mr. Atherton M. Hunt. He was employed as an electrician and was at work, putting in a motor, when the current lighting the street lights was turned on, and Mr. Sumner after a single exclamation, fell lifeless. Mr. Sumner was 45 years of age, and leaves a widow, sister of Mr. J. Franklin Perry, the well known electrician of Braintree. It was about one year ago that Mr. Sumner moved to Ludlow. The funeral occurred Thursday afternoon at Norfolk, Mass.

Holiday Golf.

There were but few entries in the driving competition tournament at Wollaston on the Fourth, but the finals for the Spring Cup were decided. C. E. Erswell by defeating R. F. Foster, 12 up 11 to play in the finals, won a beautiful silver cup. He says he prizes this one especially among his golf trophies. This closes the spring season's program with the exception of playing offs.

Martin Pfaffmann, proprietor of the Wollaston nurseries has several hundred crimson rambler roses in full bloom, a sight well worth seeing as they are a mass of blossoms and of every size. October is said to be a good month to set out ramblers for the next season's blooming.

Interesting Map.

One of the most extensive, certainly one of the best equipped railroad systems of the country, is the New York Central. It now operates over 11,000 miles. Many will find the map in this issue, locating America's resorts reached by this road and connections of great interest. For the children it will be a good geography lesson. The summary of the time required to travel between important points is also of value.

Public Invited.

The management of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company has decided to give the public free access to its shipyard in Quincy on the occasion of the launching of the seven-master schooner, Thomas W. Lawson, on Thursday afternoon, July 10. The gates will be opened at 1 o'clock and the launching is to be made at high tide or about 3.30.

HOME WRECKED

While Man Was at Police Station Getting Warrant.

Wife Unconscious on His Return.

Neighbor Charged with Mischief is Missing.

A terrific explosion on Cranch hill early in the evening the night before the Fourth, shook the houses and rattled the windows. Investigation showed that the house of George K. Ellis at 6 Farrell street had been dynamited and had been badly wrecked.

The explosive had been placed beneath the stone steps in front of the house, while a cartridge had been placed on the rear porch. That someone in the house was not killed or injured is miraculous. The piazza was completely wrecked, and the woodwork scattered over a radius of fifty feet. The granite underpinnings and granite steps were broken and a screen door torn from its fastenings. The flooring was also ripped up and the clapboards were torn off.

Mrs. Ellis was at home alone with three children, aged 14, 11 and 6 years, at the time. The youngest child was sick, and was being attended by Mrs. Ellis when the shock came. She was thrown from her feet, and all were so frightened that they fainted.

At the time of the explosion Mr. Ellis was at the police station trying to secure a warrant against Charles Carlson, one of his neighbors. Mr. Ellis told the police that early in the evening Carlson had fired six shots at him as he was passing through a field near his home. Later two more shots were fired and went crashing through the glass over the door, and a little later three windows were smashed by bullets.

The police were at first inclined to think his alarm as needless, and that it was simply incidental to celebrating. He insisted however that his life was in danger and a warrant was thereupon issued by Court Officer Marden.

When Mr. Ellis reached home and saw the wreck he was speechless for a moment. He called to his wife but received no answer and thought she must be dead. Word was sent to the police station, and two officers went to Ellis's house and tried to find Carlson, but were unsuccessful. His house was searched but no trace of him could be found.

Mr. Ellis believes that Carlson has a grudge against him because he stopped him from crossing his land. Mr. Ellis is a stone cutter by trade and also has charge of the Hall cemetery.

It was reported that Carlson was about Quincy this morning and visited his home. At the police station at 1.30 it was said that he had not yet been arrested but the officers were out looking for him.

BASEBALL

At West Quincy.

The West Quincys batted out a victory on the afternoon of the Fourth defeating Campello 8 to 6.

The visitors played a strong fielding game but were weak at bat, with the exception of Linquist.

Maroney for the West Quincys struck out 12, and Dunn, Duffy, Parks and McAuliffe did good stick work.

AT SOUTH QUINCY.

The South Quincys won their game on the morning of the Fourth with the East Milton Reds, by a score of 18 to 15.

The Ward Three playground was partly under water from the rain and in bad condition, and both clubs were without some of their regular players, and it was ten o'clock before the game was called.

The East Miltons were first at the bat and scored two unearned runs, being assisted by two bases on ball, and a wild pitch. Only one got a base hit while two struck out.

Every South Quincy man went to the bat in the first and three scored. They got bases on balls and three hit safely, but no runs were earned.

The Reds tied the score in the second, and then the Quincy boys had a picnic. Thirteen were at the bat. There were singles by Flynn, Oswald and Guston, and a double by Dunn aided by five bases on balls, and 9 runs resulted. Six more in the fourth closed the run getting for the home team.

The Reds scored in the third, fifth, sixth and seventh, and might have won had not Dunn pitched for the last two innings and retired them in one, two, three order.

Errors were numerous on both sides. The full score follows:

—A daily average of 6500 tons of water is received into Dead Sea from the Jordon and other sources during the year. There is no outlet and the level is kept down by evaporation only, which is very rapid because of the intense heat, the dry atmosphere and the dry winds which are constantly blowing down from the gorges between the mountains.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure:

"I suffered agonizing pain in the left breast and between my shoulders from heart trouble. My heart would palpitate, flutter, then skip beats, until I could no longer lie in bed. Night after night I walked the floor, for to lie down would have meant sudden death. My condition seemed almost hopeless when I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, but it helped me from the first. Later I took Dr. Miles' Nervine with the Heart Cure and the effect was astonishing. I earnestly implore similar sufferers to give these remedies a trial."

THE LITTLE BEARS WHO PLAYED TRUANT

Fishing with Nipper had grown to be a passion. More than once he had played hookey when he was supposed to be in school and gone down to his favorite bend in the Big Pappio and spent the day with hook and line.

One morning while he and Jumper, his cousin, who had come to live with Grandma Bear, were on their way to school Nipper brought up the subject, and, as Jumper had never told on him, he was asked to play truant on the following day and go fishing.

"But are there any fish there?" asked Jumper.

"The water is just full of them," replied Nipper, and as Jumper wanted to "show" Jimmy Bear the compact was sealed and arrangements were made.

The next morning when Nipper kissed his grandmother goodby he said:

"You need not worry about me any more, for I'm going to be good and bring home a white card next Friday evening."

His grandmother patted him on the back, and he trotted off after Jumper.

Half a mile from home the little bears hid their books and slates under an old log and made a bee line for the bend in the river.

On some occasions Nipper had found other bears fishing at the bend, but this time there was none present, which was very gratifying, and Nipper was soon busy digging angleworms, while Jumper cut the poles.

As Jumper was trimming off the limbs he kept glancing at the water. Nipper saw him and asked what he was gazing at. "Oh, nothing much," replied Jumper, "except that I was just thinking the water is pretty shallow for very big fish." "You just wait and see," replied Nipper. Then he added, "We will be flinging big fellows out as fast as you can count as soon as we get down to business." "I hope we will," was the reply of skeptical Jumper, "but if we don't get some big ones look out for trouble if grandma ever finds out we were here instead of at school."

"Find out fiddlesticks!" replied Nipper. "She'll never know." But Jumper was not so sure of that.

In time the worms had been dug and the lines attached to the poles, and the two little cousin bears sat down to fish.

They fished for nearly an hour before either got a nibble, when all at once the bobber on Jumper's line went clear to the bottom. He felt that he had a fish almost as large as a whale and jerked with all his might. When the hook shot up in the air, it was empty, not even the bait remaining.

"That looks encouraging anyway!" exclaimed Nipper. "He jerked just like the big fish I caught one day last week and gave to old Mr. Coon so he wouldn't tell grandma I was up here fishing. I think mine weighed almost fifty pounds," he added, "but I'm not sure, as we didn't weigh it." "One half that big will do for me," replied Jumper as he baited his hook and threw it back in the water.

In a little while both bobbers were dancing about on the water. Occasionally one would go down, but each pull on the line proved that the fish had not taken the hook.

Another hour went by, and Nipper got hungry. He stuck his pole in the bank of the river and went to prepare lunch, leaving Jumper fishing. Just as lunch was announced Jumper pulled out—not a fifty pound fish, but a little hickory bass about four inches long, which Nipper said was so full of bones that it would choke a cat to death.

After lunch they fished for a long time without success. Somehow the fish wouldn't bite, although Nipper had assured his cousin that they were plentiful. Eventually, however, Jumper caught another hickory bass, or skipper jack, as Nipper called it. And that was all the fish they got, yet not all they caught.

After Nipper had wound up his line Jumper kept trying to coax the fish. At last he, too, became discouraged and was just ready to quit when his bobber went down, and he pulled for dear life. And what do you suppose he brought up? Nothing but a great, big, ugly mud turtle.

"Mud turtles make good soup," explained Nipper, "and perhaps grandmother will forgive us if we take it home."

"No, she won't," replied Jumper. "We just got to claim that the mud turtle got after us on our way from school and we killed it with a stick. Don't you dare to tell her we were not at school. If we had plenty of fish, it might be different, but let's take no chances."

It was near sundown when the little bears got home. They heard voices in the sitting room, but supposed it was some neighbors who had called. Nipper entered first and was followed by Jumper carrying the turtle.

"See what a nice big turtle we have brought you for soup," Nipper said much as a rich man would say to his sons, "Here's $10 for firecrackers."

"Where did you catch it?" said Grandma Bear.

"It tried to catch us on our way home from school," replied Nipper. "That's what made us so late. It ran us all up and down the river for two or three miles, and at last Jumper hit it with a stick and killed it."

"What's that string hanging out of its mouth for?" asked the old bear as she wiped her glasses to get a better view.

"Guess it must have swallowed something that had a string attached to it," ventured Jumper.

"Yes, I guess it did," replied Grandma Bear. "I think if the truth were known there's a fishhook at the other end of the string."

"Wonder how on earth it ever got there?" asked Nipper, with a wonderful show of innocence. But both he and Jumper strongly suspected that their duplicity had been found out, and to make things more uncomfortable Miss Cherry Bark Bear, the little bear's schoolteacher, walked out from a dark part of the room and stood before the two culprits.

Nipper didn't propose to give up without a struggle, and he put on a bold front and said, "Why, dear teacher, you beat us home, didn't you?"

"But you were not at school today," replied the teacher.

"Oh, yes, we were," insisted Nipper. "Jumper and I were both there, but perhaps you didn't see us because you have so many other little bears to look after. Of course, dear teacher, we were there."

Jumper had never been in such a scrape before, and he would willingly have given every plaything he possessed to have had Nipper out in the woods for a minute or two where he could have "evened up." But all he could do was to nervously balance first on one foot and then on the other and wait for something to turn up. And something did turn up.

"Jumper," sternly said his grandmother, "I am much surprised at you. I would not be surprised at anything that Nipper did, but you are different. Do you know that I was at school today? Well, I was. I went to see how you and Nipper were getting along.

"WHY, DEAR TEACHER, YOU BEAT US HOME, DIDN'T YOU?"

That's how I know what's attached to the end of the string in the mud turtle's mouth. The idea of a turtle chasing you two up and down the road for miles! Now, aren't you ashamed of yourselves? If you are not, I am ashamed of you, and if you ever do anything of this kind again I'll send you over to Plum Hollow to the reform school for bad little bears. As for Nipper, he's too young to send there, but not too young to be punished, and as soon as the teacher goes home we'll talk this matter over again. In the morning the teacher will talk it over, too, and by that time I think you will both be of the opinion that it always pays to be honest.

The only reply came from Jumper when he said, "Grandma, I'm willing to admit it now if that will do any good." But it didn't.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A School on a New Plan.

A school for boys is to be opened at Winona Lake, Ind., which is said to be the first of its kind in the west. The object of the institution is to afford the boys who have no money the opportunity of gaining a practical education that will enable them to go to work immediately. Several wealthy men have contributed a fund sufficient to put up the buildings and pay the running expenses for five years. The institution will have two departments—agriculture and manual training.

Selling Lemonade.

Leland C. Hawkins, Hoopeston, Ill., aged ten, last summer made $20 selling lemonade to the men in the Sprague canning machine factory at Hoopeston, the largest factory, he says, of the kind in the world. Every hot day he went out with a pail of iced lemonade and sold it to the men in the factory, some days making as high as $1.50.—American Boy.

A Mental Family Tree.

We were talking in the schoolyard about our family trees,
And Gertrude said hers could be traced
to Sir Horatio Freeze,
And Rufe said he'd descended from the governor of a state,
And Louie mentioned ancestors of hers
about as great,
While Reggie said his lineage embraced a lord, he knew,
And Nell from her great-great-grandsire obtained her blood so blue,
But neither of the little Smiths could say a single word;
For them to boast their ancient name of course would be absurd.

Then teacher, smiling slightly, said that she was much inclined
To think that there was such a thing as blue blood of the mind;
That those who studied hard (and here she beamed on Tommy Smith)
Had certainly descended from men of force and pith,
And those who loved to tend the sick and serve the weak and frail
Were morally related to Florence Nightingale.
(Here Jennie Smith blushed to the ears.)
And when she saw a youth
(How bright she smiled at Johnny Smith!)
who always told the truth
At school, at home or when he was at work or having fun
She knew him for a relative of General
Washington.

But Reggie doesn't like such talk; he says
it seems to throw
So much responsibility upon yourself, you know.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—The Father's care.—Matt. vi, 25-34; Ps. ciii, 13, 14.

God is revealed unto us under many different names and titles in His word, but none of these is so precious as the special revelation of Christ that He is our Father, carrying with it as He declares a father's love and care. The Fatherhood of God is no nominal relationship. Its reality is as sure as its preciousness. As our Father, God loves us, is specially interested in us and provides for us. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him." "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat and body than raiment? Behold the fowls of the air, for they sow not, neither do they reap or gather into barns; yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" God as our Father does care for us.

God's fatherly care does not mean exemption from trials and afflictions in this life. Though many draw this conclusion, such a doctrine is not taught in the word of God or in Christian experience. The Bible clearly teaches that "in the world we shall have tribulation" and that "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as sons, for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not?" On the basis of God's fatherly care many illogically assumed that no afflictions and trials should come, and when they do they doubt God's existence or His loving care. Such doubts, however, are childish and foolish. God's care does not exempt us from the troubles of life. It does, however, guarantee that no troubles will come but what are for our good and that he will sustain us in them. What seems good to us is ofttimes ill, and what seems the worst is often for the best. God sees the end as well as the beginning and is therefore better able to judge what is best for us. We cannot understand all His dealings with us, but when we cannot understand we can trust, and what we do not know now we shall know hereafter.

God's fatherly care should make us calm and confident amid all the diversities of our present life. Our Father can and He will take care of us. "Therefore take no thought saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be clothed? For after all these things do the gentiles seek; for your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you. Wherefore take no thought for the morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Thus spoke the Master Himself, who understood the loving care of our Heavenly Father as did no one else, and hence we can rely upon what He says. "God will take care of you. Be not afraid."

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 10-22; Job xxxviii, 39-41; Ps. xxiii, 1-6; xxxvii, 5; lv, 22; cxlvii, 1-9; Isa. xl, 25-31; Luke xii, 13-32; Phil. iv, 1-6; Heb. xiii, 5, 6; I Pet. v, 6-9.

Roll the Stone You Cannot Drag.

I saw some men building a stone wall the other day, and they were putting into it some enormous stones that they wanted to get out of the driveway to the house. Some of them were so large that a pair of strong horses were unable to drag them. When they found that this was the case, the man in charge, without being in the least sense defeated, hitched the chain around the rock in such a way that, instead of dragging it, it would roll it over. While the horses were not strong enough to drag the stone, they could roll it over very easily, and so they rolled it over and over again until they got it into its place. There is a good lesson in that. Some people do all the work of life in the hardest way. If they can't drag their stones of difficulty, then they leave them and give up as defeated. But that is not wise, for among our daily trials and burdens of life, as well as among the rocks on the New England side hills, there is many a stone too big to drag that can be rolled into a place of service.—Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

Teaching Children Religion.

Some think that children should not be biased in their religious ideas, but left to choose for themselves. It is a nice but impracticable theory. The truth is that the world and their own minds are full of the things which bias in the direction of evil, and as between a bias toward evil and a bias toward good we must decide, and decide very early. Anyhow, God seeks the opening bud, not the withering leaf.—Presbyterian Banner.

Thoroughgoing Faith.

Thoroughgoing faith is neither daring nor joyous. It is unconscious of itself. It is the background whence proceed happy energies seeking the ends for which they were wrought into the soul of man.—Christian Register.

Infidelity and Belief.

Infidelity expends its strength in fighting and trying to destroy Christianity. Christianity expends its strength in reforming, ennobling and elevating the human race.—Religious Telescope.

Fair Weather Friends.

The friendship that does not reach you in your hour of adversity is little worthy of the name. Fair weather friends are, after all, enemies in disguise.—Presbyterian Journal.

Woman Fulfilled Wager Which May Cause Death

DESCENT WITH PARACHUTE

Sudden Jerk of the Apparatus Caused Her to Lose Hold and She Dropped Sixty Feet to the Ground, Sustaining Terrible Injuries

Woonsocket, R. I., July 5.—Miss Mabel Ward of Milford, Mass., to win a wager of a box of candy made with a friend some days ago that she would not dare to attempt a parachute descent from a balloon, made her ascension yesterday afternoon at Neagle Lake Park and by a fall she sustained terrible injuries from which it is more than likely she will not recover.

The ascension was made about 6 o'clock and under the direction of Andrew C. Hillman and in the presence of fully 6000 people. The balloon, a new one used for the first time yesterday, was filled shortly before 6 o'clock, and Miss Ward took her seat in the basket of the parachute, which was simply a network of ropes on an iron hoop. When all was ready the guys were cut and the balloon ascended rapidly. Miss Ward seemed to be sitting on the forward part of the seat, and when about 300 feet in the air she released the parachute and started on her course earthward.

The parachute dropped fully 200 feet before opening, then as it expanded it fell quite slowly. The girl had by this time slipped from the front of the seat and was holding on by her hands to the wrist straps. As the umbrella opened and the parachute filled with air, it gave a sort of jerk and an upward start, which shook off the girl's hold from the wrist straps and she dropped 60 feet to the ground, her body revolving once in its descent. When within 12 feet of the ground her chin struck an electric light wire, breaking her fall somewhat, but she fell heavily to the ground with all her weight on her right foot.

The terrible impact of the girl's foot with the ground drove the femur bone up through the knee, shortening the right leg eight inches. The spectators were horrified at the spectacle and a brother of Miss Ward, a sister and two friends who were with them, fainted at the sight.

Miss Ward was picked up unconscious and carried to a cottage nearby, where she was attended by two doctors. They put the leg in splints and applied restoratives and the girl was then brought to the city and taken to the hospital. Her knee and leg were found to be so badly injured that it was considered necessary to amputate the leg at the thigh, just above the knee. Miss Ward also sustained a fractured jaw, besides internal injuries and numerous cuts and bruises. She bore the operation remarkably well and recovered consciousness after it was over.

She has since shown slight improvement and, although the physicians say there may be a slight possibility of recovery, her injuries are so serious that they have very little hopes in that direction.

No Consideration For Human Life

Seattle, Wash., July 5.—Harry Tracy, the escaped convict, passed a red letter day in his erratic career yesterday. He killed Policeman Breese and fatally wounded Neil Rawley in the city limits, after having murdered Deputy Sheriff Raymond and probably fatally wounding Deputy Sheriff Williams. In his flight for safety Tracy has covered probably 60 miles. A total of $5500 is offered in rewards for Tracy's capture. The governor has ordered two troops of the militia to aid the posses.

The Fourth In Manila

Manila, July 5.—President Roosevelt's amnesty proclamation was read at noon yesterday in English and Spanish from a flag-draped stand, after a parade of 6000 Americans and Filipinos. The prisoners freed by the proclamation, estimated to number 600, were released without ceremony. The celebration was typically American, even to the firecrackers. Captain Crossfield delivered an oration, there were athletic games and racing in the afternoon, and fireworks and illuminations at night.

Clothing Caught From Fire Cracker

New Haven, July 5.—Lena Bromberg, 8 years old, was burned to death yesterday. The girl touched off a firecracker which leaped into the air until her skirt caught fire and her body was burned from head to feet. She died in two hours.

Americans Abroad Celebrate

London, July 5.—Several hundred Americans attended the reception given by Ambassador Choate yesterday in honor of the Fourth of July. Two floors of Mr. Choate's residence were packed with Americans.

Holbrook—Parker.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker, Braintree, was the scene of a quiet wedding Monday evening when their daughter Miss Annie L., was united in marriage to Mr. Percy W. Holbrook of South Braintree. Rev. Albert E. Legg, using the ring service, tied the knot in the presence of immediate relatives and a few close friends.

Miss Lillie D. Hollis was maid of honor and W. Elmer Holbrook, brother of the groom, best man.

The bride was charmingly gowned and carried a bunch of Jack roses. Sweet peas and roses were tastily arranged about the room.

Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook received many useful and ornamental presents, which will be very much appreciated in their new home on Hancock street near South Braintree square. They are at home to their friends Thursdays.

Perkins—Borden.

Monday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents, corner Central avenue and Franklin street, South Braintree, the marriage of Miss Nellie M. Borden to Mr. Harry K. Perkins of Bridgewater, Mass., was solemnized by Rev. T. F. Wright, Dean of the Theological school of Cambridge, in the presence of about sixty of the immediate family relatives and friends of the happy couple.

Promptly at two o'clock the piano, presided over by Mr. Burrell of Porter's orchestra, rolled out the Mendelssohn wedding march and the bride and groom entered the parlor preceeded by four ushers who opened with white ribbon, an aisle, through which they passed to a bower of mountain laurel and roses. The parlors were beautifully decorated with potted plants, ferns, cut flowers and roses.

The bride was gowned in white mousseline de soie over swiss muslin en-traine with corsage of embroidered white mousseline de soie and chiffon roses. The bride carried a bouquet of bride roses.

While the happy pair received congratulations, soft strains of music floated from the piano. The couple then led the way to the dining room where light refreshments with ice cream and fruit punch were served, by six special friends of the bride, two of whom were her classmates at Bridgewater normal school. A large number of beautiful and useful gifts were received.

At four o'clock the couple amid showers of rice and best wishes from the company left on their wedding trip. They will be at home on Thursdays in September and October on Broad street, Bridgewater, where they have a beautiful new house just completed.

Miss Beatrice Borden and Mrs. J. Matthews, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Marion C. Gillette of South Braintree, Miss Florence G. Waters of Everett, Miss Edith Leonard of Taunton and Miss Alice Dean of Taunton, helped in serving the refreshments.

The ushers were: Mr. Herbert L. Borden, brother of the bride; Mr. Marion C. Gillette, South Braintree; Mr. E. Ashton Oliver, Ashmont, and Mr. William R. Carver, Brockton.

MANY FIRE ALARMS.

But Only One Fire Which Amounted to Much.

The firemen were kept busy the night before the Fourth. Previous to midnight the department was not called out, although extra men were stationed in every house.

The first blows on the fire alarm came at 11.45 when the breaking of a wire in the Atlantic circuit caused a number of blows in rapid succession. The circuit was cut out and the police notified. Police headquarters were able to communicate by means of the signal boxes to the officers in that section and notified then that the boxes were not working.

The first alarm came from Box 154 at 12.30 and was for a fire in a small house owned by the government situated near the National Sailors' Home. The fire was extinguished with a loss of not over $25.

The next alarm came at 1.10 from Box 36, and was followed by a second alarm from the same box. It was for a fire in a small shed near the works of the Mitchell Granite company, owned by James Fletcher. It was probably set on fire and was destroyed.

Box 28 was pulled at 2.25 for a fire in a small building on Putnam street in the rear of the residence of Mrs. Henry Barker, and used for an ice house. The fire made quite an illumination. The building was destroyed.

Hose 2 and Combination 2 were called out on a still alarm at 2.15 for a blaze in the rear of Frank J. Perry's store, Wollaston where a 58 gallon tank of gasolene had been overturned and set on fire. The building was simply scorched.

One more alarm wound up the alarms for the night. This came from Box 153 at 2.45 and was a false alarm.

LAST NIGHT'S FIRES.

The alarm from Box 26 at 9.45 was for a brisk fire in the house of John A. McAloon on Hancock street, near the corner of Standish avenue. Mr. McAloon's family were away at the time, and the fire was discovered by Henry Gurney, who occupies the upper hart of the house. The fire at that time was in the L of the house. Gurney ran to Box 54 near by to give the alarm at 9.15, but the box for some reason failed to work properly, as only five blows sounded. Gurney then went to Box 28 at the corner of Hancock and Greenleaf street, a half mile away, and attemped to give an alarm from there. This time only two blows sounded. Gurney went back home and meantime the fire had been burning briskly.

Finding that the department did not respond he notified a street car conductor, who pulled Box 26 when his car reached City Square, and notified the firemen when the apparatus arrived where the fire was.

The L part of the building was badly gutted, and the smoke penetrated every part of the house. The building was damaged several hundred dollars and was not insured. The furniture also was considerably damaged by smoke and water.

The firemen had not been back long from the fire at Mr. McAloon's before an alarm was sounded from Box 29 which was sounded about 11 o'clock. This was for a fire in a small building near McKenzie & Paterson's granite works on Canal street. The fire was a small one.

A few minutes later an alarm was sounded from 136 for a fire in an outbuilding on Brook street.

Shortly before midnight Box 21 sounded followed almost immediately by an alarm from Box 41. These were both pulled for the same fire which was in a shed near the Swithin Granite works off Granite street.

Fourth at Wollaston.

The night before the Fourth at Wolton was very peaceful aside from the exploding of rifles, revolvers, cannons, etc. There were seven policemen on guard. With the exception of upsetting a gasoline tank, which was set on fire, the carrying away of signs, etc., little damage was done. However, the firemen were made busy by three alarms in the morning hours. The firemen rejoiced, nevertheless, that they were undisturbed between 10 and 10.30 P. M., July 30. The Wollaston department about that time held their annual supper of sandwiches, ices, cake, etc., and enjoyed themselves immensely. Mr. James M. Cahill and boys of Wollaston entertained on the violin and mandolin. By 12 30 when all was digested, the firemen were just in trim for a fire and responded to the alarm from Box 154

Fourth of July Accidents.

Patrick McVay of West Quincy is at the Quincy Hospital suffering from burns on his face and body. McVay was celebrating the night of the Fourth with a small cannon. He was loading the cannon at the time when the powder exploded in his face. He was taken to the hospital in the police ambulance.

The shores of the Weymouth Fore River gave forth their heartiest co-operation in the love-feast which occurred in their midst on Sunday last, when Ex-chief Weber of the Boston Fire Dept., Ex-Alderman Potter and the Hon. Edward Cunningham both of Brockton, and many others, appeared on the scene as guests of Ex-chief Whitmarsh of Braintree.

That every one enjoyed themselves it is needless to say and despite the slight inclemency of the weather, the bounteous repast which was prepared by Mr. Whitmarsh was the grandest exemplification of a banquet a la Clam that the noted visitors had ever participated in.

Midnight Assault.

Edward Alvin of Squantum street reports that as he was passing through Squantum street one night recently about midnight he was set upon by two men, the older of whom made a grab at his throat. He broke away and by the free use of a heavy cane he succeeded in keeping the men at bay. The younger of the two men took no part in the affair.

—The full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court has decided that the ordering of food at a hotel before the ordering of liquor makes a person a guest within the meaning of the public statute. This interpretation of the law furnishes another broad farce for the amusement of the landlord and his bibulous patron. A fake sandwich covers a multitude of drinks.—Mansfield News.

—A band of gypsies in New York State are showing their enterprise, by traveling in an automobile. The chief says he can travel fifty miles a day which was better than he could do with horses. But how about trading?

Charles C. Smith was arraigned upon four complaints for violation of the liquor law at Cohasset. Cases continued until July 11.

Floating Bar Room.

William Martineau was arrested in his yacht at Quincy Point on the Fourth, charged with violation of the liquor law. It is claimed that Martineau ran a floating bar room and at a signal understood would come ashore sell. Friday morning Inspector McKay, Officers Larkin Goodhue and McAloon went to Quincy Point and made the signal. It is claimed that Maatineau then rowed ashore and an officer made a purchase. Later a steam launch was secured and the police boarded Martineau's yacht and seized four cases of beer.

—The new Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Moody, has issued an order that hereafter when officers are to be promoted the Bureau of Navigation is to forward to him the records of their services, which will show the proportion of the time they have spent at sea. It is stated that for some time the President has not believed in the prevailing practice that promotion based solely on seniority are for the good of the Army or Navy. Special services, he thinks, deserves special recognition. The promotion of exceptional ability in any part of the Government service would simply be following the rule applied in business corporations, and would secure the best of service to the Government. In this action of the Secretary of the Navy the President again shows his disregard for bad precedents.—Rockland Standard.

Spiders.

Spiders are an unsociable, misanthropical race at the best of times and usually regard each other with the most uncompromising aversion. This embitters all social intercourse, so that a spider wandering by accident into his brother's web is received in a manner that if "a little more than kin" is certainly "less than kind." Instead of hospitably entertaining his visitor mine host either drops by a fine thread and disappears from view or promptly prepares to fight him. Eviction is not his object, but capture, with ulterior designs upon the body, which with a wise forethought the master of the house already destines for the larder.

But putting aside these prudent considerations it is a grand albeit a savage sight to witness the encounter when the combatants are well matched for size and strength—the cautious advance, with a delicate testing of threads on both sides; the wily feint, followed by a precipitate retreat, and wild dangling of the hero suspended in midair, and then the headlong rush and death grapple, hand to hand, foot to foot, which is rendered very impressive when six legs are brought into active requisition at once on either side.—London Opinion.

Mushrooms Easily Grown.

Any one may raise mushrooms in his cellar or even in his attic with very satisfactory results.

He should have a bed which may consist of a shallow box, and this should be filled with a dark, rich loam to the depth of, say, eight inches. It should be in a dark place, and a damp place also is beneficial, but if he uses an attic the room may be kept dark by heavy curtains and the earth damp by frequent watering. An average temperature of from 60 to 70 degrees should be maintained. Almost all seedsmen sell the spawn bricks, and when the bed is prepared the spawn should be broken into fine surface particles and just covered with the earth.

Notwithstanding the popular belief, mushrooms do not come up in a night, but they do in four or five nights, and when once up their growth is very rapid.—Exchange.

All the Same.

During an encampment of the national guard of Pennsylvania at Mount Gretna several years ago a party of officers went out for a stroll, and, happening to pass a farmhouse near the encampment grounds, one of them suggested stopping in for a glass of milk. On going inside the yard they were met by the farmer's daughter, who brought forth a can of buttermilk and some tumblers, saying:

"This is the only kind of milk we have."

After each of the party had taken a drink one of them remarked:

"By George, that's fine! Can't you let us have some more?"

The lass replied:

"Oh, yes; take all you want. We feed it to the pigs anyway."—Philadelphia Times.

System In Saving.

"The only good plan for saving is to make it an invariable rule to deposit something each week or each month," says a bank president. "Having thus put the money aside, it should be considered out of reach and on no account to be drawn upon except in case of sickness, loss of employment or death. It is surprising how money will pile up when such a system as this is followed. If every one who possesses any income at all would adopt the practice and stick to it no matter how small the deposits might be, poverty would be well nigh abolished."

Misinterpreted.

A delicate point of pronunciation is involved in this story. A country cousin once went to spend Sunday with an Edinburgh friend. After a long day spent in sightseeing they found themselves a long way from home.

"Noo, mon," said the townsman, "we've a long way to gang. Shall we tak' a tram?"

"Tak' a tram!" cried the other in surprise. "Ye dinna mean to tell me that in Edinbro' the public houses are open on the Sawbath!"

A Maddening Legacy.

A young man at St. Mende was driven mad by a legacy of £4,000. From the moment the money came into his possession he was oppressed by the fear of losing it and always carried it about with him. He finally made a bonfire of it in the form of notes and then attempted to blow out his brains.—London Chronicle.

One of Our Pet Phrases.

"Did any of the inhabitants escape with his life?" inquired the man who wants harrowing details.

"I didn't stop to ascertain," answered the man who is harrowingly exact. "It struck me that if anybody escaped without his life there wasn't much use in his escaping anyhow."—Washington Star.

No Help From Her.

"Miss Frisbie—Ellen, love," said young Mr. Gallagher timidly, "I have lost my heart."

"I'm sorry I can't help you, Mr. Gallagher," replied the maiden not unkindly. "I haven't found it."—Detroit Free Press.

The "pop" concerts by the Fadettes and the splendid production of tableaux vivants are attracting unusually large summer audiences to Keith's this season, which promises to be the largest for half a dozen years. The orchestra will have a new program for the week of July 7 and four new tableaux will be added, including two that will especially appeal to the children and ladies. As usual, the variety proper will be the best that money can procure, and among those booked to appear are the following: Ballarini's trained dogs, and Mlle. Ballarini's graceful and daring trapez performance; Josie and Willie Barrows, in a refined singing and dancing sketch; Mitchell and Cain, burlesque comedians; Arthur Deming, a clever monologuist and the Empire City Four, vocalists and comedians.

Boston Music Hall.

The Castle Square theatre dramatic stock company continues its season at Boston Music hall next week with a revival of the famous melodrama "The Lost Paradise" which has gained such favor in earlier years. The stage settings of this drama will be even more elaborate than when last seen in Boston, at the Castle Square theatre, and some novel mechanical effects have been planned for the scene at the works which promise to add much to the success of the production. The company will be strengthened by the engagement of extra people for the larger scenes and it will interest patrons to know that Miss Mary Hall, an English actress just from London, will make her debut in this country in the character of Margaret Knowlton the heroine of the story. The leading characters have been assigned as follows: Andrew Knowlton, James L. Seeley; Ralph Standish, Edmund Breese; Bob Appleton, James A. Keane; Mr. Flether, John T. Craven; Old Bensel, Lindsay Morrison; Billy Hopkins, William J. Hasson; Mrs. Knowlton, Fannie Addison Pitt; Margaret Knowlton, Mary Hall; Cinders, Mary Sanders. Following "The Lost Paradise" on Monday, July 14, comes a production of "She Stoops to Conquer." The distribution of boxes of choice chocolate bonbons to patrons of the Monday matinees will be contined.

—The English sparrow has been despised for years, but now it is asserted that he is really a valuable member of the community. To the credit of these "Johnnie Bulls" it is said that a pair of them can be depended on to destroy fifty thousand obnoxious insects during a summer. Brady, the English naturalist, records that one pair brought thirty-two hundred insects to its nest in a single week. It is undeniable that various crawling things are scarcer than they were twenty-five or thirty years ago when the English sparrow had not come among us. If this scarcity is due to the presence of the English sparrow he is entitled to credit and to consideration, and a handful of crumbs now and then during the winter is his just due.—Boston Home Journal.

RAIN AND WIND STORM

Causes Great Devastation In Western New York

STREAMS ARE OVERFLOWED

Houses, Barns, Bridges and Live Stock Swept Away by Raging Torrents—Lowlands In Some Districts Have Been Transformed Into Lakes

Buffalo, July 7.—A terrific rain and wind storm swept over western New York at an early hour yesterday. Rivers and creeks rose rapidly, overflowing their banks and sweeping away houses and barns and live stock. The loss will reach into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Telegraph and telephone wires are down and communication with small towns in Wyoming, Niagara and Cattaraugus counties is difficult to establish. This city was not in the path of the storm.

The flood at Arcade claimed one victim and did many thousand dollars damage to property. Minnie Loper was drowned early in the day. The downpour and the cloudburst above the village turned the creek into a torrent and the water rose very rapidly.

At Yorkshire, two miles below, Arcade, the approaches to the bridge were washed away, but the bridge is standing. Miles of roadway are so gullied or buried in debris that they will have to be rebuilt. At Sandusky two houses were washed away.

The storm destroyed many tobacco crops south of Elmira, uprooted trees, overturned tobacco barns and outhouses and accomplished much destruction of property. The smaller streams overflowed their banks and interfered with railroad traffic.

The loss from the floods in Warsaw will reach $100,000. Oatka creek, flowing through the centre of the village, burst its bounds, and, making a channel through the principal streets, carried devastation in its path, wrecking houses and barns, many of which were swept bodily down stream, together with an immense amount of debris brought down from the surrounding hills.

The river at Portage is now a torrent a mile wide. Everyone living in the lower part of the town had to abandon their homes. The farms are laid waste and no field crops can be saved. Houses and barns were swept down the river.

Great alarm was felt for the safety of some of the people living in the lowlying lands at Hornellsville, and the fire bell was rung to arouse them. The storm came on suddenly and great damage was done. Three houses were carried away.

Lower Main street in Attica is four feet under water. Dead cattle, wagons and wreckage of all kinds were washed down stream. Seven iron bridges were carried away. Hundreds of acres of hay and crops are ruined.

Pike is under four feet of water. Almost every bridge over the creeks in Niagara and Allegheny counties and in the southern part of Wyoming county was washed away.

The flood came over the banks of Tonawanda creek, which are 50 feet high, and the water began to run across Main street in Batavia. The country looked like a lake for miles around. Hundreds of acres of farm lands are under water, and the damage will be great.

The big iron bridge at Java has been washed away. Reisdorf's dam and cider mill at Strykersville are gone.

McBeth's grist mill in Wales has shifted off its foundation and is in danger of collapse. Hundreds of acres of farm land are covered with mud and standing crops are ruined.

Wreck Caused by Washout

Lockport, N. Y., July 7.—Two miles of the New York Central tracks between Middleport and Medina were washed out by the flood yesterday. A freight train ran upon the weakened roadbed and many cars were wrecked and others are imbedded in the mud up to the axles.

Fearful Battle at Christening

Connellsville, Pa., July 7.—A terrific race riot between Slavs and Polish miners and coke workers occurred Saturday night near Vanderbilt. A Slav was killed instantly and another Slav was shot through the body and probably will die. Thirty Slavs, men and women, were all more or less injured in the terrific hand-to-hand fight that took place. The participants were covered with blood after the fracas. The trouble started at a christening.

Freight Handlers Going Out

Chicago, July 7.—The freight handlers, numbering nearly 9000 men, employed in the different railway warehouses and depots in Chicago, last night decided to go on strike within 48 hours to enforce their demand for higher wages.

DANGER POINT PASSED

King Edward May Go Aboard Royal Yacht at End of Month

London, July 7.—King Edward's progress continues to be good. It is said that if his improvement proceeds at the present rate he will probably, by the end of the month, be well enough to be transferred to the royal yacht in Southampton waters.

Most of the churches in the united kingdom celebrated yesterday the announcement that King Edward was out of danger with informal thanksgiving services, special music and the singing of the national anthem.

The government has issued orders that the Indian colonial troops now in London shall postpone their departure indefinitely. These orders are due to the strongly expressed desire of the Indian contingent especially to see the king before they return home and they also indicate an intention to retain the troops here until the coronation.

The king has commanded the lord mayor to convey to all concerned his gratification at and warm thanks for the energy and foresight which made the king's dinner to the poor on Saturday such a great success, and to repeat how sincerely he regretted his inability to be present and how touched he was by the loyal and kindly feelings so universally displayed.

Gardener Will Produce Testimony

Manila, July 7.—The cross-examination of Major Gardener, governor of Tayabas province, by the board which has been investigating the charges of cruelty, etc., brought by the major against American officers and soldiers, has been completed. The board had again formally demanded the production by Gardener of testimony as to the alleged hostility of the military authorities in the Philippines to the civil government. Major Gardener has promised to answer this demand. He testified that he had not intended to reflect upon the fairness of the court and that the recorder had not, to his knowledge, interfered with his witnesses.

Miners Need Assistance

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 7.—President Mitchell of the Miners' union left here yesterday for New York. The Associated Press has learned on trustworthy authority that he went to the metropolis for the purpose of meeting leaders of other labor organizations. The purpose of the meeting is understood to have a direct bearing on the question of labor organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor assisting the Miners' union financially.

Wanted to Annihilate Family

Chicago, July 7.—Taking his revenge for a quarrel of long standing, Theodore Oelfeuer, a laborer, shot and killed his wife yesterday, as she lay asleep in bed. Oelfeuer then shot his baby son and his stepdaughter, who were sleeping with his wife, wounding the former probably fatally and putting a bullet in the latter's shoulder. Oelfeuer also fired a shot at his two stepsons, but hit neither. He was arrested.

Riot Over a Tin Cup

Lacrosse, Wis., July 7.—Growing out of a quarrel over the possession of a tin cup at a street drinking fountain, a riot was precipitated Saturday night between the Assyrian colony and several hundred railroad men. About 300 of the 800 Assyrians of the colony were engaged. The fight lasted for an hour. One man was stabbed several times and several were badly beaten.

Cattlemen Violating Law

Ardmore, I. T., July 7.—Grave trouble between the cattlemen and the Indians in the Choctaw nation is feared, because of the killing during the past week of nearly 400 cattle, supposedly by the Indians. The trouble arises from the violation by the cattlemen of the law providing that non-citizens of the nation shall have no more than 10 head of cattle.

Tracy Has Not Lost Nerve

Seattle, Wash., July 7.—Harry Tracy, the Oregon convict, has escaped from the vicinity of Seattle and crossed the sound to Fort Madison, where he bound and gagged four people, cooked and ate a meal, shaved, changed his head dress and impressed a man to row a boat. He departed in the direction of the Hoods canal country.

Resorting to Old Methods

Guthrie, O. T., July 7.—Several Apache warriors have been arrested at Fort Sill, charged with killing and scalping another member of the tribe and stabbing his squaw to death. The Apaches were only recently released from the Fort Sill reservation, where they were prisoners of war for 15 years.

A PERILOUS JOURNEY

Aeronaut Sailed Away In Twisted Parachute but Made Safe Landing

Woonsocket, R. I., July 7.—Andrew Hilman, the aeronaut who has been making ascensions at Hoag Lake park, had an exciting experience yesterday when he made his first ascension since Friday, when Miss Mabel Ward of Milford, Mass., while 60 feet in the air, fell from a parachute and sustained injuries which fractured her jaw and caused the amputation of her right leg.

Hilman, when going up yesterday, was struck in the stomach by a 30-foot high joist, used to hold guy ropes, and which had not been lowered as he ordered. The blow against Hilman and the parachute seat caused the seat to swing around and the parachute ropes to twist and tangle. Hilman, high in air, tried to swing around and get the ropes into shape to make the parachute drop, but could not do so and was forced to stay in the balloon, which landed, parachute and all, on the roof of a barn half a mile away. Hilman alighted and the balloon floated off and fell in some woods, wrecking the parachute and tearing a big hole in the balloon.

Women Took Part In Fight

Boston, July 7.—A small-sized riot occurred in Roslindale, following a ball game between the All Saints club of Roxbury and the Somersets of Roslindale, caused by the efforts of the Roxbury rooters to rescue John Ryan, one of their number, who had been arrested on the charge of stealing the colors of the Somerset club. Four police officers were assaulted with stones by the crowd and were obliged to fight their way to the police station. There were also numerous fights between the partisans of the two clubs in which women and men were mixed up.

Every attempt has been made to induce her to reveal the man's name, but she declines.

STRIKE DECLARED OFF

Providence Railway Men Give Up the Fight

BREAKS IN THE RANKS

Made It Necessary to Give Up to Allow Men Out to Regain Their Places —Employes In Blackstone Valley Vote to Continue the Strike

Providence, July 7.—The strike of the motormen and conductors on the United Traction company's lines in Providence was declared off Saturday night, after having been in force since June 3. At the time the Union of Street Railway Employes took this action it was presumed that it would end the strike in Pawtucket, Central Falls and throughout the Blackstone valley, but later the strikers in those places refused to end the strike, acting independently of the union in Providence.

Business Agent Vetter of the union, after the meeting, said that the strike was declared off because there had been so many breaks in the ranks of the strikers that it was necessary to stop the strike to allow men now out to get their old places. Vetter at this time expected that the strike would end on the entire system of the Traction company. Two hours later the strikers at Pawtucket met and voted to continue the strike indefinitely.

Yesterday afternoon two cars of the Pawtucket system were surrounded at Saylesville by a crowd of about 500 persons. The crews were assailed with stones and forced to abandon the cars. The crowd cut the curtains to pieces with knives, rung the fare registers to the limit, broke the ventilator windows and battered the woodwork of the cars. A wrecker was sent for the cars and this was attacked, but the cars were gotten away. A car on the Broad street line was also stoned at East Lonsdale, and a motorman was disabled by a large stone thrown in Pawtucket. Ten cars were operated yesterday in Pawtucket, but few after nightfall, and only one car ventured to Cumberland.

The strike thus broken by the withdrawal of the Providence members of the union has been one of the most remarkable of its nature in New England. Almost from the beginning it has been accompanied by riots with some bloodshed, much dynamiting, and for many days the state militia was needed to control the street mobs in this city and Pawtucket. The United Traction company succeeded in moving cars in the three places only by great efforts. Early in the strike when the company got men to man the cars it used deputy sheriffs to protect them, and this precipitated the worst scenes on the streets. Then Governor Kimball was asked to use the military to quell the riots and to protect property. This was done, and nearly 1500 militiamen came out on the first call. After 10 days these men were replaced by other commands, so that practically the entire National Guard of the state was used during three weeks of the strike.

The strike became quiescent in Providence under the rifles of the soldiers, and the running of cars was resumed. In Pawtucket the unruly element did not subside completely and in Central Falls it was constantly on the watch for opportunity to wreck cars and stone the crews. The militia was withdrawn from Providence and then from Pawtucket when the authorities in these cities were certain that they could grasp the situation. In Providence the strike was followed by what was practically a boycott of the cars, for patronage was very light. At Pawtucket few cars were run in daylight, and nearly every day were withdrawn in the early evening. Switches were broken and rails tampered with.

As a natural consequence arrests of disturbers of the peace were numerous and fines or imprisonment and in some cases both were imposed in court. The use of firearms was frequent and several motormen were haled before the court for discharging pistols at crowds which menaced the cars. Early last week one district court judge decided that street railway employes had the right to defend themselves and the property in their charge from a mob by the use of firearms, and the motormen were ordered discharged.

The loss in wages to the men has been heavy and the United Traction company has suffered immense loss in receipts and in damage to its property.

Agreement In Alabama Strike

Birmingham, Ala., July 7.—The joint committee of the miners and operators have reached an agreement and both sides are confident that the committee report will be ratified by the joint convention which will assemble today. Under the agreement the miners fail to secure an increase in wages or the eight-hour day. Concessions were granted by the operators as to day laborers, making their wages uniform throughout the district.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Dr. Abbot warns the health authorties of the various cities that with the return of cold weather there is likely to be a smallpox epidemic throughout the state that will put the experience of last year in the shade, and the continual performance which is being enacted by the smallpox microbe in scattered localities at the present time, even during what is supposed to be his season for a lay-off gives additional force to the warning. This means that there should be a strict adherence to precautionary measures and that the rules of municipal cleanliness should be thoroughly enforced.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Sometime in early spring a wise prophet, whose identity we have forgotten, caused to be published a statement foretelling an outline for this summer. Among other things the prophecy was that there would be more disasters in all parts of the world than ever before, that there would be a series of damaging volcanic eruptions, floods and fires, and so far as weather is concerned it would be the most peculiar summer the world has ever known. This prophecy was published in one of the Chicago papers last March. That it has come true in nearly every particular is most remarkable. —Barre Telegram.

☞ The new soldiers' monument, dedicated at Newburyport on Friday, will appeal to every infantry soldier of the Civil War. Generally the status of the American soldier of the 1861-5 period, representing him at "parade rest" or on guard, wearing an overcoat, but the Newburyport soldier is a "dough boy" sure enough, wearing a blouse, with his trousers tucked into his stockings, with wide and roomy brogans on his feet, with rifle at "right shoulder shift." With sturdy stride he appears as "Marching Thro' Georgia," or trailing along one of the muddy pikes or plank roads of Virginia. The Veterans recognize it as the real thing, and Mrs. Kitson has spoken to them as few sculptors have done. The minuteman at Concord bridge and on Lexington Green, are represented as soldiers in action, and so is the volunteer on Atkinson Common in Newburyport, and as it was unveiled in the presence of Past Department Commander Gilman who made the address, it must have appealed to the old war hero, recalling his own appearance on the march to Gettysburg, where he left an arm. The Newburyport soldier is one of the best representative statues in the State.—Lynn Item.

A Bad Toss.

Ex-Councilman Charles H. Grindell met with quite a serious accident on Penn street Saturday afternoon. He was returning in an open wagon from the Meadow Brook Ice Co. houses when his horse stumbled and Mr. Grindell was thrown out. He struck heavily fracturing his left shoulder blade. He was removed to his home on Pleasant street.

HORSE FRIGHTENED

And Women Are Thrown from Open Buggy.

At Scene of Recent Fatal Accident.

This Time the Women Were More Fortunate.

There was another serious accident on Saturday evening at the corner of Washington and Canal streets, which it was feared for a while might be fatal. Mrs. Matthew Dolan and her neice of Brookline were driving along Washington street in a light open buggy enroute to their summer home at Kenberma, Hull. When near Wibird street their horse was frightened by the whistle of an electric car which approached rapidly behind. The car whisked by and when it reached Canal street, threw so much dust in the horse's face that he shied, and both women were thrown over the dasher.

The young lady who was driving did not appear to be much injured, but Mrs. Dolan, who weighs upwards of 200 pounds, landed heavily on her face, and was helpless.

The injured women objected to being taken to the Hospital, but accepted the kind offer of Miss Furnald, who opened her house, and the Police ambulance which had been summoned by telephone, conveyed them thither. Drs. Garey and Hayford attended them.

It was found that Mrs. Dolan had received bad cuts on the forehead and bruises elsewhere, but she remained conscious all the time, and stood up bravely while sixteen stitches were taken by Dr. Garey. The neice did not complain of injuries, and was able to visit the telephone office.

Later in the evening Dr. Garey accompanied the women to Kenberma in Hall's ambulance. Mrs. Dolan stood the journey remarkably well, and was comfortable when Dr. Garey left for home Sunday morning.

Later it was learned that she had a bad day. Dr. F. B. Harrington of Boston is now the attending physician.

Upon arriving at Kenberma it was found that the neice had received severe bruises on the shoulder and elsewhere.

Mr. N. B. Furnald drove the horse of Mrs. Dolan to the beach on Sunday and had no difficulty from the cars.

Hardwick—Clements.

A quiet, but impressive wedding took place Saturday evening, July 5, at the parsonage of the West Quincy Methodist church, when Miss Nellie E., daughter of Mrs. Hannah Clements of Douglas street, West Quincy, became the wife of Mr. George E. Hardwick of Franklin street, Quincy.

The Rev. David L. Martin performed the ceremony, the ring service being used. The bride was attended by Miss Abbie L. Phelps, and the best man was Mr. John M. Clements, brother of the bride. The bride was very becomingly gowned in a travelling suit and carried white pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick left Sunday afternoon for New York amid the best wishes of relatives and friends. They are to reside in Jersey City, where Mr. Hardwick has but recently settled in business.

Officers in Mix-up.

The jealousy among officers and constables cropped out at the carriage accident on Washington street Saturday evening. Constables Henry P. Furnald and James Dunn, Jr., were among the early arrivals and were active in rendering relief, summoning aid and keeping the crowd back. It is asserted that when the Police wagon arrived that Officers Barry and Golden did not recognize the constables at all, but handled them roughly in pushing back the crowd, which was resented and almost led to blows.

It is said that the injured woman appealed to the officers not to quarrel.

Later Constable Dunn made a complaint to Mayor Bryant, and it is probable a hearing will be given.

Mrs. Dolan requested N. B. Furnald to look after her horse and carriage, and on Sunday he drove the horse to Nantasket. Officer Murray who put up the horse at McGann's stable remonstrated later because Mr. Furnald had taken the horse without his permission.

Assault Case.

Matti Witta was arrested late Saturday night by Officer Bradley for assault on Constant Crobattie. Crobattie claimed that while on Smith street earlier in the evening he was set upon by Witta who struck him with some sharp instrument which split his ear. He was rendered unconscious and when he came too he told his story to Officer Bradley who latter arrested Witta.

The Sidewalk Gang.

Attention has been called to the gang of loafers who almost nightly congregate on the sidewalk on Hancock street in front of the Faxon block, and not only become a nuisance to the storekeepers in that block but obstruct the sidewalk. They also insult people passing, especially ladies. The storekeepers have frequently complained to the police and Officer Goodhue who has the beat in City Square has frequently requested the gang to move on. HISTORIC QUINCY.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams, house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams. At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Janitor can be found at Savings Bank building or at his home Maple place. No fee charged, but janitor may be paid for his trouble.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the Indian Tisquantum.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Private house, not open to public.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

THREE ARRESTED

In Connection with Dynamite Case.

Arraigned in Court This Morning.

Ellis' House Visited by Hundreds of People.

The house of George H. Ellis near the Quincy Hospital, which was dynamited the night before the Fourth, was the mecca toward which many turned their steps on Sunday. There was a constant stream of visitors all day and it is estimated that fully 1000 people visited the house, and the wonder of all was that someone had not been killed by the explosion.

Carlson, whom it is alleged is the man who first shot at Ellis and then threw the dynamite, was arrested Sunday morning by Officer Bradley and Special Officer Sandberg. When the officers visited Carlson's house they found the window curtains drawn and the doors locked, but having information which led them to believe he was inside, they forced an entrance and placed him under arrest. Oscar Johnson and George Ryden, who it is alleged were with Carlson when the dynamite was thrown, were also arrested. Johnson and Ryden were bailed out later in the day, but Carlson remained in the police station.

Both Ryden and Johnson claim they had nothing to do with the affair and did not know of the matter until they read the morning papers. Ryden says that he was away from home, that he went to Boston on the 9.12 train and did not return until late. Johnson claims that he can prove an alibi and that he had no hand in the affair.

Carlson emphatically denies having anything to do with the blowing up of the house, or the attempt to kill Mr. and Mrs Ellis. He said he was at the home of George Ryden on Curtis street, a short distance away, and was sitting on Ryden's piazza when the explosion occurred. He saw Inspector McKay drive past the house soon after but had no suspicion that he was wanted in connection with it. He further says that he fired some shots from the piazza of his house before he left home, but that he used blank cartridges. He bought the revolver in Boston and that it now contains two of the blank cartridges.

He further said that he had been at home since the affair and had not kept out of the way, and the police had not been to his house until he was arrested. He considered it a shame to accuse him or any one else and he should take legal measures against Ellis.

All three men were in court this morning Carlson was represented by John McKnight, Johnson and Ryden by W. W. Jenness, and the government by J. J. McAnarney.

Carlson was arraigned upon three complaints, viz.—Wilfully exploding dynamite on the house of Ellis, assault on Ellis and malicious mischief. He was held in $700 until Tuesday.

Johnson was arraigned for wilfully exploding dynamite on the house of Ellis, and with malicious mischief, and was held in $300. Ryden was arraigned for malicious mischief and was held in $100.

Ellis had one of the most attractive estates in this vicinity, with flower plots in front of the house and a flourishing vegetable garden on one side. He is at a loss to account for the enmity of anyone to the extent manifested. Ellis has been employed at the Fuller Granite yards at West Quincy and at the Hall cemetery and his employers speak well of him.

At West Quincy.

The West Quincys defeated the Hingham A. A. in a one sided game at West Quincy on Saturday. The visitors never had a chance for victory. Maroney pitched a good game, only seven hits being made off him. The home team gave a grand exhibition of the hit and run game. A double play which brought the crowd to their feet happened with three men on bases, the batter hit a grounder to Kiley who threw home to McGovern and McGovern put it to first in time to retire the runner. Another feature was a running catch of a foul by Parks getting the ball back of the visitors' bench.

Q. Y. C. Ladies' Day, Thursday.

The notices for the annual ladies' day of the Quincy Yacht club have been issued by Commodore Sheppard and Fleet Captain, George H. Wilkins. The program, which is similar to that of other years, will include a review and sail, lunch and dancing. The preparatory gun for the review and sail will be fired from the flagship at 2.45. The second gun will be sounded at 3 o'clock and the yachts of the fleet will pass in review of the Commodore and then sail over one of three courses, the number of which will be displayed from the club float. Upon the return from the sail at 5 o'clock, lunch will be served by Whittemore & Girard. There will be a promenade concert from 5 to 7 by the Braintree Orchestral club, and dancing from 7 to 10.30. Extra cars will run to Quincy to connect with the late trains.

The First Whistle.

Is that a blackbird's note so clear
To welcome in the spring
Or thrush's call, a tender thrill
That makes the woodland ring?

'Tis sturdy Dick, with sturdy step;
No rarer joy he knows,
For see—ah, wonder of the year—
A willow whistle blows!

With crimson cheeks and shining eyes,
What fun to be a boy!
Now loud and long, now soft and low,
He tries his cunning toy.

A second Pan, he roams afield,
This April sunny day.
And saucy Echo answers him
And follows all the way.

THE AUTOGRAPH NEST.

How Aunt Mary Prepared a Pleasant Surprise For Dorothy.

"Now I'm ready. Bring out the writing desk. I believe my indelible ink's in it," said Aunt Mary mysteriously as she bent over her workbasket for a small roll of strong white linen.

"But—but before we begin"—Dorothy's voice betrayed unusual curiosity—"please, auntie, tell what you're going to make."

That morning at breakfast Aunt Mary said as soon as she got her work done she and Dorothy would assist some little strangers—she had noticed while opening the doors and windows for the bright morning air that they were just setting to work—in their homemaking task.

"Is it to be ink pictures?" asked Dorothy.

"No," replied Aunt Mary. "Just wait and 'twill be all the more interesting. Bring the writing desk and scissors."

Aunt Mary took her lapboard and roll of linen out on the wide veranda.

"Hope this will be as good as Aunt Mary's other secrets," thought Dorothy, sitting down beside her aunt.

Aunt Mary cut the linen into small, narrow pieces, leaving attached to each a bit of string that looked ever so much like a tiny tail.

"Now, what are the names of your very best friends?"

Dorothy thought a moment.

"Papa, mamma—they're the best—and you."

"Perhaps we'd better use another name too." Aunt Mary wrote very carefully on three of the little linen slips, "Papa Mason," "Mamma Mason," "Aunt Mary."

"Now we want some other names—those of your little friends."

"Cousin Beth—that's one, and—and—oh, Willie Baxter, Alice Kilgore and—and Annie Stanley."

Aunt Mary wrote each name on a separate piece of linen.

"Now I think the little builders are ready," said Aunt Mary, cautiously pointing to Mr. and Mrs. Oriole, who were just flying into the tall elm on the Masons' broad lawn, with their bills full of wool.

"Oh, and are these for them?" exclaimed Dorothy. "I—I—thought"—

"They were for something else?" interrupted Aunt Mary. "No; they are for their nest." And Aunt Mary took the little slips and carefully scattered them over the well trimmed hedge, where the birds could see them in their search for building material.

Presently, while Aunt Mary and Dorothy were watching from the veranda, Mr. Oriole hopped near a tempting piece of linen and began eying it critically.

"He's trying to read the name," whispered Dorothy, delighted. "Is that what you wrote them for?"

"No. There—look!"

And away flew Mr. Oriole with the slip of linen on which was written "Papa Mason."

Soon Mrs. Oriole carried a piece into the elm. This was "Cousin Beth."

"Is—is this all?" asked Dorothy as Aunt Mary closed the writing desk.

"No; but we'll have to wait for the rest till the little birds are hatched and grown."

During the weeks that followed Dorothy patiently waited till one morning in midsummer Aunt Mary said she guessed she could send Joe—Joe was the stable boy—into the tree for the nest.

"Oh, oh, oh!" cried Dorothy in delight as Joe handed it to her. "Won't they be surprised—papa, mamma, Cousin Beth and all?"

For there were the little linen slips, sticking out all around the nest, with the names of Dorothy's friends plainly to be seen, written in indelible ink.

"I—I didn't know that's what 'twas going to be!" exclaimed Dorothy gayly.

"And it's worth waiting for?" asked Aunt Mary, her eyes twinkling.

"I—I guess it is—for an autograph nest! Won't Cousin Beth be surprised?"—Adelbert F. Caldwell in Sunday School Times.

Good at Figures.

"See how I can count, mamma," said Kitty. "There's my right foot. That's one. There's my left foot. That's two. Two and one make three. Three feet one yard, and I want to go out and play in it!"

—Boston takes second rank in the assessed valuation of real and personal property in the United States, with $1,200,000,000, being outranked by the Greater New York, with $6,000,000,000. Philadelphia comes next, with $1,000,000,000. St. Louis, Baltimore and San Francisco each have about $450,000,000, Pittsburg $350,000,000, Buffalo and Cleveland $250,000,000. Providence, $200,000,000, Washington $150,000,000. All have a large amount of unassessed property in churches, public buildings, etc. If the greater Boston had been organized to take in a circuit of ten miles from the State House, we should take rank very nearly with New York. —Massachusetts Ploughman.

They Don't Like Rain.

"There's a queer thing about Italian laborers," said a contractor who employs a great many of them, "and that is that they absolutely refuse to work in the rain. Stop a minute and think. Did you ever see a gang of them working in the streets, digging trenches or doing any other manual labor in the rain? Well, you never did and probably never will. Just as soon as a shower sets in, no matter how slight, they will scramble for cover. If the rain continues, they will soon complain of feeling sick and knock off for the day. One fellow will have a sore throat, another will be doubled up with pains in his stomach, and others will suddenly acquire severe ailments of all sorts. It is useless to attempt to do anything with them, and pretty soon they will all go trooping home."—Philadelphia Record.

Living Indelible Ink.

If the shell of the Purpura lapillus be broken there is seen on the back of the animal, just under the skin, a slender, whitish vein which contains a yellow liquor. When this liquor is applied to linen with a small brush and exposed to the sun it becomes successively green, blue and purple, and finally settles into a brilliant unchangeable crimson. Housewives of New England have growing abundantly on the seaside rocks in their neighborhoods little living bottles of indelible ink, not to be excelled in beauty or durability by any manufactured product, since neither acid nor alcohol will affect this juice of the whelk.

—In the cartoons of the day capital and labor are frequently shown in antagonistic attitudes. The cartoons are true to life. Time was when only capital could rightly have been depicted as an aggressor. That time is past. Within a generation or so labor unions have grown so rapidly that they are even more aggressive than capital. Not content with getting what they set out to get the unions have gone on increasing their demands until today they are not only aggressive but threatening. Justice is not their concern. They aim to dictate in every phase of the relation between capital and labor. In all this there is no gain to the cause of labor. All the gain comes to a few, the few who are in authority. Such tactics as the unions resort to bring capital and labor no nearer together. No better understanding is reached. It is simply war, war in which the laborer and the consumer are the heaviest losers. It is time to wake up to the situation, to recognize the fact that the labor unions are now guilty of the same offence that they charge against capital, namely, the offence of tryanny. If the labor problem is to be solved it must be solved by different means than are being used. It matters little who is the tyrant so long as tryanny exists. Different people are most vitally affected, that is all. In any event the hope and salvation of the general public depend on intelligent and united opposition to tyranny whenever and wherever it shows itself. At present this tyranny is oftenest found in the unions. They are the worst enemy that labor has at this moment.—Boston Home Journal.

ROOSEVELT'S KEYNOTE

Intends to Hammer Away at the Trust Question

DETAILS OF PROPOSED BILL

To Be Prepared by Littlefield of Maine For Submission to Congress—President's Course May Take Campaign Material From Democrats

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 7.—It has been ascertained that the president's speech at Pittsburg in reference to the trust question was merely the forerunner of determined efforts by him to have congress take up that subject and enact definite legislation for the control and supervision of trusts at its next session. Recently the president and Attorney General Knox held a conference with Representative Littlefield of Maine, whose knowledge of constitutional law is admitted, at which Mr. Littlefield was invited to prepare a bill for the regulation and control of the trusts that will go before congress with the endorsement and influence of the president back of it.

The bill will be submitted at the beginning of the next session, but before this is done the president, Attorney General Knox and Mr. Littlefield will have frequent conferences as to the details. In addition to this proposed action the president is going to talk upon the trust question a good deal on the several trips to be made by him in the fall. The president has announced to friends that the question is a vital one and that he proposes to push it vigorously until there is some action by congress.

The president has told his friends that one class of people in the country go so far as to desire legislation that would create a revolution in financial circles. The other class, that which controls the money combinations, is violently opposed to any change in existing conditions.

Between these two classes the president expects to take earnest and active ground. He will proceed along conservative lines.

Attorney General Knox is not a public speaker, and never made a political speech in his life, but he will make two or three speeches this fall. The trust question will be the paramount one in his remarks. The attorney general is in most hearty accord with the views of the president, and the bill to be presented to congress at the beginning of the next session by Representative Littlefield will have upon it the official stamp of Attorney General Knox.

The president has not hesitated to say that when he touched upon the trust question in his last annual message, it was not his intention that the subject should rest with that.

Other great questions, however, intervened during the session of congress to prevent his conferring with the leaders as to what might be done, and he was content to let the matter go over to the next session only upon the understanding that by that time there should have been done a great deal of work in getting together a bill that would demand strong support.

The president's determination on this question, the Republicans say, is going to take away from the Democrats a good part of the material they had expected for campaign use.

Aguinaldo Loses Courage

Manila, July 7.—As a result of the proclamation of amnesty July 4, the guard of American soldiers has been withdrawn from the house where Aguinaldo lived in Manila. Aguinaldo says that he is timid about appearing on the streets in daylight. The release of the former Filipino leader has renewed speculation as to possible vengeance upon him by friends of Luna and his other enemies. Luna was a Filipino leader whom Aguinaldo caused to be killed in 1899.

Thirteen Deaths From Wreck

Gloversville, N. Y., July 7.—Motorman Dodge of the runaway car on the Mountain Lake railroad died last night, making the 13th victim of the wreck of Friday night. It is probable that George Fisher, whose skull was fractured, will die. It has developed that the frame of the truck of the runaway car was broken and may have caused the accident, but the motorman's death will make it hard to determine the exact cause.

American Won Coveted Honor

London, July 7.—Francis MacMillen, a 16-year-old violinist from Marietta, O., won the first prize at the annual contest of the Brussels Royal Conservatory of Music. The Brussels press suggests that the competition in the future be limited to Belgians. The critics, however, frankly characterize the boy as an exceptional player.

Tech Students Homeward Bound

Halifax, July 7.—A party of students from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology left for home last night after a three weeks' trip to the mines and metallurgical industries of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton. Two days were spent in the coal mines at Waverly and six days at the iron and blast furnaces of New Glasgow.

Refuses to Be Pacified

Manila, July 7.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, has sent an insultingly worded letter to the commander of the American expedition to Lake Lanao, in Mindanao, in which he threatens to begin offensive operations in August. The sultan of Bacolod is at present strengthening his position.

EXPLORER ANDRE'S FATE

He and His Companions Massacred by Uncivilized Eskimos

Winnepeg, July 7.—Rev. Dr. Ferlies, a church of England clergyman, has arrived from York Factory, Northwest British Territory, and brings authentic information of the fate of Explorer Andre and his companions.

Two years ago, 1800 miles north of York, a party of Eskimos under the leadership of "Old Huskie" saw the Andre balloon alight on a plane of snow in that vicinity, which is two miles north of Fort Churchill. Three men emerged from the balloon and some of Huskie's people approached them out of curiosity.

As they did so one of Andre's companions fired off a gun. This is a signal to uncivilized natives for battle. It was regarded as a challenge, and almost instantly the natives fell upon the three explorers and massacred them. Everything pertaining to their outfit was carried to the homes of the natives on the borders of the Arctic region.

Old Huskie himself gave this information to Ralph Alstine, agent for the Hudson Bay company, and the story, after being investigated by Dr. Ferlies, was told by him. He says that there is little room for doubt, as frequent reports have since come of the strange implements which the north natives have in their possession, the telescope being particularly described.

The Hudson Bay company has recently offered a reward for the recovery of any portion of the outfit belonging to Andre, and, though natives have gone on the search for them, they have never returned, believing, as Rev. Dr. Ferlies says, that they will in some way be punished, for they now understand that it was not an attack upon them, but an accident by which the gun was discharged that precipitated the massacre.

Pope Celebrates Coronation

Rome, July 7.—A fete was held at the Vatican last evening in celebration of the pope's jubilee in honor of the 24th anniversary of his coronation. The entire papal court and thousands of members of all the Catholic societies represented in Rome assembled in the great Belvidere court of the Vatican and paid homage. The pope occupied an especially constructed and richly adorned gallery. He was greeted with enthusiastic acclamations and the band played the pontifical march. A chorus, composed for the occasion, was sung by a choir of several hundred pupils from all the clerical schools in Rome. The fete was brought to a close by the pope pronouncing a pontifical blessing, after which he was again acclaimed.

Half a Hundred Hoboes In Wreck

Chicago, July 7.—A freight wreck at Ninetieth street yesterday resulted in the injury of seven men who were beating their way to Chicago. Eight cars were telescoped and shouts of pain came from the men buried in the wreckage. The wreck was caused by the train breaking in two while it was going at full speed. There were at least 50 tramps stealing rides in the cars that were derailed.

Fire Cannot Be Quenched

Lourenzo Marques, July 7.—The fire which began here July 3 and which by the following day had destroyed British military stores valued at over $2,500,000, shows little sign of abating and is likely to burn for some days to come. The fire brigade is powerless to control the flames, which present a grand appearance. The bay is completely illuminated by the fire.

Tired of Life In Philippines

Manila, July 7.—Captain John H. Shellenberger of the Tenth infantry committed suicide by shooting at Iligan, in the Island of Mindanao, July 4. He acted from despondency. Second Lieutenant Thomas Ryan of the Philippine scouts also committed suicide by shooting in the island of Mindanao on July 4.

Check For $635,000 Missing

Indianapolis, July 7.—Indiana state officials are much worried over the whereabouts of a check for $635,000, drawn by the United States in payment of Indiana's war claim. It was mailed at Washington last Thursday. The matter has been taken up by officials at Washington.

An Effective Homemade Portiere.

A pretty and effective portiere or window drapery can be made by any one who has a little skill and taste in doing needlework. Take ecru netting of the required dimensions, work the edge in any kind of suitable stitch and design and back from the edge as far as taste or inclination dictates work in a simple repeated cross or diamond or other design, then back of that dot it with a fleur-de-lis design, and if you want it elaborate you can run threads at intervals through the whole, following a wave line pattern. Dark green with touches of somber red and dull yellow will give it a very oriental look, and no one will suspect that it is other than a bit of unique oriental drapery bought from a dealer.

Rural Sanitation.

An excellent scheme in individual rural sanitation is to lay the ventilating pipe to the foot of a nearby tree and let it run to the top, from which all unpleasant and dangerous gases disappear.

FREIGHT HANDLERS OUT

More Than Nine Thousand Quit Work at Chicago

MANY ARE DISSATISFIED

At Being Compelled to Obey Strike Order, as They Were Receiving All the Consideration They Had Asked—Arbitration Board at Work

Chicago, July 8.—Hopes of a speedy settlement of the strike of the Freight Handlers' union, which was declared yesterday, are entertained by officials of the union and members of the state board of arbitration. The officials of the union last night told Chairman Job of the board of arbitration that they were willing to permit employes of the different companies to meet officials of the same to discuss the wage scale, providing a joint conference should be held at which officials of the union would be permitted to act as advisors to the men. The arbitration board is now working on the matter in an effort to bring about a conference between the railway managers and committees representing the men. As the railroad officials have favored this step there is little doubt that the strike can be settled satisfactorily to both sides if the conference shall be arranged.

Lack of unanimity already permeates the strike. The Chicago Federation of Labor was ignored when the order was issued for the men to quit work, and its executive officials are somewhat offended and are inclined to let the freight handlers fight out their battle in their own way.

There are 2000 freight handlers in and about the various freight houses of the 24 railroads centering in Chicago. Of this number more than 9000 are now involved in the strike.

Some of the men who quit work yesterday did so under protest. Notably this was the case in the freight houses of the Lake Shore and Michigan Central road. The men there employed were receiving all the consideration they had asked. They were forced to strike, however, by the order of the executive committee of their union. Before going out the men informed the railway officials of the situation and said they would seek an immediate return under orders from the authority that ordered them out.

The sudden suspension of customary operations by the freight handlers occasioned considerable trouble in and about the various railroad warehouses and depots, but the inconvenience and delay were but a drop in the bucket to what will happen if the strike shall not be settled soon.

To add to the present difficulties of the railroads the Teamsters and Truck Drivers' union threatens to join in a sympathetic strike. If this shall occur, it will affect freight of every kind.

There was no trouble or disorder in or about any of the freight houses yesterday. Anticipating the possibilities of such a strike, the railroad companies had brought to Chicago a considerable number of men to take the places of the strikers. These men were intercepted by pickets of the strikers and most of them were induced to go in the Freight Handlers' union.

Employers Objected to Union

Burlington, N. J., July 8.—For the first time in 20 years the six shoe factories of this place, employing about 1500 men and women, are idle. Recently the shoemakers organized a union. The manufacturers objected to this proceeding and announced that, beginning July 7, only non-union labor would be employed. As a result not one of the union workmen appeared at the factories yesterday. The employes had made no demands on the manufacturers.

Coal Strike Situation Unchanged

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 8.—With President Mitchell in New York and all other miners' leaders at Nanticoke, attending the annual convention of district No. 1, strike headquarters is an extremely quiet place. The ninth week of the suspension of anthracite coal mining shows no change in the situation, there being not the slightest indication that either party to the controversy is ready to quit.

Railroad Won't Recognize Union

Winnipeg, July 8.—Canadian Northern trainmen presented a schedule yesterday and demanded recognition inside of 36 hours. Superintendent MacKenzie says the road will spend a million dollars before any organization will be recognized. The Northern has imported men from the south to replace the strikers.

Foundrymen's Wages Advanced

Pittsburg, July 8.—The Pittsburg Steel Foundry company yesterday acceded to the demands of the workmen and increased the wages an average of 10 percent.

A PRIEST'S TROUBLES

Have Existed Many Years and Have Now Reached the President

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 8.—The first official caller on President Roosevelt on Sagamore hill since his arrival here was Rev. John H. Cushing, a Catholic priest, of Denver, who went there yesterday to file a complaint against Ambassador Meyer. Cushing claims that he and 28 other priests were driven out of the Denver diocese by Bishop Matz for no other reason than their failure to vote for him for the bishopric. Protests were sent to Rome, and later the 29 priests, as well as Matz, went there to state their case before the Vatican. The fight has continued without success ever since 1888.

In 1901 Matz is alleged to have had Cushing arrested in Rome for forcing himself into his presence, and it is said Cushing was put in jail by the Italian authorities, who openly admitted that it was in retaliation for the lynching of Italians in New Orleans. He claims he was treated to great indignities, and that Ambassador Meyer and Consul de Castro were negligent in protecting him as an American citizen. Cushing claims further that three New York men furnished Matz with $30,000 with which to fight the priests, in their claims to restoration to ecclesiastical functions.

When Cushing called the president was not at home, but he left certain papers and will return here on Thursday.

Cuba Wants $4,000,000

Havana, July 8.—The reply of the bankers of Havana to the request made by the government to present projects for the raising of a loan of $4,000,000 to assist the sugar cane cultivators of Cuba was received yesterday. The bankers said they did not consider that the loan in question could be raised. This answer was conveyed to the cabinet at yesterday's meeting. The finance secretary also informed the cabinet that he had received two offers to supply money, one of which was from a New York firm. Both these bids were referred to the secretary of finance.

Bomb In Penitentiary

Montreal, July 8.—An investigation is now being held at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary into a startling occurrence of a few days ago. While the convicts were confined to their cells three bombs were thrown from a cell on the top range of the southeast corridor. Only one exploded. That went off with an awful crash, tearing a hole in the flooring of the corridor and creating panic throughout the building. Eventually the guards managed to calm the convicts. The bombs were constructed of wood and filled with blasting powder secured from the prison quarry.

Strange Complications

Ogdensburg, N. Y., July 8.—George Robertson of Depeyster, who has been missing since October and was believed to have been murdered, has been found alive and working in a quarry at Swanton, Vt. Robertson's wife had reported him dead and married again. Searching parties have been scouring the woods and dragging lakes for two weeks, looking for Robertson's body and evidences of some crime. Now that Robertson has been discovered, he refuses to return home.

Echo of Boston's Gas War

Trenton, July 8.—Judge Kirkpatrick of the United States circuit court yesterday appointed George D. Hallock receiver of the Bay State Gas company of New Jersey. This is the company that was organized by J. E. Addicks and others for the purpose of controlling four gas light companies of Boston. The application for a receiver charges that the total liabilities of the Bay State Gas company of New Jersey is upwards of $9,000,000.

Perjurer Intends to Fight

St. Louis, July 8.—Julius Lehmann, former member of the house of delegates, recently convicted of perjury in connection with the franchise bribery cases, was sentenced yesterday to two years' imprisonment. A motion for a new trial was denied. Lehmann's attorney gave notice of appeal to the supreme court, giving bond in the sum of $10,000.

King's Improvement Continues

London, July 8.—King Edward passed a favorable day and the verbal report given out last night was that he is still doing well. King Edward will be crowned between Aug. 11 and Aug. 15. His recovery has been so rapid and satisfactory that the above decision was arrived at yesterday. No official announcement of the fact has yet been made.

Freeman Beats Elkes' Record

A THEORY OF MURDER

Gains Ground In Case of Missing Beverly Boy

OLD WOODSMAN'S OPINION

Is That Wilbur Clark Was Enticed Away and Killed, His Body Being Buried In a Swamp—State Police Hope to Soon End Suspense

Beverly, Mass., July 8.—Hermit Mason A. Walton of Gloucester has given up his theory that Wilbur F. Clark, the missing Beverly child, was kidnapped. He has thoroughly explored the woods and swamps and will now search for the body of a murdered boy. He does not believe the boy wandered in from the road, but is firmly of the opinion that he was taken into the woods and murdered. Walton is an old woodsman and his opinion has great weight with the state police, who will continue the work along these lines in the hope that if the boy cannot be found alive his body at least may be recovered and the terrible suspense under which his parents are now living be removed.

"It is not a lost boy I am looking for now, but a murdered one," said Walton, after completing the most thorough search of Pine swamp yet undertaken since Clark's disappearance just three weeks ago today.

"The boy's body is not above ground, if it is in the swamp," Walton continued. "I have been searching for six days, and during that time I have been over practically every inch of the ground. I found plenty of places where no one had been before, but no trace of a lost boy.

"I do not believe the boy was kidnapped. It is a fairly easy matter to steal a child in a city, but out in the country it is almost impossible. Nobody could have stolen the child right before the face and eyes of its father and mother without being seen. Nobody had any motive for kidnapping him. So that theory is really the most unreasonable that has been advanced.

"The boy's body is not in the lake. Everybody admits that, of course. Then it must be in the swamp, and if it is why has it not been found? The boy could not have wandered far alone. There are no bog holes deep enough for him to sink entirely out of sight, and even if that did happen his hat would remain on the surface.

"Not only that, but if his body was on the surface it would smell so that you could not get anywhere near it without knowing it. Crows and bluejays will always flock where there is a dead body. In my searching I have detected no smell, and seen no birds flocking, and my senses are good and keen, too, like every man's who has lived all his life in the woods.

"So I say that the boy's body must be buried somewhere in the swamp or woods, and if it is, there has been a murder committed. I'm going to the swamp again tomorrow to search on that line. I don't say I'll find anything, but it seems to me that that is the only plausible theory to work on."

Gloucester people remember well that it was Walton who found the body of John Dondero in Magnolia swamp, after hundreds of searchers had traversed the locality for three weeks.

CHAMBERLAIN HURT

British Colonial Secretary's Head Badly Cut In an Accident

London, July 8.—Joseph Chamberlain was painfully hurt yesterday in a cab accident in Whitehall. The secretary's hansom was passing through the Canadian arch, when the horse slipped and Chamberlain was precipitated forward with great violence. His head struck and shattered the glass front of the cab. Mr. Chamberlain's head was badly lacerated and bleeding profusely. A policeman helped the secretary into a cab and accompanied him to Charing Cross hospital, where his injuries were dressed. While Chamberlain's wounds bled a great deal, they were not serious.

The following bulletin was issued from Charing Cross hospital: "Mr. Chamberlain is suffering from a scalp wound on the forehead. He is now free from pain and feeling comfortable. There is no concussion." The gash on the forehead required several stitches.

Mr. Chamberlain's injuries, although not dangerous, are likely to detain him in the house for the remainder of the week. He has a nasty crescent-shaped cut across the forehead three inches long and penetrating to the bone. Pieces of broken glass were found embedded in the wound. There was no concussion, but the bone is bruised. Mr. Chamberlain also sustained a slighter cut under the right eye.

Bruce Gets Eighteen Years

Hudson, N. Y., July 8.—Harvey Bruce, who, with his three cousins, Willis, Burton and Frederick Van Wormer, was indicted for the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, was arraigned in the supreme court yesterday. Bruce testified for the prosecution at the trial of the Van Wormers and in consideration of that fact a plea of guilty of manslaughter in the first degree was accepted in his case yesterday. Justice Betts then sentenced him to Dannemora prison for 18 years. The Van Wormers are now under sentence of death.

Noted Manufacturer Dead

Newark, N. J., July 8.—Word was received here that William Clark, the thread manufacturer, died yesterday in England. Mr. Clark was one of the largest manufacturers of thread in the world. He was born at Paisley, Scotland, in 1841. He came to this country in 1864 with his brother George and in a small way began the manufacture of cotton thread. From that beginning there grew the great works, having a branch in Paisley, and covering with immense buildings many acres on both sides of the Passaic in this city.

Oil Trusts Dividing Markets

Hamburg, July 8.—The Boersenhalles prints a dispatch from St. Petersburg which says the Standard Oil company and the Russian Oil company have signed a contract dividing the British market, two-thirds going to the Standard and one-third to the Russian company. It is averred that similar contracts in connection with other countries are being arranged and it is assumed that Germany will be partitioned.

Good Afternoon.

It was mistrust of the order granting ice privileges in the Quincy reservoir that probably caused the defeat of the order in the City Council. The fear that the privilege would be transferred to a trust, or not developed at all but held to remove competition, were more potent reasons for objection than the privileges of skating, fishing and bathing which are not open.

If any private enterprise wants an ice privilege, and will tell just what it wants, and agree not to sub-let, it will get the privilege.

The discussion over the debt limit in the City Council this week disclosed the fact that the city is dangerously close to the debt limit. That at the outside, after the payment of all debt maturing in 1902, the city cannot appropriate $50,000 between now and Jan. 1. It should not appropriate $1 of this margin unless absolutely necessary.

There are rumors that members of the police force in Ward Four the night before the Fourth know some of the parties concerned in the dynamite outrages near the Gridley Bryant school. If such is the case their duty is plain. Has Chief Hayden investigated?

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Another horse car route in New York city has disappeared before the all-conquering electric. By-and-by the proud pre-eminence of New York as the only place in the country where a horse car can be seen will disappear also.

☞ An able secretary of the navy is now directing our naval affairs. But he will not have the full privilege of saying where the warships shall be constructed. The provision of the bill on this subject is dangerous because the measure says that he shall build all tonnage in navy-yards if the ship-builders have entered into agreements the effect of which is to "deprive the government of fair, open and unrestricted competition in letting contracts." Since there can be no doubt that the principal builders of the country in some cases have entered into combination with the object of lessening competition, and as long as those not in such a degree selfishly interested in raising the price of ships are not in the future to feel the effect of so many agencies in rivalry as they have experienced in the past, it may not be, indeed it cannot be, difficult for anybody to make a disturbing attack on the secretary and on the administration if it lets the construction of a warship to a private firm.—Providence Journal.

CITY COUNCIL

Discuss and Turn Down the Ice Order.

Loan Order of $4,200 Reported.

Resolution for Investigation of Financial Condition of City.

The City Council had another long session Monday evening. A majority of the members took part in the debate on the ice privilege order, and there were other matters which provoked talk.

Councilman Meyer was the only absentee.

MORE MONEY WANTED.

The Tax Collector sent a communication stating that the office had been run cheaper this year than ever before but that his appropriation for advertising and printing was exhausted. To Finance Committee.

NO APPROPRIATION.

The Mayor returned to the council the petition for day and night police service at Quincy Neck, stating that the appropriation for special police would not admit of putting on more men.—To Committee on Police.

POUND KEEPER.

The Mayor in a communication suggested the election of George Wilson as pound keeper. He was elected.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned for a location for poles on Hancock and Sea streets. To Committee on Streets.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Licenses and State Aid reported favorable on a number of petitions. Granted.

James Moran, a petitioner for State Aid was given leave to withdraw by the Committee on State Aid.

In reply to a question as to why, Councilman Faxon said there was no one dependent upon him and he was able to work.

Councilman Newcomb. He is an old soldier and draws nothing from the city or state. If he can get work from the city he will withdraw his petition.

Report laid on the table by a vote of 10 to 7.

SACRED CONCERTS.

Albert Kaplan was granted a license to run sacred concerts Sundays at Houghs Neck until September.

Later the vote was reconsidered, upon motion of Councilman Hughes, who wanted to investigate further, and report was recommitted.

FAXON PARK ROAD.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $3000 for laying out Faxon Park road. To Finance Committee.

EDISON STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing July 21, on laying out Edison street. Adopted.

SEA STREET LINE.

The Committee on Streets reported a substitute order for that authorizing the Commissioners to remove buildings projecting into Sea street. The substitute requested the Mayor to take such action as necessary and report to the City Council within sixty days.

In reply to questions Councilman Newcomb said there were two buildings projecting into the street, one twenty feet and the other a few feet. Substitute order adopted.

HAMILTON STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for $500 for laying out Hamilton street. To Committee on Finance.

NEW CONDUIT.

The Committee on Streets reported an order granting the telephone company permission to lay underground conduits on Quincy avenue. Ordered to a second reading.

LOAN ORDER.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to the order for $400 for a watering trough in Ward Three, making the amount $350. Amendment adopted and order referred to Ordinance Committee.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on order for $3,500 for water closets at the John Hancock school. Passed.

The Finance Committee reported favorable on the order for $350 for lavatories at the Willard school. Passed.

The Committee on Finance reported a loan order for $4,200, to cover the last three orders, which took one reading.

ICE PRIVILEGES.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed the order authorizing the Mayor to lease the Quincy reservoir and surrounding land to W. T. Shea for ice privileges for five years at $400 per year.

Councilman Smith opposed. It would do a great injury to Wards Three and Four.

Councilman Newcomb understood no contract would be made until the representatives of Wards Three and Four were satisfied with conditions. It comes back to the Council if they are not satisfied.

Councilman Freeman—The view of the Finance Committee was that the property was now unproductive. The income will be $400. The conditions are such that the rights of the city will be protected. There will be skating, fishing and bathing. The Mayor has agreed not to sign the lease until the Councilmen of Wards Three and Four are satisfied.

Councilman Langelier—The Council should know something of the conditions; whether he could sublet it, etc. As long as this pond is open it is a damper on combination to put up the price of ice.

Councilman Smith—If we want to take advantage of the ice, let the city establish a municipal plant.

Councilman Faxon—All schemes of municipal ownership had proved disastrous. There was no good reason why we should not lease it.

Councilman Stewart hoped Council would not vote to give rights of City away.

Councilman Smith—It is a benefit to the city; let us keep it.

Councilman Bass thought this an immense piece of valuable property, All we have left to show for $600,000. If only $400 was obtained it was not what should be paid. There is no stipulation and a clause for renewal might be put in. The Council should make some conditions before we put it out of our power.

Councilman Nickerson considered that if valuable buildings were put up the city would have a good hold on them.

Councilman Nichols offered an amendment that the lease be for three years and an area be reserved for public use during the winter months and for free use at all other times.

Councilman Smith hoped amendment would be voted down, and also the order.

Councilman Nichols—Ward Three desires privilege in winter to skate. Then the closed season for fishing would end in three years, which was his object in reducing the term. He had no doubt the Mayor would make a good lease.

Councilman Newcomb thought as a matter of business they should be given long enough to try it. The Mayor imforms me he is perfectly willing to have the lease submitted to the Council.

Councilman Piper—We all know an ice pond can not be used for skating previous to ice gathering.

Councilman Hughes thought matter exaggerated. Only two men had been to him to oppose. He did not believe there were 25 in Ward Four who would be effected. It will not interfere with skating and fishing.

Councilman Whiton was willing to respect wishes of Wards Three and Four. As now it looks pretty dark, $400 is a small sum; it should be $1000.

Councilman Langelier—Nothing has been said about how much land was to be used.

Councilman Freeman—the order says land enough to build the icehouses.

Councilman Whiton moved to lay on the table.

Councilman Thompson moved reference to Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Fallon believed this a fair investment. The pond was never any benefit except the water taken out of it. The citizens put me in mind of a lot of farmers. The $400 amounts to something. He believed in welcoming enterprise.

The motion to refer to the Committee Public Buildings and the amendment of Councilman Nichols were lost.

The order failed to pass by the following vote:

YEAS—Fallon, Faxon, Freeman, Gassett, Hughes, Newcomb and Nickerson—7.

NAYS—Adams, Bass, Diack, Elcock, Hadlock, Langelier, Nichols, Piper, Polk, Smith, Stewart, Thompson and Whiton—13.

CHUBBUCK STREET.

Councilman Newcomb offered an order authorizing the Commissioners to proceed with the widening of Chubbuck street, notwithstanding the last clause of the order of 1901 relating to release of damages which is hereby repealed. To joint Committee on Finance and Streets.

Councilman Newcomb also offered an order that the Commissioner be authorized to proceed with the changing of the grade of Grove street notwithstanding the last clause which is hereby repealed. To joint Committee on Finance and Streets.

WHISTLES ON ELECTRICS.

Councilman Whiton offered an order that the Street railway be ordered to discontinue the use of whistles on their cars.

Councilman Freeman thought there might be some legal doubt as to

NEW BATTLESHIP

To Be Built at the New York Navy Yard.

Secretary Moody is reported by the Washington correspondent of the Herald to have selected the New York navy yard as the place where the government-built warship shall be constructed, so that it will not seriously effect labor at the Quincy yard.

The only yards which received serious consideration were New York, Boston and Norfolk, none of the others having the equipment for undertaking a work of such magnitude. Norfolk was regarded with some favor for the reason that unskilled labor could be procured cheaper than at northern yards, but it was shown to have the disadvantage of affording but a poor class of the higher grade of workmen. It was feared also, that the labor market would be seriously affected by the employment of so many men at government wages, and that the mechanics at Newport News would desert that yard.

It was also shown that transportation rates from the steel factories were about 10 per cent. higher to Norfolk than to New York and Boston, and for a ship weighing nearly 15,000 tons this difference would have a material effect upon her cost.

The Boston Navy Yard, while possessing skilled labor and other advantages, was found to be unprepared to build a vessel for two years, while the New York yard was practically ready, and would be entirely so by the time material was received. It would have been impossible, further, it was shown by the experts to prepare the Boston yard within the limit of the sum available under the appropriation act.

The cost of the new ship, exclusive of armor, armament and equipment of small boats and furnishings, is not to exceed $4,212,000, of which amount the construction bureau will probably expend $3,000,000, the steam engineering $1,000,000 and the equipment $200,000, leaving but a narrow margin under the appropriation.

Narrow Escape.

The infant daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fred E. Jones had a narrow escape at the time of the carriage accident on Washington street on Saturday evening. The nurse girl at the risk of her life grabbed the baby from her carriage just before the runaway horse struck it. The horse ran to Brewers corner where he was stopped by George Follett.

The 8 Hour Day

Which the working man has fought for and succeeded in obtaining is something the wife has no share in. Her day begins before his and ends long after it, as a rule, and many a night her rest is broken by the baby's fretfulness. The healthiest woman must wear out under such a strain. What can be expected then of those women who are weakened by womanly diseases?

Women who are weak, worn-out and run-down will find new life and new strength in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years—tried several doctors but derived no benefit until I began using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John Green, of Danville, Boyle Co., Ky. "This medicine was recommended to me by other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like another person."

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription," is only seeking to make the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines. His profit is your loss. Refuse all substitutes.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

Wollaston Dog Case.

A case that has disturbed the quietness of Wollaston was heard in the district court this morning. The particulars of the case, as developed at the hearing, were that on the morning of June 8, a dog of Dr. Sweeter got into a fight with a dog owned by Annis A. Lincoln. There were two scraps the second ending by Mr. Lincoln plunging a knife twice into Dr. Sweeter's dog which died shortly after. The case was not for damages but was against Mr. Lincoln who was arraigned for cruelly killing the dog. The case was continued until next Tuesday for judgment.

July Magazines.

"Boston Schools One Hundred Years Ago" are described by George A. Martin in the New England Magazine for July; and a melancholy picture he draws of the state and methods of education in the cradle of American intellect when Emerson, Holmes, and Longfellow were young. "It's little they pays me, and little I learns 'em," replied one mistress of a "Dame's School" to a questioner; and the phrase typifies the educational ideals of the period.

"The Table in Summer," by Majorie March in Table Talk for July is full of information about the proper food for the summer months and how to prepare it. Too little attention, as a rule, is paid to diet in the heated months. "A Summer in the Rockies," by Mary Heath, is full of interest and information about camping out in the Rockies. "Children's Vacation Occupations," by Helen Raymond Wells, may be read with benefit by all interested in giving the children healful pastimes duting vacation period.

CITY COUNCIL.

whether the Council had a right to order it stopped. It would be well to get opinion of the City Solicitor.

Councilman Fallon saw but little difference between the whistles and the noisy automobiles.

The order was referred to the City Solicitor.

NEW ORDERS.

Councilman Faxon offered an order for $74.75 to pay bill of Taunton Asiyum for board of Lydia Copeland. To Committee on State Aid.

Upon motion of Councilman Hadlock the communication relative to new police signal boxes was taken from the table, when he offered an order for $400 for a box at the corner of Adams street and Newport avenue, and on Copeland street near the Willard school. To Committee on Finance.

Upon motion of Councilman Langelier the communication from the Overseer of the Poor was taken from the table, and an order was offered for $1300 to install water closets at the city almshouse. To Committee on Public Buildings.

Councilman Langelier offered an order for three incandescent lights on Rawson road. To Committee on Streets.

WAS DEBT LIMIT EXCEEDED.

Councilman Bass offered a preamble and resolution which he wished attached to the order passed at the last meeting appropriating $55,000 for new schoolhouse in Ward Two. It intimated that there was some doubt whether the city had not exceeded its limit, especially as the vote was passed by the Council June 30, and some of the old debt did not mature until July 1.

Councilman Bass—It was right that people should know if bonds were issued legally.

Councilman Freeman, chairman of the Finance Committee, stated that on Jan. 1, 1902, the city was over $61,000 within its debt limit. That previous to the passage of the order the city had paid off $40,000 increasing the margin to $101,000, and had negotiated new loans to the amount of $20,000 leaving the margin July 1 as $80,000. The order appropriating $55,000 had not been signed until after July 1. The city is now $25,000 within its legal limit.

Councilman Langelier thought it unnecessary to have this paper filed, and claimed the city was $2,000 inside the limit without counting debt paid off July 1.

The Mayor, in reply to a question, said at the time the order was passed the borrowing capacity was beyond the amount of the order. We have to furnish a statement when we borrow and we could not borrow if we had no leeway as brokers were more strict than formerly.

Councilman Nickerson was called to the chair and President Alden took the floor.

President Alden said it was ridiculous for the Council to pass an order and then pass a resolution saying we did not know what we were doing. Every Councilman has sufficient opportunity to consider every order and find out if the borrowing capacity is sufficient. It was an invariable rule of bankers to investigate before loaning money.

Councilman Adams withdrew his motion to lay on the table.

The resolution was then rejected.

Councilman Faxon presented a petition of the Electric Light Co. for a location for two poles on Dimmock street.

Adjourned 9.25.

ELLIS POSITIVE

In Identification of Men Charged with Dynamiting His House.

Court in Session When the Ledger Went to Press This Afternoon.

Carlson Had Shot at Ellis' House Earlier in Evening and Also Threatened Ellis.

Charles Carlson, Oscar Johnson and John A. Ryden the three men charged with blowing up the house of George K. Ellis at Quincy, with dynamite the night before the Fourth, were given a hearing this morning before Judge Avery.

Carlson was charged with wilfully exploding dynamite on the house of Ellis, assault on Ellis, and with malicious mischief.

Johnson and Ryden were arraigned for wilfully exploding dynamite on the house of Ellis, and with malicious mischief.

J. J. McAnarney appeared for the government. Carlson was represented by John McKnight and Johnson and Ryden were represented by W. W. Jenness.

It was 12 o'clock before the case was reached and Ellis was the first witness.

He testified that on the night of July 3 he sat in his bow window and that Carlson fired two shots at his house from his front door. I heard something strike over my head. I put my head out of the window and shouted, "Fire your shots the other way."

He shouted back, "Shut up, you old cow, I will shoot you."

He then fired two more shots and shouted, "Do you smell that."

I then went to the City Hospital and telephoned to the police.

On my way back I met Carlson in my garden. He took hold of my shoulders and pushed me against a row of potatoes and said "I'll shoot you!"

I pulled myself away and went on home. He went toward the Hospital.

When I came back from getting a warrant I saw three men in the front yard. I went to the back door and rapped, and at the side door, but got no answer. I then went around front and saw Carlson and Ryden lighting a a fuse at the door step.

Johnson stood a little way from them. The two were stooping down at the step. I saw them light matches, but could not tell which one put it there. They then ran away and Johnson followed them. I got my wife and children out. The defendants came around later with others and stood on Carlson's piazza. I got a lantern and crossed the street to see who they were. I saw Ryden, Carlson and Johnson and several others.

At this point the court took a recess until 1.30.

IN THE AFTERNOON.

Ellis continuing, said: I was ten feet from the gate when they ran away. The explosion took place in a minute and a half. The piazza blew up and the charge blew up one of the stone steps. There were two steps, 6 ft. 8in. long, 18 inches wide and 8 inches thick. Above the stone steps were three wooden steps.

A piece 18x14 was torn out of the upper stone step and thrown five feet. The underpinning was shifted five or six inches. Some of wooden steps were blown away. Nothing left of the piazza except top of piazza and posts. The underpinning of bow window was shifted.

Next saw the crowd at 2 o'clock. They came from Curtis street and went to Carlson's piazza. I went across with a lantern and saw it was Carlson.

The first explosion broke window glass in the dining room, the plate glass in the door and tore a side out of the hall at the side door.

The Ryden boy crossed from Carlson's and said "Hello Pat Car" to a man passing near my house. "Do you see that house?" said Ryden.

The man replied, "Yes, it is all right."

Ryden then said "Well there will not be two standing sticks tomorrow night."

No one came to the door step after the men left until the explosion.

This closed the direct testimony by Ellis, and Lawyer McKnight began the cross-examination.

A Medicine for Old People.

Rev. Geo. Gay, Greenwich, Kas., is past 83 years of age, yet he says: "I am enjoying excellent health for a man of my age, due entirely to the rejuvenating influences of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It brings sleep and rest when nothing else will, and gives strength and vitality even to one of my old age."

"I am an old soldier," writes Mr. Geo. Watson, of Newton, Ia., "and I have been a great sufferer from nervousness, vertigo and spinal trouble. Have spent considerable money for medicine and doctors, but with little benefit. I was so bad my mind showed signs of weakness. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I know it saved my life."

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Saved me from the insane asylum," Mrs. A. M. Heifner, of Jerico Springs, Mo., writes. "I was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself, could not sleep nor rest, would even forget the names of my own children at times. I commenced using Dr. Miles' Nervine and it helped me from the first, and now I am perfectly well."

Ladies' Day Music.

The program as arranged by the Braintree Orchestral Club for the music at the annual Ladies' Day of Quincy Yacht club will include many new novelties. They will render a characteristic number by R. M. Stults entitled "Birds and Brooks." This is one of those pretty little dainty numbers in which string instruments predominate. Another number will be the standard overture "Poet and Peasant" by Suppe. This is a number which when played at the Symphony concerts never fails to elicit complimentary remarks.

His "Hinner End."

An English clergyman and a lowland Scotsman entered one of the best schools in Aberdeen. The master received them kindly and inquired:

"Would you prefer that I should speer (question) these boys or that you should speer them?"

The English clergyman desired the master to proceed. He did so with great success, and the boys answered satisfactorily numerous interrogations as to the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt. The clergyman then said he would be glad to "speer the boys" and at once began:

"How did Pharaoh die?"

There was a dead silence.

In his dilemma the lowland gentleman interposed:

"I think, sir, the boys are not accustomed to your English accent. Let me try what I can make of them." And he inquired in broad Scottish:

"Hoo did Phawraoh dee?"

Again there was a dead silence, upon which the master said:

"Noo, boys, fat cam' to Phawraoh at his hinner end?"

"The boys with one voice answered:

"He was drooned."

And a smart little fellow added: "Ony lassie could hae tell't ye that."—London Tit-Bits.

The Man He Wanted.

Senator Clark of Montana had occasion once out in Helena to hire a carriage driver. The roads were mountainous, and a skillful man was needed. On the appointed day the candidates for the position appeared. "You know where the road runs along the mountain, with the hill on one side and a gorge on the other, five miles from here?" asked Senator Clark, and all the men nodded affirmatively. "How near can you go to the edge of the road," was asked, "without upsetting my carriage?"

The first man said, "Four feet;" the next man answered, "Two feet;" the third man said that he would drive close to the edge, and the fourth man allowed that if one wheel was over the brink he could still turn the horses in time to save the carriage.

At last Mr. Clark turned to a brawny Irishman. "What would you do?" he asked.

"Begorra, Mr. Clark," said the Irishman, "I would keep as close to the side of the hill as I could without pulling off a wheel."

"You are the man I want," replied Mr. Clark, and the Irishman got the job.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the carapace or shell on the back of the tortoise.

The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed, the reptile relaxes a muscle, and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

Jekyll and Hyde Indians.

It is said that the Seri Indians are a tribe of Jekylls and Hydes. They spend a portion of the year in the neighborhood of the boundary line between northern and Lower California, when they dedicate themselves to peaceful pursuits and evidently adopt civilized customs, frequently working as farm hands on the haciendas. When the crops are in, however, they experience a remarkable change, like any of the lower animals with a change of season. It is then that they have a wild longing for a savage life and emigrate to Tiburon island, where they lead a barbarous existence, even indulging in cannibalism, it is averred.

One Better.

Mike—It's mesilf that wishes every day was Saturday.

Pat—And for whoy, Mike?

"Shure, and shouldn't I just take me wages ivery day?"

"Begorra, I wish every day was Sunday!"

"Ye do? And for what raison?"

"Shure, and shouldn't I get a holiday ivery day and draw me wages the day before?"—Exchange.

Half Mourning.

"That's Mrs. Giltedge-Bonds, the prominent society leader," said the man in the crowd who knew.

"What's she in half mourning for?" inquired several voices.

"Three of her six former husbands are dead," said the man, whereupon the crowd expressed great admiration for her delicacy of feeling.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Quite Sure Which.

"After all," he remarked, "it is youth alone that has real courage."

"I don't know," returned the elderly spinster, with acerbity, "whether it should be called courage or foolhardiness, but it is unquestionably true that the girls who marry at all usually marry quite young."—Chicago Post.

Buried In Africa.

In certain parts of Africa it is considered a mark of disrespect to bury out of doors at all. Only slaves are treated in such unceremonious fashion. The honored dead are buried under the floor of the house.

Mutual Admiration.

Monsieur—Ah, mam'selle, zat is indeed praise, for who but an angel would know divine music!

Tit For Tat.

In the peace congress at The Hague Lord Pauncefote attracted the attention of the delegates by taking notes with a fountain pen the handle of which was formed by the shell of a dumdum bullet. One day the representative of a foreign power, excited by the heat of the discussion in the interests of eternal peace, said to him sharply:

"My lord, it isn't right for you to use that murderous shell in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost emblematic. They can become a part of themselves, an expression of their ideas and of their personality."

Lord Pauncefote smiled, but said nothing.

The following day his critic, wanting to write something, turned to the English diplomat to borrow a pen. The embassador pulled out of his pocket an old fashioned pen made of gray goose quill, and after the borrower had finished said:

"Monsieur, it isn't right for you to use such an instrument in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost emblematic. They can become a part of themselves, an expression of their ideas, of their personality."

Not Quite Complimentary.

A very ordinary looking nurse was exhibiting the new born sister to six-year-old Bertie.

"Look at the sweet little baby, my dear! Is she not pretty?"

But Bertie, who has been made painfully aware from the servants of the household that the new arrival will usurp his past privileges as an only child, exclaimed with secret exultation:

"Auntie says that pretty babies grow up ugly."

"Maybe they do," assented the nurse, unable to forbear a smile.

But the smile was lost upon Bertie. He stood for a moment in meditative mood, and then, glancing up from his contemplation of baby's features to those of the nurse, he said with childish confidence:

"Nurse, you must have been a very pretty baby!"

A Browning Anecdote.

In the Cornhill Magazine, in an interesting paper entitled "On a Few Conversationalists," the writer tells an amusing story of Browning and how he received certain flowers from a lady, who, on being pressed to give their English names, shyly confessed they were called "bloody noses." I happened many years ago to be staying in a country house when Browning told this story in his inimitable way, and he ended with the following lines, which I then and there committed to memory, and which will, I think, interest your readers:

I'll deck my love with posies,
I'll cover her with roses;
Should she protest
I'll do my best
To give her bloody noses.

—London Spectator.

For Ingrowing Toe Nails.

By far worse than corns, the ingrowing toe nail makes life miserable for the man or woman, and no relief seems to come from paring the nail or in wadding it with cotton. To give instant relief to such pain a mixture used by the best physicians can be made as follows: Procure of the druggist one dram of muriatic acid and one dram of nitric acid and one ounce of chloride of zinc. Have these mixed thoroughly by the druggist or perform the operation yourself and apply one drop to the affected part once a day. It will not only give relief at once, but it will last all day.

The Orange In Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who can eat an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The senorita cuts off the rind with her silver knife, then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.

Octopus For Dinner.

Octopuses are pretty plentiful in Japanese waters and have been known to attack fishermen in their boats. When this hideous monster assumes the aggressive, the only chance the fishermen have is to lop off the tentacles of the beast. Failing this, the boat may be upset and the men dragged under. The octopus is highly valued in Japan as an article of food.

The Explanation.

Knox—I sat down in my easy chair last night and picked up that new novel of Scribbler's and I didn't get to bed until 4 this morning.

Boers Praised by Kitchener

Pretoria, July 8.—Lord Kitchener's valedictory to the troops, after extolling the conduct of the British soldiers in the face of great hardships and difficulties and against dangerous and elusive antagonists, concludes as follows: "This message would be incomplete were no reference made to the soldiery qualities displayed throughout the campaign by our quondam enemies and the admirable spirit displayed in carrying out the surrender."

Newfoundland Fishermen Suffer

St. Johns, July 8.—Reports received here show that many fishing craft are ashore, scores of boats have been destroyed and much fishing gear has been ruined by the recent storm. The losses were particularly heavy along the southern and eastern coasts of Newfoundland, where whole settlements have lost nearly all their nets, which were in the water when the storm arose.

To Reduce Asiatic Force

Washington, July 8.—The navy department contemplates making a material reduction of the naval force on the Asiatic station in the near future. While our intersts in the east are most important it is thought here that the large number of American warships gathered in Chinese and Philippine waters is considerable above the proper ratio.

Won't Preach In Middletown

Indians May Make Trouble

Guthrie, O. T., July 8.—The Cheyenne Indians near Calumet are reported to be holding a council of war, angry over an order issued by Indian Agent Stouch, prohibiting them from practicing the tortures, so-called, incident to their sun dance. The Indians are excited and the whites near Calumet are becoming frightened. This is the first time that the dances of the Cheyennes have been stopped by the government authorities.

Canadian Story Doubted

Indianapolis, July 8.—Sergeant Julius Frederick, who was surveyor of the ill-fated Greeley expedition to the north pole, does not place much faith in the story to the effect that Major Andre was killed by natives 300 miles north of the Hudson bay post. He thinks the balloon must have landed further to the north and in a place where there would be no danger from hostile Esquimos.

ANSWER TO DEMOCRATS

Will Be Found In Littlefield Anti-Trust Bill

GOOD CAMPAIGN MATERIAL

Though It Is Not Expected to Pass Short Session of Congress, It Will Weaken Opponents' Allegation That Congress Has Done Nothing

New York, July 8.—A dispatch to The Times from Washington says experienced politicians there commend the wisdom of the president in directing Representative Littlefield to draw up an anti-trust bill to be presented to congress at the next session, as an answer to the action of the house Democrats in calling attention to the fact that the Republicans passed no anti-trust legislation during the recent session. True there is no likelihood of the Littlefield bill becoming a law, as original legislation at a short session is a rarity and the chances are all against it, but for the purpose of the fall campaign nothing could be better than the action taken by the president, Attorney General Knox and Mr. Littlefield.

At the recent caucus of house Democrats, called to lay down a platform for the fall campaign, the resolution as to the trusts declared that the Republicans had taken no action whatever against them. The Republicans have intended to reply with the suits begun against trusts by President Roosevelt. The feeling here, however, has been that that would be a weak position for the reason that it is congress and not the prsident which is on trial in the coming elections and that, whatever the president has done, congress has done nothing.

The president's action, therefore, is regarded as a shrewd political move, so far as the fall campaign is concerned. It enables the president to fortify his position by having the Republican stump speakers point to the Littlefield bill and declare that at the next session the president will put it through congress. It tends also to weaken the Democratic allegation that congress has done nothing. The Democrats will of course reply that the bill is meant for campaign purposes only.

A dispatch from Washington to The Tribune adds: Attorney General Knox will make two or three speeches this fall on trusts and industrial combinations. The object of such speeches is apparent. There has been an endless amount of resolutions and political talk about trusts, and the president in his administration proposes to do something. He has already done enough to make the illegal combinations fear him and has nothing to gain from them in a political way, especially as in the contest over reciprocity with Cuba, instead of the government regulating the trusts, the trusts regulated legislation. Republican leaders know that unless something is done against the trusts by their party an opposition party will do it.

Not After Vice Presidency

Indianapolis, July 8.—Senator Beveridge, in answer to a query whether he would be a candidate for vice president in 1904, said: "I will under no circumstances become a candidate for vice president. I am content with my work in the senate." Senator Beveridge said he had heard his name used in connection with the vice presidency, but he repeated emphatically that he has no idea of becoming a candidate.

American Sculler Wins

Henley, July 8.—In consequence of the unusual number of competitors for the diamond sculls, and in order that none of the 11 scullers will be obliged to row two heats the same day, three preliminary races were decided yesterday. C. S. Titus of New York beat Louis Scholes of Toronto. Titus won by a length and a half. Time, 8 minutes, 33 seconds, which was far the best time in any of the three events. Sporting Life predicts that Titus will beat the field today.

Fatally Slugged by Thieves

New York, July 8.—Mrs. Margaret Kelly, wife of an employe of Whitelaw Reid at his summer residence near White Plains, was approached as she stood in front of her home by two men, one of whom struck her with a stone wrapped in a handkerchief. Her skull was fractured and she is dying. The thieves then robbed the house. Two suspects are under arrest.

British Embassy to Move

Washington, July 8.—The British embassy will be transferred to Bar Harbor within the next few days, where Percy Rakes and the staff of the embassy have taken quarters for the summer. Michael H. Herbert, the new British ambassador, will come to Washington about Oct. 1, at which time the embassy staff will return to Washington.

Five Killed by Lightning

Offerman, Ga., July 8.—Three white men and two negroes killed, one white man and one negro injured, is the result of a severe thunder and lightning storm here yesterday. The men were all employed by a telephone and telegraph company and were stretching wire when struck by lightning.

Was Bent Upon Dying

New York, July 8.—A man committed suicide yesterday by jumping from the Brooklyn bridge. A rope was thrown to him by a passing tug, but he refused the rope and soon sank from view.

WITH A SHOE KNIFE

Lynn Woman Receives Wounds at the Hands of Her Husband

Lynn, Mass., July 8.—Amos Clohecy, a shoe cutter, is locked up on the charge of attempting to kill his wife at her apartments on Liberty street. They have not lived together during the past two years. As his wife was leaving her rooms just before 10 o'clock last night he met her in the doorway and struck her with a shoe knife, a gash an inch and a quarter long being inflicted in the back of her neck. She then screamed for help, but before assistance reached her another wound was inflicted on the back of her hand. Her continued screams brought a large number of people to the scene, and Clohecy was soon arrested. The officers were unable to learn from him why he made the assault. Mrs. Clohecy's injuries are not serious.

Mystery Partially Solved

Lawrence, Mass., July 8.—There is no doubt now that the woman who was found on Tuesday in a horrible condition near the Cold Spring is Annie Lyons of Lowell. Two women who reside near the spring yesterday told extended stories of how they saw the woman and a male companion enter the woods on the night of July 1. The woman apparently was under the influence of liquor. During the night several young men were noticed going in the direction of the couple. In the morning the man was noticed carrying food into the woods and his condition indicated that he had been in a fight. When the woman was found unconscious and badly cut and bruised the two women both identified her as the person they saw entering the woods the day before.

A Boom For Clement

Rutland, Vt., July 8.—A call was issued last night by J. C. Jones, secretary of the Vermont local option league, for a meeting of the high license and local option forces of the state to be held in Burlington July 16. Although the call makes no mention of the project it is generally expected that a high license ticket for state officers will be placed in the field at that time with Percival W. Clement, who was a candidate for governor before the Republican convention, at the head.

Boy's Club Gets $150,000 Building

Pawtucket, R. I., July 8.—The $150,000 building which Colonel Lyman B. Goff of this city erected as a memorial to his son, Lyman T. Goff, was formally dedicated and turned over last night to the Pawtucket Boys' club, a corporation created to maintain the building. The building is a thoroughly equipped gymnasium with every convenience for the benefit of its boy members.

Better Precautions Needed

Marlboro, Mass., July 8.—At a meeting of the board of aldermen last night resolutions were passed instructing the mayor to petition the board of railroad commissioners to compel the Marlboro Street Railway company to take better precautions for the safety and convenience of its patrons, this step being the result of the recent bad accident on the road.

An Active Incendiary

South Kingstown, R. I., July 8.—The work of an incendiary who has been operating in this town has become so extensive that the town council yesterday offered a reward of $500 for the detection of the miscreant. Nearly a dozen dwellings have been set fire and his activity was shown in the past three days with a record of as many fires.

Factory and Other Buildings Gone

Burlington, Vt., July 8.—A fire of unknown origin last night destroyed the plant of the Lakeside Shoe company in this city, the flask house and barn belonging to the Lang & Goodhue Manufacturing company and a building used by the city as a schoolhouse. The loss to the Lakeside Shoe company is $50,000 and the others lose heavily.

Workmen Buried In Debris

Winchester, Mass., July 8.—Joseph Lyden, Patrick Beadly and John O'Melia were demolishing an old brick boiler house yesterday when one of the walls and a portion of the roof fell, partially burying them. All were cut and bruised and Lydon is thought to be internally injured.

Missing Child Home Again

Lowell, Mass., July 8.—Annie Winesky, 9 years old, who it was feared had been kidnapped by one of the fakirs at the south common on the 4th, returned home last night.

DeFreyne Tenants Evicted

Dublin, July 8.—The sheriff and a large body of police visited the estates of Lord DeFreyne at Lough Lynn, Roscommon county, yesterday to enforce writs which Lord De Freyne had caused to be issued against tenants who were in arrears with their reutals. In several cases settlements were arranged, but in others the tenants were evicted in the presence of sullen crowds. There were no disorders.

Ballots, Bullets and Knives

Rome, July 8.—Socialist riots occurred at Orte during the municipal elections held there yesterday. The polling place was wrecked and several policemen were stabbed. The police and the military fired on the mob. Over 40 persons were wounded in the affray and half of this number were among the carbineers. Troops have been ordered to Orte from Rome.

New York Nationals Get McGraw

Baltimore, July 8.—John J. McGraw announces that he has signed to manage the New York National league baseball club. A majority of the stockholders of the Baltimore club agreed to release him. His salary will be $10,000 a year and his contract is for two years.

Japan's Mountains.

All the mountains of Japan are of unquestioned volcanic origin, and Fuji stands where Hondo, the main island, is broadest. About twenty craters are still active throughout the islands, but Fuji-san belongs to the much greater number which are now inactive. Its last eruption occurred in 1707, continuing more than a month. As far away as Tokyo, sixty miles northeast, the ashes fell to a depth of seven or eight inches, while on the Tokaido, twelve or fifteen miles southeast, the accumulation was six feet. At this time was formed Ho-yei-san, a secondary, or parasitic, cone on the southeast slope.

No other mountains in Japan reach within 3,000 feet of the elevation of Fuji, and it is therefore in prominent view from an immense area, including thirteen provinces of the empire. Certain avenues in Tokyo are called Fujimi, or Fuji viewing streets, and from all of them the famous peak is a glorious spectacle. All winter long the summit of Fuji-san is unapproachable, and from November to July snows reign supreme. In the latter month, however, when the trails up the mountain slopes are laid bare, the ascent becomes feasible and remains so throughout the summer and early autumn.

There Is No Mikado.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert was no doubt primarily responsible for the belief which is everywhere prevalent that the emperor of Japan is always called the mikado by his people. Ask nine men out of ten what is the official title of the ruler of the islands of the chrysanthemum and they will probably think they are being made fun of. Assure them that the question is asked in all sober seriousness and they will give that of the title of Mr. Gilbert's imperial opera. For all this, the nine men out of ten would be wrong. His majesty is known as "tenno hei-ka," which means "his imperial majesty." Thus the people of Japan address their sovereign exactly as do the subjects of the imperious kaiser. Mikado used at one time to be the title, for it is the oldest form of address in use. It has, however, fallen into abeyance for several generations.

Grindstones.

The production of grindstones in the United States is almost entirely from Ohio and Michigan. The principal grindstone district in Ohio is included in Lorain, Cuyahoga and Summit counties, with Cleveland as a center, the largest grindstone quarries and manufacturing plants being within twenty-five miles of Cleveland. The quarries in southern Ohio are along the Ohio river west of Marietta and inland northwest of that city. A few quarries are in West Virginia across the river from Marietta. The Michigan quarries are on the shores of Lake Huron, about ninety miles north of Port Huron, near Grindstone City. In South Dakota are located the quarries of the Edgemont Stone company.

Two Big Wedding Fees.

When Collis P. Huntington was married for the second time, Henry Ward Beecher performed the marriage ceremony. Huntington's first wife had been dead less than one year, and he desired the second marriage to be kept secret until his return from Europe. He gave Mr. Beecher a marriage fee of $1,500. When Huntington returned some months later, he went through a public ceremony, and Beecher again officiated. He gave Beecher another fee of $1,500. The great preacher had his humor aroused by this second fee. Turning to Huntington, he said, "Collis, I do wish you were a Mormon!"

An Old Custom.

Ripon, England, still maintains a custom said to date 1,000 years back. Punctually every night at 9 o'clock the city "wakeman," attired in official costume, appears before the mayor's house and blows three solemn notes on the "horn of Ripon," an instrument decorated with silver badges and with the insignia of the trading companies of the City of Spurs. Thereafter he marches to the market cross and gives one blast on his horn.

Where Tall Men Are Found.

The tallest men of west Europe are found in Catalonia, Spain; Normandy, France; Yorkshire, England, and the Ardennes districts of Belgium. In the United States the thirty-eighth parallel, ranging through Indiana and northern Kentucky, is as decidedly the latitude of big men as the forty-second is that of the big cities.

Medicinal Properties of Cabbage.

In olden times cabbage was supposed to be endowed with marvelous medicinal virtues. Among other things, it was considered as being the only radical cure for drunkenness. Cato, writing of the cabbage, said: "By the use of the cabbage alone Rome has done without physicians for 600 years."

The English Cook.

According to the Lancet, the average English cook "utterly declines to weigh materials for cooking; she will not roast meat, but prefers to put it in the oven, or if as a great favor she puts it in front of the fire, she is too lazy to baste it or to put a screen round it."

The Little Things.

"That great matters are not always the most important is evidenced," remarked the stork, "by the fact that my fame and reputation are due solely to my strict attention to very little things."—Colorado Springs Gazette.

LONG STRIKE A FAILURE

Pawtucket Railway Men Give Up the Fight

GAIN ABSOLUTELY NOTHING

Closing Chapter of a Bitter Contest In Which Services of the Militia Were Required to Subdue Mob Violence and Much Damage Was Done

Pawtucket, R. I., July 9.—The street railway employes' strike, which has been in force since June 3, was last night declared off by a vote of 43 to 14, after a session lasting nearly four hours. The strikers gain absolutely nothing. Excepting five who made themselves objectionable, all the men will be taken back on the basis of an 11-hour day at 18 2-3 cents an hour.

The strikers will retain their old rank, but will follow the old men who did not strike and all others who returned during the strike, together with four strike breakers.

The announcement of the settlement was made to a large crowd who had gathered about the hall awaiting the decision.

The men will return to work tomorrow, but they will report to Superintendent Smith today to receive instructions on the new transfer system.

The spirit of enmity against the railroad company reached its height on June 12, when it became necessary to call out the state militia. An almost complete boycott had been established and no cars could be operated in safety either in this city or Central Falls after nightfall, even when the troops were present.

On June 29 the city was evacuated by the militia and since that time, although many overt acts have been committed, practical quiet has been restored.

The strike was precipitated by the refusal of the railway company to abide by the 10-hour law, giving the men pay for 11 hours. The entire system, comprising Providence, Central Falls and all suburban towns within a radius of 16 miles, was affected. The men accepted the railway company's terms in Providence and on the suburban roads on Saturday last, but the local strikers determined to hold out.

Much pressure was brought to bear and last night's action brought to a close one of the most bitterly contested labor problems with which this city has yet had to deal.

IF FUNDS RUN LOW

Miners Will Appeal to Labor Unions and Public For Assistance

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 9.—A national defense fund, to which all organized labor and the public in general will be asked to contribute, is the latest proposition placed on foot to help the striking anthracite coal miners if they need assistance in their struggle. Harry White of New York, secretary of the National Garment Workers, and member of the conciliation committee of the National Civic Federation, held a long conference with President Mitchell yesterday, during which the plan was approved by the miners' chief and Mr. White will at once begin preparations to carry it out. President Mitchell says, however, that the Miners' union will accept no aid until their own resources are exhausted. Mr. White came here authorized by several labor organizations to place the proposition before President Mitchell.

Militia May Be Called Upon

Blackstone, Mass., July 9.—A fusillade of revolver shots directed at the Saranac mills of the American Woolen company added a degree of excitement last night to the midnight hour. The armed guards within the walls of the plant made no response to the attack. A very bitter feeling exists over the action of the woolen company in ordering here 100 foreign weavers to fill the strikers' places. The mill will be put in operation today. So determined are the local strikers to resist any attempt to displace them that provisional orders have been issued for the calling out of state militia in order to protect the employes and the mill property. The strike, which is a sympathetic one, has been in force four months.

The Freight Handlers' Strike

Chicago, July 9.—Through the efforts of Chairman Job of the state arbitration committee a series of meetings has been arranged for today between the general managers of each of the roads and a committee of five men from the same line. Chairman Job says that he thinks he has inserted the entering wedge for the settlement of the strike. President Curran of the freight handlers says: "I feel assured that the difficulty will be amicably adjusted before tonight."

A STRENUOUS LIFE

For Those Who Have Undertaken to Teach Filipino Schools

New Haven, July 9.—J. L. Fiske, Yale, 1901, who has been in charge of the boys' school at Tacloban, Leyte, in the Philippines, writes home as follows about his experiences: "The general idea existed that those brown skins were waiting to receive us, and all with mouths wide open to be filled with western civilization, and the English language. Such has not been our experience. Where the people are so distrustful and reluctant to become peaceful an Americanized school work cannot prosper.

"Of the 34 teachers who began work in Leyte and Samar only eight are still in their places. Several have left the islands, some have stations elsewhere, and some are awaiting a safe place to begin life anew. Two friends in Basey, Samar, tell often of being rooted up in the night and given arms to help defend the town. Several have been driven out.

"We are exceedingly indignant over the reports sent and carried to 'God's country by officials.' They who talk of independence for the Filipinos are as ignorant of existing conditions here as they who talk of their ability and desire for peace."

To Hurry Coronation

London, July 9.—The news that the coronation of King Edward was to be held before the middle of August was published in America before it was known here. The Times and other papers confirm the announcement. From the same excellent source it is learned that the pressing forward of the coronation was due to the personal insistence of the king. His doctors were at first opposed to such an early date, but they now see that it is far better for the king to get through the turmoil of the coronation as soon as possible than to have it hanging over him for months.

Ships at Admiralty's Disposal

London, July 9.—In the house of commons yesterday Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty Arnold-Forster confirmed the report that J. P. Morgan had offered to place all the British ships in the new combine at the disposal of the admiralty for the next 50 years, on certain terms. Mr. Arnold-Forster added that the offer had not yet been accepted, because it could only be dealt with in relation to British shipping generally and the Atlantic trade position, which was being very carefully considered by the government.

Standard Oil In New Combine

Cincinnati, July 9.—The Confectioners' Review of this city says: A report comes from the east that a movement has been started for the purpose of combining all the eastern candy companies under one management. The movement is said to be backed by the Standard Oil company. According to current report the Standard Oil company has been engaged in securing a proprietorship of the most extensive sugar plants in the west, which lends color to the report of the eastern candy combine.

Back From the Philippines

San Francisco, July 9.—Nearly all the troops returning on the transport Logan, which arrived yesterday, have seen long service in the Philippine islands. The Sixteenth went from here in 1899. The men of that regiment have served in northern Luzon, now and again being in active combat with the rebels. The Sixteenth infantry has been assigned to duty at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga., and the Seventh will remain for some time at the Presidio.

Miss Morrison Again Sentenced

Eldorado, Kas., July 9.—Jessie Morrison, convicted of murder for killing Mrs. Olin Castle by cutting her throat, was yesterday sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary. Motion for a new trial was overruled. Miss Morrison, who has gone through three trials, took the sentence with little show of demonstration. The case will be appealed to the state supreme court. At her second trial Miss Morrison was given but five years.

Disapproved by Governor

New Orleans, July 9.—In consequence of the criticism of the northern press Governor Heard has vetoed the Smith bill, passed last week unanimously by the Louisiana legislature, prohibiting the use in the public schools of the state of any history which did not give the credit of the naval victory at Santiago to Admiral Schley.

Gathering of Educators

Minneapolis, July 9.—Minneapolis has within her gates 15,000 or more delegates to the National Educational association convention. The meetings yesterday were confined to the national council, the Indian department and the general sessions.

Exposition to Close on Sundays

St. Louis, July 9.—The board of directors of the Louisiana Purchase exposition yesterday adopted a resolution that during the whole duration of the exposition the gates shall be closed to visitors on Sunday.

ARRESTED AT MILTON LOWER MILLS.

Young Hill, the Slayer of His Sister at Roxbury, Probably Insane.

Boston, July 9.—Murder was committed yesterday in the house at 71 Waverley street, Roxbury. Herbert Hill, 21 years old, shot and killed his sister Alice, wife of Francis Riley, and wounded his mother. After the shooting Hill ran hatless up Waverley street. It is said that he secured a hat from a painter, and then disappeared in Franklin park.

Hill was finally arrested yesterday afternoon, after an aimless flight, at Milton Lower Mills, while attempting to board an electric car for Brockton, his peculiar actions attracting the attention of Policeman Harrington, whose beat takes in the boundary line between Boston and Milton. He made not the slightest resistance and was taken to station 9, nearest the scene of the murder, where he was locked up for the night.

Hill had every appearance of being insane. He talked incoherently and his hands were cut and bleeding where he had torn them with his teeth in his frenzy.

During the day more than 150 police officers and others had carried on a systematic search for Hill in Franklin park and the woods around Dorchester, but he eluded them all. After he had been locked in his cell he utterly collapsed and cried nearly the whole night.

Hill's story was told in such an incoherent and rambling way that the police could make little out of it. The prisoner was out all Monday night, not reaching home until 3 o'clock yesterday morning. He slept in the hallway until 7.

The police think that he had some talk with his mother; that he grew excited and drew his revolver, and, his sister appearing at that time, received the first bullet, which severed her jugular vein. One shot struck his mother and the other entered the transom over the door. There was also an abrasion on Mrs. Hill's head which led the police to think she had been struck on the head with the butt of the revolver. All these occurrences took place in the hallway on the first floor of the house.

The prisoner, however, cannot give any details, sometimes declaring that he knew he had killed his mother and sister, and then again saying he had no knowledge of what had been done. When asked about the shooting itself he talked incoherently and the police do not believe he has any realization of what he did.

Some months ago Hill began to suffer from insomnia and began using morphine, but he grew worse instead of better. He acted strangely at times and had consulted physicians with regard to his mental condition.

His brother-in-law, Francis Riley, believes that Hill was most certainly insane, as he had always been an affectionate son and brother.

Mrs. Hill's condition since the extraction of the bullet from her neck has improved and the physicians have no doubt of her recovery.

Seven Perfect Scores

New York, July 9.—Of the 13 survivors of the Metropole Cycling club's motor bicycle endurance run from Boston to New York, July 4 and 5, seven finished with perfect scores of 1000 points each and thereby earned gold medals denoting the highest possible award. All survivors who failed to obtain gold medals will secure bronze medals commemorative of the event.

Moose In New Homes

Albany, July 9.—Two bulls and four female moose, the first of a consignment of 20 procured by the forest, fish and game commission, were set free in that portion of the Adirondack region known as Uncas Road yesterday. The moose were all yearlings and arrived in excellent condition. The place in which the moose were liberated is remote from civilization.

Brussels, July 9.—Marie Henrietta, Queen of the Belgians, who has been ill for some time past at Spa, has suddenly grown worse and is in an alarming condition.

An investigation is being made at the request of the coroner.

Eat Well if You Would Live Well.

MANY people are discovering that the road to health is by abandoning drugs, and living on Proper Foods; that it is necessary to eat Healthful Food if Good Health is preserved.

Read a Description of What To Eat.

TOASTED WHEAT FLAKES enrich the blood, morning, noon and night. Our leader and a winner.

GRANOLA is one of the finest foods known. Prepared from a number of choicest grains, so combined as to constitute a perfect food, containing all the elements of nutrition and in proper proportion for the system.

GRANOSE, are New Cereal Food, made from the entire wheat berry, twice cooked, and presented in thin, delicious flakes most easily digested. A splendid food for everybody, especially brain workers, invalids, teething babies, or any one of weak digestion. A rational Food Cure for Constipation.

GRANOSE BISCUITS are of the same consistency as Granose, but in the conventional form of buscuit or cakes; very crisp, toothsome and digestible. Acceptable to most delicate stomachs.

CARAMEL-CEREAL, a delicately flavored Food Drink, a perfect substitute for Tea or Coffee, which are always hurtful and produce many serious disorders. It is a harmless beverage, and does not act on the nerves as do Tea and Coffee. Many imitations. "None as good as Caramel"

ZWIEBACK is similar to the famous Carlsbad bread, subjected to long-continued heat, by which the starch is partially digested. It is excellent eaten dry, with soup, with fruit juice, or as cream toast, etc.

Good Afternoon.

Since the arrest of the Houghs Neck man for burning a flag in a bonfire we have thought that the officer was over alert. Under certain circumstances it might be a desecration of the flag to burn it in a bonfire. If a man gloried in the deed or flaunted it in the air while burning, that would be one thing, but a small flag often gets into a rubbish heap and we see no desecration in placing it in a bonfire. The defendant was a member of the Sons of Veterans, and his father served in the Civil war, and we believe he had no intention of desecrating the flag. There are other directions in which the officer at Houghs Neck should turn his attention.

The communication of Mr. Henry H. Faxon, which the Daily Ledger declined, has appeared in other papers. It appeared to the Ledger that Mr. Faxon had gone out of his way to attack those who were not an issue in his controversy with the Mayor and Board of Health, and that perhaps these officials had been unjustly assailed. Everybody wants the cesspools on their premises emptied at about the same time, and it is not an easy task when it is remembered that there are perhaps 400 in Quincy. At the low prices fixed by the Board of Health there can be very little profit, and Mr. Faxon should not complain if he is called upon to pay but $1.65 for emptying a cesspool, and gets it done in ten days.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The number of boys below the age of sixteen years to be seen on the streets smoking cigarettes show that there are wholesale violations of the statues in such cases made and provided. It is scarcely probable that the authorities and dealers will ask people to believe that the cigarettes are, in all instances, furnished by parents or guardians.—New Bedford Standard.

☞It is questionable whether it is advisable to license the sale of fireworks before July 2, as the violation of the law in various parts of the city began as soon as they were placed on sale June 28. The suppression of such disturbances is a difficult and disagreeable duty to perform for it is seldom that an officer witnesses them, and it is therefore next to impossible to apprehend the guilty parties. Every exertion should be made however, to abate the nuisance of discharging explosives for a week before the arrival of the day we celebrate.—Lynn Item.

A Surprise Party.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Swain of Gay street, gathered at the residence Tuesday evening to celebrate Mrs. Swain's birthday. Games and music were the principal amusement. A piano solo by Mrs. Gilman and her Spanish friend was a feature. Refreshments were served by Hendrie. In behalf of those present Mrs. Oscar Bates presented Mrs. Swain with a picture of "The Druggist Fishing," drawn by Miss Lena Bates. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Orin Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Swain, Miss Carrie Creeber, Miss Violet Creeber and Miss Ida M. Bates.

ELLIS CORROBORATED.

Wife and Daughter Testify at Trial of Alleged Dynamiters.

Testimony of Powder Agent of Sales to Charles Carlson.

Inspector McKay Tells of His Attempts to Capture Carlson, Ryden and Johnson.

At the afternoon session of the Quincy court on Tuesday, in the trial of Carlson, Ryden and Johnson for dynamiting the house of George H. Ellis on Fletcher's field Ellis was crossexamined by Lawyer McKnight and Jenness but his testimony was not changed.

Upon indirect examination he said there was a screen door on the side door, one of the panels was pushed in and there were two bullet holes through the centre. When the men ran from the steps I cried police, as I thought Inspector McKay was on his way back.

MRS. MARY ELLIS TESTIFIED

that when she first saw Carlson on the night of July 3, she was upstairs. He was in his front door, with a revolver shooting toward my house. My husband went for the police. I went to the back door and he, Carlson, fired two shots at me. I shut the door. Carlson was shooting against the house. When my husband came back I saw Carlson take hold of his shoulder My husband pushed him away.

About 8.30 my husband went for the police again. While he was away I saw Carlson at his house shooting toward our house. He came past my front door to the side door and stood within six feet of the house. After the explosion I looked out and saw them. They were standing still. I went to the window and said, "Now you did it." Then they ran away. The blinds were all open and there were two lamps in the dining room.

I did not see Johnson until 2 o'clock. Did not see Ryden and Carlson again until 2 o'clock. Three quarters of an hour after the explosion my husband came home. I know nothing about the second explosion. I was in the house. I was in the front room. The window was broken.

I saw George Ryden at our front door, inside the gate. There was a boy passing. He said to him "Do you see these steps?" The boy replied, yes.

"Do you see that house?"

"Yes, it is all right."

"Well, before morning there will not be two sticks of it left."

He then said, come on we will get the crowd.

Carlson said, come into the house and we will have a drink before we do any more.

After the officers came, I was talking to Mr. McKay. A big rock came to the side door and another at the window. They came from the rear.

I went out to the crowd with the lantern. My husband said to them, "What do you expect to do."

I got the lantern and held it up and said, there is Georgie Ryden, Carlson and Johnson.

I was very close to them. There were a dozen in the crowd and a lot of boys.

EDITH MAY ELLIS

Said she was at home on day and night of July 3. I first saw Carlson after supper. When I was coming down Farrell street I met him. He said hello. He went up Whitwell street and began shooting a revolver. He went home and Mr. Hultee who lives up stairs came down and talked with him.

Carlson came to our grounds about 8.30. I was in the front room, and then went to the dining room window. Carlson came around the fence and under the tree to within six or seven feet of the house. Nearest the south side, and eight or nine feet from the side door. He remained there ten minutes. Father was down town and mother in the dining room. In about twenty or twenty-five minutes the explosion took place. I was in the front room when the explosion occurred.

I saw Johnson and Ryden the third time they came. I heard the conversation the Ryden boy had with the strangers. He was between the gate and steps. I heard him say, "Do you see those steps?"

"Yes."

"Do you see that house?"

"Yes, it is all right." "Well, there will not be two sticks of it left in the morning."

I saw him go to Carlson's house.

I did not see the Johnson boy. Was sure it was the Ryden boy. There was one window open and a whole and half window out.

R. J. TEASDALE

Said that he was a dealer in gun-powder, caps, dynamite and supplies. On June 10, I went to Robertson's quarry to deliver supplies. Carlson came to me and asked if I had any fuse and caps. He said he wanted some for Mr. Rice, foreman. I asked if he wanted any dynamite. He said no, he had plenty. I gave him a dozen caps and 50 feet of cotton fuse. It was the nature of dynamite when exploded to work down. Gunpowder works up. Witness was asked what effect the explosion of dynamite would have on a flat step. He was excused that he might examine it.

CHARLES J. ANDERSON

Was foreman for Harry L. Rice. He never requested Carlson to get him any fuse or caps.

DANIEL R. McKAY,

Police Inspector, testified: Had a talk with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis the night of July 3. Went to their house a little after 9 o'clock. Both explosions had taken place. In consequence of what they told me I went to look for Carlson and the two other defendants. I searched Carlson's house and looked around Ryden's place. I went there three times during the night. I saw Carlson the last time in his doorway with two other men with him. I ran the horse down and jumped out in front of Carlson's house. He ran in. McLoon and myself chased the other two and caught them. They were not the men wanted. When I came back I saw Carlson in the house with a revolver. The front door was locked and I ran around to the back door as I thought I could catch him but he got away. I did not see him again until he was arrested.

Witness then described the premises of Ellis as to the damage done by the explosion. When I reached Carlson's house I found two revolvers, one looked like that I saw in his hand when he ran out. There were two holes in the screen door of Ellis' house that resembled bullet holes.

At this point the hearing was adjourned until 1.30 P. M. Wednesday.

Today the hearing on the case was again continued until Friday morning, as counsel were unable to be present.

WALL DISCHARGED.

Not Guilty of Wantonly Burning Flag on Bonfire.

The case of George F. Wall of Houghs Neck for burning an American flag was heard in court this morning. Officer Curtin testified that he saw Wall come down the walk and put the flag on the fire. Ansel Sylvester testified he saw a man take the flag from the piazza and throw it on the fire.

The defendant testified that he built a bonfire and carried out a lot of rubbish from the barn. The flag might have been in that, but he did not see it. His father was a soldier of the Civil war and he was a member of the Sons of Veterans. There were no flags on his house.

Others who were guests that day testified to carrying rubbish from the stable but saw no flag until James W. Crosby, one of the party, pulled it out of the fire.

The court took the view that the burning was accidental and discharged the defendant.

VIVID MIMIC WARFARE.

First Lifelike Reproduction of the Custer Massacre.

PLANNED BY SCOUT O. P. HANNA.

Fifteen Hundred Crow and Cheyenne Indians, With 260 Regulars, Fought a Sham Battle on the Little Big Horn's Historic Battleground. Three Hundred Indians Were In Real Fight Years Ago.

At Sheridan, Wyo., July 4, not far from the spot where Custer fell, twenty-six years after the heroic Seventh cavalry was demolished by a ferocious and overpowering force of Indians, was enacted a mimic but fearfully lifelike imitation of that celebrated massacre, says the New York Times. Fifteen hundred Crows and Cheyennes, hideous in their war paint, swooped down upon 260 men from Fort McKenzie and surrounded, cut down and annihilated them in the presence of thousands of spectators, who then saw the first lifelike reproduction of the slaughter of Custer and his band.

The fight of June 25, 1876, was without a surviving witness, and after the last horrible yell had died away in the Big Horn, after the last scalp had been lifted, there was no one of that gallant band of troopers left to tell the tale. The scene of carnage has been described only in the unwilling speech of the Indian victors and the imagination of the writers whom that speech and the graves of the silent dead inspired. So, after all, the most authentic and certainly the most vivid picture of that fight was the sham battle between Uncle Sam's men and the Crows and Cheyennes on the Fourth of July, 1902.

The recent reproduction of the Custer massacre is the result of many years of scheming. For ten years efforts had been made to persuade the Crows to take part in the mimic fight, but all overtures had been met with grunts of disapproval. It was not until after patient persistence and much canvassing that O. P. Hanna, once a scout with Custer, succeeded in interesting the reds in a sham battle. Through his long experience on the frontier and his personal acquaintance among the leading chiefs of the western Indians Hanna finally came out on top. They agreed to "put up" an exhibition if Hanna would do certain things, which Hanna readily promised.

The Crows are a very conservative tribe these days, and when once they were interested in the project they were ready to emigrate almost to a man to the field of the sham battle. So the Crow agency on the Fourth looked like a deserted village, while around the town of Sheridan were camped at least 3,000 Indians. Of the chiefs who took part in the sham battle the best known are Spotted Horse, Wolf-That-Lies-Down, Two Leggins, Old Crow, Plenty Cuss, Crazy Head, Red Tomahawk, Iron Thunder, Medicine Crow, Sparrow Hawk, Pretty Eagle and Bad Man.

Rehearsing 1,000 Indians for the sham battle was no small task and required diplomacy as well as executive ability. For days the spectacle was repeated until all the movements were thoroughly drilled into the red men's minds. In the band of Indians who fought on the Fourth more than 300 of them were in the battle of twenty-six years ago. Major Sanders was the Custer, and at the head of his little band, representing the detachment of the famous Seventh United States cavalry, he could be seen in the distance making a detour to surround a small cluster of Indians. The latter ran, and Sanders charged after them in full pursuit. The red men were real warriors in appearance, with their shining, naked limbs and features fantastically colored, and riding their mounts at top speed they presented a terrifying spectacle.

The reds were then re-enforced and beat back the soldiers, the firing broke into a sullen roar, and the soldiers were seen again advancing. The soldiers divided into two columns, one taking one side and the other the opposite of the ascent up the ravine. Then Spotted Horse, who acted Gall, brought up more Indians. The troopers tried to form a junction of their two slender columns, but the enemy, scores and scores of flying, yelling fiends, remained ever between them.

There was no escape. Gall was an omnipresent fiend and seemed to possess a charmed life as he charged at the head of his hordes, yelling, encouraging, calling on the Great Spirit as they rode over their own dead to reach the little band of the Seventh. First the cavalry horses fell as their riders dropped behind them, shooting desperately on every side at an enemy that seemed to encircle each one of them, so numerous were the reds.

A final charge, and both sides were down save a few plucky bunches of men who stood side by side in the last encounter. Then the carnage began, and scalps were lifted in high glee. Custer alone, with half a dozen men, was making his last stand.

Then Custer remained alone for a moment, finally falling, pierced by numerous bullets and lying undisturbed among that yelling horde, which regarded him with awe as some powerful agency of the evil spirit. There he lay, even as did the Custer of a quarter of a century ago, his yellow locks undisturbed, his face marred only by the battle smoke and his sword in his hand even in death.

Such was the mimic battle given at Sheridan on the Fourth, at once the first and the most lifelike attempt to reproduce the Custer massacre.

All Should Assist Police.

West Quincy people are highly indignant over the actions of the crowd of hoodlums who made life miserable for those people unfortunate enough to reside near what is known as "The Rail," the night before the Fourth. They are blaming the authorities, who, they say, knowing from past experience how things are run in that neighborhood, did not put some regular officers on duty, instead of a lot of specials and constables who took good care to keep out of harm's way.

Rev. A. F. Roche spoke of the outrages in church last Sunday. He said the police had the matter in hand and that it was the duty of every person who knew anything about the mischief to give information, and to assist the authorities in every way, that the parties who were the cause of the explosions of dynamite might be brought to justice.

BLINDNESS CAUSED

By Drinking Jamaica Ginger—Suits for $115,000.

Henry H. Faxon will doubtless be pleased to welcome the oculists as allies in his fight against alcoholic drinks. The Chicago Chronicle says: Manufacturing chemists and oculists are interested in the outcome of the first of five damage cases, aggregating $115,000, against a concern of Baltimore, which is one of the heaviest drug firms and manufacturing chemists in the country.

The allegations on which suits are based are that the plaintiffs were made blind by drinking preparations put up by the house, notably the one called "Jamaica ginger," in the manufacture of which wood or menthyl alcohol had been used instead of pure grain or ethyl alcohol.

Behind the plaintiffs in these suits are the leading oculists of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The specialists have furnished the funds for the lawyers' fees and the preparation of the cases for court. The five cases referred to may be summarized thus:

Heirs of James Henry Duncan of Cecil County, Maryland, who claim that the deceased, after drinking one bottle of Jamaica ginger, put up by the defendants, was stricken blind and died soon after. Damages $25,000.

Dr. George A. Brehm of Cecil County, Maryland, became addicted to the use of the ginger alleged to have been put up by the defendants and become totally blind from the effects of the adulterant or wood alcohol used. Damages $30,000.

Henry W. Jackson of West Virginia declares that he used the Jamaica ginger put up by the defendants frequently and is blind in consequence. Damages $25,000.

Nimrod B. Dove, also of West Virginia alleges almost total blindness through the use of the adulterated lemon extract alleged to have been put up by the defendants, and in which wood alcohol was used. Damages $20,000.

Oscar Ox of Somerset County, Maryland, totally blind from use of Jamaica ginger alleged to have been put up by the defendants and in which wood alcohol was used. Damages $15,000.

Dr. Herbert Harlan of Baltimore and one of the leading oculists of the country called attention to the prevalence of blindness among people who use Jamaica ginger as a stimulating beverage last winter in a long article published in the Ophthalmic Record, and the article attracted great attention. He showed that the local option towns of Pennsylvania, the Virginias and Maryland men who craved liquor, but who found it difficult to obtain, had resorted to the use of essences like Jamaica ginger for the effects of the alcohol which entered into their preparation. It is said that the number of cases of total blindness in the four states mentioned exceeds 1000, all of them directly traceable to the use of adulterated essences. After the publication of Dr. Harlan's paper the Baltimore Opthalmic Society, urged by specialists throughout the country, decided to begin a crusade against the makers of the stuff.

"Wood alcohol is certain to produce blindness when used as a drink or otherwise introduced into the system," said Dr. Harlan. "If a large dose is taken on an empty stomach death is almost certain to follow immediately. The consumption of wood alcohol by manufacturing chemists throughout the country has increased enormously during the last decade. It can be bought for 75 cents per gallon, while the ethyl alcohol costs $2.45 per gallon. It is time that the men who are sending bottled blindness and certain death broadcast through the country should be halted."

Store Keepers' Meeting.

The meeting of the Quincy Store Keepers' Association held Tuesday afternoon in the rooms of the Master Builders and Traders' Association was largely attended, nearly forty in all being present. President Wadsworth presided.

A general discussion of the matter of closing followed. As at the meeting of last Thursday it was the general sentiment that it would be a detriment to the business interests of Quincy to close the stores more than at present.

The executive committee was instructed to wait upon the grocery and provision dealers, who are now closing on Monday evenings who had been invited to attend these meetings but were not present, and have a conference with them in regard to Monday night closing.

BEATEN AND FINED

Englishman Finds It Unprofitable to Insult Stars and Stripes

Boston, July 9.—Charles Roberts, an Englishman and assistant steward on the Cunarder Saxonia, was fined $10 in the East Boston district court yesterday on pleading guilty to a charge of desecrating the American flag. Roberts and two companions were enjoying the Fourth of July in East Boston and were somewhat intoxicated. The trio visited one of the hotels there and seated themselves at a table.

While waiting to be served with refreshments, Roberts took a small American flag from his pocket and, after making some insulting remarks, tore the flag into shreds and threw them in the face of a stranger.

The insult to the flag was witnessed by a number of visitors who drove the three men into the street, where the stranger singled out Roberts and gave him such a beating that the latter had to cry for mercy and has since been confined to the ship. The police, hearing of the case, had Roberts summoned into court.

Clohency Pleads Not Guilty

Lynn, Mass., July 9.—Daniel Clohecy, who stabbed his wife, was in court yesterday. He was held in $1500 for the grand jury. He was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. He pleaded not guilty, waiving the reading of the complaint. Mrs. Clohecy was unable to appear in court. She is in a dangerous condition and it is feared there may be serious results from the deep cut in her throat. Clohecy absolutely refuses to talk to the police about the affair. He is in a highly nervous state, bordering on hysteria.

Granite State Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., July 9.—Frank W. Rollins, president of the New Hampshire Old Home Week association, has issued a general invitation to the absent sons and daughters of the Granite state to attend the fourth annual old home week, Aug. 16-23. He says: "During that week the state will keep open doors and all natives of New Hampshire and all claiming descent from her loins, are heartily and cordially invited to return and spend at least one day in the place made hallowed by associations of birth and ancestry."

Wholesale Poisoning Suspected

Portland, Me., July 9.—Walter W. Curran, aged 11, and five of his brothers, all younger, last Saturday ate some cherries from a tree in a neighbor's yard at Woodfords. Shortly afterwards Walter was taken sick. Physicians who were called pronounced it a case of poisoning. The child continued to grow worse and died yesterday. The other children are seriously ill. An investigation probably will be held, as it is thought there was poison in the cherries.

Miss Devoe Will Recover

Boston, July 9.—Martin J. Concannon, who was arraigned on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on Miss Lizzie Devoe at a shooting gallery at Revere beach on Saturday night, was yesterday found not guilty and discharged. Everything pointed to the fact that the shooting was purely accidental. At the Massachusetts general hospital it is announced that Miss Devoe has not been placed on the dangerous list.

CHOATE FOR PRESIDENT

Don Dickinson Says It Is the Wish of Americans

BRITISH FLAG FOR LIBERTY

As Well as That of America—Should Be an Understanding That English-Speaking Nations Must Not Be Attacked by Any Other Nations

London, July 9.—Speaking at the annual dinner of the Hardwick society in London last night, Don M. Dickinson of Detroit, who was counsel for the United States before the international high commission on the Bering sea claims in 1897, referred to Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, as a possible candidate for the presidency of the United States. The company consisted of several hundred members of the English bar, law lords and judges.

Mr. Dickinson took Mr. Choate's place as the guest of honor. He prefaced his proposal of a toast to the English bench by a tribute to Mr. Choate. "Mr. Choate does not belong," said Mr. Dickinson, "to my party or to my government, but it is very near the hearts of the American people that he shall go from the court of St. James to the presidential chair, and I wish he may get there."

Mr. Dickinson eloquently voiced the sympathetic joy of the American people at the certainty of the recovery of the "illustrious and beloved King of England. We rejoice, continued the speaker, "with you in your joys, and sorrow with you in your griefs. That feeling has been expressed by no one more truly than by President Roosevelt, who is as close to the people of America as has been any president in the history of the republic."

Mr. Dickinson compared President Roosevelt, amid the enthusiastic cheers of those present, to Sir Philip Sydney, "without fear and without reproach."

Dealing with international feeling, Mr. Dickinson said: "We of the United States have long since ceased to boast that we alone are the champions of liberty; wherever the British flag floats today it stands for liberty." He cited the recent dispatch of Joseph Chamberlain, declaring that the constitution of Cape Colony should not be suspended, as an instance of Great Britain's love of liberty. He declared that America deeply sympathized with Mr. Chamberlain in his recent accident, and concluded by saying:

"Great Britain and the United States can make the world's freedom wider yet, not by alliance, but by an understanding that we, the English speaking nations, mean well by the rest of the world and that the other nations must not attack either one of us." Mr. Dickinson was loudly cheered.

Lord MacNaughten, replying to Mr. Dickinson, declared that American legal decisions were now held in respect in England equal to that with which the old English legal precedents were held in the United States.

No Friction on Trust Question

Washington, July 9.—Postmaster General Payne pronounces the story to the effect that the cabinet was divided on the trust question, part of its members not wholly indorsing the president's policy, to be "a ridiculous canard." It is said that the trust question has not been discussed recently in the cabinet at all, but that the president and attorney general have taken the ground that they were merely enforcing the law and not developing any new or comprehensive policy.

Wales Will Entertain Kitchener

London, July 9.—The program for the reception of Lord Kitchener upon his arrival from South Africa is similar to the one carried out upon the occasion of the home-coming of Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief of the forces. After his elaborate welcome at Southampton, Lord Kitchener is expected to reach London on July 12. He will be escorted to St. James palace, where he will be entertained at luncheon by the Prince of Wales. The prince will act for the king.

Cholera on the Increase

Manila, July 9.—Cholera is slowly increasing and Sunday there were 50 new cases. The municipal board of health is co-operating with the insular health authorities and is preparing extraordinary plans for the destruction of the filthy districts of Manila and the removal of 40,000 persons to suburban sanitary camps.

Not Slain by Filipinos

Plainfield, N. J., July 9.—Lewis S. Thomas of this city, one of the teachers who was supposed to have been slain by natives in the Philippines, is alive. Robert Craig has received a letter from him postmarked Nagasaki, Japan, June 6, in which he says that he left the Philippines for Japan to see the sights.

Crop Money Going Out

Washington, July 9.—The first money for the movement of crops was shipped from the treasury yesterday, $100,000 to New Orleans and $500,000 to Chicago. The demand for money from the interior promises to be somewhat heavier than last year.

Windward Has Not Reached Sydney

Halifax, July 9.—The Peary Arctic steamer Windward which sailed from New York last Thursday, has not yet arrived at Sydney. The Windward is now two days overdue. It is thought that the steamer has been delayed by heavy northwest winds.

DEATH OR CAPTURE

Will Soon Be the Fate of Harry Tracy, the Notorious Convict

Seattle, Wash., July 9.—Harry Tracy, the fugitive Oregon convict who has killed six men and wounded several others since June 9, is being hotly pursued by men and dogs in the country southeast of Seattle and will probably be slain or captured within a few hours. His pursuers, who have with them two fine bloodhounds, are only a short distance behind him.

Tracy made another extraordinary escape from one of the posses after him yesterday. Word was received at the sheriff's office that Tracy had been at the house of Mrs. Gerald at Renton for five hours. Fifty armed men at once hastened to the scene. When they reached the place they scattered and took positions so they could watch the house to the best advantage. On the arrival of Sheriff Cudihee the posse closed in on the house, only to learn that Tracy had left the house by a rear door 10 minutes previously, while the posse were taking up positions to watch the place, hid for a few minutes in some of the bushes, and then quietly slipped away through the woods toward Palmer. The wonderful coolness and daring of the convict was never more fully exemplified than in this instance. In the back yard of the Gerald home Anderson, the man who Tracy had kept a prisoner from the time he left Port Madison, was found tied to a tree. Tracy had tied Anderson while the posse was in full view of the house.

The bloodhounds were let loose on his trail and are reported to be close behind him. Fully a thousand armed men are now engaged in the pursuit.

Wireless Experiments

Washington, July 9.—The navy department has in contemplation a plan to establish a wireless telegraph station in San Francisco harbor. The department has now adopted a system of wireless communication, but expects soon to begin a series of experiments at different points throughout the country with several foreign systems. Lieutenant Hudgins of the naval bureau of equipment, who was sent abroad to purchase apparatus for trial, will bring with him the apparatus of two French and two German systems of wireless telegraphy, and these will be tried together with the Marconi system, at New York, Annapolis, Washington, San Francisco and other points.

Iowa Crops Under Water

Des Moines, July 9.—Last night the Des Moines river broke over the levee in the southeast part of the city and a score of families were driven from their homes. The steamer Lehman, the biggest of the river excursion boats, was sunk and is in danger of breaking up. At midnight more than 2½ inches of rain had fallen in 10 hours. The Raccoon is two miles wide through Dallas and Green counties and sweeping over crops on the bottom lands. Reports from the upper Des Moines and Raccoon indicate that the flood has not reached its greatest height.

Lee's View of Cuba's Prospect

Washington, July 9.—General Fitzhugh Lee, former consul-general to Havana, declared yesterday that unless the Republican party agrees to carry out the reciprocity policy of President Roosevelt with regard to Cuba, anarchy will take the place of order, followed by interference by the United States and annexation. "I have observed," says General Lee, "that the negroes of the island are getting more or less disconted, claiming that they have not had their proper shar of the spoils. This is significant of trouble."

An Indian Territory Volcano

Guthrie, O. T., July 9.—Great excitement has been caused at Tulsa, I. T., owing to the discovery by surveyors working north of that place of cracks in the sides of mountains, as though from great pressure underneath. Gas is escaping from the fissures and a continual hissing and roaring can be heard. On the extreme top of the highest hill there has been a small volcano at work. Experts state it is a great oil and gas field and that pressure from a great depth has caused the commotion.

Hard on Fishermen

St. Johns, July 9.—Reports continue to arrive here of disasters on the coast as the result of the recent storm. Whittles' craft with five men was lost off Cape St. Mary. The loss in fish nets and gear sustained by the settlements in the vicinity of St. Johns is estimated at $40,000.

Poisonous Chicken Pie

Shanghai, July 9.—Thirteen English and American boys attending the inland mission school at Che-Foo were seized with illness after partaking of chicken pie. Twelve of the boys died, supposedly from ptomaine poisoning.

Costa Rican Volcanoes Active

Managua, July 9.—The Democracia of this city reports that the volcanoes of Mirad Valle and Rincond Vieja, in Costa Rica, situated respectively 80 and 60 miles southeast of Lake Nicaragua, are in active eruption.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charles Merrithew, aged 6, was fatally scalded at Belfast, Me., by falling into a tub of hot water.

The Lynn, Mass., common council refused to concur with the aldermen in appropriating $1000 for the celebration of Old Home week and consequently there will be no such observance in that city.

Linden Tree, the celebrated pure bred Arabian stallion given by the sultan of Turkey to General Grant, and by him given to General L. W. Colby, now adjutant general of the Nebraska state militia, died at Beatrice, Neb., of old age. He was 36 years old.

Crowned Himself.

That was a curious sort of impromptu coronation in which his majesty King William IV. figured. Things did not go very well with Earl Grey's government after the second reading of the first reform bill had been carried by a majority of one in 1831, and one Friday in April they suddenly got the king to go down and prorogue parliament in person. Somebody went off to the Tower to fetch the crown, and with a scratch body of attendants his majesty drove down to the house of lords. What happened there is described in Greville's "Memoirs."

The king ought not properly to have worn the crown, never having been crowned; but when he was in the robing room he said to Lord Hastings, "Lord Hastings, I wear the crown; where is it?" It was brought to him, and when Lord Hastings was going to put it on his head, he said, "Nobody shall put the crown on my head but myself." He put it on and then turned to Lord Grey and said, "Now, my lord, the coronation is over!"

The crown did not fit very well, we are told, but the prorogation was successfully effected.—London Chronicle.

Lincoln's Hay Crop.

A story of Abraham Lincoln would have to be older than the one below to lose its characteristic savor.

In the summer of 1857 Mr. Lincoln was sitting in his office when he was visited by one of his neighbors, an excellent farmer, but one inclined to increase the size of his crops even after harvesting. He had given on this particular morning a skillfully padded account of the hay he had put in.

"I've been cutting hay, too," remarked Mr. Lincoln.

"Why, Abe, are you farming?"

"Yes."

"What you raise?"

"Just hay."

"Good crop this year?"

"Excellent."

"How many tons?"

"Well, I don't know just how many tons, Simpson, but my men stacked all they could outdoors and then stored the rest in the barn."—Youth's Companion.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice, when sentence of death is about to be passed, a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court, and advancing to the bench bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved, the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

An English King's Death.

William Rufus was killed by an arrow, either accidental or with murderous intent. He died in the New forest, his body was stripped by tramps and the next day was found by a charcoal burner, who placed the naked corpse on his cart, hoping to receive a reward. On the way to Winchester the cart was upset, and the king's body fell in the mire. Covered with filth and black with charcoal, it arrived in Winchester, where it was buried in the cathedral. A few years later the tower fell and crushed the tomb, and 600 years after the Puritans rifled the grave and played football with the king's skull.

Cruikshank's "Fagin."

There is an interesting story very little known of how Cruikshank conceived his picture of Fagin, the Jew. During the time he was illustrating "Oliver Twist" he spent days traversing the east end of London in search of a face that would correspond with his conception of the character. One day while standing before a mirror in his dining room "pulling faces at himself," so to speak, for the want of something better to do, he accidentally made the features for which he was looking. The picture therefore of Fagin is really that of Cruikshank himself.

Didn't Notice Improvement.

An eastern senator was riding to the capitol on an F street car when a very deaf lady, who sat next to him, asked some questions about Washington and then apologized for being deaf.

"Why don't you try electricity?" sympathetically suggested the senator.

"Well," said the lady, "I was struck by lightning last summer, but I don't see that it did me any good."—Washington Post.

Outline of Plans For Army and Naval Maneuvers

A FLEET OF THE "ENEMY"

Will Attempt to Elude Defensive Squadron—Naval Attack by Supposed Hostile Fleet to Be Met by Soldiers, Assisted by Naval Vessels

Washington, July 10.—Beyond a general idea of the character of the army and naval maneuvers which will take place on the Atlantic coast this summer, nothing bearing official authentication is obtainable in either the navy or war departments. Nor is it likely that any specific details of the maneuvers will be given to the public, as information regarding the detailed plans of either defenders or invaders will completely thwart the main objects of the exercises.

But from a high official source a general sketch of the exercises has been obtained. There are to be two distinct sets of maneuvers. The first will be purely naval and will consume probably the first three weeks of August. Two, or perhaps three, of the vessels belonging to the north Atlantic station will represent an enemy's fleet and will attempt to elude a defensive squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Higginson, and accomplish a landing at some point on the New England coast inside of limits not yet prescribed. The duty of the defending squadron will be to send out scouts to locate the "enemy's" vessels before they can reach the coast.

The vessels participating in these maneuvers will include the battleships Kearsarge, Alabama, Massachusetts and Olympia, comprising the north Atlantic squadron, as well as the Montgomery, Scorpion, Marblehead, Hist and such other vessels as can be spared at the time. At these naval maneuvers the officials hope to experiment with wireless telegraphy if suitable arrangements can be perfected in time, and it is said there also will be experiments in coaling ship, transporting supplies, and other comparatively minor features of naval warfare.

The second and more important set of summer maneuvers will consist of a naval attack on a point on the north Atlantic coast by a supposed hostile fleet, which attack is to be met by a joint defense by the army and militia, assisted by a small number of naval vessels detached for the purpose from the north Atlantic squadron.

Active preparations are in progress by the army for its part in the coming maneuvers. The defense will be under the general direction of the commanding officer of the department of the east, though the actual work devolves on the coast artillery, whose officers, in the districts which are to be attacked, will be in active command.

It has been determined that the attack will be made between New Bedford, Mass., on the east, and the eastern defenses of Long Island sound. This will include the artillery district of Narragansett, commanded by Colonel Hasbrock, and the district of New London, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Davis. The Narragansett district includes forts Adams, Wetherill and Greble, R. I., and Rodman, Mass. The New London district is composed of forts Trumbull, Conn.; Mansfield, R. I.; H. G. Wright, Michie and Terry, N. Y.

The New York forts are situated at the entrance of Lond Island sound and are located for the purpose of defending all the cities of the sound as well as the upper approach to New York city.

All the engineer officers available have been ordered to these districts and are directing the preparation of such portion of the defense as would come under their charge. Ordnance officers have been directed to give attention to the inspection of guns, and quantities of ammunition with blank charges have been sent to the various forts.

Not only will the defense consist of handling and firing the guns but it will also be a test of the appliances such as range finders, telegraphic facilities, signal operations and everything else that is necessary in a perfect sea coast fort. Within the radius of the operations the army will have no notice of where and when the attack will be made. The army must find that out for itself. The signal corps will be utilized for this purpose, as well as all the telegraph and telephone stations along the coast.

The navy will take every precaution to conceal the point of attack and the army will do its utmost to find out just where the fleet will approach the coast and also at what time.

THE SLIPPERY TRACY

Again Eludes His Pursuers and Is Safe For the Present at Least

Seattle, July 10.—The pursuit of Harry Tracy appears to be temporarily suspended. Sheriff Cudihee has called in the guards from the southern suburbs, leaving only a sufficient number for a careful patrol. The posse that started from Renton with bloodhounds returned yesterday afternoon after a fruitless search.

The posse scoured the country between Renton and Black River junction. A large territory has been sentried, and it is believed that Tracy is hiding in the dense woods of this district. Guards have been stationed at every road in the section. It is believed that he will soon make his appearance at some house and demand food. As matters stand at this moment, no one knows the exact whereabouts of the desperado.

Three suspicious looking individuals have been arrested at Renton. The men have the appearance of tramps and it is thought that they may be three of the four men who met Tracy at Black River bridge Monday night and walked through Renton in the convict's company. Their statements as to their recent actions are conflicting. A diligent search is being made for the fourth alleged accomplice, who is thought to be hanging around Renton or may have joined the convict.

Money Cuts a Figure

London, July 10.—It is said that Harry L. M'Calmont, M. P., member of the Jockey club and the Royal Yacht squadron, has been chosen to succeed the Earl of Hopetoun as governor general of Australia. The appointment of a wealthy sportsman, who is better known for his horse racing than his political proclivities, to fill the position vacated by the Earl of Hopetoun on account of the inadequacy of the salary attached to it, is considered to be a novelty in the selection of colonial governors.

Desperate Break For Liberty

St. Joseph, Mo., July 10.—James Blade, Lock Allen and James Murray, prisoners in the Buchanan county jail, yesterday wrecked the rear wall of the jail building with a powerful charge of dynamite. Allen, Blade and Murray then made a fierce fight for liberty, but the guards beat them back with Winchesters. Seventy-five prisoners are confined in the jail, and those who tried to follow Blade and his companions were clubbed into submission. No one was injured.

Fell In Love at Pekin

Des Moines, July 10.—The wedding of Lieutenant Harold Hammond, U. S. A., and Miss Mary E. Pierce, neice of Minister to China Conger, took place last evening. Lieutenant and Mrs. Hammond left for West Point, where the lieutenant has been appointed instructor in the national military academy. Miss Pierce was in the American legation during the siege of Pekin and Lieutenant Hammond was one of the American relief force.

Can Name His Own Price

Chicago, July 10.—John W. Gates, steel trust magnate, has advanced the price of corn 2½ cents in one month. July corn yesterday touched 90 cents under his manipulation. His profits are estimated at $5,000,000, and may exceed that amount if he so wills. The scarcity of contract corn makes him absolute master of the situation, and he is able to force the price beyond even the dollar mark if the whim seizes him.

The Minneapolis Scandal

Minneapolis, July 10.—The grand jury has returned indictments charging A. A. Ames, mayor of the city, Fred W. Ames, superintendent of police, and Joseph Cohen with accepting bribes. LITTLEFIELD'S IDEAS

Will Furnish Basis For New Anti-Trust Bill

CERTAIN TO BECOME A LAW

Recent Prosecutions Have Furnished Valuable Suggestions to Attorney General—Administration's Plans Will Be Known During Campaign

Washington, July 10.—An anti-trust bill will go through congress at its next session by a practically unanimous Republican party vote, if by no other. This is the administration program. The Democrats will be invited to come in and help on patriotic grounds, but the measure will be presented and controlled on the Republican side of both houses and enough votes are believed to be assured to pass it.

The basis of the new bill will be Representative Littlefield's anti-trust bill "H. R 3" of providing sundry amendments to the Sherman act. As introduced on Dec. 2 it was about six pages long, and rather crudely put together, Mr. Littlefield's sole purpose being to throw something into the arena for the congressional critics to pick to pieces and reconstruct in parts.

It has been the president's desire to have a law which should effectively check the aggressions of trade combinations when they began to interfere with popular rights. The attorney general realized, however, the great difficulty and danger of hasty legislation in restraint of private enterprise and they both decided to see how far existing law would go before entering upon the preparation of a new law. Hence the prosecutions of the Northern Securities company and the beef trust, involving different but typical phases of the subject, were intended quite as much to discover where the Sherman law fell short of its author's designs as to put its strength to the test.

These two suits, which are all that it is the present plan of the administration to undertake till a new law has been created, have given the attorney general a great many suggestions. He has embodied them in certain additions to the text of the Littlefield bill, or in marginal indications of changes which would be advisable, so that the measure is now much longer and more elaborate. House bill No. 3, with this remodeling, is the whole of the much-advertised new legislation which Mr. Littlefield has been called in to prepare.

The Littlefield bill was sufficiently remodelled before the end of the session to have been called up then, and some of the president's advisors were anxious to have this done for its political effect. The idea did not find favor, however. Such legislation, in order to be effective for the correction of abuses without the danger of becoming an abuse itself, has to be carefully considered and threshed over, and it was therefore decided not to bring up the bill while congress was in the midst of a wrangle over other matters, but to wait till it could have a full discussion and calm action.

Meanwhile, there is excellent reason for saying that before congress meets again, indeed during the latter part of the congressional campaign, the attorney general will perform for the administration the same office regarding the trust question that Secretary Root did in 1900 regarding the army. He will deliver a carefully prepared speech in which he will prepare the ground for the administration's coming step by discussing the whole trust problem clearly, and explaining the situation and the administration's theory of meeting it, as cabinet officers in other governments make their face-to-face accounting to the voting citizens. It may be that this speech will be delivered in only one place, or it may be repeated in substance in two or three places; that detail has not yet been determined, but the president believed that a frank, temperate and businesslike explanation of this sort would be a better card for the Republican campaign than a week of excited debate in the closing hours of a congressional session.

Mystery Is Cleared Up

Lawrence, Mass., July 10.—The mystery surrounding the case of Annie Lyons, who was found in a bruised and semi-conscious condition in the woods and who is still at a hospital, has been removed by Marshal O'Sullivan. He is convinced that the man in the case was in no way accountable for the woman's condition, and he says further that there is no evidence of crime against anyone connected with it. The man might be brought in on one or two or three charges, but it is thought that the evidence of the woman would be necessary to convict him. The matter is now practically dropped, for it is evident that the woman would not testify against the man who was seen with her.

Good Afternoon.

The big Metropolitan papers are sounding their praises of Fore River Ship yard at Quincy, and the new Lawson seven master, and Quincy may well feel proud of both.

Tho Journal says: "Today there slides into the water from the fine new yard of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company at Quincy Point the largest and most important merchant ship ever built in Boston Harbor, and the largest sailing vessel ever built in the United States.

"The novel rig of the seven-masted steel schooner Thoms W. Lawson is only one of the many interesting characteristics of this noble great merchantman. In size she is equivalent to six or seven of the famous squaer riggers with which our merchants of half a century ago carried the fame of Boston to the furtherest waters of the globe. She is three times as large as that magnificent Donald McKay clipper, the Sovereign of the Seas, and almost twice as large as McKay's masterpiece, the Great Republic. until now the greatest merchantman whose keel ever clove Boston Bay.

"Moreover, the Lawson is a steel ship, the first steel vessel that has been built in Massachusetts for ocean trade She is the product of Massachusetts enterprise, the first contribution to the American merchant fleet from a new yard that is destined to win back our ancient port its old-time glory. The fortunate spectators of the launch today will see alongside the huge schooner the rising frames of two gigantic 15,000-ton steel battleships for the United States Navy, and on the other side the completed hull of a 3600-ton cruiser."

This splendid industrial establishment which has grown up like magic in the open fields of Quincy will be a revelation to most of today's visitors, for there the new plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company stands, as our own and foreign experts have pronounced it, the most thoroughly modern and efficient shipyard in America, and perhaps in all the world.

NOT NEW FOR QUINCY.

A Large Ship Launched as Early as September 1789.

Deacon Thomas Built One as Recently as 1877 at Quincy Point.

The Thomas W. Lawson Launched Today the Largest Sailing Vessel in the World.

Many residents of Quincy will probably be surprised to learn that the building of large ships is not a new industry for the city, because it is 25 years ago that Deacon Thomas launched his last one, a ship of 2,200 tons at Quincy Point. Deacon Thomas built at least 20 ships, 1 brig and 7 schooners at Quincy, and there are several other builders between 1696 and 1880 as will be seen from the chapter on "Ship Building" from Pattee's excellent "History of Quincy" published at the Patriot office, which is reported below:

Ship building was first carried on in Braintree at Ship Cove, Knight's Neck, now called Quincy Neck. The first vessel we find that was built there was the Unity, in 1696, and was constructed for the fishing trade, as most of the ketches were at that period. From that time to this vessels at stated and various periods have been built in this neighborhood, but the greater amount of tonnage has been constructed at Quincy Point. The most noted master ship builders, who have been engaged in this business here, were Mr. Daniel Briggs, Mr. John Souther, James Brothers, Mr. Josselyn, Mr. Peleg F. Jones and Deacon Thomas.

The most noted and largest ship built at this early date, in Massachusetts, was constructed at Germantown. Mr. Eli Hayden was the contractor, and Capt. Wm. Hackett, of Amesbury, was the draughtsman. The master builder was Mr. Daniel Briggs, of the noted Briggs family who were largely engaged in ship building. The family originated in Pembroke, Plymouth County. Daniel and his five brothers were employed in the construction of the old Massachusetts. The building of so large a ship was quite an undertaking at this time, and so great was the novelty, that when the time came for her departure from her blockings and ways, hundreds of people came here from adjacent towns to see her launched. She dipped gracefully into her mother element, amid the exultant congratulations of the assembled multitude, in September, 1789, and the bottle smasher christened her by the name of Massachusetts.

The dimensions of th s ship were as follows, viz.:—Length of keel, 116 feet; length of beam, 36 feet, 10 inches; lower hold, 13 feet, 6 inches; depth of lower deck, five feet, 10 inches; gun deck to upper, 6 feet, 6 inches; gunwale, 1 foot, 6 inches; length of foremast, 81 feet, and 27 inches in diameter; mainmast, 84 feet and 28 inches in diameter; mizzenmast, 70 feet and 20 inches in diameter; foretopmast, 48 feet and 15 1-2 inches in diameter; maintopmast, 50 feet and 15 1-2 inches in diameter; mizzentopmast, 36 feet and 12 inches in diameter; fore yard, 68 feet; main yard, 74 feet; mizzen yard, 62 feet; spritsail yard, 50 feet; foretopsail yard, 48 feet; maintopsail yard, 50 feet; mizzentopsail yard, 37 feet; cross-jack yard, 50 feet.

The Massachusetts was built for Shaw & Randall expressly for the Canton trade, and was pierced or arranged for thirty-six guns, but only carried an armament of twenty six-pounders and other musketry.

Sailors were at that time largely possessed of and influenced by superstitious notions, and Moll. Pitcher of Lynn, a noted fortune teller, so played on their credulity that three crews were shipped before one could be procured to sail in her; as she had prophesied that all who should embark in her would bring up in Davy Jones' locker. This sort of a voyage the credulous seamen desired to steer clear of; hence the trouble of getting a crew to man her.

The great benefit of ventilating ships' holds on long voyages, in this early time of navigation, was not so well known by shipmasters as it has been since. The hatches of the Massachusetts were caulked down and not opened until her arrival at Canton. On opening them, to their surprise, the air was found so impregnated with poisonous gas that a lighted lamp, on being lowered into the hold, was immediately extinguished, and the four or five hundred barrels of beef stored there was found to be nearly boiled and ready for consumption. The voyage of the Massachusetts not being financially successful, she was sold to the Danish East India Company, at Canton, for $65,000, and Mr. Delano her second officer, relates that he "hauled down her colors, for the Danes to raise theirs."

Job Prince, Esq., was commander of the Massachusetts on her first voyage, with the following officers and crew:—Four mates, one purser, one surgeon, three midshipmen, five carpenters, three boatswains, one gunner, two stewards, one cooper, four quartermasters, one servant of the owner, two cooks and forty-two seamen; making a total of seventy besides the captain.

While in the port of Canton she was visited by the naval officers of England, France and Holland, and by them much admired for her naval architecture.

This account of the old Massachusetts is compiled from Capt. Amasa Delano's Voyages.

Mr. John Souther came to Quincy in 1815, and commenced ship building. He established his yard at what is called Souther's wharf, on Town River bay, where he for years successfully, carried on business. The next shipwright of any note was Mr. Nathan Josselyn, who had learned his trade of Mr. Souther. Mr. Josselyn's yard was located a short distance above the Point bridge. Mr. Peleg F. Jones also carried on the business of ship building at the Point. Small crafts were occasionally built in this locality until Mr. Thomas, of Rockland, Maine, came to the Point and began the construction of vessels there in 1854.

During the twenty-four years Mr. Thomas has been engaged in the shipwright business at the Point, he has built nineteen fine large ships, some of which has not been surpassed in making rapid voyages; he has also constructed one brig and six schooners. Their tonnage ranged from two hundred and twenty-five to two thousand two hundred, making in the aggregate about thirty-five thousand tons.

The following are the names of the vessels built at Quincy Point by Deacon Thomas:—

Ships,—King Philip, Shakespeare, Magdalen, Athena, Gerbain, Logan, Upton, E. H. Taylor, Maritana, Dexter, C. Lulin, Mauran, George Griswold, Belle Creole, Imperial, Northern Light, Triumphant, America and Red Cloud.

Brig,—J. L. Bowen.

Schooners,—D. H. Bills, J. L. Newton, Nellie Brown, Addie Walton, Angie Amesbury, Lucy D. and Montana.

In 1877, Mr. Thomas, at the ripe old age of eighty-two, modeled and built a ship of twenty-two hundred tons, which is a remarkable instance of vitality and energy, considering the age of this gentleman. Mr. Thomas' yard is located on Granite wharf

While all of the above ships were of wood, the seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson, launched at Quincy today, is of steel and the largest sailing vessel in the world. She is also the only seven-master. The keel was laid last November and the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. have done a quick job. She will be fitted out at the Fore River dock and will probably go into commission in about six weeks. The finished cost will be $250,000.

The christening will be by Miss Helen Watson, the daughter of the president of the Fore River Company.

PORTO RICO'S PROGRESS

Traveler Tells of the Effect of American Influence.

SHOE SHINING ON THE ISLAND.

How a Yankee Bootblack Founded a New Industry—Education Very Popular, and the Natives Are Eager to Learn English—Automobile Line Established—Many Good Roads Being Built.

"The American occupation of Porto Rico has resulted in the introduction of one Anglo-Saxon institution among the Latin peoples of the West Indies that has already become fast and permanent," said Dr. J. W. Fewkes of the bureau of ethnology, who recently returned from an archæological tour of that island, in the course of which he was afforded unusual opportunities for viewing the life and customs of the islanders tempered by American influences, says the Washington Post. Continuing, he said:

"The first American troops that landed on the island were accompanied by a colored bootblack, a boy about twelve or fourteen years of age from New York, who drove a thriving business shining the shoes of the officers. The Porto Ricans were strangers to such an institution, but being of an imitative turn were not long in adopting what to them seemed worth copying. Following on the heels of the army came other Americans, so that the little bootblack from New York soon had more business than he could attend to. But this, however, did not last very long, and in less than two months after his arrival he experienced very lively competition from the youngsters of San Juan, who, watching his movements, straightaway provided themselves with boxes, brushes and blacking and, learning the word 'Shine,' were ready to black shoes after the most approved American fashion.

"Today every city and town in Porto Rico is full of little bootblacks, for the natives, having noticed that properly polished shoes constituted part of the makeup of well dressed Americans and anxious not to be outdone in the matter of style, adopted the custom of keeping their shoes shined.

"The American occupation and influence is being felt in other ways throughout the island and is more especially noticeable in the schools. The people are anxious to learn, and education is looking up all over the island. During my sojourn among these people I visited a country school one day where a teacher, a bright young Porto Rican, called one of his pupils, a little boy ten years of age, to the blackboard and directed him to draw a map of the state of Pennsylvania. The little fellow executed the map as well if not better than I could have done myself, putting in the rivers and cities, the names of which he wrote out in Spanish. Another little fellow drew a map of Connecticut, and I am free to confess that I never in my life saw a brighter class in geography.

"Another thing I noticed is that everybody on the island is anxious to learn English, which is coming into use more and more every day. It is now being taught in all the schools, and the generation now growing up will be able to speak and read the language as well as their native Spanish."

Porto Rico has a strong disposition to devote itself to practical matters, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. An automobile line for the benefit of tourists is making regular trips across the island from San Juan to Ponce. A plan is under consideration to place powerful automobiles, drawing trailers, on the same road for freight purposes. Many fine roads are under construction in the island, and the slow bull carts hitherto used to carry freight will soon disappear.

PLAN OF NEW WARSHIPS.

Will Have Unusually Thick Armor and Strong Batteries.

The navy department at Washington has its plans practically complete for the four big warships just authorized by the new law and which will bear the names of Louisiana, Connecticut, Tennessee and Washington. The distinctive features of the new ships, says the New York Press, are the strength and the arrangement of their batteries and greater thickness in armor.

The battleships are to have a displacement of 16,000 tons and will be built for a speed of eighteen knots. Their batteries will consist of four 12 inch guns, eight 8 inch guns, twelve 7 inch and twenty 3 inch guns and a large number of smaller weapons scattered over the ship.

The armored cruisers are to have a displacement of 14,500 tons and a speed of twenty-two knots. Their batteries will consist of four 10 inch guns, sixteen 6 inch and twenty-two 3 inch guns and a large number of smaller ones.

Formosa Cuts the Pigtail.

The people of Formosa are beginning to cut their hair, says the Japan Weekly Mail. That sounds like an idle announcement, but it means a great deal. It means final abandonment of the life of an outlaw. From many districts news of the removal of the pigtail is announced, and the general belief is that the change has been brought about by the extensive operations undertaken against the rebels. The people of Formosa have been wearing the pigtail for 300 years.

Granite Cutters' Strike.

A strike of the granite cutters employed in preparing the stone for the new dry dock at the Charlestown Navy Yard has entirely completed the practical shut down of work on that improvement. The men informed the representative of the contractors, O'Brien and Sheehan, yesterday morning that they desired to work 9 hours instead of 10 for a day's pay of $3. Only 17 of them are in the strike, by which under ordinary circumstances the firm would not be hindered to any great extent.—Journal.

A Bad Scare.

One of the painters at work remodelling City Hall got a bad scare this morning, and for a few minutes he thought he was done for. The man was in the basement when he saw a pitcher which Inspector Lennon of the Board of Health had just filled with formaldehyde, a liquid used in disinfecting. The man thinking it was water and being thirsty he lifted the pitcher and swallowed two mouthfuls. It almost took his breath away and he quickly realized something was wrong. Fellow employes rushed him to the office of Dr. Hallowell who administered an emetic which fixed him all right.

ROOSEVELT AT HIS HOME

How the President Spent First Day of His Vacation.

THROWN IN A WRESTLING BOUT.

Kermit Tackled His Father at Jiu-Jitsu on Front Lawn at Sagamore Hill and Put Him on His Back. Executive Attended Church, Discussed Bait For Mackerel With Village Boy and Scrambled With Archie For Coin Dropped on Floor.

President Roosevelt came out second best the other afternoon in a wrestling bout with his young son Kermit. The affair took place on the lawn in front of the president's summer home at Sagamore Hill, near Oyster Bay, says the New York World. The president and Mrs. Roosevelt had just returned from a stroll about the estate with their children and a few friends. The exercise had not been strenuous enough to suit the president, and he proposed a little jiu-jitsu, the Japanese wrestling system which he has been learning.

Kermit essayed to tackle him. Father and son were soon at it, straining each other's wrists in the effort to gain a fall. Suddenly Kermit twisted like a snake. Backward went the president, truly and cleanly thrown. Kermit plumped down on top of him, dragged down by the weight of his father.

The president is like a boy out of school. He is having a barrel of fun every minute. He gave two hours for church, but the rest of the day he was out in the open when he wasn't at table, looking over his beautiful place of eighty-five acres, seeing the new chickens, petting the horses, romping with the dogs, strolling in the woods, inspecting the flowers and the trees and getting all the amusement he could out of the dull, bleak day.

He was up early. There was a quiet family breakfast with no guest save one, who is the center of village gossip—Lieutenant Robert Ferguson of the rough riders. The lieutenant is a tall, rawboned westerner, who fought at San Juan in a way to earn the praise and admiration of his commanding officer, Colonel Roosevelt. Now he has a place in the real estate office of Douglas Robinson, the president's brother-in-law, in this city. He was the first person to be invited to visit the president's summer home.

The Roosevelts attended Christ Episcopal church in the morning. They arrived in two modest traps, driving in from Sagamore Hill to Oyster Bay. The president came first, with Miss Carow, his sister-in-law; Lieutenant Ferguson, and Archie. They were ahead of time, and Mrs. Roosevelt was ten minutes behind them. Secret service men stood at a respectful distance, but their job was a sinecure.

The president was in fine humor. He wore a plain black cutaway quite guiltless of the tailor's goose, a white waistcoat, gray trousers, a pearl gray tie and his spreading panama. "Delighted!" he cried when half a dozen villagers clustered about him. There was a little reception in the churchyard. One youngster sidled up and dropped his hat in his excitement.

"Why, good morning, son!" laughed the president, stretching out his hand.

In his delight the youngster forgot all about his fidgets. His face was beaming.

"What's your name?" queried the president.

"I'm Harold C. Mulford," spoke up the boy, "and I'm five years old."

"Where do you live?"

"I live in Austice street, and I've come here because I never saw a live president before."

In a twinkling they were friends. They chatted five minutes about the best bait for young mackerel.

"I'll tell the fellers all about it!" the boy shouted when it was time to go.

Just then a smart trap drove up, and the president was all smiles. In it were Mrs. John F. Weekes and her son, Arthur. "Good morning, good morning!" shouted the president, cutting down the steps like a boy. "So glad, so glad to see you again." He helped Mrs. Weekes out with a merry flow of chatter. Just then came Mrs. Roosevelt in a one horse buckboard, with little Ethel and Kermit. She was looking a bit pale and thin after her recent illness. The president jumped down the steps to help her out, and then the whole party went into the church. They took three pews in the modest little house of worship, for soon along came young Teddy with his two cousins, George and Emlen Roosevelt, sons of J. West Roosevelt, all in blue coats, white duck trousers and straw hats.

The president's family took the side aisle. Mrs. Roosevelt, with little Ethel and Kermit, went near the front. The president, with Lieutenant Ferguson, Archie and Miss Carow, sat almost in the rear. The three boys took a pew behind Mrs. Roosevelt.

There was nothing in the service to indicate that the chief executive of the United States was a worshiper except that when the usual prayer for the "president of the United States and all others in authority" was spoken by the rector, the Rev. H. H. Washburn, all the little Roosevelts spoke up a very loud "Amen."

When it came time to pass the plate, the president handed Archie a quarter. He disdained it, whispering, "I've got money of my own." But he dropped it on the floor, and there was a quiet scramble for the coin, in which the president and his boy joined. It was finally rescued just in time. Mr. Roosevelt dropped in a five dollar bill, Archie put in his 10 cents, and little Kermit put in $1. The family didn't stay for the communion service.

Those of the congregation—and the church wasn't crowded by any means—who left then remained in their pews to allow the president and Mrs. Roosevelt to pass out first. But the boys didn't stand on ceremony. Headed by young Teddy, they were the first outside. It began to rain, and the president ran down the path, jumped down the flight of steps to the road, beckoned to his coachman and bundled the youngsters and Mrs. Roosevelt into their trap quicker than it takes to tell it.

"Don't stop," he cried. "Pop in now or you'll get as wet as we did yesterday."

He waited for the second trap and jumped in with Lieutenant Ferguson. Outside the gate were two big farm wagons loaded with country girls. They waved their handkerchiefs strenuously and got bow after bow from the president. The rain stopped as quickly as it came.

The president dined with his family and told funny stories. Later he chatted with the newspaper men.

"There's one man here I rejoice to see," he laughed. "I've known him since I was a boy. He has just one thing to say to me, and that's 'Teddy, how's your woman?' He said it today, as usual.

"This place makes me feel young, as it always has. It's out in the country and a bit primitive perhaps, but I love it all the more."

Oyster Bay is putting on airs because it is destined to be the center of government for a couple of months. The solitary hotel is jammed. The presidental office will be in a yellow brick building over the Oyster Bay bank. Secretaries Cortelyou and Loeb will have cottages close by.

Mr. Cortelyou when asked about the summer plans said:

"The president has planned to make his brief holiday as restful as possible and to that end will transact in Oyster Bay only the most immediate public business. Everything else will be transmitted to Washington for attention there either by the regular White House force or, in cases where other action is required, by the various departments. This is in accordance with the practice which has been followed successfully during previous summers. The president will not receive delegations and hopes to have all matters intended for him, not of the most pressing importance, submitted by correspondence."

UNIVERSAL FRUIT CONGRESS

Plans For Great Gathering of Orchard Men at St. Louis.

Two of the leading fruit experts of the United States—H. L. Messick of Quincy and A. J. Dunigan of Springfield, Ill.—were at the Southern hotel, in St. Louis, the other day in consultation with orchard men of St. Louis and vicinity. It is proposed to hold an apple congress in St. Louis next December, at which apple growers and dealers from all parts of the world will meet to discuss questions of mutual interest, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. As St. Louis is the center of the greatest apple producing section on the globe it is deemed proper that the apple growers should start the movement for an universal fruit congress. Among those interested in the proposed congress are H. C. Cupp of Fall Creek, Ill., president of the Mississippi Valley Apple Growers' association; C. H. Williamson of Quincy, E. C. Wilson of Hannibal and J. M. Crow of Louisiana, Mo.

Mr. Messick says the greatest apple country in the world is without doubt along the Mississippi and Missouri river bluffs and in northern Arkansas, southwest Missouri, eastern Kansas and other portions of the same states, where there is a rocky foundation and plenty of iron in the soil.

HOT FIGHT WITH A SHARK.

Bather Dived and Grasped the Fish, Thinking It a Dead Body.

A supposed dead man suddenly turned into a hungry eight foot shark and a quiet swim in the ocean changed to a life and death struggle was the experience of Harry M. Speerman, whose left arm was nearly bitten off by the fish, says the New York Times.

Speerman arrived at Atlantic City, N. J., recently and went bathing, swimming to the end of the steeplechase pier, a quarter of a mile from the shore. As he was about to return he saw a short distance away a dark object in the waves coming toward him. He thought it was the body of a man. When it got within reach, he dived after it and seized the tail of a shark.

Speerman lost no time in letting go, but the shark was after him like a flash. It rushed at him and just missed one of his feet. The guards hastened to his rescue, but before they reached Speerman the shark had rushed him again and succeeded in sinking its long teeth in the man's left arm. The life guards harpooned the shark with a boat hook.

Speerman claimed the shark and said he would have it stuffed and shipped to his home.

French Beef For England.

It is reported from Cherbourg that a consignment of French beef was recently dispatched to Southampton for the Smithfield market, says the Pall Mall Gazette. We have borne the inroad of Normandy butter, truffles from Arles, violets from Provence and abuse from Paris. And there are other things—champagne and fashions for instance—which settled experience tells us to be all the better for being ordered from France. But the vaunted roast beef of old England—'tis a bitter blow!

New School Commission.

George I. Aldrich, formerly superintendent of schools in Quincy, has again been honored in educational circles. At the meeting of the executive Council, held Wednesday at the State House, Governor Crane sent in the names of the following to be members of the commission to investigate the methods of supporting the public schools: Horace G. Wadlin of Reading, Frederick G. Pettigrove of Charlestown William E. Hawley of Malden, George I. Aldrich of Newton and Granville T. Fletcher of Northampton.

The act calling for the appointment of such a commission provided that the members thereof should be taken from among those now in the public service. No additional compensation is given because of membership on this board. The commission is to examine into the present methods of supporting the schools, the distribution of the school tax, etc., and report its findings to the next General Court.

Mr. Aldrich was the successor of Colonel Parker as Superintendent of the schools of Quincy, has since been Superintendent of Schools in Newton and Springfield, and is at present Superintendent of the schools of Brookline. He has been a member of the State Board of Education for 12 years, and is now Chairman of the Committee on Finance.

I., in 1804 she recollected many incidents of the war of 1812, especially the invasion of the island by the British.

Pratt—Bishop.

There was a quiet family wedding at No. 135 Federal avenue on Tuesday evening, when Miss Jennie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bishop, and Mr. Burleigh E. Pratt were united in marriage by Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany Congregational church. Mr. Edwin Bishop was best man and Miss Lillian M. Pratt the maid of honor. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Pratt will reside in a new house at 135 Federal avenue. Mr. Pratt is a member of the enterprising grocery firm of L. M. Pratt & Son.

West Quincys vs. Dorchesters.

There is considerble interest among friends of the West Quincy base ball team in the game scheduled to be played on Saturday with the crack Dorchester team on the Huntington Avenue grounds of the Boston American League club. The Dorchesters have been defeated but once in two years, but the West Quincys have a long string of victories, and their courage is good.

The admission to the grounds will be but 25 cents, with grand stand seats for 10 cents extra.

Mrs. Richard Newcomb.

The funeral of Mrs. Richard Newcomb was held at her late residence on Washington street on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Ward of the Universalist church came from Maine, where he is spending his vacation, to offer words of consolation to the children, grand children and others who had assembled to pay their parting farewell to the remains of this aged lady. There were many tokens in way of beautiful flowers. The burial was at Mount Wollaston cemetery.

Unknown Rescued.

The Brockton Enterprise reports a timely rescue at Houghs Neck on Sunday, as follows: Mr. H. A. Edson of Brockton and Mr. Arthur Hibbard of Milton had quite a thrilling adventure at Quincy Bay Sunday, where they rescued a man from probable drowning. The peculiar circumstances of the affair is that they do not know who they rescued, and know nothing of him further than the fact that he was one of a party of four, two men and a boy of the same party having been picked up in the bay by a dory.

Mr. Edson and Mr. Hibbard came along in their boat and found the man lying on top of an overturned boat, but completely exhausted in his struggles to right it. He was so weak that he couldn't grasp an extended boat hook, and they brought him to their boat by fastening the hook to his suspenders and shirt. They landed him at J. L. Harvey's wharf at Houghs Neck, where the party had hired the boat, and left him in proper hands and care.

Mr. Edson summers at Houghs Neck and was out for a Sunday sail when his attention was called to the overturned boat. Had he arrived a few minutes later the man would have been lost.

Died in Scotland.

News comes from Aberdeen, Scotland, of the death on June 24, after a short illness, of Mrs. Aggie Craig.

Mrs. Craig was well known in Quincy, as both she and her husband, Mr. A. M. Craig, were for a number of years residents in this city.

The deceased was a member of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, and at one time held the office of vice president in that body.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian church on Water street, and for a number of years was a leading member of the choir. Later she affiliated with the Universalists in this city, and while in that body was leading contralto in the singing exercises.

She was also while here associated with the temperance organizations, and took an active part in temperance work.

At their meeting Tuesday evening, the 8th inst., the Loyal Ladies voted resolutions of sympathy for the bereaved husband and ordered same to be sent to him in Scotland.

Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. A. Souter, 1 Taber street, of this city, who is twin sister of the deceased, the two being always affectionately attached.

Guess It's Wet.

The new moon is "wet" or "dry," just as one cares to consider it. Some say it is wet because it is tipped up so far it can't hold a drop of water, and others reason that that's why it must remain dry. Take your choice. —Herald.

STEAMER BADLY DAMAGED

The Priscilla Is Rammed by the Powhatan In a Fog

Newport, R. I., July 10.—Stern first, with her head low down in the water and with a great hole in her bow, and one of her crew killed in his berth, the Fall River line steamer Priscilla was dragged to her berth here by the steamer Puritan, of the same line. Priscilla had been in collision with steamer Powhatan, in Narragansett bay, off Point Judith, and for six hours had waited for help to come. At last the Puritan had heard signals of distress and had gone to the scene of her sister ship.

The Priscilla was bound for New York. She had left here a trifle late, and put out into a dense fog. After an hour's run, she was struck on the port bow by the sharp bow of the Powhatan with practically no warning. By jettisoning part of the cargo, the vessel was lightened until her pumps kept her afloat. The passengers were not panic-stricken.

The officers of the Priscilla state that the Powhatan had not been regularly sounding her whistles, and that when she did at a late moment, she gave the wrong signal, and then the crash came. The Powhatan men stated that the Priscilla came suddenly out of a bank of fog, and that the ships came together after an exchange of signals before anything could be done to avert a collision.

Providence, July 10.—Steamer Powhatan, bound from Baltimore for this port, arrived here and reported being in collision with the Priscilla. Her bow was badly damaged and a great hole was stove in the port side five feet below the water line. The forward compartment was flooded but no water reached the other bulkheads of the ship and no damage was done to the freight.

Ancient Dam Washed Away

Parras, Mex., July 10.—A cloudburst visited this section yesterday, covering an area of 50 square miles and doing damage to the extent of $400,000. The big Patagolana dam broke and was completely destroyed. The San Lorenzo dam was also washed away. This dam was built of solid masonry about the year 1570, and was in perfect condition until yesterday.

Hayti Situation Not Serious

Washington, July 10.—Commander Rodgers of the gunboat Marietta announces that vessel's departure yesterday from Cape Haytien for Pont de Paix, where American interests are said to be somewhat threatened as a result of the internal disturbances in Hayti. The situation in the island is not regarded here as serious at the present time.

Many Deaths From Heat

New York, July 10.—The police records up to 9 p. m. last night showed that seven people had been killed and 11 prostrated by the heat in Manhattan yesterday. In Brooklyn two deaths and five prostrations were reported.

Twelve Killed by Earthquake

London, July 10.—A dispatch from Salonica says the recent earthquakes in that district totally destroyed the village of Guvesne, eight miles distant, and that 12 persons were killed.

Big Fire In Maine Town

Turner, Me., July 10.—Hotel Maplewood, the Gross House, a dwelling and Staples' box factory were destroyed by fire last night. The roof was burned off the Methodist church and Roberts' hall also caught fire, but was saved. The fire caught in the hotel stable. The loss is about $8000.

NO DISORDER IN CUBA

All Classes Intend to Uphold President Palma

DISCONTENT OF NEGROES

Will Not Go to the Extent of Making Trouble—Hopes of Tiding Over Period of Suffering Until Reciprocity Legislation Is Successful

Washington, July 10.—Minister Quesada of Cuba, in an interview on conditions in the island yesterday said: "Not only is the island tranquil from one end to the other, but the people are determined to continue quiet, no matter how much their suffering, because they know that internal disorder means the sacrifice of Cuban independence. I am not speaking from mere conjecture, I know that all the prominent generals in every section of the island have communicated to President Palma their purpose to uphold his administration. The governors of all the provinces have reported to President Palma that their localities are free from disorder."

Asked regarding the negroes he said: "There has been some discontent among the colored people, because they had not been given any offices, and when President Palma came into office they held meetings and requested that they be given some of the places. But even when they held these meetings and passed their resolutions, their leaders at the same time declared in unequivocal language that they did not propose to make any trouble. On the contrary, they asserted positively their intention of preserving good order and peace in the island. There is no fear of any trouble from the colored citizens of the islands."

"Is the commercial condition of the island satisfactory?" he was asked.

"There is naturally a pessimistic feeling in the islands," was the reply, "because of the failure of reciprocity legislation. Believing, however, that reciprocity is only delayed, and not permanently denied, we hope to successfully tide over the period of suffering which must elapse until reciprocity is granted. If it does not come, and the sugar growers cease producing sugar, the mills will shut down and both the laborers in the fields and in the mills will be out of employment. We will then have a period of distress."

Burglar a Murderer

New York, July 10.—Albert C. Latimer, who was shot, it is supposed, by a burglar at his residence in Brooklyn, died last night. The shooting took place on July 2 at 2 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Latimer died without being able to make a connected statement as to the visit of the burglar. Mrs. Latimer told how her husband grappled with the intruder and was shot. The police have been unable to find any trace of the burglar.

American Oarsman Beaten

Henley, July 10.—In the eighth heat for the diamond sculls, C. S. Titus of New York was a warm favorite, but he was rowed to a standstill, to the surprise of everyone. The American was handicapped, both in his station and the superior weight of his opponent, F. S. Kelley, Balliol college, Oxford, who had 21 pounds advantage. Titus says he intends to leave his boat in London and to row again at Henley next year.

At Summer "White House"

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 10.—President Roosevelt has informally invited the members of his cabinet to visit him at his Sagamore hill home. It is understood that they will avail themselves of the opportunity to come to Oyster Bay at their own and the president's convenience. The president is keeping in close touch with department affairs in Washington.

Earthquakes Produced Geyser

San Francisco, July 10.—Near Salina Cruz, on the Pacific side of the isthmus of Tehuantepec, a giant geyser has broken out as the result of heavy earthquakes occurring in that section since April 18 last. The column of water, rising to a height of about 50 feet, roars and hisses from among the rocks.

Twenty Thousand In Convention

Minneapolis, July 10.—High water mark in the attendance at National Educational association conventions has probably been reached. A conservative estimate places the number of visitors in the city at considerably more than 20,000. Each of the 15 meetings yesterday was well attended.

Telephone Exchange Burned

London, July 10.—The telephone exchange at 58 London Wall was burned last night. The damage is placed at $150,000. The telephonic communication of 3000 subscribers, mostly London stock brokers, has been severed.

A DIPLOMATIC STAGE

Reached In Extradition Proceedings Against Greene and Gaynor

Washington, July 10.—The extradition case of Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor, whose removal from Canada to the state of Georgia for trial on charges of misappropriation and embezzlement of over $2,000,000 in connection with river and harbor improvements at Savannah, Ga., has been sought for some time by the United States, will take on a diplomatic phase in a few days when Secretary Hay communicates to the British government the view of the officials of our department of justice that the Canadian authorities are pursuing an extraordinary and unwarranted course in the case.

The delays and embarrassments in the extradition proceedings resulted in Marion Ervin, special assistant to the attorney general, who has been in active charge of the extradition proceedings of the United States, transmitting to the attorney general a special report on the case in which he calls attention to the fact that the legal representatives of Greene and Gaynor are closely connected through professional and family ties with the Canadian officials to whom this government must look for extradition of the men whose custody it seeks.

Mr. Erwin says that prior to instituting the extradition proceedings he was put on notice that the fugitives had "taken refuge in Quebec for the purpose of resisting extradition and that they had employed as their counsels the firms of lawyers to which belonged the highest officials of the provincial and dominion government." He says that he was thus "precluded by the position taken by them from conferring with the law officers of the crown." He therefore retained two attorneys of the Montreal and Canadian bar, who have ably assisted him.

Bad Smashup of Electrics

Troy, N. Y., July 10.—As the result of a head-on collision between two cars on the Hudson Valley electric railroad at Caldwell one person was killed and at least 16 others injured. The cars met between two switches at a point where both were running down grade. The collision was terrific in its force. Both cars were wrecked. Mrs. Stockwell died within a short time after being removed from the wreck. She was riding in the front of the car. Motorman Viell was buried in the wreck. The cause of the accident has not been definitely learned.

Sequel to Saloon Row

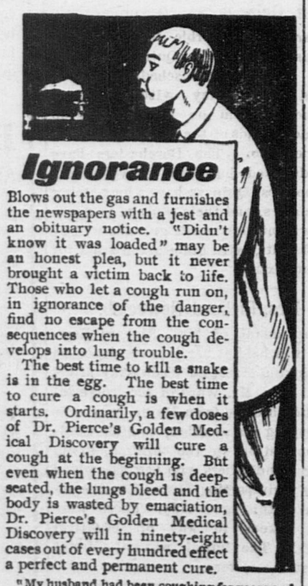

Boston, July 10.—William Lahey was arraigned yesterday, charged with the murdr of Patrick Sullivan on July 2. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. Sullivan was struck on the jaw by Lahey in a saloon. He fell to the floor and never regained consciousness. Medical Examiner Draper's autopsy report stated that Lahey died from heart disease. Judge Parmenter continued the case to have Dr. Draper give personal testimony.

He Fought With Grant

Philadelphia, July 10.—Information was received here yesterday of the death in Pernumbuco, Brazil, of Major Edwin Stevens, who was appointed consul to Ning Po, China, by President Garfield. Major Stevens was also appointed consul to Pernumbuco by President Harrison and remained there after his term of office had expired. He served through the war of the rebellion and was a major on General Grant's staff.

Miners Returning to Work

Roanoke, Va., July 10.—Those interested in the coal fields claim that the strike is virtually a thing of the past. Seven carloads of miners from east Virginia and North Carolina arrived in the fields yesterday and immediately went to work, many of them being old miners returning. The labor leaders assert, on the other hand, that the critical stage has not arrived yet.

Ignorance

Blows out the gas and furnishes the newspapers with a jest and an obituary notice. "Didn't know it was loaded" may be an honest plea, but it never brought a victim back to life. Those who let a cough run on, in ignorance of the danger, find no escape from the consequences when the cough develops into lung trouble.

The best time to kill a snake is in the egg. The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated, the lungs bleed and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred effect a perfect and permanent cure.

"My husband had been coughing for years and people frankly told me that he would go into consumption," writes Mrs. John Shireman, of No. 265 25th Place, Chicago, Ill. "He had such terrible coughing spells we not only grew much alarmed but looked for the bursting of a blood-vessel or a hemorrhage at most any time. After three days' coughing he was too weak to cross the room. The doctor did him no good. I stated the case to a druggist, who handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. My husbands recovery was remarkable. In three days after he began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery he was up and around, and in two more days he went to work. Two bottles cured him."

PINFEATHERS.

Whole corn is the best grain to give at night.

Sweet milk is relished by young chickens and is good for them, but it should not take the place of water.

Too many roosters with the hens will usually result in a large number of unfertile eggs and weakened chickens.

If the hens are allowed to make nests in the stables, they may not only create filth therein, but will also carry lice in with them.

If a fowl seems droopy or stands off by itself all drawn up in a bunch and yet eats when food is given it, examine closely for vermin.

Fresh earth in the hennery for scratching and dusting is indispensable. It will cleanse the feathers and skin of impurities and lice.

Young pullets hatched late will not lay in winter if they do not mature by November, but will begin to lay early in the spring if fed through the winter.

NO VISIBLE ENTHUSIASM

Over Prince of Siam's Coming Visit to America

WOULD COST ABOUT $50,000

For Three Days' Entertainment of the Prince and His Retinue, Who Will Travel In Oriental Splendor and Want Everything First Class

Washington, July 11.—There seems to be no burning desire to entertain the Crown Prince of Siam during his tour of the United States in September. Only one request for information concerning his plans has been received at the state department. That came from the St. Louis fair people, and was so worded that it could not be construed as even a tentative invitation for the prince and his party to visit the exposition city.

When Prince Henry came to Washington in February the state department and the German embassy were flooded with invitations from Maine to Mexico, urging that his itinerary be so arranged that the applicants might have the honor of entertaining him. When the Rochambeau party came from France there was the same demand from cities for the honor of a visit from the distinguished Frenchmen, but there is an utter lack of enthusiasm over the coming of the Prince of Siam.

The meagre information which has been received here indicates that the prince will travel with characteristic Oriental splendor, having a retinue of a hundred persons, many of them connected with the royal household and all entitled to a share in the courtesies. A member of the diplomatic corps, versed in such things, has made an informal estimate that it would cost at least $50,000 to entertain the prince and his party for three days. It is explained that the prince would not be satisfied with anything second rate, and that there would have to be great ostentations to attract his attention.

This estimate of the expense account has rather dampened the enthusiasm of the St. Louis fair officers, and the indications are that if the prince goes there he will do so on his own account. No other city in the country has sent any intimation of a desire to draw on its entertainment fund to cement friendly relations with Siam.

The prince will not be the guest of the nation when he visits Washington. The state department, from funds at its disposal, will make arrangements for his proper reception, but as the resolution introduced by Senator Frye inviting the prince to come as the guest of the government failed of passage, there will be no elaborate display in his honor. He will reach the United States about September and if he likes the country his father, the king, will, it is understood, come over next year.

No Fun For Yachtsmen

Newport, R. I., July 11.—Light, changeable winds, and a long ocean roll, together with frequent rain squalls, made the first regatta of the New York Yacht club series off this port dull and uninteresting, giving the 18 yachts that started rather poor sport. The race would not have been finished had not the wind shifted, so that the yachts, after a run down to the first mark before it, had it also free coming home.

Murder Indirectly Due to Strike

Chicago, July 11.—James Landers, a freight handler, announced that he intended to return to work and a group of freight handlers to whom he made the declaration began to abuse him. Afterward he was found in a hallway with his throat cut. The police have arrested Daniel Grogan, another freight handler, whom they suspect.

To Remove Marine Obstruction

Washington, July 11.—The Massachusetts Contracting company of Boston has been awarded a contract to remove about 350 feet of Henderson's Point in Portsmouth harbor, N. H., at their bid of $749,000. Henderson's Joint has been condemned as a menace and obstruction to navigation.

DARED NOT DISOBEY

Johnson Family Supplied Tracy With Arms, Ammunition and Provisions

Kent, Wash., July 11.—Harry Tracy, the Oregon convict, was at the home of E. M. Johnson, two miles southeast of this place, Wednesday night. When he left the house he was armed with a new revolver and his Winchester, and had a plentiful supply of both ammunition and provisions.

Tracy sent Johnson to Tacoma to purchase the revolver and ammunition. He threatened to exterminate Johnson's family on the least sign of treachery. The murderer seemed fagged out. While at the house he spent nearly all the time watching for his pursuers. He left the house after dark, taking Johnson's horse.

Not only did Tracy force Johnson to buy the revolver, but he made him borrow the necessary money in Kent. Johnson went to Tacoma and purchased the weapon without sounding any kind of a warning to the authorities. He was badly frightened.

Tracy arrived at the home of Johnson at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning and at the point of a revolver forced Johnson to cook him a breakfast. After finishing the meal he told Johnson to go to Tacoma and purchase two 45-calibre Colt's revolvers and 100 rounds of cartridges, with the threat that if he gave information to the authorities of that place he would murder the entire family. Johnson left Kent on the 7 o'clock train, returning at 4 o'clock.

Upon the return of Johnson from Tacoma Tracy ordered Mrs. Johnson to cook him enough provisions to last a week. She boiled two dozen eggs, fried bacon and gave him a large supply of sugar and flour. Tracy compelled the members of the family to remain on the premises until the return of Johnson from Tacoma.

End of Paterson Strike

Paterson, N. J., July 11.—The striking dyers' helpers have deposed their leader, McGrath, and made a general break for the dyeshops, where many were taken back to work and many more were turned away, as the bosses were not ready to take on all the men who applied. This is the end of the most turbulent strike that Paterson has ever known.

SARANAC MILLS START UP

Seventy-Two Strike-Breaking Weavers Are Put to Work

Waterford, R. I., July 11.—Seventy-two strike breakers from Providence, Paterson and Union Hill, N. J., under escort of 31 deputy sheriffs, arrived here late yesterday afternoon and entered the Saranac mills of the American Woolen company. The new help, all of whom are experienced, were sent here to take the places of the native help, who have been on strike for the past four months.

There was no show of violence against the new arrivals aside from some shouting by the strikers who watched the procession, guarded by the deputies, march through the town to the mill property.

Seventeen native weavers returned to work yesterday, after having been idle 10 days, but the 150 others, who have been out since last March, paid no attention to the call for weavers issued by Agent Merrill. He said that he had no assurance as to how many more of the native weavers would come in.

The deputy sheriffs were sent here by the American Woolen company to protect its employes and property.

Waterford is in the town of North Smithfield, and is practically without police protection except what the state is able to render.

The weaving department of the mills will be put into operation today and it is expected that another deputation of men will soon arrive so that the entire loom capacity of the plant may be put into operation.

MINE DISASTER AT JOHNSTOWN.

Hundreds Killed by an Explosion--Gases Baffle Attempts at Rescue.

Johnstown, Pa., July 11.—Johnstown has again been visited by an appalling disaster. It is only less frightful than the awful calamity of May 31, 1889, in cost of life, but in its terrible consequences it has brought the shadow of sorrow in hundreds of homes made desolate by a mine explosion which took place in the Cambria Steel company's rolling mill mine, under Westmont hill, at 12:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

How many are dead it may take several days to fully determine, but that is is a long, shocking list is certain. It may reach 200 or more men. It was nearly an hour after the explosion before any general knowledge of what happened got abroad. Men who came from the mines, escaping with their lives, told the terrible news and soon it spread like wildfire all over the city. In scores of homes there was the most pathetic scenes. Mothers, wives, daughters sons and relatives were frantic with grief. Hundreds rushed to the point and awaited news that did not come from the illfated mine.

At the opening across the river from the point, the Cambria Iron company police, with several assistants, stood guard, permitting no one to enter the mine, from which noxious gases were coming. It was nearly 4 o'clock when all hope of sending rescue parties from the Westmont opening was abandoned. Two men who had escaped from the mine—Richard Bennett and John Meyers—went back two miles to see what assistance could be rendered, but the frightful damp drove them back and they fell prostrate when they finally, after a desperate struggle, reached the outside. Two doctors gave the men assistance and after working with them half an hour, restored them.

Their story of the situation in the mine made it clear that the rescue work could not proceed from the Westmont opening and then hasty preparations were made to begin that sad mission at the Mill creek entrance.

Soon after the news of the explosion reached the Cambria officials, Mining Engineer Marshall G. Moore and one of his assistants, A. G. Prosser, made an attempt to enter the mine. They were followed by Mine Superintendent George T. Robinson, but the deadly gases stopped their progress and they were compelled to return to the surface.

Mine Foreman Harry Rodgers, his assistant, William Blanch, and fire bosses John Whitney, John Retallick and John Thomas were overcome by the gases and it is feared they perished in an heroic effort to rescue the miners. A son of Harry Rodgers then tried to reach his father, but he was quickly overcome by the deadly gas and was carried out unconscious.

William Stibich spent several hours at the Mill creek opening. He said that he believed as many as 450 men were still in the mine. In his opinion, from all he could glean, not to exceed 150 men had come out.

At 11:20 the first four victims were brought to the surface from the Klondike section. They were William Robertson, who was unconscious when found; John Retallic, alive and in pretty good shape, and two unknown Slavs, both alive, but unconscious. Dr. Lowman, who came up with the men, said he passed 25 dead bodies, some of them in sitting postures.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mayor Pendry stated that General Manager Price told him the number of bodies in sight at 1 o'clock was 65.

When the news of the explosion reached the surface several of the mine officials attempted to enter the mine, but were prevented by deadly gases. The scene of the accident, known as the Klondike, is two miles from the surface, and the work of rescue, which has already commenced, is attended with great difficulty and danger.

About a score of American miners who were at work near the Klondike district noticed the presence of the fire damp in their apartment soon after the explosion occurred and started at once for the main entrance. They were almost overcome by the deadly gas, but reached the outside world in safety.

One of the men who got out safely said it is not known what caused the explosion and that it will probably never be known, as he believed none of the men at work in the Klondike district can be saved. He also said that only a few days ago the officials issued an order to the employes in the mine not to play with the gas and that the very next day a young Hungarian was seen pushing his naked lamp along the roof of the mine in search of it.

Mining Engineer Moore and George T. Robinson, superintendent, are at the head of a mining party from the Franklin slope and Conemaugh mine. They are slowly working their way toward the scene of the explosion, but must fight the deadly gases every step of the way. Canvas screens are being used to wall all the side entrances and rooms, so as to force a direct current of pure air ahead of the rescuers. Engineer Prosser, who, with Mr. Moore, entered the mine at the main opening, came to the surface at Mill Creek and immediately set about securing men and material to aid in the rescue. It will be absolutely impossible to state the loss of life until the rescuers reach the scene of the disaster.

Harry Rodgers and his party were not in the Klondike when the explosion took place, but started down a short time later. Griffith Powell and Thomas Foster, two other fire bosses, carried John Whitney 200 yards in the hope of saving his life, when they were compelled to drop their burden and save themselves.

Several miners have reached the surface who were working near the scene of the explosion. They say that they passed through a portion of the Klondike district and saw the bodies of at least 50 men. The men who came out were foreigners and were in such an excited condition that it was impossible to get a connected story from them. The mine has been open for about 50 years and is producing 3000 tons per day.

At midnight President Stackhouse gave out the following statement:

"The disaster is an awful one and came on us entirely unexpected. The mine had been inspected only three days ago and was pronounced in a satisfactory condition. In the 30 years that the mine has been operated no serious accident has occurred. The cause is yet indefinite, but I believe it was caused by gas escaping from the fifth heading which was closed into the sixth heading.

"The number of casualties is now placed at 125. No list of the names of the dead miners can be given, for the majority of them were foreigners and were known only by check and not by name."

The mine is one of the largest coal mines in the United States, according to the statement of officials. From the entrance in the hill across the river from the point to the one at Mill creek is a distance of 3 3-4 miles.

Good Afternoon.

It was almost as good as a circus Thursday afternoon to stand in City Square and watch the crowds that were constantly arriving from all directions to take in the launching. The street railway had every car in use, but with the ladies day at Houghs Neck in addition to the launching, it was almost impossible to handle the crowds. This was owing largely to the fact that nearly everybody wanted to go at the same time. Cars were run on the Quincy avenue line three and four at a time while on the Quincy Point line as many as fifteen cars all heavily loaded left City Square at 2 o'clock. Also coming from Neponset the cars ran in bunches of half a dozen. Every car was more than loaded, and it is doubtful if the conductors were able to collect more than a third of the fares.

THE LAWSON LAUNCHED.

On Time and Most Successful in Every Way.

A Steel Seven-Master and the Largest Sailing Vessel in the World.

A Crowd Estimated at 20,000 in the Quincy Shipyard and along the Shores of Braintree and Weymouth.

THE "LAWSON" UNDER SAIL.
From a Sketch Made From the Sail Plan.

On time, almost to a second, the world's largest sailing vessel was very successfully launched on Thursday at the Fore River shipyard in this city in the presence of perhaps 20,000 people.

There were many points of vantage besides the shipyard itself where a majority assembled. The steamer Peter B. Bradley was in the river with a large press party and specially invited guests. There were other boats large and small which ventured as near the scene as prudent.

The New Downer Landing Park was the objective point for thousands who obtained an excellent view and were entertained by a band concert. Hundreds gathered on the Quincy Point bridge and on the Quincy Point shore, while thousands were at Haywards grove and along the beautiful shore of Amory estate of Braintree.

At the shipyard some were in waiting when the gates were opened for the public at 1 o'clock, and soon the yard was alive with people. After two o'clock there were constant streams of people arriving at each entrance, and almost as numerous as on Washington street, Boston, on a busy day. The crowd must have been a revelation to Quincy Neck, but it was to everybody as for that. The people came from everywhere, not only from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth, but from Boston and all the suburban cities and from all the South Shore towns to Brockton and beyond.

Among the prominent ones gathered on the raised stand at the bow of the big schooner to witness the christening were: President and Mrs Thomas A. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Wellington Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Elwell, of the Fore River ship and engine company; Naval Constructor R. M. Watt, Lieut. Commander Howard Gage, Lieut. Commander E. E. Wright, Lieut. Washington, Capt. Hovgaard of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Davenport, Charles A. Vialle and Charles W. Tidd, respectively president and director of the bank of the Republic, Boston; James E. Toulmin, president of the national bank of Redemption, Boston; Alfred L. Ripley vice president of the State national bank, Boston; N. W. Lamson, A. W. Longfellow, G. Dexter, G. H. Doty, J. S. Curtis, A. N. Rantoul, Arthur Wainwright, Robert H. Kelly, Alex D. Morgan, all of Boston; C. C. Clapp, the private secretary of Thomas W. Lawson Henry Wilkinson, New York; J. R. Andrews, vice president of the Hyde windlass company of Bath, Me.; C. H. Boynton, Lynn; J. F. Perry, electrical engineer for the builders; J. F. Kemp, the assistant treasurer, and Charles S. Dennis, a director of the Fore River ship and engine company.

A commanding elevation to witness launching was the deck of the nearly completed government cruiser the Des Moines, which was reserved for ticket holders.

THE LAWSON.

The new seven master to be launched had her seven steel lower masts stepped and partly rigged, and was gayly decked with flags, which could be seen for some distance before reaching the works. About 100 people, men and women, were allowed to remain on the deck of the vessel while it was launched, but were reminded that they went at their own risk, and it would be uncertain when they would be taken off.

The big schooner was built with an inclination of 11-16th of an inch to a foot, and the ways were given the same inclination. The ground ways were two feet wide and a foot thick, and extended about 300 feet astern of the schooner on a foundation of piles. The sliding ways were narrower, being 19 inches wide, giving a bearing surface of 300 square feet. As the weight of the vessel was 2500 tons, the pressure was about three tons to the square foot.

The cradle had been removed and the ground ways had been smeared with "launching grease." About 3000 pounds of tallow were spread, covered with soft soap. The tallow was tried out at the yard to make sure that it would have sufficent body to stand the weight.

At 2.15 about 200 men began driving wedges, and removing the keel blocks and shores. At 2.45 the work was progressing rapidly and satisfactorily but was not completed. Unexpectedly, almost, the vessel started and the shout went up, "She's off." Miss Helen Watson, who christened the boat, was taken by surprise, and barely had time to break the bottle of champagne across the prow and to exclaim "I christen thee Thomas W. Lawson." The workmen below scampered away from the vessel, some fearing the schooner was careening, but everything was all right.

The vessel moved slowly and gracefully and did not gather great speed. Amid the din of whistles and shouts the vessel took the water gracefully and went well up the river. In two minutes she was at anchor, two being lowered forward. Those on board reported that there was no tremor or buckling on the slide. Neither did the schooner leak a drop.

After the launching, when an attempt was made to hoist the anchors it was found that the clutch of the windlass was broken, and it was necessary to attach a rope to the chains and cut them loose. Tugs then towed the Lawson into the basin in the creek, which was accomplished about four o'clock.

THE BIGGEST AFLOAT.

The Lawson is the biggest sailing vessel that was ever launched and is the first American built steel schooner. More than that, she is the first seven-masted vessel of any kind ever constructed. The syndicate for which the Fore River Ship and Engine Company built her is headed by Captain Crowley's brother, Captain John G. Crowley, as managing owner, and includes the Boston "copper king," Thomas W. Lawson, after whom the vessel is named. Mr. Lawson's christening gift was the largest set of colors any sailing vessel ever had.

From the tip of her bowsprit to her aftermost point the Thomas W. Lawson measures nearly 500 feet, her overall length being 403 feet, her water line length being 368 feet, her beam 50 feet, and her depth 34 feet five inches. She will draw 26 and a half feet of water when fully loaded. Inside of this enormous hull,

DEFENCE AN ALIBI.

In the Case Against Alleged Dynamiters.

The Government Closes Its Side.

Relatives and Others Testify for Defence.

The cases against Charles Carlson Oscar Johnson and George A. Ryden, the three men who it is alleged blew up the house of George K. Ellis with dynamite the night before the Fourth, came up on continuance in the district court this morning.

Officer John A. McAloon was the first witness. He testified that he visited Carlson's house on the night of July 3 three times with Officer McKay. Saw no one there the first time, but had a talk with Ellis. Saw no one the second time. The third visit was about 2 o'clock A. M. McKay and I drove up a private way from the corner of Curtis and Ryden street. Saw three forms in front of Carlson's house and saw them fire several shots toward Ellis house. Hurried the horse. When they saw us they ran. I chased the tallest man towards Ellis house. I also heard door slam at the Carlson house. In consequence of what was said I went back and found McKay back of Carlson's house.

We then searched the Ryden house and barn and the Johnson house. Witness then described the premises in relation to the range of vision about the Ellis house.

Had been a carpenter 8 or 9 years. The damage to house were: The platform of the veranda had large hole through it. Some of the clapboards were off. The plastering on the inside was bulged in. The top step on the north corner was broken off. The piazza floor was drove up, and glass in door and windows were broken. The underpinning on the side was pushed in.

On our second visit while in Ellis house, I heard a yell and the house was struck by two stones, one on the back side and one on the side next to Whitwell street.

Officer McKay recalled, said he met Ellis the second time on the hill. Thought he was going down hill. Identified the part of stone step brought from Ellis house by him. There were no cartridges in one revolver. The smaller revolver had some empty shells. Found one blank cartridge wick in Carlson's house.

R. J. Teasdale recalled, said he had examined the stone steps and in his opinion the damage was done by dynamite for the reason that the explosive on the front of the house must have been placed on or above the step. Black powder would have blackened the step and would not have broken the stone. I saw no evidence of use of powder. He thought a stick of dynamite would be sufficient to break the stone and do the damage to the house.

Cross examined, witness said a stick of dynamite was eight inches long. The shock four feet away would probably prostrate a man. Under condition at Ellis house would not say how far a man could stand away and not be thrown down. Dynamite shatters stone more than gunpowder. Never sold Carlson fuse or caps before to my recollection. The date he asked me for caps and fuse, I now recall, was June 17.

Redirect: I do not think less that half a stick of dynamite would have caused this damage. I have refreshed my memory from my books, and find June 17 was the day I sold Carlson the caps and fuse.

Neils Nelson testified: First saw Oscar about 1 30. My brother John had a bottle of whiskey. Oscar took two glasses. About 3 o'clock the keg of beer came and Oscar drank a bottle. He then said he felt sick and went to the barn. I saw him dead asleep there several times during the evening. When I came back from being shaved I covered Oscar up with a blanket. Between 1 and 2 o'clock I got him up and he went to bed.

Cross examined: Witness said Carlson came to his house several times during the evening and drank beer. When the officers came the third time I was on Carlson's piazza. I got up and walked across the field where the officer overtook me. Officer McKay told me to go home and I went and staid there. After McKay sent me home I sent Oscar to bed. I went to the barn and waked Oscar up.

Had talk with officers in the barn. Asked them what right they had there. I told the officers Johnson was in the barn. I went to barn but did not see officers until I came back. I was in barn when Officer McKay came from the shed with a lamp. I said I had Johnson up stairs. Was not sure what I told him.

Officer Patrick J. Bradley testified to arresting Carlson. Went to the house with Officer Sandberg. Went in front door. I stood in hall and Mrs. Carlson came to the north door. I found Carlson in room next to hall. I searched the house and cellar. I tried the locked door. Went outside to see if I could see in the window, but windows were locked and curtains drawn. Had conversation with Mrs. Carlson. Went back in house and Officer Sandberg gave me the key to the room. I found Carlson lying down. He said he was reading about it in the papers, and did not see why they should want him.

Edward J. Sandberg testified: Went to the house with Officer Bradley. I went in the back door and Officer Bradley the front door. I got the key of the room from Mrs. Carlson and gave it to Officer Bradley.

FIVE INJURED.

A Derailed Electric Runs into a Caravan.

There was quite a serious accident at the corner of Hancock street and Billings road Wednesday afternoon in which five persons were injured.

The accident was caused by the rear truck of a Nantasket car, which leaves Neponset at 1.20, leaving the main line and taking the track leading around Norfolk Downs.

Just at that moment a large caravan wagon was passing which was struck by the car. John Wilkinson, the driver of the team was thrown off and was severely shaken up. He was removed to the City Hospital.

The car was crowded with people, both running boards being occupied. Those on the running board nearest the team were jammed against the wheels of the wagon.

Patrick Egan of 38 Charles street, Atlantic, had two ribs fractured. He was removed to his home.

James E. Murphy of 218 Neponset avenue was thrown to the ground and had his foot slightly crushed, his left arm bruised and received a cut over the eye. He was also carried home.

Joseph A. Single of 17 Walnut street, Neponset, and Patrick Clifford of 339 Hancock street, were crushed between the car and wagon. Single's left foot was somewhat bruised and Clifford's left knee was bruised. They were removed to their homes.

Serious Runaway.

In the yard of the Fore River works between the machine shop and ship tool house, are three or four large cylinders, about eight feet in diameter. The driveway is near these, and as Dr. W. F. Hathaway and party were driving in on Thursday their horse shied at these cylinders and ran.

Dr. Hathaway was the first to be thrown ont, a little further on his coachman and still further Mrs. Hathaway. The horse took the railway which leads to the wharf, and onlookers expected that he would take the carriage and lady occupant into the water.

At a point where the track is elevated the left forward wheel got caught in a stationary pipe, and the carriage brought up short. Miss Anna Stetson, the lady was thrown down the banking almost into the water, but was the least injured of all the four occupants of the carriage.

The horse freed himself and brought up in the water of the creek on the left. He swam about aimlessly for a while but was guided to the Quincy Point shore opposite. He was exhausted and fell over, but later recovered. One wheel of the carriage was demolished and it was otherwise damaged.

Mrs. Hathaway was the most severely injured, but inquiry this morning disclosed no broken bones. She received a bad cut on the forehead and also bruised, and is confined to her bed. Both Dr. Hathaway and Joseph Norwalk his man are lame and bruised today, while Miss Stetson received scarcely a scratch.

Went Down Twice.

Katherine, the little 10-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Poland of Billings road barely escaped drowning at Wollaston beach, near Stuart's boat house, Wednesday afternoon. She was walking slowly in the water towards the channel and when she reached the sudden slope she slipped and went under having gone beyond her depth. She struggled vigorously but in vain, for she could not reach shore. After she had gone down twice, she was valiantly rescued by "Al Dickey," a prominent member of the Wollaston Yacht club. In a comatose state she reached the landing and soon recovered. This channel at high tide is about seven feet deep and children who cannot swim should keep away from the precipitus stopes, which are so treacherous.

Eat Well if You Would Live Well.

MANY people are discovering that the road to health is by abandoning drugs, and living on Proper Foods; that it is necessary to eat Healthful Food if Good Health is preserved.

Read a Description of What To Eat.

LADIES' DAY, QUINCY YACHT CLUB.

The Sail a Disappointment, But the Lunch, the Concert and Dance Wore Very Enjoyable.

The annual ladies' day observance of the Quincy Yacht club was held Thursday. In a measure the affair was not the success Commodore Sheppard and the club members could wish. This was due to several matters over which they had no control.

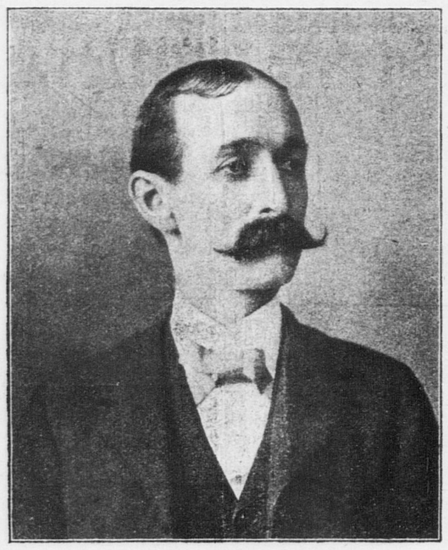

In the first place it rained nearly all the morning and this kept some away. Then in the afternoon the launching at the Fore River attracted others; and, lastly, the wind died down to a dead calm, making it impossible for the fleet to sail over the course.

The preparatory gun was sounded at 2.45 and the penant with the figure one, denoting the course to be sailed was hoisted on the fleet.

Commodore Sheppard and party on board the flagship, "Folly," which was gaily bedecked with flags was moored a short distance from the float. The signal to pass in review was sounded at 3 o'clock, but there was not a breath of air and it took two hours for the fleet to pass in review.

Even then in some cases it was necessary to invoke the aid of launches and oars. No attempt was made to sail over the course and after passing in review the yachts returned to the float and landed their guests.

By this time many of those who took in the launching begun to arrive and by 5.30 there was a large crowd present.

COMMODORE SHEPPARD.

The club was fortunate in their caterers and musicians. Whittemore & Girard served fresh sandwiches, delicious ices and cakes, charlotte russes, salted nuts, coffee, etc. The supply was as bountiful as it was good.

Only through the kind offices of friends could such excellent musical artists as the Braintree Orchestral club of eight pieces have been obtained. Their concert from 5 to 7 was of a high order. The club also furnished music for the dancing from 7 to 10.30 and it was simply entrancing. One or two encores were not enough, but there were three or four for every dance. The hall and verandas were crowded during the evening, which was a delightful one for all.

During the evening the club house was decorated with many colored lanterns.

The yachts and guests to participate were as follows:

Flagship Folly,—Capt. Joel F. Sheppard, 2d Commodore and Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Warren W. THE LAWSON LAUNCHED.

STEPPING THE FIRST SEVENTH MAST,

which has a displacement of 11,000 tons, there is room for 8,100 tons of cargo.

The Lawson's masts are unusual, not only for their number, but for their size and construction. Each is 155 feet high, with an Oregon pine topmast 58 feet long, the lower masts being steel cylinders 32 inches in diameter. The masts alone weigh about 17 tons apiece and their rigging adds almost three tons to each. The 85-foot spike bowsprit is of steel also. Forty-three thousand square feet of canvas will be stretched from these great poles.

To handle such heavy rigging as the seven-master's is practically beyond the power of human muscle and five engines of 25 horse-power each will hoist and lower sails. Besides this, they will do stevedore work when they are not on crew duty and they have been placed near the six big hatchways with that in view. A sixth engine, of 40 horsepower, is to work the capstan, to which are attached two 10,000 pound stockless anchors. The foremost and aftermost engines are in deckhouses with the boilers that supply steam, while the others stand in the open. The steam steering gear is connected with the after boiler, while the forward boiler furnishes power for the electrical plant that will light the vessel. The cabin will be heated by steam and there is a siren whistle for signalling and saluting. A telephone system will connect the wheelhouse with the boiler rooms.

Like her hull and her three decks the Lawson's houses are constructed of steel plates. One is fitted up as a galley, a second is an engine room, another is the main cabin, while the wheelhouse is the fourth. The crew's quarters are in the forecastle. Her steam equipment makes it possible for the seven-master to get along with a crew of 16 men all told, which is about half of what would otherwise have been required.

More than 2000 tons of steel have gone into the construction of this big vessel. Her hull is "joggle-plaited" like a steamship's and she has a cellular double bottom four feet deep which is not only a protection but can be used in carrying something like a thousand tons of water ballast. The double bottom has four compartments, and the schooner, would, it is expected, maintain floatation if two of them were broken into.

The Lawson's keel was laid the first of last November and she will be ready for sea just about nine months from then. Her finished cost will be $250,000. When in commission she will be used in the coal carrying trade between northern and southern ports and may "round the horn" to the Philippine Islands after she is well broken in. She will be taken at once to the Fore River dock for fitting out and will probably go into commission inside of six weeks. Her first trip will be out of Boston, and is likely to take her to Philadelphia on her way south.

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Globe said: "The event was notable, furthermore, because it marked in a material way, in a form visible to the eye, the revival of the shipbuilding industry on the shore of Massachusetts, where the sound of the hammers of the ship carpenters made merry music half a century ago. The captains of the famous old squareriggers which once sailed from the port of Boston, whitening all seas with their canvas, never in their wildest dreams conjured up such a craft as went down the ways today, to be lighted by electricity, to be steered by steam, to be equipped with a telephone system, and possessing an enormous carrying capacity."

The Journal said: "Happy the bride the sun shines on," and if that is so of the bride of a man, why should it not be so of the latest bride of the Sea; of Old Ocean, who has room on his great heaving breast for all the brides to rest, which man is willing to trust to him? So happy was the bridal of the great seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson to the ocean yesterday; for in spite of overhanging clouds in the early forenoon, they were all burned away before the moment of the launching, and the sun poured its fullest blessing on the great vessel, as she stood on the ways waiting the command which should sever her from her cradle and home on the shore of the Fore River; release her from the hands of the Fore River Ship and Engine Works, under whose fostering care she has been growing in strength and beauty each day, and wed her to the centuries-old sea."

The Herald said: "As a spectacular event, from a purely sensational point of view, it lacked interest. The vessel didn't "turn turtle." She didn't stick in the cradle. She didn't injure anybody. She didn't even rush like a streak of wildfire, leaving a cloud of smoke on her greased ways. She simply demonstrated that, although the elementary principles of getting a vessel into the water haven't changed since vessels were first launched, science has so regulated and improved upon these principles that the element of chance is reduced to a minimum. The Lawson did precisely as her builders calculated she would do. She was built with an inclination of eleven-sixteenths of an inch to the foot, and the launching ways were given the same inclination. The weight of the vessel was about 2,500 tons, and the pressure upon the ways was about three tons to the square foot. With these figures in mind, the builders counted on a certain impetus. They had a launching in miniature the day before, approximating the figures given above. The test launching was an entire success. So was the real thing."

From Office Boy to Presidsnt.

George W. Hinkley of Billings street, Atlantic, a man, as quoted in a Boston paper, "of big brain and big heart," was very recently elected president of the Citizens Mutual Insurance company of Boston. Mr. Hinkley began life at the bottom of the ladder, and what he is today he owes to his own vigorous and untiring efforts and his inspired trust and confidence among his fellow men. Mr. Hinckley celebrated his 46 birthday July 4, and it was fitting that this presidential honor should come at such an opportune time. The ability and popularity of the new president are too well known to dwell upon, and what should be voiced vociferously is the good will and pride of all ward six in claiming Mr. Hinkley as a local resident.

Chicago, July 11.—A chance for a settlement of the freight handlers' strike appeared last night, when it was said by a member of the Chicago board of arbitration that he had assurances that the railroads would submit a proposition that will be satisfactory to the men. The roads will not arbitrate, but will post in their freight houses a statement of what they are willing to grant and the prediction is made that the men will find it satisfactory.

WITHDRAWAL OF FRIARS

The Bone of Taft's Contention With the Vatican

ABOUT 500 IN MANILA

Whose Lives Would Be In Jeopardy Should They Return to Their Parishes—Taft's Businesslike Methods Puzzle Rome Church Authorities

Washington, July 11.—A cablegram has been received at the war department from Governor Taft, transmitting the reply of the Vatican to the proposals of the United States government.

In spite of the dispatches from Rome indicating the unwillingness of the Vatican to provide for the withdrawal of the friars, the feeling prevails in administration circles that the American position will yet be accepted. The friars, who are now assembled in Manila to the number of about 500, availed themselves of a section of the treaty with Paris permitting them to take allegiance within one year as Spanish subjects. As such it is somewhat difficult for the United States, with our complete religious toleration, to remove them, but there are practical forces working in that direction. The friars could not go back to their inland parishes without great risk of personal violence; and while our government would be answerable to Spain for any failures to preserve order, this obligation of international law has not, in this country, prevented serious handling of the Italians at New Orleans or of the Chinese on Puget sound. Another influence would doubtless be the desire of the church to retain the friendly feeling of the Filipinos, who are loyal Catholics, while intensely hostile to the friars.

It is said that the church authorities at Rome do not know what to make of Governor Taft's open and businesslike ways. They are used to the methods of European diplomacy, with proposals and counter-proposals, delays and evasions. Governor Taft went over there and announced, as he had in effect done in the United States, what he thought and what he was prepared to give. The Vatican was so unused to a business representative instead of a diplomat that the momentum of its established practice doubtless accounts in part for the delay and the reported difficulties in negotiation.

While the cabled abstract indicates an ostensible refusal to withdraw the friars, only the shadow of the contention is denied, while the substance is granted. Friars who have left their parishes are not to return. As most of the objectionable priests were driven out by the natives, the significance of this clause is readily apparent.

Secretary Root will take a copy of the Vatican's reply to Oyster Bay and submit it to the president before making any definite reply. The secretary will not discuss the subject now further than to say that it is a plain business proposition, which is under negotiation based entirely upon the instructions which were given to Governor Taft before his departure to Rome. In those instructions, regarding the removal of the friars, the secretary said:

"It is not, however, deemed to be for the interests of the people of the Philippine islands that in thus transforming wholly unproductive tracts of land into money capable of productive investment, a fund should thereby be created to be used for the attempted restoration of the friars to the parishes from which they are now separated, with the consequent disturbance of law and order."

This particular feature of the instructions is considered important in view of the differences reported from Rome, and it is understood that this will be kept fully in mind and adhered to in any negotiation that is completed with the Vatican. The removal of the friars is the main object of the negotiations, and it is not believed that the contention of the Vatican that it cannot order the friars away because of the conflict with the Paris treaty is well founded.

What the Vatican Wants

Rome, July 11.—In Vatican circles the fact is commented upon that Washington has exposed itself to the rejection of the principal one of its propositions, namely, the withdrawal of the friars, by not having, prior to undertaking an exchange of notes, initiated pour parlers, through Judge Taft, which would have shown the government the impossibility of the Vatican granting, pure and simple, the withdrawal of the friars from the islands. The Washington government would then have understood the necessity of reaching the same object by asking for the withdrawal of the friars under a different form, namely, the substitution of the friars, for state reasons, by monks of other nationalities or different orders, etc. It is believed that arrangements somewhat on those lines will ultimately be adopted and that the negotiations will be satisfactorily concluded.

Emmanuel Leaves For Russia

Rome, July 11.—King Victor Emmanuel left here yesterday for St. Petersburg, to visit the Czar of Russia. The king will remain in St. Petersburg three days. His visit is in response to a direct invitation from the czar.

Alleged Murder of Long Ago

Norfolk, July 11.—Charles F. Osborne, who was acquitted recently for the murder of his wife, was arrested yesterday on the charge of having murdered a former wife in Stillwater, O. T., several years ago.

How Scissors Are Made.

Though no complexities are involved in the making of scissors or much skill required, yet the process of manufacture is very interesting. They are forged from good bar steel heated to redness, each blade being cut off with sufficient metal to form the shank, or that destined to become the cutting part, and bow, or that which later on is fashioned into the holding portion. For the bow a small hole is punched, and this is afterward expanded to the required size by hammering it on a conical anvil, after which both shank and bow are filed into a more perfect shape and the hole bored in the middle for the rivet. The blades are next ground and the handles filed smooth and burnished with oil and emery, after which the pairs are fitted together and tested as to their easy working.

They are not yet finished, however; they have to undergo hardening and tempering and be again adjusted, after which they are finally put together again and polished for the third time. In comparing the edges of knives and scissors it will be noticed, of course, that the latter are not in any way so sharply ground as the former, and that in cutting scissors crush and bruise more than knives.

Eating Nightingales.

As exemplifying the pitch to which Roman epicureanism was carried and indicative of a truly barbaric nature, a dish consisting of the tongues alone of some thousands of the favorite songsters of the air was requisitioned at immense cost to satisfy the inordinate cravings of one of the emperors. One can hardly avoid the reflection that such a being must have been extremely untuneful. The liver of a capon steeped in milk was thought a great delicacy, and of solid meat pork appears to have been most relished.

The stanch Roman who did not take his pleasure homeopathically reclined during dinner on a luxurious couch, his head resting on his left elbow, supported by cushions. Suetonius draws attention to a superb apartment erected by the extravagant Nero, in which his meals were partaken, constructed like a theater, with shifting scenes changing with every course.

The Lightninglike Loon.

The loon is the quickest living creature. A loon that has had experience can dodge the flash of a gun. You see a loon on a lake, but long before you see him he sees you and has taken a mental inventory of you and your belongings. If you have no gun, you may perhaps approach within 100 yards before he laughs at you with that horrid shriek which gives him his name and disappears under the water, but show a gun and he does not stop to laugh—he goes instanter. When in a sportive mood, he sometimes waits until he sees you about ready to fire, when, at the flash, he dives, and you see the shot spatter the water where he has just gone down.

Diamond Fields of India.

Diamond fields in India were known from the very earliest times. In the sacred books of India eight localities are mentioned as yielding diamonds, and of these three have been identified at the present day—Matanga (Kistna and Godavery), Paunda (Chota Nagpur) and Vena Gunga (Wairaghar). The diamondiferous area of India, so far as is known, is perhaps more extensive than that of the rest of the world, and nine-tenths of the famous jewels are Indian stones.

Cooking Ham.

Ham is frequently too salt to fry without previous preparation. Put the slices in tepid water and let them stand on the back of the range to soak out the salt, not to boil, for about half an hour. Drain dry between towels, then fry in a hot spider.

When a whole ham is to be baked or boiled, let it stand overnight covered with cold water.

The Cheerful Face.

Next to the sunlight of heaven is the cheerful face. Who has not felt its electrifying influence? One glance at this face lifts us out of the mists and shadows into the beautiful, bright and warm within. A host of evil passions may lurk around the door, but they never enter and abide there. The cheerful face will put them to shame and flight.

Elastic Stockings.

Dirt is always unhealthy, so it should not be tolerated even in an elastic stocking, though that is not an article that can be sent to the wash. Clean it by rubbing it with a piece of flannel dipped in flour, heated as much as possible in the oven without browning it. Shake out the flour and repeat the process if necessary.

His Calamity.

Chappie—I knelt befoah her and asked her to be my wife.
Chollie—And she wejected you?
Chappie—Ya-as.
Chollie—That was wough.
Chappie—Ya-as. I got my twousahs bagged at the knees for nothing, bah Jove!

Then She Kissed Him.

"You have not kissed me," she pouted, "for fifteen minutes."

"I know it," he said. "I have a very sensitive tooth, which is liable to ache if I do."

"What do you mean, sir?"

"Why, you are so sweet, you know!"

Where It Belongs.

"Why do they put the nation's flag on top of the schoolhouse?" asked the teacher who wanted to instill a patriotic lesson.

"Please, ma'am," answered the head boy, "it's because the pole is there."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CROWN POINTS.

Eleven hundred pounds is the value of the Persian order which has been conferred on the kaiser by the shah.

While on a pleasure trip near Bonn with some fellow students recently the German crown prince insisted on traveling fourth class by rail because the carriages were better ventilated.

The name of the Austrian emperor recently figured in the will of one of his poor but loyal subjects. The sum left to his majesty amounted to 8 shillings, and the emperor accepted it as an acknowledgment of a singular display of loyalty.

The new ruler of Afghanistan, who recently came to the throne, has become a much married man in a short time. The ameer has married five wives during the last twenty-five days. The wives are all the daughters of governors or great chiefs.

THE COOKBOOK.

Always salt any article where lard is used instead of butter.

When you are softening butter to make cake, never allow it to melt. If you do, the cake will be heavy.

Always keep olive oil in the refrigerator and tightly corked. Never put more oil in the table cruet than two days' supply. It will grow rancid.

For maitre d'hotel sauce mix two tablespoonfuls of butter, one of chopped parsley, one of lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Work these ingredients together thoroughly and serve with fish or steak.

Crusts and crumbs of bread left over from the table should be dried, put aside for rolling and dipping or to be used in scalloped dishes or mixed with a few sliced apples and baked and served as a dinner dessert.

A red sun rising at morning
With flame on his burning crest;
A red sun sinking at evening
In the moulton glow of the west;
The air grown languid and drooping
On wings too heavy to fly;
The voice of a drowsy locust
That croons to a drowsy sky,
And cool waves crisping and darkling,
Across the hot sands of July.

CARLSON HELD.

Quincy Court Found Probable Cause to Believe Him Guilty.

Ryden and Johnson Were Both Discharged Because of Alibi.

All Were Arraigned for Dynamiting House of George K. Ellis on Farrell Street.

The arguments in the case of Charles Carlson, who, it is alleged, blew up the house of George K. Ellis, at Quincy, with dynamite the night of July 3, were made before Judge Avery in the district court at Quincy this morning.

The court found probable cause to believe him guilty, and held him in $1,000 for the grand jury.

The complaints against Carlson for assault on Ellis and for malicious mischief were dismissed for want of prosecution.

The cases against Ryden and Johnson were dismissed.

The report in yesterday's Ledger concluded with the testimony of Officer Sandberg. The testimony of the other witnesses examined was as follows:

Axel Peterson said he boarded with Carlson, his step-father. Was at home on evening of July 3. Saw Carlson; he was firing a revolver. Heard conversation between Carlson and Mrs. Ellis who was in her house with blinds down. Heard him say —— —— ——. That was about 7 o'clock. I then went down town and returned after 11 o'clock. Saw Carlson two or three times. This closed the evidence for the government.

THE DEFENCE.

Mrs. Augusta M. Ryden was the first witness for the defence. She had lived at No. 7 Ryden street for 20 years. George Ryden was her son. On July 3 Oscar was at home all the afternoon. A keg of beer came between 4 and 5 o'clock and he went down cellar. He then got sick and went to the stable, and fell asleep in one of the stalls. I saw him there between 7 and 8 o'clock sound asleep. I heard him go to bed after midnight. My son George came home to supper at 6 o'clock. After supper he went to the stable and saw Oscar. He then, about 7 o'clock, went toward Whitwell street. Did not see him again until after midnight.

Anna Ryden, sister of George testified was 14 years of age. First saw Oscar on July 3, between 4 and 5 o'clock when the beer came. I next saw him in the barn asleep, I went out between 6 and 7 o'clock and he was still asleep. Did not see him again until between 1 and 2 o'clock when he came from the barn and went to bed. I saw George at supper and did not see him again until he came home between 1 and 2 o'clock.

Neils Nelson testified: First saw Oscar about 1.30. My brother John had a bottle of whiskey. Oscar took two glasses. About 3 o'clock the keg of beer came and Oscar drank a bottle. He then said he felt sick and went to the barn. I saw him dead asleep there several times during the evening. When I came back from being shaved I covered Oscar up with a blanket. Between 1 and 2 o'clock I got him up and he went to bed.

Cross examined: Witness said Carlson came to his house several times during the evening and drank beer. When the officers came the third time I was on Carlson's piazza. I got up and walked across the field where the officer overtook me. Officer McKay told me to go home and I went and staid there. After McKay sent me home I sent Oscar to bed. I went to the barn and waked Oscar up.

Had talk with officers in the barn. Asked them what right they had there. I told the officers Johnson was in the barn. I went to barn but did not see officers until I came back. I was in barn when Officer McKay came from the shed with a lamp. I said I had Johnson up stairs. Was not sure what I told him.

Oscar Johnson, one of the defendants, testified: On July 3 I had two drinks of whiskey in the afternoon and a little later a bottle of beer. I felt sick and went to the stable and laid down in the stall. The next I remember was between 1 and 2 o'clock when they woke me up and I went to bed.

Andrew Olsen testified: Knew Ryden; saw him on the night of July 3, about 8.45 on the sidewalk in front of the old Court house on Hancock street with Ernest Lawson. I went home about 9 o'clock. I told Mrs. Ellis the next morning that I saw Georgie Ryden the night before.

Mary E. McKay testified: Knew George Ryden; saw him on the evening of July 3; saw Ryden and Ernest Carlson about 8.50 talking with two girls in front of the millinery store in Faxon block. I walked to Brooks & Ames market when the curfew sounded.

A recess was taken at this point until 1.30 P. M., when defence resumed.

The first witness called at the afternoon session was Ella Anderson. Testified: On the night of July 3, saw Geo. Ryden in front of millinery store near the Stone church. Ernest Lawson was with him. Were talking with the two until ten minutes past nine. They left us and went to the railroad station. They said they were going to Boston. Wanted us to go to Wollaston on that train with them.

Fieda Lundblad testified: On night of July 3, was standing near millinery store when Geo. Ryden and Ernest Lawson came along. They said they were going to Boston and wanted us to go to Wollaston with them. I think it was ten minutes of nine when they came along. Staid there until we heard the train and then they ran for the train.

Joseph Bean testified: Lived at 23 Ridgeway lane, Boston. Worked at a palm garden on Fleet street for J. E. Mahoney. Had seen the Ryden and Lawson boys at his place for the past two months. On night of July 3 they came to his place about 9.45, and took seats at a table. I waited upon them, and served two lagers and a sarsaparilla at their table. Did not know that I was to testify until last night.

Howard Crosby said: Saw Ryden the night of July 3, on the 11.28 train from Boston. He slapped me on the shoulder. After we left the train we went to Hartwell's store. I work for Mr. Moorehead. Ryden sat with me all the way out.

Axel J. Piterson recalled by defence testified: Saw Nelson and Oscar Johnson on night of July 3. Saw Johnson come out of barn and go to the house. Saw Nelson at the barn. It was little after 1 o'clock. Saw no police officer at that time.

Cross examined—Saw officer an hour before I saw Johnson come from the barn. I was near the well at back of house when Johnson come from direction of the barn. It was a little after 1 o'clock. I was talking with Ryden and his sister.

Ernest Lawson said: On night of July 3 I came home on 5.28 train. After supper went across field from School street to Ryden's house. It was after 7 o'clock. Was coming up Cranch street met George coming down Whitwell street. He called to me and I walked back and met him. I asked for Oscar and he said he was sick same as he was one time last week. We walked down town. Came down Granite street to Sheppard's coal office to the tool shed. I found I had left my ticket at home and we walked up School street and George heard clock strike 8 o'clock and remarked it to me.

CORONATION DAY NEAR

Will Be Between the Eighth and Twelfth of August

PRUNING OF THE PROGRAM

By Which Pageant Will Be Shorn of Some of Its Intended Magnificence—King Edward to Be Taken Aboard the Royal Yacht Next Week

London, July 12.—It is now considered practically certain that King Edward will be crowned Saturday, Aug. 9. The fixing of such an early date for the coronation is regarded as an additional guarantee of the confidence of the king's physicians of a continuance of his majesty's rapid recuperation.

The text of the official announcement concerning the coronation of King Edward was issued from the earl marshal's office and is as follows:

"The king's medical advisers state that his majesty's progress has been more speedy and less complicated than was at first anticipated. His majesty's excellent constitution has played a conspicuous part in bringing this about.

"If the present rate of progress is maintained and if no complication arises, the king's medical advisers are of the opinion that his majesty would be able to undergo the fatigue of the coronation ceremony on a day between the 8th and the 12th of August. The exact date will shortly be announced. The procession through London, which was to have taken place the day following the coronation, is cancelled."

It is understood that the general outline of the program of the procession to Westminster Abbey, the route to be followed, etc., will not be changed, but the pageant will be shorn of some of its intended magnificence. The details of the program will be settled by the king himself, who will also decide to what extent the actual ceremony is to be curtailed so as to avoid fatigue. The king's physicians advise that the ceremony should not exceed one hour and this could be managed by sacrificing the sermon, the litany, etc.

It is expected that Queen Alexandra and Sir Francis Laking, physician in ordinary to the king, with his nurses, will accompany the king on board the royal yacht, the Victoria and Albert, next Tuesday. All the details of moving the king will be kept secret. Everybody, except the officials concerned, will be excluded from the railroad stations, and every precaution will be taken to prevent public demonstrations. The royal yacht will probably be moored off Cowes, Isle of Wight, until the condition of the king's health and the weather justify a cruise, when the Victoria and Albert may go to Plymouth and lay off the Earl of Mount Edgecumb's estate.

In the absence, on account of his accident, of Joseph Chamberlain, the Earl of Onslow, under secretary for the colonies, presided at the empire coronation banquest which was held last night. The brilliant company of over 600 persons included the colonial premiers, the Indian princes and other distinguished visitors now in London.

Tracy Still at Large

Seattle, Wash., July 12.—Bloodhounds and scores of deputy sheriffs were unable to stir Harry Tracy from concealment in the brush near Covington yesterday. A cordon of experienced marksmen encircled this place and there was no possible avenue of escape for the fugitive without a fight. Hounds were started on the trail and worked in every direction, but without success. Darkness fell yesterday with less encouragement for the hunters than on Wednesday evening.

More Corruption Exposed

Minneapolis, July 12.—Police Captain Fitchette was convicted last night of trafficking in positions on the police force. The specific charge was that he accepted $200 from John Long for procuring the appointment of the latter as a policeman. While the offense does not involve a penitentiary sentence, the conviction is regarded as of great importance in the current municipal corruption exposures, because of the implication of other officials.

Virginia Strike About Ended

Roanoke, July 12.—The officials of the Norfolk and Western Railroad company say that yesterday there were 708 cars of coal loaded in the Pocahontas-Flat Top field. This is very nearly the normal amount mined in the field when there is no strike.

May Explain Polish Policy

Berlin, July 12.—In order to secure Emperor William's safety at the autumn maneuvers 130 men of the Berlin police will be sent to Posen. His majesty is expected to make a speech explaining fully his Polish policy.

SYMPATHETIC SHOPMATES

Contribute Pieces of Their Skin to Build Scalp For an Unfortunate

Fall River, Mass., July 12.—A short time ago Miss Rose Silvia, an employe in Marshall Bros.' hat factory, was caught by her hair in a shafting, while attempting to close a window. The scalp was torn entirely from her head, commencing just above the eyes, taking off the eyebrows, all but a small portion of the left ear, most of the skin of the left cheek and extending back to a point between the shoulder blades.

The scalp was replaced on the girl's head by workmen present at the time of the accident, until the arrival of a physician. It was announced later that it would be absolutely necessary to have new skin grafted upon the affected parts if complete recovery was to be expected.

Word to this effect reached the operatives and yesterday eight of them went to the Union hospital, where Dr. Dolan took from the inside of their thighs 20 pieces of skin, each two inches long by one inch in width.

The work of skin grafting was started at the crown of the girl's head, and many square inches will be required in the operation. Miss Silvia is reported to be resting comfortably, with the chances fairly good for her complete recovery. The result of the skin grafting is being awaited with great interest by physicians and surgeons throughout the city.

Injunction Papers Served

Lawrence, Mass., July 12.—A mass meeting of woolen and worsted weavers here last night was enlivened somewhat by the presence of Deputy Sheriff Abbott and Special Officer O'Brassof. A writ of injunction, issued by Judge Mason of Providence, restraining members of the executive board of the striking weavers from interfering with the business of the American Woolen company, was served by the officers on the speaker, James P. Reid. The chairman of the meeting then requested Abbott and O'Brassof to leave the hall, as their duty had been performed. After a talk between the sheriff and Mr. French, in which the latter emphasized the fact that the meeting was a private one, the officers withdrew. Mr. Reid made no reference to the American Woolen company except so far as to refer to the strike to illustrate the need of organizing.

Still No Trace of Clark

Beverly, Mass., July 12.—Harry C. Clark, the father of the 4-year-old Beverly boy who has now been missing for 25 days, was in the swamp about Chebacco lake all day yesterday with a bloodhound searching for some trace of his lost child, but when evening came the mystery was no nearer solution. The state officers are still working on the case and they appear to be confident of soon finding some tangible evidence to enable them to solve the mystery.

To Have Earnest Campaign

Augusta, Me., July 12.—The Republican state committee met in this city last night and completed arrangements for opening the active campaign in this state on Aug. 18. There will be three weeks of speaking. Chairman Simpson informed the committee that he had received assurances from nine United States senators and six members of the house of representatives that they will speak in Maine during the last two weeks of the campaign.

Teamsters Want Higher Prices

Fall River, Mass., July 12.—The Master Teamsters' association has sent a communication to all contractors employing teams, stating that hereafter $5 a day will be charged for double teams and $3.50 a day for each single team. At the end of next week, if no advance is granted, action will be taken regarding a strike.

Belfast, Me., July 12.—The family of Ora Richards, a farmer about 35 years of age, living in East Belfast, has appealed to the police for protection from him, as he has threatened to kill them and is hiding in the woods, armed. They fear that he has gone insane and will return in the night and attack them.

BASEBALL TALK OF THE MOMENT.

American League Affairs—The White Sox's Showing — As to Ed Delehanty.

Comiskey's White Sox are still in the lead in the American league race, and unless Griffith's illness develops into more serious trouble than latest advices promise the champions have at least a good even chance to become the "three times champions" that were touted by most of the winter critics.

The American league race, notwithstanding the trouble on the Detroit team, the accidents to the Baltimore bunch, the riddling of the Athletics and the corresponding strengthening of the Cleveland babes, now in midseason seems destined to be run pretty near to "form."

Boston Is Chicago's Rival.

Boston looks to be the team which the White Sox will have to beat, with the St. Louis Browns having the next best chance. Philadelphia does not look strong enough to seriously threaten first place since Colonel Rogers and his injunctions got in their work, although the masterly management of Connie Mack has already done wonders with the team, which still has promise of being a first division club.

McGraw's Orioles were put out of the early running by injuries and their tendency toward "umpire baiting," and Cleveland, while now a very strong club, was so nearly left at the post that it is almost a hopeless task for them to make up all their lost ground. Cleveland, while it may never get into first division, is always dangerous, however, and is bound to be a factor in the race all season because it can almost at any time be counted on to turn up and throw down the leaders in any one series.

Detroit has lost a lot of ground because of internal dissension on the team, and Washington, while a hard hitting club, was never generally touted as a first division team.

Depends on Griffith.

While at present the White Sox are in front with a good lead, with Boston and St. Louis as the most promising contenders and the clubs are all stringing out more than in the first month of the season, it is still an open race in the American league. All the clubs are fairly well matched, so well matched in fact that serious injury to any one club might put it out of the running for first honors.

Griffith's illness has made this apparent to Chicago fans. At present "Grif" hopes to get into the game again with a little rest, but if his trouble should take a turn for the worse and keep him out of the game for the most of the season it might spoil the champions' chances for the pennant.

Boston is even worse off than the White Sox as far as pitchers are concerned, and if Young, Dineen or Winters should go wrong the Somersets' chances would also go glimmering. The same may be said of almost any of the teams.

ED DELEHANTY AT THE BAT.

Ed ("Big") Delehanty.

Ed Delehanty is playing great ball in the American league, and the big outfielder and star batsman is feeling very well satisfied with the world in general and himself in particular. While he was with the Philadelphia Nationals Ed could not exercise the independence he now does, and this appears to be one of his reasons for choosing to remain with the Americans.

"Del's" batting is as good as ever and perhaps a wee bit better, and many of us would not be surprised to see him finish the season with the first three American batsmen. As a "pinch" hitter, "Del" is "it."

Long Game Record.

Apropos to the recent great nineteen inning Chicago-Pittsburg game, it may be said that the National league record for extra inning games is twenty, played by the Chicago and Cincinnati teams at Cincinnati June 30, 1892. The score was 7 to 7.

Selee's College Boys.

With Frantz, Clarkson, Stahl, Lundgren, Jones, Dexter and a few other collegians on his staff, Selee might found a university and use his men in winter as instructors.

Shatter Cycling Records

Unprecedented Feats In Early Summer Racing

Bald's Return

THE cycling season of 1902 promises to furnish a complete new set of world's records both for long and short distances. Scarcely a week passes without the lowering of existing figures for some standard distance in either class.

The increased interest in cycling has occasioned more racing this season, and as a natural consequence the riders have received more opportunity to test their speed.

MARCUS HURLEY, AMATEUR CHAMPION.

A. C., the amateur champion, and Frank Kramer, America's speediest "pro.," have done exceptional work, and between them have already created many new figures in their respective classes. These two are so far ahead of their competitors as to be in a class by themselves.

This was made especially noticeable in the case of Kramer recently, when the champion was put ten yards back of scratch in a half mile race for the first time in the history of cycle racing.

Starting with his brilliant ride in the rain May 30 at Vailsburg, N. J., when he came within 1 1-5 seconds of his own world's competition record of 58 seconds for the half mile, Hurley followed it up June 1 by winning the five mile handicap from scratch in 11m. 9 1-5s., supplanting the figures 11m. 13 4-5s. made by J. F. Ingraham at the Pan-American races last year, and giving Hurley handicap and competition record for that distance.

Again, on June 22, was Hurley the hero of the day, when he made a new mark for all world's amateurs, riding a half mile in 57 3-5 seconds, beating his own previous record of 58 seconds, made July 7, 1901.

Frank Kramer's work in the professional sprinting class has been equally sensational. At the first Vailsburg meet, in June, he secured two new world's records. Starting ten yards behind scratch in the half mile, he won his heat in fifty-five seconds for 890 yards from a standing start. This tied the half mile world's record made with flying start by P. O'Connor at Minneapolis June 10, 1895.

Timed from the tape as well, Kramer went the half in 54 4-5, which gave him the world's flying start record for that distance. He also won the ten mile open in 22m. 10s., which supplants the previous world's record of 22m. 35 2-5s. made by Iver Lawson at New Haven Aug. 27 last year.

In the middle distance class, paced by the now popular and much speedier means of motor tandems, Harry Elkes of Glens Falls, N. Y., Albert Champion of France, H. B. Freeman and Joe Nelson have shone resplendent. Elkes and Champion are unquestionably the rivals for this season's middle distance honors, although hard pressed by Walthour and Stinson.

Champion started in his feats of record breaking at Boston June 5 when, in defeating Elkes and McFarland, he rode the twenty-five miles in 37m. 15 3-5s., beating the 37m. 17s. record made by Walthour last year. He also made new figures for every mile from the fifteenth to twenty-fourth.

Against Freeman in Washington, June 11, Champion rode the first ten mile heat in 14m. 27s., a new world's record, beating that of 14m. 47s., and still further reduced the record in the second heat, which he covered in 14m. 3s.

Again, against Freeman at Pittsburg, June 14, Champion rode his last mile of the ten mile race in 1m. 19s., the fastest mile ever ridden on a six lap track. In the final heat he lowered his Washington figures for the ten miles, going the distance in 13m. 41 2-5s.

Harry Elkes' first big match of the season was at Charles River (Boston) track June 11, when he established a new hour record and made new figures for every mile from five to forty-one, which, along with his five mile record, May 30, gave him the complete hour record. Elkes rode 41 miles 250 yards in the sixty minutes. The best previous record in competition was 39 miles 1,045 yards, but Stinson last year had ridden 40 miles 330 yards against time.

At Boston June 17 Elkes in his twenty-five mile race with Stinson and McLean rode the first mile in 1m. 23 1-5s. and covered the two miles in 2m. 49s., as against the previous record of 2m. 53 2-5s. His three miles in 4m. 15 1-5s. was six seconds better than the record. The first five miles were ridden in 7m. 7 1-5s., just 1 1-5 seconds better than the record.

Previous to Champion's effort Freeman rode ten miles behind pace at Baltimore on June 4 in 14m. 47 4-5s. and made five miles in Washington in 7m. 11 2-5s.

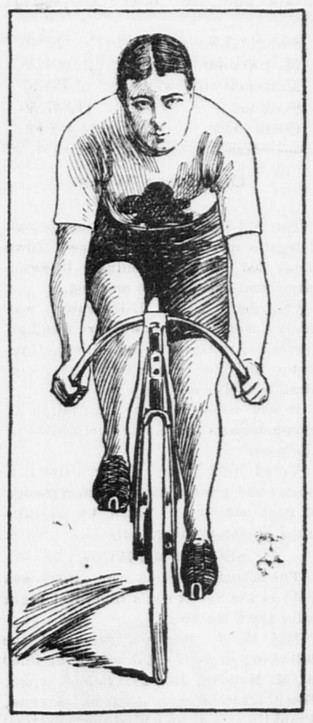

At the present rate of going there is no knowing where the record slashing will cease.

In the amateur paced class Joe Nelson roped in everything in sight previous to joining the professional ranks. At the Atlantic City (N. J.) and Vailsburg tracks Nelson broke all records from one to fifteen miles, going the distance in 24m. 26 2-5s., the first mile being covered in 1m. 31 1-5s.

Bobby Walthour is perhaps the most feared of any of the aspirants for middle distance honors and is matched to race both Elkes and Champion behind motors July 14 and 17. His work in the south has shown his remarkable speed and marvelous staying powers.

Two features that have been particularly noticeable this season in the cycling world have been the reappearance of Eddie Bald, the ex-champion, and the absence of Major Taylor, the colored sprinter, who was the undisputed short distance champion of America.

The "major" has been riding abroad, where his reputation preceded him, as was apparent by the way he was feared in every contest in which he entered. Judging from the reports from the other side, the colored flier got very little show and was "crowded" and "pocketed" by the foreign riders even more than he was here at home, where the jealousy of the fliers of their dreaded dusky rival was apparent on all occasions.

Eddie Bald has not done anything of special note, finding it hard to get back to such form as is necessary to cope with the up to date fliers of the Kramer stamp. He promises to show up better later in the season, however.

YACHTING

Perhaps it is force of habit, perhaps the decision of Dame Fortune, perhaps predestination, but, whatever the cause, the fact still remains that Captain Charley Barr is a "natural born" winner of yacht races.

Not content with winning the America's cup races of last year, Barr has started out to capture about everything in sight of the seventy foot class. At the wheel of August Belmont's clean heeled craft Mineola he appears to be practically invincible.

Should J. Pierpont Morgan decide to send Columbia across the water, which however, is very unlikely, Barr will be temporarily released by Mr. Belmont and be permitted to sail the gallant sloop. The Britishers have supreme fear of the keen eyed Charles.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Strikes and Unfavorable Weather the Principal Drawbacks

New York, July 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Good news predominates, although unfavorable weather proved a drawback at many points and new labor disputes arose. Oppressive heat checked retail trade, and excessive rains interrupted harvesting, yet experience teaches that crop disasters from too much moisture have been rare, the other extreme having furnished the great records of loss. Distribution of products at Chicago was retarded by the freight handlers' strike, and a sympathetic strike of teamsters was started on Thursday. Silk mills at Paterson resumed, and many coal miners applied for work, indicating that the end of this contest may be near. There is less than the customary midsummer idleness in manufacturing industries, despite the scarcity of fuel. Commodity prices are fully maintained.

New England shoe shops are more fully engaged than at any previous time this year, and shipments from Boston for the last week compare more favorably with last year's movement than at any recent date. New contracts for fall delivery are coming forward freely, and most factories are now running full time. Quotations are without change, but the tone is weak.

Export orders for cotton goods are still disappointing, and the home demand is quiet, yet mills are well occupied. At the south there is a disposition to delay spinning until the new crop begins to move, and this tendency is also reported in England. In woolens the best feature is the reorder business in heavy weights, quick delivery being desired.

Civic Federation's Good Offices

Indianapolis, July 12.—The National Civic Federation, which has made repeated efforts to end the anthracite strike during the last few months, is preparing to make another attempt to bring the trouble to an end and head off any radical action by the coming national convention of the mine workers. Ralph Easley, secretary of the federation, is coming here next week to meet the miners, and it is understood his mission is to make overtures to the miners looking toward accomplishing those ends.

The Hartford as an Attraction

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Moody has received requests from Salem and Beverly, Mass., for the presence of a warship during the celebration of Old Home Week, beginning July 27. These cities lie directly opposite each other, and one vessel in the waters between them thus can be present at both towns at the same time. Secretary Moody has directed that the historic Hartford, now used as a training ship, proceed to Salem and remain there during Old Home Week.

Another Prediction of Settlement

Chicago, July 12.—Mutual concessions by the freight handlers and by the railroads have paved the way for conferences between the managers and their employes which, it is hoped, will lead to the settlement of the freight handlers' strike today. If the conferences between the managers and the strikers shall not lead to the settlement of the strike it is a practical certainty that all the members of the Teamsters' union will go out.

General Wheaton Honored

Peoria, Ills., July 12.—Major General Lloyd Wheaton, who went forth to war from this city 41 years ago, returned yesterday and was given a reception, thousands turning out to pay him honor. He was greeted at the depot by a salute of 13 guns. After luncheon a military parade was given through the streets of the business section of the city. Addresses of welcome were delivered, to which the general responded.

Seven Held on Suspicion

New York, July 12.—The captain and six members of the crew of a schooner lying near the spot on the beach near Freeport, L. I., where the body of Carman Smith, a Civil war veteran, was found, were arrested yesterday and held as witnesses. Smith's hat and portions of his clothing, which the men say they picked up on the beach, were found on board the schooner.

Cotton Magnate's Skull Fractured

New York, July 12.—Charles G. Latta, president of the Raleigh cotton mills of Raleigh, was yesterday struck by a Broadway car and suffered a fractured skull. He is expected to die.

Rivers Turned to Torrents

Manhattan, Kas., July 12.—The flood situation in the valleys of the Blue and Kaw rivers is becoming more serious. The Blue is a raging torrent and still rising.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Captain Dickens has been detached from the naval war college at Newport and ordered to command the receiving ship Independence.

Secretary Moody of the navy will endeavor to arrange the plans for his summer vacation so as to be present at the anniversary celebration of the settlement of Byfield, Mass., on July 30. Byfield was the first town settled north of Salem and William Moody, an ancestor of the secretary, was one of the original settlers.

The championship of the Connecticut League of Golf Clubs was won by C. H. Seeley, who defeated Robert Moore.

An unknown woman was found dead in Goldberg's lodging house at Lawrence, Mass. A medical examiner gave cause of death as excessive drinking.

United States Consul Heenen at Odessa, Russia, cables to the secretary of state that plague has broken out at that port.

Cuba has accepted the invitation to participate in the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

TEARFUL OR CHEERFUL?

Whether a woman is tearful or cheerful depends not on what she has materially, but what she is physically. Many an indulgent husband is driven almost to despair by the tearful outburst of a wife who has "everything she wants." He wants to know what's the matter. But the wife can't tell. She only knows that she is depressed and despondent. Such a condition is usually related to some form of womanly disease. The mental depression has its corresponding womanly weakness.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription changes tearful women to cheerful women by curing the diseases which cause physical weakness and depression of spirits. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Alice Adams, of Laboratory, Washington Co., Pa., says; "With many thanks I write to let you know how I am. I can say by God's help and your help I am well. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and two of his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I can do all my work. I can't praise your medicine too highly. I will recommend your medicines as long as I live. If any one doubts this give them my address."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Keep the bowels healthy by the timely use of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Good Afternoon.

Did you send a Daily Ledger to an out-of-town friend yesterday, to let them know that we "do things" in Quincy?

One paper located the launching in East Weymouth; others in Weymouth. But the honor belongs to Quincy alone. The yards of the Fore River Company are wholly in Quincy.

While Speaker Myers is slow in announcing definitely whether he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor, he has until now been without opposition should he desire to return to the Legislature. Now, however, Councilman Thorndike Spaulding of Cambridge has announced himself as in the field for the Representative nomination and the Speaker must make a contest either with Mr. Spaulding or with Gen. Guild for Lieutenant Governor. He may be unsuccessful in either.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Time was when a three-masted schooner was a rare show. It long ago became as common in our waters as blackberries in August on land. Then came the four-master, the schooner with five sticks and the schooner with six. Now comes the seven master. Truly, our merchant marine is fast becoming masterful.—Boston Transcript.

☞ The Fourth of July was a carnival of hoodlumism in Springfield, says the esteemed Republican of that town. But it was much the same everywhere. In Hartford the city paid a good band to give a concert on the capitol grounds, but the sound of the music was almost completely drowned by firing of cartridges by a host of lanky youths who went around among the women and children with pistols in their hands. The firing was incessant and hideous throughout the evening.—Hartford Times.

☞ The South Carolina authorities are just putting into effect a law that forbids the carrying of a firearm less than three pounds in weight and 20 inches in length, and it is anticipated that the enforcement of the law will result in at least 10,000 whites and blacks being disarmed. With fewer guns in hip pockets or lying around handy there will be fewer killings reported from that state. Fists will have to be resorted to in passionate outbursts and they are not near as dangerous.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ When President Roosevelt starts to spend his vacation in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut will have to huddle up, we suppose, as the Bay State will require considerable additional space for its expanded pride.—(Providence Telegram. Dating away back soon after the Declaration of Independence was signed and continuing up to the present time we have had one continuous string of distinguished guests to entertain. We can entertain presidents, kings, princes, et al without giving the slightest appearance of chest expansion.—Brockton Enterprise.

—The largest and most cumbersome form of money is found in Central Africa, where the natives use a cross shaped ingot of copper ore over ten inches long. It is heavy enough to be a formidable weapon.

VISIT TO CUBA.

Mr. A. A. Hirtle of Wollaston Tells of Possibilities.

After a five months' absence, Mr. A. A. Hirtle has returned to his home in Wollaston where he is kept busy in posting his friends concerning Cuba, Mr. Hirtle went and returned via New York, and highly recommends this steamship line. Cuba like most places of small population, is sparsely settled. Only around large cities such as Havana, do the thousands make their abode. This is strange, for real estate is very dear in these cities, while for $5 or $10 one can buy an acre in the country. $1,000 is considered cheap for a house lot in a thickly populated district.

Of course this high value has not always existed, but ever since it has been connected with America the people of Cuba have been waking up and realizing the real value of their land.

Mr. Hirtle states that since the change of government, affairs have been at a standstill and nothing is prosperous at present, for the people can place little confidence in their new government. However cattle raising and stock in general, is a prosperous business.

While the means of travelling in the country is either foot, boat or horseback, in the city very stylish wagons can be hired and for twenty cents one can ride two or three hours all over the city in best of style, but one quite often strikes crude vehicles.

The Cubans themselves are very hospitable to all guests while most of them are very indolent and lazy, still, they will do a favor whenever they may see their way clear. Treachery, however, is still imbedded in this free people.

On the whole considering the climate Mr. Hirtle says Cuba is finely situated and adapted to all lines of business but that at the present, in the new system of government, there is little progress made.

The better class of Cubans are realizing more the necessity of another change while the poorer and sluggish classes are pitched against this wave of thought by a few ignorant politicians. Cuba, has been and is now full of American engineers but unless the times change Mr. Hirtle gives little encouragement to anyone who wishes to go to the country, now, for this purpose.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the sunstroke as if the Day of Fire had dawned. They are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic,—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Fireworks at Wollaston.

Inasmuch as many were away on the Fourth Mr. Annis A. Lincoln and friends celebrated the holiday last evening on the Second hill. The elaborate display of fireworks attracted a large number of people to the pleasant grounds which are shaded so finely. The assortment was exceptionally fine.

New Schoolhouse.

Commisioner Knowlton advertises today for proposals for building a ten-room brick school building at Quincy Point. The bids will be opened Monday, July 28, at 4 P. M.

—Some 200 boys, girls and adults are busy gathering gypsy and brown-tail moths in the city of Malden. Over 1,000 quarts were gathered in three days. Superintendent George W. Stiles of the street commissioners says that the plan of paying 10 cents a quart for the pests has resulted satisfactorily.

PARK ASSESSMENT

City Called Upon to Pay for Three Years.

May Apportion Two If Desirable.

Other State and County Taxes Less Than Last Year.

A new element enters into the assessment of taxes in Quincy this year and that is the Metropolitan park apportionment. And it is not for one year only but for three, and aggregates $23,036 93. But for the appearance of the park tax the aggregate of the State, Metropolitan and Park assessments would have been less than in 1901, but now they are $21,215.59 more. If the Mayor and City Council desire they can apportion the park assessments of 1900 and 1901 over three years. These two years amount to $14,277.13.

The 1902 assessments as certified to the Assessors are:

State Highways, $22.41.

Metropolitan Water, $24,379.11; made up as follows: Sinking Fund, $7,429.18; Interest, $11,888.11; Maintenance, $5,061 82.

Metropolitan Sewers, $10,809.10; made up as follows: Sinking fund, $1,386.30; Maintenance, $9,422 80.

Metropolitan Parks, year of 1900, $5,791.89; made up as follows: Sinking fund, 1,628 26; Interest, $3,622 52; Maintenance, $1,541.11.

Parks, year of 1901, $7,485 24; made up as follows: Sinking fund, $1,672.77; Interest, $3,634 46; Maintenance, $2,178 01.

Parks, year of 1902, $8,759 80; made up as follows: Interest on unpaid assessments of 1900 and 1901, $638.18; Sinking fund, $1,808.07; Interest, $3,855.55; Maintenance, $2,458.00.

State tax, $10,155.00.

County tax, $13,584 27.

In 1901 there were no park assessments and the other assessments were:

State highways,	$2 46
Metropolitan water,	22,004.38
Metropolitan sewer,	12,453.97
State tax,	11,847.50
County tax,	14,462 92.

H. and Hartford railroad have been made by Henry Warren Mansfield of Braintree. The special train this year will go via Randolph, Taunton and Fall River.

City Square Runaway.

There was quite a runaway accident in City Square at 9 o'clock last evening. A gentleman and lady were driving along Hancock street in an open buggy when a motor bicycle came upon them. The noise of the motor frightened the horse which ran and turned sharply into Depot street and onto the sidewalk. The lady and gentleman were thrown out. The horse ran to the depot where he was captured. The gentleman received a cut over the eye. He was taken into Hearn's drug store where his injuries were dressed.

A Good Swimmer.

The spectators at the public bath house, Quincy Point, were surprised one day recently at seeing an eleven-year old girl swimming out to the float and diving for it. It was Miss Ruth Bean of Atlantic street, Atlantic, who is said to be the first young lady to accomplish this feat.

CARLSON HELD.

Got my ticket book and we then walked up by police station and down Granite street to the millinery store. Do not remember meeting anyone in front of millinery store. We talked to the girls until the train came when we went to Boston on the 9.12 train. Took a car for corner of Fleet and Commercial street. Went in to see Joe. Remained there about 15 minutes. Then walked up Hanover street, we had a few words. I told him to go where he pleased. I then walked around and came out on the 10.50 train.

George A. Ryden testified: Worked for Sturtevant at Wollaston. On July 3, came home about 6 o'clock. Had supper and dressed. Before I left the house I went to barn and saw Oscar, could not wake him up. I then walked up Ryden street and down Whitwell street, and saw Ernest Lawson. We walked down town to Sheppard's then up through the yard to tool house. He found he did not have his ticket. We walked up to his house. When near Pratt's old store heard clock strike 8. We went up by Police station and down Granite street and met the girls. Do not remember seeing anyone in front of Miller's store. We talked to the girls. Mary McKay walked by and touched me with a cane. We heard train and we ran for it. Took 9.12 train. We took a car in Boston and got off at Fleet and Commercial streets. Went into the cafe. I ordered lager and sarsaparilla. After Ernest left me I walked to Atlantic avenue to near Navy yard. Walked about city until 11.12 when I got to station. I saw Mr. and Mrs. H. Emerson in the depot. Went into train. Went into first smoker and talked to Billy Patterson then went to first smoker and sat down with Crosby. Went to Hartwell's, then went up Whitwell street around Carlson's house. Saw Johnson come from barn. Never said, "won't be a stick left of Ellis house." First I heard was from my young brother. Never lit a fuse on Ellis house. Had nothing to do with it or did not know about it.

Cross Examined:—When I saw Carlson, Neil Felson, Crasly, and some children about him. I left him on his piazza. I think I left him about 1 o'clock.

This closed defence for Ryden and Johnson.

CARLSON ON THE STAND.

The last witness was Charles Carlson the principal defendant. He testified that he knew Ellis. Six weeks prior to July 3, he was out walking with boy who boarded with him. Came home down Farrell street. Met Mrs. Ellis and her eldest daughter. She said, pointing to a tree, "Look what the Swede did last night."

I said, "What do you mean?"

She replied, "Look what you or some other Swede did last night. We are going to fix you."

I saw Ellis drive my boy and a neighbor's girl out of Rice's field. Ellis came out of his house and said: "If you do not keep the children out I will have you fixed."

On the evening of July 3, I came home from Boston on the 4.28 train and walked up Granite street with Councilman Bass. I had supper at 7 o'clock and went to the back yard and fired a revolver. It belonged to Axel Peterson. I bought a box of blank cartridges in Boston. I had no loaded cartridges. Did not fire loaded revolver at Ellis.

The revolver had five chambers. Did not fire over ten minutes. When I fired first five shots I stood with one foot in the door and one on the step.

Ellis said something, I do not know what.

I said, "Keep quiet, I have done nothing."

He said he was going to have me arrested.

I replied, "Go ahead and do it."

Later I met Ellis in the field but did not assault him.

He said to me, "Now I have got you, now I have got you."

I said, "What is the matter with you?" This was between 6 and 7 o'clock. I did not take hold of Ellis in the field.

The small revolver I have had in the house three years. It was not in working order. Did not call Ellis a cow. Was around my own house that night. Was not directly or indirectly concerned in the explosion. I was at Ryden's house when explosion came, and thought it a cannon we had in the field. Had used dynamite for twenty years. I bought the fuse and caps of Teasdale as I thought they would be handy about the house. Did not use any the night before the Fourth. When I bought them I said will you let me have some. I had some but have given them to Mr. Anderson, Rice's man. Have not paid for them yet as I have not seen Teasdale since then. Was in court four months ago for assault and fined $4.

Cross-examined: Did not remember how long ago I gave Anderson a cap. Did not tell Teasdale I wanted them for Anderson. Have had none at home since then. Have not used any caps or fuse for two months.

On the night of July 3, did not remember Ellis woman speaking to me from the window. Did not call her what Patterson said I did.

Only had one box of cartridges. Did not use the little revolver. Did not know who put cartridges in it. I got it two years ago. Did not take hold of Ellis in the field. Discharged all my cartridges by 11 o'clock. It was not true that the officer saw me fire two shots. I was at Ryden's house then. The officer did not see me in the lighted room with revolver in my hand. I went alone to Ryden's house. At no time when the officer came did I go through my house and out the back door. Was a light in the kitchen. Can not see it from front window. Could not say who was with me the night before the Fourth; sometimes I was alone; sometimes at Ryden's house; sometimes with John and Niles Neilson. Neilson was mistaken when he said I took the children and went into the house when the officers came. I was on Ryden's piazza.

Braintree Town Meeting.

At the special town meeting in the Braintree Town hall Wednesday evening Mr. B. H. Woodsum was chosen moderator and he served in an able manner.

Upon the motion of S. F. Pratt article four of the warrant was taken up for consideration.

Art. 4. To see if the town will vote to designate the name of Coddington street or Coddington road for the new street leading from Elm street to School street, accepted by the town under the name of Stedman avenue.

Mr. Pratt's motion to change the name to Coddington road was defeated.

Art. 3. To choose any committee or hear the report of any committee, and act thereon, was then taken up.

Hon. F. A. Hobart, secretary of the Old Home Week committee, made a detailed report of plans for the coming celebration.

Art. 2. To see if the town will vote to raise and appropriate an additional sum of money for the celebration of Old Home Week as petitioned for.

Under this article there was a great deal of arguing. There were fully 150 voters present but only one-third of them seemed willing to vote, and the motion to appropriate an additional sum of $350 for the celebration, was lost because there can be no appropriation made at a special meeting by less than fifty voters voting in the affirmative.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30 to meet Friday evening for an appropriation.

FRIDAY EVENING.

About 300 voters gathered last evening at the adjourned town meeting. Hon. F. A. Hobart the first speaker made a full explanation in behalf of the Old Home week committee. The speaker then moved that $201 be appropriated to defray the additional expenses of the Old Home week celebration.

Edwin F. Porter amended the motion for an additional appropriation of $151, to be expended by a special committee for sports Saturday, Aug. 2. The amendment was adopted 68 to 44.

The motion, as amended, calling for an appropriation of $352 was then accepted 76 to 42.

Nominations were made from the floor for the sporting committee as follows: Frank Jackson, Charles H. Hayward, Frank O. Whitmarsh, Edwin F. Porter, Lewis F. Small, Charles Bailey, Arza H. Keith, Daniel Potter and Albert R. Hobart.

Meeting then adjourned.

☞The launching of a seven masted, 100,000-tons displacement steel schooner at Quincy is pretty forcibly calculated to hush the talk of the disappearance of the sailing vessel. In fact, the day of this vessel, built on dimensions never dreamed of as possible in former times, seems to be just coming in. Partisans of the Nicaragua Canal route are urging this revival of sailing ship as an objection to the Panama route. A region of calms, it is said, exists on the western side of the isthmus at Panama, which would make that route impracticable for sailing vessels during much of the year. Whether the Panama way is inferior to the other in this particular or not—a matter open to dispute—the fact remains that the Panama possesses a very substantial offsetting advantage in its much shorter length. The cost of towing a sailing ship through the Panama Canal would be small compared with the exactions of the other route.—Springfield Republican.

A Weymouth paper says this week: "Weymouth has many visitors this season, and many of the empty tenements are filled with families, whose experience with living in Quincy, where the men are employed is that they can keep house much better and cheaper elsewhere."

MR. WATSON'S RISE.

Interested in the Telephone at Its Inception.

It is of special interest, to mentally run back from effect to cause, in a consideration of this launching, says the Herald. To say that a vessel of this size, and of steel construction, was built within sight of the city of Boston during five months, doesn't mean much to most people. But those who witnessed the launching and saw not only this vessel but also a completed torpedo boat destroyer, a half finished crusier, the Des Moines, still on the stocks, and two battleships, the New Jersey and the Rhode Island, partly framed, lying side by side in an adjoining shed, and all in the same yard, were given a suggestion of the recrudescence, rather than the decadence, of shipbuilding in New England.

Back of all this is an interesting personal story which is worth the telling. About a quarter of a century ago, Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, working of his great telephone dream, employed as his assistant a man named Thomas A. Watson. This assistant was a mechanical genious, and he shared so fully Bell's confidence in the success of the telephone that he took most of his pay in telephone stock, which at that time was being liberally given away in many quarters.

Up in a little shop in Exeter place Watson worked, and though Bell was the first man to speak through a telephone, Watson has the honor of having built the first speaking telephone ever constructed. The story of the success of the telephone is too well known to need repetition. It succeeded financially beyond the wildest dreams of either Bell or Watson, and the stock which Watson received as a mechanic soon made him a millionaire.

It wasn't necessary that he should work longer for a living, but, having a genius for mechanics, he established on his estate at Braintree a little experimental station for steam engineering work. This little experimental station of 18 years ago shortly become the Fore River Engine Company. Mr. Watson was joined by other men with mechanical genius. Their energies demanded a wider field for action; hence the Fore River Ship & Engine Company; hence the transfer of the plant two years ago to its present location, with its 90 acres of ground, its splendid plant and its unexcelled equipment.

Comparatively few persons in Boston know that right at the city's ocean gateway lies the finest ship building plant in the United States. It has today $9,000,000 worth of contracts. It manufactures more of its own heavy forgings than any other plant in the country. It employes 1400 hands and has a weekly pay roll of $20,000. And yesterday the man whose little experimental station of 18 years ago was the seed, the nucleus, of all this stood on the platform and watched his daughter christen the largest Yankee sailing craft afloat, as it was being launched from the works of the company of which he is the president.

If this little story isn't worth the telling in connection with the launching of the Thomas W. Lawson, then all the rules of nature are wrong, and the creator is greater than the creator.

—The new directory of Boston shows that there are only 110 John Smiths, while John Sullivan counts up to 310.

FEDERAL BUILDING.

Where Will It Be Located? Proposals Opened.

Proposals were opened this afternoon at Washington, by the Secretary of the Treasury for sites in Quincy for the proposed Federal building which will be used by the post office, and probably by government inspectors stationed at the Fore River works.

The Ledger has no knowledge as to how many sites have been offered, but knows of two or three. It is expected that it will be difficult to obtain a corner lot, approximating 130 by 150 feet, inside of the $12,000 appropriated, but it remains to be seen. This would be a lot of about 19,500 square feet.

A location which met with considerable favor when the appropriation was urged was the Coddington street corner back of the First church, bounded by Washington, Coddington, and Spear streets and the grounds of the Thomas Crane Public Library. It was thought that the grouping of the Public Library building and the federal building would be of benefit to both and make a very attractive corner. These estates, now owned by the Quincy Hospital trustees and the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, are worth considerable over $12,000 which stands in the way of selection of this site.

The Briesler estate at the corner of Hancock and Granite streets would be a central location, but is much too small, and could not be enlarged so as to be offered for $12,000.

A corner favored by some of the business men, for which proposals have been forwarded, is a portion of the Col. Packard lot at the corner of Hancock street and Cottage avenue. Three different propositions have been made for lots of different shapes. One contemplates throwing a considerable of the corner into the street, or for a small park, leaving a square lot. A second proposition enlarges the frontage on Cottage avenue, and a third would remove the stable and large ink manufactory. It is said Col. Packard will sell at the rate of $1 per foot. For a lot of 19,500 square feet this would be considerable over $12,000.

Had Cottage avenue been widened and rebuilt when urged in the City Council last year and this year, the Packard corner would be more attractive. A further objection will be the foundry.

It is said that lots on Washington street will also be offered. These would have one advantage: they would be on the line of electrics which now carry the mail to North Weymouth, Weymouth Heights, Weymouth Centre and East Weymouth. Washington street too, is a wide thoroughfare and may in a few years become the leading business street of the city.

The Perfidious Sex

By WILLIS EMERY

Copyright, 1901, by
Frederick R. Toombs

THE door of the studio was unlocked and pushed open by Gerald Bayne.

"Walk in, old man," said he. And John Irving entered. He was not an old man, of course, or Bayne would probably have called him "my boy." He was twenty-five perhaps and of a youthful aspect. His manner had the restless instability of youth, and the glance of his blue eyes was quick and keen. The artist, on the other hand, was slow of speech and action.

"Excuse me a moment," he said and stepped into the bedroom, where he exchanged his coat for a jacket which he wore when at work.

Irving crossed to the corner where the writing table stood. A small drawer was half open, and Irving looked into it without meaning to do so. Instantly his face flushed red as fire, and, with his hand upon the desk, he stared down into the drawer, as rigid as a statue. Then he shook himself in the manner of our remote animal ancestors and glanced hastily over his shoulder toward the door of the bedroom.

IN HIS HAND HE HELD A ROUND, FLAT BAG OF SILK.

The next moment he held in his hand a round, flat bag of silk not larger than a silver dollar. On one side of it a red rose was embroidered with great fidelity to nature. On the other side were a flap and a catch by means of which the bag could be opened. Irving glanced within, saw a silky curl that shone like gold and groaned aloud.

"What's the matter, Jack?" called Bayne languidly.

Irving snapped the spring of the bag cautiously, replaced it, with its silken ribbon, in the drawer and replied calmly: "Nothing. Why?"

"Thought I heard you groan," said Bayne, appearing at the bedroom door. "Didn't know but you might have put your hand down on a thumb tack."

Irving was standing by the mantel. His manner would have been perfect except that it was much too quiet for him.

"There isn't anything the matter with me," he said.

Bayne was about to reply when he was interrupted by a shrill whistle. He crossed to the speaking tube which communicated with the office.

"Well?" said he. "Who? Oh, yes. Show her into the reception room. Wait for me, Jack," he added. "I won't be long."

He walked to the writing table, and Irving heard a faint click as the little drawer was closed. Returning to the door, Bayne paused as if he intended to say something and then went away without saying it, as was eminently characteristic of him.

Jack Irving remained by the mantel. Suddenly he glanced upward, and, addressing the ruling powers of the universe, he said, with real interest and curiosity:

"I wonder if I'm going to be able to stand this. Can a mortal man get such a blow and go about his business afterward as if he were alive? It's absolutely final. No girl would give such a thing to a man unless she loved him and was willing to admit it. Bayne! Why, I didn't know they'd ever met. And she's down there now in the reception room. What's that?"

It was something between a sob and a groan. Irving was conscious of a vague, superstitious thrill. Then he saw the draperies of a "cozy corner" moving, and presently a very young woman stepped out, facing him with a fine affectation that nothing especially remarkable had happened. Irving knew her well. She was Grace Elwood, an artist, with a studio in that building. He was aware in a general way that she had a strong liking for Gerald Bayne, but that she should sob because another girl had called upon him was more than Irving would have expected. Could this poor child have found the golden curl which was in the silken bag?

"I came around to Mr. Bayne's room," said she, "to see if he would lend me some ultramarine. I thought he answered my knock, and so I came in, for the spring of the lock hadn't caught. Finding that he wasn't here, I was about to help myself to his colors when I heard him coming with another man. Of course, if I'd known it was you I wouldn't have hid."

"Grace," he said kindly, "you have been crying."

"I?" she exclaimed, opening her brown eyes wide. "How absurd!"

"Answer me truly," he persisted. "Didn't you hide behind those curtains because your face was wet with tears?"

Her voice was somewhat unsteady as she replied, "Certainly not."

He pointed his finger at her impressively.

"You found Nina Colby's interesting token in that drawer?" he said.

"Whose token?" she cried, springing forward. "What was that name? But it's nothing to me, of course. I haven't been near that drawer. And, by the way, was it in regard to Miss—what's her name—that you just now asked heaven whether you were going to be able to stand it?"

He laughed.

"Stand it!" he repeated. "Stand what? It's nothing to me if she wants to make an embroidered chest protector for Gerald to hang around his neck. I happened to know that it was from her, and it surprised me, for I didn't even know that she and Gerald were acquainted. He's a silent, subterranean customer."

"Who is this Miss Colby?" demanded Grace. "But, of course, it's none of my business, and I really haven't the slightest curiosity. Let us speak of something else."

Irving laughed sincerely for the first time. Then he checked himself hastily.

"There, little girl, don't cry," he quoted somewhat bitterly. "You'll get over it, and you'll be sending a lock of your own hair to some other fellow by the week after next. It is the way of the sex."

Grace Elwood's eyes blazed.

"The way of which sex?" she demanded. "There is one false and heartless woman in a hundred, and she does a great deal of harm. She is the exception, however, and we must so consider her. But in 100 men there are precisely 100 liars. You will find that statement in the Bible, and between its sacred covers there is nothing truer."

She spoke with a fervor that gave her the air of an orator.

"Why, look at your own case," she continued. "How much truth have you told me in the last five minutes? I saw you go to that desk and take out that bag and open it. I knew you recognized the lock of hair when I heard you groan."

"Ah!" said he. "So you knew what was in the bag? I thought you hadn't been near the drawer."

She bit her lip.

"Well," she said, "let us suppose for the sake of the argument that I did."

"Then why fence with me about it?" he interrupted. "We have been good friends, and, finding you in trouble, I offered earnest sympathy. You have let yourself become altogether too much interested in this rascal. He is the sort of fellow"—

"That you are, Jack," she said, "and all the others. I fancy that in this case you have had no more than your deserts. Were you engaged to her, Jack?"

"Oh, no," he answered; "not so bad as that. I was merely"—

"Amusing yourself at the possible expense of her happiness. I understand perfectly. And she saw through you."

"No, she didn't," he declared. "There was no such matter. I was always absolutely sincere. And she made me think that she cared for me; she really did, Grace. And all the time she was merely making a fool of me. Women, women! Why, I saw her working that rose, though she thought I didn't, and I was such a driveling idiot that I fancied it was for me."

THEY SPRANG APART AS GERALD ENTERED.

"Every man has that sort of conceit in him," said she, "and it is to gratify it that he plays this merry game of hearts with half a dozen girls at once."

"Half a dozen!" he exclaimed, with a laugh. "You do Gerald an injustice. You grossly underrate his diligence."

The tears came into the girl's eyes.

"Is he that sort of man?" she cried. "Is it possible that I have been so foolish as to believe"—

"Poor little girl," he said, taking her hand as he sat on the edge of a table, "I'm afraid you haven't much of an eye. Did he tell you that this brown hair of yours with red bronze flashes in it was pretty? Did he"—

At the harrowing recollections which these words suggested Grace put up her left hand and clutched the mass of curls as if she intended to pull them out by the roots. Irving put his own hand up to restrain her, and they were in this posture when the door suddenly opened and Bayne entered. Naturally they sprang apart.

Bayne closed the door and leaned against it, breathing hard. He touched his forehead, as one who is confused.

"If an angel had come down and told me this," he muttered, "I would have thought the angel had come up and not down—up from the father of lies."

"Told you what?" exclaimed Grace, who in her complete innocence was totally unable to perceive his suspicion.

"You are mistaken," he said, "and even if you were not you have no right to say a word."

Bayne paid no attention to him, but fixed his eyes upon Grace.

"Women are curious creatures," he said. "The truth isn't in them. Why, I've just been talking to a girl"—

"Yes; I know it," said Irving. "I have very good ears, my friend, and I heard Miss Colby's name called up through that tube. She happened to be very much upon my mind at that time."

"She seems to be a straightforward, honest hearted girl, as girls go in this world," said Bayne, "but she could not get through five minutes' conversation without telling a falsehood. And there was no earthly reason. Miss Colby and I have nothing in common, so why"—

"Falsehood!" exclaimed Grace. "You dare to speak of falsehood in such a connection! Nothing in common between you and Miss Colby? Oh, certainly not! But what do you say about this?"

She ran across the room and pulled out the little drawer. It was empty. She stood there with the drawer in one hand and the other extended toward Bayne.

"You've got it around your neck now!" she cried.

"I?" exclaimed the artist. "You wrong me. I gave it back to her. You see, this is the way of it: I found the bag on the street when I was coming back from luncheon. Then I went out again, and in the drugstore on the corner I saw a charming blond young creature asking the clerk whether she had left something on the counter there half an hour before. She was Miss Colby, and I was able to relieve her anxiety. It was agreed that she should call here in a few minutes and get the bag, and she has done so."

"But you said she told you a falsehood?" queried Grace. "What was it?"

"She told me the bag was for her brother," he said. "She couldn't say her mother because there was a man's name on the inside of the lappet"—

"A man's name!" exclaimed Irving, staring at Grace. "Did you see it?"

She shook her head.

"She hasn't any brother," said Bayne, with a laugh, "but she didn't suppose I knew it. We're strangers. It was an easy thing to say, for a woman; just as easy for Grace to tell me that you were trying to get a 'winker' out of her eye when I came in suddenly just now."

"No, sir," said Grace, with emphasis. "He was trying to be sentimental and spoony with me because he thought you'd cut him out with the girl he really cares for. He was doing just what any other man does, only not so much so."

"But—but that name!" stammered Irving, whose mind had room for only one idea. "What was it?"

"'Jack,'" replied Bayne. "The thing is for you. I knew it before the girl had been talking with me forty seconds. Perhaps it's unreasonable for me to blame her for the falsehood."

"I came in to see if you could lend me a bit of ultramarine," said the girl, apparently addressing the toes of her little shoes.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—Constant companionship.—John xiv, 15-28; Matt. xxviii, 20.

No words of Christ perhaps have been dearer to His people in all ages than the last ones to His disciples, "Lo, I am with you alway." Nor did Christ mean by these words that He would be in their memories, influencing them and sustaining them. He spoke of real, personal companionship that was to be fulfilled by the sending of the Holy Ghost, who was to be to the disciples in spirit what He had been to them in the flesh—their consciously present helper, instructor and guide.

The disciples seemed afterward to have had a vivid realization of the constant presence of Christ. He fulfilled His promise of being with them always and of not leaving them comfortless in their own personal experiences. Peter and John and after them Paul, the apostle born out of due season, had a realizing sense of Christ's constant presence. Paul speaks of "Christ in us" and says, "I live, yet not I; Christ liveth in me." And the experiences of the great apostles have not been unlike those of the most lowly followers of Christ. All have been cheered and comforted and filled with hope by the realization of the abiding presence of their Master, in accordance with His promise.

The companionship of Christ, being constant, extends to all times in this life. "Lo, I am with you alway," He says, "even unto the end of the world." This promise assures us of Christ's constant companionship so long as we live in this world. Adversity may come, and as a result of it our earthly companions may forsake us, but not so the Lord Jesus Christ. He is with us alway—in sickness, in health; in adversity, in prosperity; in sorrow, in joy—alway! This fact should be and is to all who realize it a great comfort and a great blessing. We need Christ's constant presence that we may meet the trials and temptations of life about us and should therefore cultivate a realizing sense of His abiding presence.

Christ's companionship, being constant, is assured to us at death. How this promise as applied to death was realized in Stephen! He "saw the heavens opened and Christ standing at the right hand of God;" and seeing Christ and being sustained by Him, he faced death without trembling and without fear. Such should be the effect of Christ's companionship at the end of life. Being assured of His presence at that time no Christian need view death with alarm. Death loses its sting and the grave its victory in the assured companionship of Christ.

Christ's companionship, being constant, extends throughout all eternity. "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise," said Christ to the repentant thief, and Paul declares that after the resurrection we shall be "forever with the Lord." Thus the chain is complete. Christ is ours and we are His, here and hereafter, now and forever.

Endeavor Home For Japan.

While on my trip around the world I visited Nagasaki, Japan, and while there I was greatly impressed with the work of the Christian Endeavor or Seaman's home, says Harry Steele Morrison in The Christian Endeavor World. A friend in Manila had advised me to visit the place, and when I inquired for it at the landing stage I had no difficulty in finding a jinrikisha man to take me there. It is centrally located near the docks, where sailors land from the ships in the harbor, and it is admirably equipped for the work it does. It is the only charity of its kind in the world. The home was started on a small scale at its present site and was gradually improved until at present it is able to do a wonderful work among the soldiers and sailors who come ashore from foreign ships in Nagasaki harbor. The sleeping accommodation consists of seventy-five beds, and when these are all taken the visitors are satisfied with a "shakedown" on the floor. In the dining room more than 50,000 meals have been served, and it is the only place in Nagasaki where a sailor can get a good meal at a reasonable price. From 600 to 700 meals a day can be served.

A Promise of What May Be Done.

The church has grown. The religious and spiritual condition of the people has improved. But what has been done is only a promise of what may be done. We are by no means yet measuring up to what we are capable of doing in the Lord's service, but we are moving in the right direction. Our present enthusiasm for missions will not die out. It can be increased. And what we need is a comity of feeling, a spirit of unity and co-operation. Love to God, zeal, enthusiasm and love to our fellow men will bring the latter to the cross of Jesus Christ.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Epitaph.

Life called to me—a changeful call
Of joy, of strife, of woe;
Each day I pondered, "Shall I make My answer 'Yes' or 'No?'"

Death called to me—a wondrous call,
So sweet, so calm, so clear;
I did not wait to question it,
But quickly answered, "Here!"

A THEATRE OF DEATH

Greeted the Eyes of Brave Rescuers of Miners

TWENTY-TWO LIVES SAVED

Number of Known Dead Reaches 143, While 88 Are Unnacounted For—Dangerous Portions of the Mine Remain to Be Explored

Johnstown, Pa., July 12.—It can be stated that of the 600 men supposed to have entered the mouth of the rolling mill mine of the Cambria Steel company Thursday morning, 143 are known to be dead and 22 rescued. Four hundred, so the mine officials claim, escaped when the explosion occurred, leaving 88 still to be accounted for. Some of these, according to those in charge of the rescue work, are dead, but the majority, they claim, have escaped.

From physicians, heads of rescue parties and others who are familiar with the different headings in the mine, it is learned that at least 35 additional bodies will be brought to the temporary morgue today, making a total list of dead 178. This, so President Stackhouse of the Cambria Steel company states, will be the extent of the dead, but until all checks, by which the miners are known, are presented at the office of the company, an accurate list of the dead will not be known. Some of the bodies, it is admitted by the officials, are entombed in closed headings or buried beneath slate. Some may be recovered, while others may never be found.

Thrilling experiences attended the efforts of the 40 brave men who went down yesterday into the bowels of the earth with a very faint hope to spur them that still they might be in time to restore to life some of those who are entombed.

Dead and maimed bodies were located, but no effort was made to bring them out of the vast theatre of death until every human energy was put forward towards seeing that no living soul might escape their aid. That done, the dead were attended to.

Eighty-seven bodies were recovered from the mine between daylight and nightfall. Still a party of officials and miners battled on, three miles inside the mine. Occasionally, word would come to the surface by some mysterious means that another heap of remains had been exposed to the vision of the searchers. There remain dangerous headings in the Klondike section of the mine yet to be explored. The impression prevails among the outsiders and certain employes of the mine that 150 is a low estimate of the casualty list.

Johnstown spent the day horror-struck. From dawn to dusk dying ambulances coursed the streets bearing gruesome burdens. Great throngs surged about the pit mouth, the improvised morgue at the armory, and about the stricken homes of the dead. Bulletin boards were eagerly scanned for news from the scene of the disaster.

It is difficult to picture with any degree approaching its full worth the work of rescue and the attending scenes and incidents of the day at the centre of interest. How brave men went into the jaws of death, encountered their fellows transformed into raving maniacs by hours of waiting in the pitch darkness of the earth's interior, lifted them moaning from their beds of fallen rock and then, bending and crawling on all fours, carrying them a quarter of a mile under ground to where cars could be reached to take them outside.

Along in the early part of the afternoon cheering word came from the mine that life yet lingered in some of the bodies found. The rescuers made first for No. 4, left heading, which they had been unable to reach the night before. Desolate, even for the scene of a mine interior, was the heading. Falls of roof almost choked up the heading, but through and over the debris the brave men pushed their way. In the front Peter and Patrick Martin, Philip White and several others made their way.

Suddenly, in an open space, they were startled by the maniac laugh which emanated from a blackened form that rushed at them out of the darkness. The man grasped firmly a pick handle and tried in his frenzy to beat down his rescuers. He was overpowered and dragged back to the main heading to the cars. Thirteen other living men were found in the chamber and physicians were quickly taken to the spot.

At 3 p. m. the train of mine cars came to the pit mouth, where waiting ambulances stood. Eight men, all Poles, were carried to the ambulances.

As the men were driven hurriedly to the Cambria hospital the train of coal cars with the physicians re-entered the mine. In another half hour they came out again, this time with six living, but almost dead miners. One man in his paroxysms had locked his jaws, so that force had to be employed to pry them open for the insertion of life-instilling fluids. These six were taken in an unconscious condition to the hospital. One man brought out with this crowd died just as he reached daylight.

At that time three more headings, believed to be filled with the dead, were unsearched. Thirty-nine bodies were lying within reach in the main heading. Three were brought out at 4:35 p. m. The remains were in a terrible state, showing that there had been slow death in each case. One of the men had his mouth and nose tied about by a cowel. The rest of his face was burned beyond recognition. The bodies of all were twisted in horrible shapes, most of the arms being crooked so as to shield the face. The only one who could be identified at the pit mouth was Mine Boss Tomlinson.

One of the volunteer rescuers who came out with this load of dead stated that fire was raging in parts of the mine that would take some time to quell. Most of those who were brought out alive had saved themselves by crawling into a chamber and turning a valve on the compressed air pipe line which runs along the entry. One man was found dead with his hands clutched so tightly about a monkeywrench that it could not be removed.

The coroner has selected a jury to make an investigation into the cause of the disaster. It is not expected the inquest will be begun until all the bodies have been recovered and those injured are able to testify. This probably will be at least a week.

At the conclusion of the day's work Mine Superintendent Robinson said the rescuing parties would work night and day until all bodies were removed. He thought the disaster was not due to an unusual amount of gas and says the fire damp was responsible for most of the trouble.

Fighting Among Themselves

London, July 12.—The authorities of Scotland Yard have been heavily taxed throughout the period destined for the coronation festivities by their supervision of the anarchists and political refugees who flocked to London from abroad, and when the presence of so many foreign princes made it necessary to watch very carefully. This surveillance was so keen as to lead the objects thereof to suspect betrayal by their comrades, with the result that there have been several severe quarrels at the anarchists' club lately in which many members were stabbed.

Captain's Temper Got Upper Hand

Norwich, Conn., July 12.—Captain Asahel Tannar, one of the wealthiest and best known residents of East Norwich, is under arrest for a probably fatal assault upon Mrs. David Goldberg, aged 45. Mrs. Goldberg had bought a hen coop from a neighbor of Tannar and went to the house to get it. Captain Tannar ordered her not to take the hen house, as he said the owner owed him money and he claimed a right to the property. It is claimed that Captain Tannar struck the woman on the shoulder with a stick. Captain Tannar is 75 years old.

Water Cure Not Torture

Manila, July 12.—The court martial of Captain James A. Ryan of the Fifteenth cavalry, on the charge of unnecessary severity to natives, was concluded yesterday. It is believed he will be acquitted. It was contended that the "water cure" was not torture and that its use had saved more American and Filipino lives than other expedients of the campaign.

Swiss Villages Flooded

Geneva, July 12.—The Rhone river burst through both its banks yesterday and submerged villages and washed out crops. Bridges and houses have been destroyed in all directions. The inhabitants of the flooded district are frantically engaged in putting the river embankments to relieve the flood and save their property.

New York, July 12.—Colonel George C. Tichenor, 64, member of the board of United States general appraisers, died yesterday. He was a veteran of the Civil war, and one of the leading tariff experts in the country. He had much to do with the construction of the McKinley and Dingley bills.

Quiet at Port au Prince

A LESSON IN PHYSICS.

Boiling Water That Can't Be Made Hot Enough to Boil an Egg.

Most boys and girls have heard, no doubt, that, although water may be made to boil at the top of a high mountain, it cannot be made hot enough to boil an egg. Perhaps they have puzzled over this a good deal, wondering why the egg will not boil if the water does. They know very well that if an egg be dropped into boiling water in the kitchen at their house and allowed to remain five minutes it will be boiled nearly as hard as a stone. Why, then, will it not do the same on a mountain top?

The reason is that it requires less heat to boil water on a mountain top than it does down at the sea level, and the water, therefore, does not get hot enough to cook the egg. Water boils on a mountain, say, three miles in height at a temperature of about 185 degrees, but it will not boil at sea level at less than 212 degrees. Now, as it requires a heat of 212 degrees to cook an egg, it is very plain why the water that boils at 185 degrees will not do the work.

But why will water boil at a temperature of 185 degrees on a mountain top?

When you put a kettle of water over a fire, the water in the bottom of the kettle soon begins to get hot, and as it gets hot it rises to the top of the kettle, colder water coming down to take its place at the bottom. This goes on until all the water in the kettle becomes hot, and then, as it gets hotter and hotter, little globules or bubbles of steam form at the bottom and ascend to the top, where they escape into the air.

Now, you must remember that the pressure of the air on everything around you is fifteen pounds to the square inch, and that pressure therefore is on the surface of the water in the kettle and has to be overcome by the bubbles of steam before they can escape from the water. They have force enough to escape when driven upward by a heat of 212 degrees, but not until then.

On a mountain top, however, the conditions are very different. There the air is much lighter than it is at sea level, and the pressure is less than fifteen pounds to the square inch. Hence the steam bubbles do not meet with so much resistance in escaping from the water, and a heat of 185 degrees is generally sufficient to drive them out. In other words, a heat of 185 degrees will boil water on the mountain top, and as water cannot be made any hotter when the steam begins to escape you cannot make it hot enough there to cook food.—New York Herald.

Pelee Again In Eruption

Paris, July 12.—In his report on the eruption of Mt. Pelee on the evening of July 9, the governor of Martinique says the outburst of flame set fire to the ruins of St. Pierre and that for 25 minutes stones and cinders rained on the communes of Morne Rouge and Fonds St. Denis. The inhabitants of Morne Rouge fled and panic prevailed in other places, but there were no fatalities. Pelee was in eruption again yesterday.

Charge Was Unfounded

Washington, July 11.—Secretary Root has received a cablegram from Acting Governor Wright, in the Philippines, making a general denial of the charge of proselyting by teachers among Catholic students in the Philippines schools. The cablegram shows a complete investigation was made of the allegations.

CHARGES ARE UNTRUE

No Proselyting In Schools In Philippines

GOVERNOR WRIGHT'S REPLY

Shows That There Are Two American Catholic Teachers In Normal School and That All the Native Teachers In the Islands Are Catholics

Washington, July 12.—Secretary Root has addressed an identical letter to persons complaining that teachers in the Philippines have been proselyting and attempting to convert Catholics to the Protestant faith. It is as follows:

I beg to advise you that on July 5 Vice Governor Wright, acting governor of the Philippines, was requested to report by cable the facts bearing upon the charge, which has recently been extensively circulated, that official positions in the public school service in the Philippines have been used for proselyting purposes, especial reference being made to an article which had just appeared in The Catholic Times.

A dispatch has now been received from Governor Wright, under date of July 9, which says:

"The charges made by The Catholic Times are unfounded in every essential particular. It is untrue that nearly all American teachers are Protestant teachers and proselyters. There are now two American Catholic teachers in the normal school and five in Manila city schools. The native teachers in the city number 140, all Catholic. It is untrue that teachers of normal schools are proselyting and that school graduates are only Protestants. It is exceptional that any graduate is other than Catholic. It is untrue that Filipinos are taught that Protestantism is bringing enlightenment and Catholicism ignorance and tyranny. The private secretary of Commissioner Moses is a Catholic; also the private secretary of Atkinson, general superintendent of public instruction, as well as three division superintendents.' Governor Wright says that "Rev. W. D. McKinnon, Catholic priest, a member of the advisory board of general instruction, confirms the statement of facts made above. The law to inaugurate a public school system forbids religious instruction in schools or school buildings by teachers, but allows the same three days a week in school buildings, by priests or preacher, out of school hours, upon request of parents. This is intended as a concession to Catholic sentiment. There are about 3,000 native teachers employed in the islands, all of whom are Catholics. Teachers are selected without reference to religion and not allowed to preach or teach religion in the schools. There is no discrimination against Catholic teachers."

Secretary Root's letter says that none of the prelates of the Roman Catholic church, whose duty it is to safeguard the interests of their church, and who are familiar with the facts, have made any such charges as are referred to in the inquiry addressed to Governor Wright and in his answer. It is the purpose of the Philippine government to maintain in the archipelago the same kind of free non-sectarian instruction which exists in the United States, and which has proved to be for the interest of religion and all religions. The government means, so far as it can, to give education to the people of the islands, and it will do this without any discrimination for or against any church and sect. It does not mean that any officer or teacher of the public school system shall use his position to build up or pull down any church whatever, whether Catholic or Protestant.

As to Friars' Withdrawal

Rome, July 12.—It is understood that the question of the withdrawal of the friars from the Philippine islands could be settled immediately if Washington would accept the oral assurance of the Vatican that they will be withdrawn gradually. It is believed here that only President Roosevelt can decide whether such a promise shall be accepted.

A Case of Lese Majeste

Prague, July 12.—The official police journal prints a notice offering a reward "for information leading to the arrest of William II, who escaped from VonBuelow's lunatic asylum at Berlin, and who was last seen at Marienburg (Prussia), where he suffered from paroxysms of talkativeness." This practical joke has caused consternation among the officials here.

MEMENTO FOR MANILA.

Pen Which Signed Philippine Bill Goes to Public Library.

In the Manila public library there will soon be deposited a valued souvenir, says a special dispatch from Washington to the Philadelphia Press. It is only an ordinary American steel pen, but it was used by President Roosevelt to sign his name to the bill giving a civil government to the Philippines. This memento of an act fraught with so much significance to the people of the archipelago was begged from the president by Senor Buencamino, the Filipino leader, the other morning.

Senor Buencamino had learned that the president had given the pen to Senator Lodge, but hoped it was not too late to have the gift recalled and placed where it could be seen and treasured by the Filipinos. He said it would cause great disappointment if he did not take the pen home with him, as some of the prominent natives of Manila had announced their intention of asking for the pen to deposit in the public library of Manila and had commissioned him to present their request to the president.

Senator Lodge happened to be one of the president's callers at the time and, appreciating the force of Senor Buencamino's argument, gave him the pen.

RUSSIA AND MANCHURIA.

Count Cassini Makes a Statement of Muscovite Plans In the Orient.

Count Cassini, the Russian embassador at Washington, was recently interviewed by the New York World correspondent about Lord Cranborne's statement in parliament that Britain has been notified that negotiations are proceeding for the evacuation of Manchuria by Russia and that it is expected that Manchuria will soon be restored to Chinese control. Count Cassini said:

"The assertion that negotiations are proceeding for the evacuation of Manchuria by Russia is hardly frank. Manchuria has been returned to Chinese jurisdiction in accordance with Russia's original promise and programme.

"Russian forces still hold Newchwang, and it is plainly understood by every cabinet throughout the world that we will continue to hold that port as long as Tientsin is occupied by the forces of governments foreign to China. We hold Newchwang as a guarantee for the evacuation of Tientsin and are prepared to return Newchwang and its railroad connections to the Chinese administration whenever the corresponding obligations are discharged at Tientsin."

The count further explained as follows:

"In answer to oft repeated questions I may repeat the position of Russia. Manchuria was occupied by Russian forces because the Chinese regular troops invaded Russian territory proper and began war with us. We drove them back and temporarily occupied a part of their territory. As an act of conquest and reprisal Russia was entitled to the sovereignty of Manchuria.

"At the beginning of hostilities Russia announced that no policy of aggrandizement animated her policies. When peace was secured, Russia gradually evacuated Chinese territory, returning it to the Chinese. We had conquered it. We held it. Had we coveted Manchuria where was the power to drive us out? Russia held Manchuria with an overwhelming force. Nothing equal to it could have been mobilized in China.

"Manchuria was restored to China in compliance with the uncoerced good faith of Russia and in accordance with a programme announced at the time we were repelling an actual war. Newchwang and similar territory will be treated in the same way."

Latest Bathing Suits.

Overshadowed is the familiar flannel and serge bathing suit this year by an array of pongees, silks and other fabrics in many colors, following the mode in other lines of dress, says the New York Press. Black and white checks are to be as fashionable in the water as on the street. Pongee and other materials of that color, including linen, are exceedingly stylish. Some of these are made up plain, but others are trimmed with straps or bands in white or black, stitched in tailor fashion. Red is a color that is seen in some of the new suits, but is rather too striking for most women.

New Way to Cut Diamonds.

An obscure diamond cutter in Antwerp, Belgium, has invented a new system of diamond cutting, giving to the gem eighty-four facets and nearly a spherical form, says the New York world. This treatment redoubles the brilliancy of the gems, and as the patent is kept a secret it is hoped that it may revive the diamond cutting industry, which has lagged badly of late.

Battle of the Boyne.

Today the Orangemen of Quincy in common with their brothers in all other parts of the world, are celebrating the two hundred and twelfth anniversary of the battle of the Boyne. This battle viewed from a military stand point was not very important, but its effects were far reaching.

For twenty-eight years the Stuarts had possession of the throne from which Oliver Cromwell had pushed them for a time. Charles the Second, having in mind the fate of his father, pulled with his Parliament rather than against it, and on the whole was pretty well liked. His son and successor, James the Second, however, resolved to rule as well as reign. He caused the doctrine of passion, obedience and the divine right of kings to be enforced. This with his promotion of Jeffries to be lord chief justice alienated from him the loyalty of his people, and when he attempted to increase the army they invited the Prince of Orange to come across the narrow seas and take the crown. William accepted, and landed in Torbay. The people flocked to his standard and James fled to France without striking a blow. The following year he invaded Ireland with a French force and laid seige to the stronghold of William's friends. The latter sent an English force to oppose them, and the following year crossed to Ireland himself and took command of his troops.

On July 1st (old calendar) the rival king's, son-in-law and father-in-law met on the banks of the river Boyne. The armies of James was shattered and he himself fled to France, where he ended his days as the guest of the French king.

Queen Anne, who succeeded William was the last of the Stuart dynasty, if we except the Scotch "Pretender." The last of the family died at Rome in 1807.

Provincetown Excursions.

A trip to Provincetown on the new spacious and elegant steamer Cape Cod, of the Bay Line, affords about as pleasant and invigorating a day's outing as can be imagined. It provides, on the way down from Boston to the tip of the Cape, nearly four hours' communion with old ocean, as viewed from the grand saloon and promenade deck of the steamer. The excursionists have two hours, or thereabouts, for dinner and sightseeing in Provincetown. Leaving Bay Line Wharf, 400 Atlantic avenue, every day at 10 o'clock, the Cape Cod speeds out of Boston Harbor, past Castle Island, Governor's Island, Deer and Long Islands, Nix's Mate, Boston and Minots Lights, into the broad waters of Massachusetts Bay, and thence in almost a straight line for the beautiful land-locked harbor of Provincetown. One of the many delightful features of the trip on board the Cape Cod is the music of the Bay Line Band. Refreshments are served, but it is one of the cardinal rules and regulations of the company that there shall be no liquor sold on board. The fare for the round trip this season is the same as last, one dollar. Week days, 9.30 A. M.; Sundays, 10 A. M.

The Story of the Ticket.

"Every ticket has its story," said a man acquainted with the pawnshops, and one of the sad little tales which he told is repeated by the Philadelphia Telegraph. It was a bitter cold day, and a mite of a boy, not over nine years old, had come in, wrapped in his overcoat. This he peeled off and deposited it upon the pawnbroker's counter.

"Give a dollar 'n' quarter?" he asked in pleading tones.

"Dollar," said the money lender.

"Oh, please give me a dollar 'n' a quarter!"

"Can't do it. Dollar."

The boy was almost crying, and he begged earnestly for the sum he asked. "I want to get my sister's coat out," he said as he laid down 8 cents as interest money. This proposition the pawnbroker accepted, and the boy went shivering into the cold with his sister's coat.

"Is your sister going to a dance tonight?" a bystander asked him.

"No, sir; mom's been sick, an' Maggie had to hock her coat for feed. She's got a job now, an' she's got to have a coat to go to work in. I don't mind the cold; I'm used to it."

The Scotch Halfpenny.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. Those who meet with the word in their reading do not often stop to ask how it came to be applied. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Pearson's.

A Churchman's Wit.

Wayne MacVeagh, Archbishop Ryan and George B. Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, were fellow guests at a banquet given in the Union league several years before the death of Mr. Roberts. Mr. MacVeagh at the time was the legal adviser of the "Pennsy." Some chaff in the vernacular of railroading marked a passage in the conversation of the evening, and the lawyer, following up a compliment paid the prelate by the president, said:

"Your grace, in return you might give the worthy Mr. Roberts a free pass to heaven."

"I should willingly do so," responded his grace, "but for one reason—I should not care to be the means of separating him from his counsel in the world beyond."—Philadelphia Times.

"Rule Britannia" Variations.

One of the English papers gives the answers of certain board school boys who were asked to write down the whole or part of the chorus of "Rule Britannia." One of them gave the first line as "Royl Brick Tanner, Brick Tanner rules the way," a second began it with "Rore Britanier," while a third attempted a whole verse. This was his version: "The nations not so blest has he but still in stern but still stern to God most all this was the Chelter the Chelter of the stail and God in Angles sang the Strang Bulbiatanya biatanya woves the waves for Britains never wil be slain."

Easy Enough.

Mr. Harry de Windt in his book, "Finland as It Is," tells of a mot of Andree, the arctic explorer. Just before his last voyage he was driven to distraction at a dinner party by a talkative neighbor.

"But how will you know, professor, when you have really crossed the north pole?" was one of the many silly questions.

"Oh, that will be simple enough, madame," replied Andree with his well known dry humor. "A north wind will become a south one!"

Died of Neglect.

Louis XVII., titular king of France, the unfortunate dauphin, died in the Temple of Paris of abuse and neglect. His body was identified and certified to by four members of the committee of public safety and by more than twenty officials of the temple. The remains were privately buried in the cemetery of St. Marguerite, and every trace of the grave was carefully obliterated.

The Women of Carthage.

There is a grand old story told about the supreme devotion displayed by the women of Carthage. When their city was besieged by the Romans, ropes were needed; but, as there was no flax to make them in the city, the women, headed by their heroic queen, came to the rescue. They one and all cut off their glorious tresses and made ropes out of their hair.

The World's Medicine.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Are the Best and Safest Family Medicine.

This assertion is made very seriously, and after duly weighing all the reasons that lead to the conclusion. If BEECHAM'S PILLS were novel, untried, and experimental, like so many modern advertised compounds, such a positive statement could not be put forward. But everyone knows for a fact that BEECHAM'S PILLS have stood the searching test of over fifty years' continuously advancing popularity, until to-day the demand for this specific in all parts of the world is greater than ever. With a certainty, the universal verdict of common-sense everywhere justifies the claim. And then, again, BEECHAM'S PILLS do not require the publication of testimonials to maintain their tremendous demand.

WHY? Because those who once try BEECHAM'S PILLS are naturally impelled to inform others of the benefits to be derived therefrom. This is perhaps a slow, but it is certainly an honest and a powerful process, and in this way the confidence and esteem of the public have been lastingly secured.

No other Medicine in the World can claim so many Regular Users

Thousands of families always keep a box of BEECHAM'S PILLS in the house so that on the first sign of any irregularity of the system a timely dose may be administered and further trouble and suffering averted. BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOSTON MUSIC HALL.

The attraction at Boston Music Hall next week will be a production by the Castle Square theatre stock company of Oliver Goldsmith's fine old comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer." This play was first seen in 1773 and has enjoyed the favor of play goers from that day to this in its original form as well as supplying the plot of numberless comedies and operas which have been successful on both sides of the ocean. It is interesting to know that the incident upon which most of the action of the play turns, the mistaking of a private residence for a public inn, owes its origin to an experience of the author when a young man of sixteen to seventeen years of age. While on the road to Edgworthstown, Goldsmith inquired of a stranger as to the "best house" in the town, and was directed to that of Mr. Fetherstone in which Goldsmith had much the same experiences as those of the traveler introduced in this play. A particularly strong cast is announced for the coming production. "She Stoops to Conquer" is announced for only a single week. The usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bon bons will be made at the Monday matinee.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

All the musical and artistic people of Boston and the suburban towns are being drawn to Keith's since the advent of the Fadettes woman's orchestra and the revival of the tableaux vivants, and even in the hottest weather the always cool auditory is well filled. The petit concerts by the female musicians constitute a feature that might be continued throughout the year, to judge by the growth of their popularity, and the living pictures are easily the best that have ever been exhibited, not only in Boston, but anywhere else in the world. The surrounding vaudeville is always the best that money can secure, and it has been remarked that many of the programs offered this summer are really stronger than those of the mid-winter season. Among the entertainers scheduled for the week commencing July 14 are: Herbert's trained dogs, including the great diving canine, "Dink"; Cole and Johnson, one of the most noted teams of "real coon" comedians and singers in America, and Senator Frank Bell, a popular and talented monologue comedian.

JOHNSTOWN'S HORROR

Dead Bodies Have All Probably Been Recovered

FATALITIES PLACED AT 114

Black Cloud of Mourning Hangs Over the City, Especially the Portion Inhabited by Foreigners—Sunday a Day of Funeral Obsequies

Johnstown, Pa., July 14.—After a consultation last evening with the four state mine inspectors summoned here to make a thorough inspection of the rolling mill mine of the Cambria Steel company, James E. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mining inspection, granted formal permission to resume operations in all sections of the mine except the Klondike today. The Klondike workings will likely be closed for several days until perfect security is assured through the bratticing of openings and repairs necessitated by the explosion.

Two more deaths of rescued victims have occurred since Saturday night. These deaths raise the total fatalities to 114, although the company records have it one less. Much confusion has attended the compilation of the record.

Mine Superintendent Robinson says: "I would not like to assert that there are no more bodies in the mine, but I do not think there are. There may be a few."

It is generally regarded as certain that the full extent of the disaster is now known. State inspectors say that the condition of all the workings are now free of gas and the almost perfect ventilating apparatus are rushing currents of pure air into the uttermost recesses of the subterranean workings. There has not been a single place outside of the old abandoned chambers that have not undergone the scrutiny of experts to pronounce everything in as good condition as could be asked or demanded.

Four state mine inspectors went all through the Klondike yesterday making air tests and noting the conditions controlling ventilation. They found n any openings which retarded the proper course of air currents and noted them. After finishing the Klondike section the experts went through all the other sections which have never manifested dangerous symptoms. There they found matters in ordinary shape. The inspectors would say nothing as to their discoveries until called upon to testify at the inquest.

"We know where the explosion in the rolling mill mine occurred. We know what caused it. We know who caused it. If he were alive criminal action might reach him. He is dead undoubtedly. There is nothing sensational about the cause. I will only say that the explosion was not caused by a blast."

These poignant statements were made by Joseph A. Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mines, last night, some time after hearing the report of his four district inspectors who made an official examination of the mine yesterday.

Mr. Roderick said: "There is nothing to conceal and everything known to me will be made public at the coroner's inquest, which will not be held for several days."

Most of the interest centered yesterday in the funeral obsequies which were scattered throughout the city. The black cloud of mourning was heaviest over Cambria City, where the foreign population dwells. Scenes of Saturday in this section were repeated, but only with sterner force. It was a grim fete day in which the number of participants was augmented by throngs the trains brought in. The outsiders came from towns within a radius of 50 miles or more. These visitors spread themselves out in squads and took in the various points of interest associated with the dread tragedy.

All night Saturday workmen dug graves in the Morrelville cemeteries. By morning they had enough completed to care for the day's arrivals and for those who were taken to the cemetery entrance on Saturday and had to be stored in a barn until excavations could be made for them.

The burial was simplified by the digging of long trenches in place of separate graves. In one of these 25 coffins were lowered.

The afternoon was devoted to funerals. Over Cambria City the deep intonations of tolling bells tolled their clamorous wail of grief. Bands poured out mournful dirges through almost every thoroughfare. Catholic societies were out in their regalias. The national flag hung limp and lifeless in the still air while among its folds was mingled streamers of mourning.

Friends of the dead miners and employes who lost their lives on Thursday have been going over the list of dead with a view of learning the number of widows and fatherless children left behind and who will be made helpless by the catastrophe. According to the most reliable data there are 94 widows and 138 children.

FIGHT WITH ROBBERS

Policeman Was Shot, but Captured One of His Assailants

Ashland, Mass., July 14.—Former Sheriff Pitsbury of this place was shot through the thigh during an encounter with three burglars who had broken into Woods' grocery store early Sunday night. Although severely wounded he managed to arrest one of the men, while the other two escaped. The arrested man was Nelson Bodreau.

While Pitsbury was keeping watch in Ashland square he heard a noise in the direction of Woods' store. In order to make as little noise as possible the officer took off his shoes and then went to the store and found a man on the outside of the door who asked if he was "Pitsbury." The officer thought by this that the break was the work of some boys and he ordered them to come out and hold up their hands. Instead, however, two men appeared on the fire escape on the second story and, seeing their companion in the hands of the officer, they opened fire with revolvers. Over 20 shots were fired, only one taking effect. The noise of the shooting aroused the neighbors, who came to the officer's assistance.

On picking up the officer's shoes it was found that one of the bullets had ploughed its way through one of them. State Detective Dunham has taken charge of the case.

Dastardly Att mpt to Wreck Car

New London, July 14.—An attempt to wreck a trolley car was made last night about three miles north of this city. A heavy steel rail was laid across the tracks a short distance from a bridge which crosses an arm of the Thames river and had the car left the track it surely would have gone over the declivity. The car was crowded and it struck the rail with a crash, sending the obstruction to one side. Almost a panic ensued, as the shock to the passengers was terrific. No clue to the would-be wreckers has been found.

No Change In Demands

Providence, July 14.—There was a meeting of the striking weavers of the American Woolen company's mills in Olneyville and Manton here yesterday at which the reply of Treasurer Wood to the letter sent to him inviting a conference was submitted for action. It resulted in a vote to have committees call upon the local managers, as suggested in the reply, and it was stipulated that the demands should be the same, for abolition of the two-loom system on fancy worsted weaving.

Five Hurt In Explosion

Providence, July 14.—In an automobile explosion in Roger Williams park yesterday Cora Willard was probably fatally burned, and four others received injuries more or less severe. The machine, which was wrecked, was a two-seated one, propelled by steam and was used as a public conveyance. Six passengers were aboard. The gasolene valve blew out and the fire at once communicated to the storage tank, which exploded, enveloping the occupants in a sheet of fire.

Friutless Search Continues

Beverly, Mass., July 14.—The 27th day since the disappearance of Wilbur Clark passed without adding anything new to what little is already known. The bloodhound which has been used for the past three days was again taken into the woods, but found no scent. A number of clairvoyants came to the lake yesterday and gave conflicting solutions of the mystery, but none of their suggestions possessed value enough to cause a change in the present plan of searching.

Charged With Arson

Keene, N. H., July 14.—George E. Hopkins was arrested at his boarding place yesterday, charged with setting fire to Griffins mills, which were totally destroyed by fire Saturday night. It is claimed that he made a full confession, assuming no reason for his act except that he had been drinking. He is 32 years of age and had been employed by Mr. Griffin until last week, when he voluntarily left to go on a farm.

Girl With Smallpox In Church

Nashua, N. H., July 14.—Dr. Robbins yesterday received information that Florence Damarais, 13 years old, was afflicted with smallpox and upon investigating found that she was attending St. Francis Xavier church. He called her out, made an examination, and after satisfying himself that such was really the case, he sent her to her home and placed her and the others of the family under quarantine.

Valuable Securities Astray

Boston, July 14.—Postoffice Inspector McMillin is investigating the reported theft of a letter from the mails containing $6000 of negotiable securities which had been sent by a broker firm in this city to a New York client. Investigation shows that the letter was lost either on the train or after its arrival in New York.

Minneapolis, July 14.—Judge Simpson gave Captain John Fitchette of the police force 90 days in the workhouse, the maximum sentence under the law, who was convicted of the sale of a police appointment.

A MENACE TO PEACE

President's Opinion of Friars In Philippines

FRAMING REPLY TO VATICAN

United States Will Strongly Support Contention That Friars Must Be Eliminated In Equalizing Matters—Official Statement Not Ready

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 14.—President Roosevelt and Secretary Root were so busily engaged yesterday in the consideration of important subjects that neither one attended church. One of the important questions discussed by the president and Secretary Root was that relating to Governor Taft's negotiations with the Vatican respecting the Philippine friars. Both Mr. Roosevelt and the secretary of war deem it unwise that the friars should remain in the archipelago with the prestige they now possess. The attitude the friars assume is regarded not only as a menace to the peace of the islands, but also as an obstruction to their government and to the civilization of their inhabitants.

No statement of the conclusion reached by the president and Secretary Root could be obtained at Sagamore hill, but, unofficially, it is understood that a note is being drafted in response to that transmitted by the pope through Governor Taft to the administration. As Governor Taft initiated the negotiations, it is entirely likely that the reply of this government will be sent to the Vatican authorities through him. Ample assurance is given that the United States will take strong ground in support of its contention that the friars must be eliminated from the Philippine equation.

It is said absolutely that no official statement of any phase of the situation will be made public until the negotiations with the Vatican have been concluded and that then the announcement will be made from Washington.

Several handsome steam yachts from New York were in the bay yesterday, among them the president's official yacht, the Mayflower, which came from the Brooklyn navy yard "under orders." Only her commander and the president know definitely what those orders are. The vessel, which is one of the finest and most handsomely fitted in the naval service, has been undergoing repairs at the Brooklyn navy yard. These are not completed yet and will not be for two weeks. The officers and crew, numbering 141 men, are working on the repairs and improvements night and day.

Delay Considered Good Omen

Rome, July 14.—The Vatican is impatiently awaiting the communication of President Roosevelt's answer to its propositions, but considers the delay a good omen, as showing that the Washington government is discussing the matter carefully.

Catholic Objections

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 14.—A mass meeting of the Catholics was held here last night to protest against the United States forcing the friars out of the Philippines. All the Catholic clergy, including Bshop Richter, attended.

NEW CHINESE MINISTER

A Yale Graduate, Honest and Able, to Succeed Wu Ting Fang

Pekin, July 14.—Sir Lian Chen Tung, secretary of the Chinese embassy to the coronation of King Edward, was yesterday appointed Chinese minister to the United States.

New ministers to Russia, France and Italy have also been named. The selections for these posts show that the dowager empress continues to regard the diplomatic service as unimportant. None of the appointees is of higher than the blue button rank and none has held any important office. All of them, except Liang Chen Tung, are unknown to the foreign community.

Liang Chen Tung's appointment pleases the Americans here. The newly appointed diplomat was educated in America. He is a graduate of Yale university and is able, dignified and honest. He is the first of the body of students sent to America in the 70s to receive recognition befitting their accomplishments, the Chinese officials having disliked them because of their progressive views.

Wants Share of McKay Property

Washington, July 14.—Mrs. Jessie McKay, the divorced wife of Colonel Nathaniel McKay, who died last week, is in Washington and it is said will contest the will of her former husband when it is offered for probate. The will was made in this city last week. Provision is made for the daughters of the testator and for the second wife, who now lives in Chicago, and from whom he was also divorced. Colonel McKay conveyed the house here to his present wife. In addition to this Mrs. McKay, it is said, holds in her own name a number of valuable securities which belonged to the dead millionaire.

Christian Soldier Passes On

Yonkers, N. Y., July 14.—General Thomas J. Morgan, who has been ill with asthma here, died yesterday, aged 62. At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of brevet brigadier general. President Harrison made him commissioner of Indian affairs. General Morgan was secretary of the Home Mission society of the Baptist church.

Hope About Abandoned

Port Townsend, Wash., July 14.—Steamship Oregon, from Dutch Harbor July 4, brings no news from the missing steamers Portland and Jeanie, long overdue at Nome. Many searching vessels have returned with no tidings from the overdue steamers, and the belief becomes more certain that both have been crushed in the ice and that all on board have perished.

Railroads Yield on Main Issues

Chicago, July 14.—Eight of the railroads offer to concede two of the main issues of the freight handlers' controversy, pay for all overtime and no probation. The roads, however, refused to grant the demand for 18 cents an hour, but offered 17½ cents. The men offered to accept 17½ cents an hour and, it is believed, the proposition of the railroads will be accepted.

Man Hunt Still On

Seattle, Wash., July 14.—Notwithstanding the general belief that Tracy is on the verge of collapse, as the result of buckshot wounds and illness resulting from exposure in the wet brush, he managed to keep hidden from the officers yesterday. The hunt is being pushed with greater zeal than ever.

Motorman Lost Control

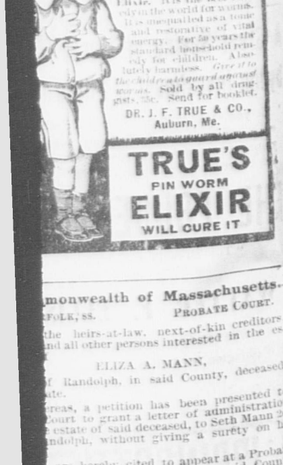

New York, July 14.—A trolley car in the Bronx got away from the control of the motorman yesterday and, jumping the track at the foot of a steep incline, left the tracks and crashed into an electric light pole. Of the 75 or more passengers on the car 10 were severely hurt.

America Supplanting Germany

Warsaw, July 14.—The agricultural societies of Poland are negotiating with American manufacturers direct for the purchase of machinery, excluding the German middlemen. This step is believed to be aimed at German machinery.

Good Afternoon.

The Norfolk county republican political fans are lining up on the commissionership. Mr. Wright of Quincy, the democratic member, who was elected last year, by the aid of republican ballots, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Wadsworth of Milton, deceased, wants a full term of three years, and he is wondering if the trick can be worked again. Messrs. Rich of Hyde Park and Badger of Quincy, who were prominent candidates in the republican convention last year, will again try for the nomination, and it is stated that Senator Fales of Norwood is in the hands of his friends and will not have to be coaxed to take the nomination if it should come his way.—Hyde Park Gazette.

The only man who can defeat Commissioner Wright this year must come from Quincy, and it is questioned if anyone can.

Quincy is to be congratulated that it has escaped a State assessment for the abolition of grade crossing, together with all its other assessments.

Drift of Opinion.

☞As the big seven-master slid into the water some one remarked that she "plunged" as gracefully as her namesake, to which a wag replied that it was quite natural for a boat named "Thomas W. Lawson" to "take to water." One who has such a ship named after him can well stand a joke or too.

☞That woman is responsible for three-fourths of all the sin, crime, and poverty of the entire world was the wholesale accusation brought against her recently by a reverend bishop in the middle west. We wish to record our disagreement with the condemnatory speaker, and in particular with one of his remarks regarding woman's responsibility as a mother. "To her man must leave the training of the boys and girls that are to be the fathers and mothers of the future. Shall woman be false, ungrateful, and traitorous to the trust that man has reposed in her?" Even in these days of Biblical criticism it is startling to be told that it was man who appointed woman to the honorable post of mother.—Harper's Weekly.

☞During the evolutions by the naval vessels next winter, the press of the country will be challenged to get news of the manœuvers in the best way it can. The fleet will be divided into two classes, invaders and defenders, but both divisions will regard the press boats as an "enemy," and afford them no facilities for getting news or furnish them with any accounts of the fighting. The press will not hesitate to accept the challenge, and the country will be kept fully informed concerning the operations of Admiral Dewey and his ships. Secretary Moody believes the plan will prove of value. It may bring to light some of the news "leak's" that have troubled the department. He proposes to see by practical test how effectively the naval forces can elude the vigilance of the correspondents, and guard the information which is desirable to keep secret in time of actual war. He has set for himself a stupendous task. It will cost a great deal for the newspapers to follow up the fleet, but it can be done, and Mr. Moody will have more than one surprise during his mimic war.—Lynn Item.

SITES OFFERED.

For the New Government Building at Quincy.

Three on Washington Street.

The Fourth, Corner of Hancock and Cottage Avenue.

Four locations are offered for the Federal building to be built at Quincy, as will be seen from the proposals which were opened at Washington on Saturday:

BY RICHARD NEWCOMB:

Washington street, corner Wibird street, 115 feet on Washington by 137 on Wibird, $12,000

BY BENJAMIN F. CURTIS:

Washington street, corner Elm street, 125 feet by 105 feet, $9,000

BY FRANK F. PRESCOTT:

Washington, corner Canal and Wibird streets, 114 on Washington, 134 on Canal and 137 on Wibird, 13,480 square feet, $6,200

Or, above lot with addition of Newcomb lot in rear, making 114 feet on Washington street, 174 on Canal street, and 190 on Wibird street, 16,628 square feet, $8,200

Or, above two lots, with addition of Cain lot at junction of Canal and Wibird streets, which would include the whole triangle bounded by Washington, Canal and Wibird streets, making 114 feet on Washington street, 278 feet on Canal street, and 286 feet on Wibird street, in all 20,078 square feet, $11,200

BY ABNER B. PACKARD:

Hancock street, near Cottage avenue, all dimensions indefinite, $18,950

Same location, all dimensions indefinite, 17,080

Same location, all dimensions indefinite, 21,414

Same location, all dimensions indefinite, 22,206

Same location, all dimensions indefinite, 12,000

In distance from the Quincy depot there is not much difference in at least three of the sites: Cottage avenue is 1500 feet by street line from the depot, the Richard Newcomb lot is 1352 feet, and the Prescott lot 1720 feet. The fourth location, the Curtis lot, is 2140 feet.

The Packard lot is the only site on Hancock street, while the other three are on Washington. While the former is now the main business street, the latter promises to rival it in the near future, because of the establishment of the Fore River shipyard and the development of the water front from Quincy Point to the present plant of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company at Brackett's wharf.

The Packard lot of the area desired—130 by 150 feet or 19,500 square feet—seems to be all out of the question unless the appropriation of $12,000 is increased. If an additional sum is voted by Congress, there are other lots which would be more desirable. Hancock street is narrow and congested at that point, and Cottage avenue is a narrow private way in wretched condition, which the city has repeatedly refused to widen, rebuild and accept.

The most sightly lot would be the Curtis estate at the corner of Washington and Elm streets. It is on an elevation and a government building located there would be sightly.

A more central location would be the Newcomb or the Prescott lot. The frontage of both on Washington street is practically the same, the former being enlarged to 115 feet and the latter measuring 114.3. The Newcomb lot, offered by the heirs, is larger than the front lot offered by Mr. Prescott, but Mr. Prescott also offers the whole triangle bounded by Washington, Canal and Wibird streets, which contains 20,078 square feet and has a frontage of 690 feet.

Both the Newcomb and the Prescott lots are above the level of the streets, and high and dry. Washington street is 49 feet wide, and the main thoroughfare between Boston and all the South Shore towns. Canal and Wibird streets are also wide city ways.

Postmaster Hammond has been interviewed. While non-committal for either lot he hopes that the site of the new building will be on or near the East Weymouth route of electric cars which now carry the mails between Quincy and North Weymouth, Weymouth Heights, Weymouth Centre and East Weymouth. There are four or five mails each way between these points. The East Weymouth line, with the exception of Houghs Neck, is the only one which runs to the depot.

With free delivery there is not that necessity of the post office being located on the most central and expensive lot in the city, but everyone will admit that it should be as central as possible for the $12,000 appropriated.

Proposals were also opened Saturday at Washington for federal building sites at Holyoke, Northampton and Amesbury. Holyoke is a city of 45,712 population, nearly twice as large as Quincy and the bids ranged between $15,000 and $41,000. Northampton is a city smaller than Quincy, and the bids ran between $10,000 and $18,000. Amesbury is a town of 9,473 population, and the bids ranged between $3,500 and $10,000.

Three Attempts at Suicide.

George Houghton was arrested Saturday by Officer Murray and locked up for drunkenness. Sunday while confined in a cell at the police station he attempted suicide. When discovered by Officer Goodhue he was hanging to one of the bars of the cell and was unconscious. He was cut down and City Physician Welch called.

Houghton made a rope of two handkerchiefs; one end he had fastened to the bars above the cell. The other end he had tied about his neck and then jumped from the bunk.

Later Officer Golden found him in the act of opening a clasp knife. This was taken away. It was now thought he was safe but he was not, for soon the officers found him on his bunk with a pillow held tightly over his face, trying to smother himself. A watch was then placed upon him. Houghton, who is about 53 years of age was arraigned in court this morning for drunkenness.

Lawn Party.

Miss Alice G. Coe of Billings street gave a pretty lawn party last week Friday evening in honor of her guest Miss Martha Nordine of New York. The yard was strung with Japanese lanterns and made inviting by hammocks and tete-a-tetes at every turn. During the evening three fire balloons were sent skyward followed by the report of a cracker of no small size. Bengola lights kept the entire lawn rosy and the charming gowns of the guests lent the scene a dash of life and color. Frappe and crackers were served during the evening, and everyone joined in singing coon and college songs, when the dampness made the house a necessity.

Tuning-Up.

The Flashlight built to try and bring back the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup is having daily trials. Sunday, off the club house, was the first view many of the club members, have had of the challenger, and therefore she was the subject of inspection. Her great beam, light draft and triple hull caused no end of astonishment. Henry M. Faxon was at the tiller and her crew comprised Arthur Keith, her designer, Harold B. Faxon, Frank F. Crane, Harry Crane and Mr. Morrison.

The Flashlight showed up well in the light breeze on her way out. Upon her return the breeze had freshened considerably and she went up the river at a great pace.

Servia Sees Designs on Throne

Vienna, July 14.—The marriage of Prince Mirko of Montenegro and Natalie Constantinovitch, cousin of the King of Servia, was celebrated Saturday at Settinje, the capital of Montenegro. Representatives of Italy, Russia, France, Turkey and Bulgaria were present. The Servian court was not represented, the Servian minister to Bulgaria having been ordered away for a holiday a few days previously in order to mark the King of Servia's disapproval of the match, which is held to aim at securing the Servian throne for Prince Mirko.

New Move In Gaynor-Greene Case

Washington, July 14.—Steps have been taken by the state department for the extradition to the United States of Gaynor and Greene, now under arrest at Quebec. A formal application for their extradition has been made by Secretary Hay to Mr. Raikes, charge of affairs of the British embassy. The grounds on which the extradition is asked are comprehensive in character. This action of the state department is independent of the proceedings now in progress to obtain the extradition of the men through ordinary judicial process.

Well Known In Literature

New York, July 14.—Mrs. Ada E. Leslie died yesterday at her home in this city after a lingering illness. She was born in 1846, and when only 16 years old was widely known by her writings in prose and verse. She married Alfred Leslie, a son of Frank Leslie. After his death Mrs. Leslie edited The Ladies' Bazar and a number of other periodicals. In recent years she assisted her sons in organizing the Leslie syndicate.

Death of Archbishop Feehan

Chicago, July 14.—Archbishop Patrick A. Feehan, for 22 years in charge of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, died Saturday afternoon. For more than a year the archbishop had been in poor health and for months all executive business of the church has been out of his hands. Dr. Feehan was born in Ireland in 1829, became archbishop in 1880 and had been a priest 46 years.

COUPLE ARRESTED.

Girl for Larceny and Latter for Receiving Property.

Annie O'Sullivan and Michael M. Murphy were placed under arrest Sunday by Officer McKay. The former for larceny of a lot of small wares, etc., from the family of Dr. Dion, and the latter for receiving stolen property.

The girl has been employed for some weeks in the family of Dr. Dion. Articles have been missed from time to time and the doctor had his suspicion that his domestic was helping herself to things that were not her own. He reported the matter to Officer Hinchon who found the girl at the house of William Ryan on Adams street. Murphy, who is a laborer on the Metropolitan sewer boarded at the same house. The girl denied all knowledge of the missing articles and told the officer to search her trunk. This he did and found some of the missing articles. Dr. Dion, however, refused to prosecute the girl.

Learning that the couple had ordered an expressman to come for their trunks and that they were about to leave town, Officer McKay placed them under arrest. When their trunks were searched a miscellaneous assortment of articles were found, including bedding, underwear, cut glass, silverware, linen, etc.

Murphy admitted that he and the woman had lived together on Tyler street, Boston, as man and wife. It is claimed that he has a wife and child in New York.

An inspector from Police headquarters Boston, looked the prisoners over Sunday, but did not recognize them. Among the articles found was an umbrella marked "Humphrey," Congress street, Boston. In court this morning they were held in $300 each until Wednesday.

Serious Fall.

Joseph Sullivan of Botolph street met with a serious accident last week Friday. He was tempted by a few ripe cherries in a tree in Thomas Gurney's yard, and the time being opportune, he climbed up and proceeded to quench his thirst for the fruit. While he was feasting, a sound startled him, and fearing detection he tried to descend. Haste causes disaster always, and Joseph lost his hold and fell heavily across a barb-wire fence, seriously injuring his lung. He is ill at his home where it is hoped he will recover.

Police Wanted.

A petition was circulated in Atlantic Saturday evening which called for police protection along the beach. The case was brought up on account of unseemly conduct Sunday afternoon, July 5, when two men, strangers in the town, devested themselves of raiment and sauntered into the water before a crowd of horrified spectators. These men did not content themselves with bathing alone, but took several promenades up and down the beach. Before a policeman could be called, the offenders were off and away, leaving no trace behind except consternation and footprints.

Accident.

A Boston paper reports Dr. P. K. Brown of Granite street, East Milton, formerly of West Quincy, to have been seriously injured on Dorchester avenue, South Boston, Saturday afternoon, being thrown from his carriage through a collision with a Dorchester car. The horse ran away and Dr. Brown was thrown out, receiving injuries to his left arm and leg.

There was very heavy travel Sunday on all lines of the street railway. On the Nantasket line it was necessary to run three cars on nearly every trip. Two cars were run on every trip on the Brockton line, and two to seven cars on the Houghs Neck line. It was also necessary to double up on many trips on the other lines.

Saturday evening quite a crowd collected at Remick's pavillion on Granite street, to listen to the music by a hurdy gurdy, which was stationed in the rear for about two hours. If we cannot have band concerts, music of this kind is appreciated. Come around next Saturday evening, and hear the next attraction.

Ferguson's bread team, drawn by two horses, started to runaway this morning while left standing in the rear of Remick's restaurant. Driver Jones proved himself equal to the emergency, for he rushed out, and springing in front of the animals, brought them to stop. No damage was done with the exception of quite a number of pies being dropped in the street.

Blue Flame Oil Stoves.

What's the sense of getting all over heated three times a day during the summer, cooking over a red hot range, paying panic prices for coal, digging out ashes and making life generally miserable for yourself because your kitchen is hot-hot-hot.

How much more sensible to own a Blue Flame Oil Stove. With it you can do your whole summer's cooking, and when in operation it costs only a penny an hour. Life is short at best and if you don't enjoy a few of such comforts as these, why of course no one is to blame but yourself.

2 Burner Stoves, $5.75 and $7.00.

THE MAYOR FIRST

But Allowance Gives Him Second Place in Race.

Open Regatta of Squantum Club.

Many Entries and Very Successful in every Way.

To the Squantum Yacht club belongs the honor of holding the first race for gasolene launches, sailed in Massachusetts. The race was sailed Saturday under the new rudder handicap rule and caused a great deal of interest. There were eleven starters in this class. Mayor Bryant sailed the Mildred and he led the fleet over the course and finished first, but he had to allow so much time on account of the large engines of the Mildred that he was accorded second place, the first money going to A. H. Taber's Marjorie.

The Squantum club has not so large a field for contestants as some of the other clubs but it was fortunate in having a large number of entries for its open race. There was a fairly good wholesail westerly breeze. It was at times puffy and several minor mishaps resulted to light rigged boats.

The course was twice around a triangle for the 21-foot class, the 18-foot yachts, 18-foot knockabouts, and once around for the club handicap class. This gave all classes a broad reach on the first leg, a close reach on the second, and a beat home.

The 21 footers were started at 3.15 the Micmac crossing the line at the leeward with a good lead. The balance of the class crossed in a bunch. The Micmac held her lead over half of the first leg when she was passed by the Rooster, Chloris and Little Haste. The Chlrois led at the first mark with Little Haste second, Rooster third, and Micmac fourth. The Chloris rounded the second mark first with the Rooster a good second. The Chloris kept on the port tack for a long hitch to the open water. The Little Haste and Rooster made a short tack and passed the Chloris, the Little Haste winning the leg. The Thecla had an accident to her steering geer after rounding the second mark, and withdrew.

On the second round the wind changed a bit, making it possible to use spinnakers. The Chloris stood well to the windward and passed the Rooster before the latter had set hers. She then pulled up two minutes on the Little Haste, the Rooster being a minute behind her at the Moon Island flag. The order remained the same to Nut Island, the Little Haste was simply running from the rest of the fleet.

Just after rounding for the beat home the Chloris broke her tiller head and withdrew. The Micmac also had an accident at the same point, carrying away her peak halliards, and fell behind the fleet before she could repair the damage.

The finish was like a procession, the Little Haste beat the Rooster five minutes, the Opitsah taking third place with a margin of five minutes over the Perhaps, and the Rambler was five minutes later.

The Mililllian and Tokalon won the race in Class I. There was a close and exciting start, the Biza crossed with a slight lead over the Mililllian and Tokalon. The Ayaya was across the line when the gong sounded and had to return. This caused her a loss of three minutes, yet she pulled up with the bunch and passed all but the Mililllian.

In Class T, the Lobster, Zoe and Wawenock had it all to themselves. The latter boat was disabled and the Lobster won.

Sixteen started in the handicap class and all finished. The Eclipse made the quickest time over the course, but had to take fourth place on corrected time.

Beautiful Sea Coast.

From the time when the Mayflower first weighed anchor in a New England port, and the staid old Puritans set foot upon her shores, the popularity of New England's coast as a summer resort was assured.

The charms of New England's sea coast are so diversified, the scenery so wild and beautiful and the climatic conditions so favorable, that one is at a loss where to start in commending about this gifted territory.

The historic and picturesque portions have also quite an important place in the attractions of New England's seaboard, and many an old legend or poem is recalled at the glimpse of a Cape Ann fisherman, the Marblehead cliffs or the famous old city of Salem.

Aside from the natural beauty and picturesque spots on the Atlantic coast, this portion has another attribute which is peculiar only to Northern New England, namely the delightful coolness which pervades this section even during the hottest months.

Thus when one considers the many advantages which Northern New England has over the rest of the country, it is no wonder she is looked upon as the premier vacation coast. The hotels are the finest in the country, and the patronage comprises the wealthiest and best class of the American people.

The train connections along the coast from Boston are admirable, and the additional and improved train service between Bar Harbor and coast of Maine points and New York City, has greatly added to the comfort of the visitors from that secton.

You may travel abroad, or search throughout the country for a more delightful watering place, but your quest will be in vain, for in all this world for comfort, pleasure and beauty, the length of sea coast between the rocky cliffs of Marblehead and the towering mountain peaks which stand guard over the historic isle of Mt. Desert and its summer paradise, Bar Harbor, is without an equal.

The descriptive pamphlet "All Along Shore," which will prove useful in selecting a seaside resort, will be mailed by the Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for a two-cent stamp. "New England Seashore" is the title of a portfolio made up of thirty half tone reproductions of photographs illustrating coast views, and will be mailed upon receipt of six-cents in stamps.

One of the most exciting ball games of the season was that on the American League grounds, Boston, Saturday, between the Dorchesters and West Quincys. It was a close game throughout and was not won until the last man was retired in the ninth. At the opening of the ninth innings the score stood 5 to 3 in favor of Dorchester.

Quincy scored one run. With one man out and three men on bases, excitement ran high. All West Quincy could do was to strike out.

Adkins, who had been given his release by the Boston Americans, pitched for West Quincy two innings and held Dorchester down to one hit.

Dorchester scored its first run in the fourth, two more in the fifth and two more in the seventh, a base on balls and a home run by Hathaway.

It was not until the fourth innings that West Quincys scored; then added two in the eighth and one in the ninth.

The West Quincys and Dorchesters are old rivals and it was hoped that the West Quincys might win out. There was a large crowd of Quincy people present to cheer on their team.

Old South Lectures.

The Old South lectures for young people for the present summer will begin on Wednesday afternoon, July 16. This will be the twentieth season of these lectures which were founded by Mrs. Mary Hemenway. The general subject of this year's course is to be "How the United States Grew," the several lectures being as follows: "The Old Thirteen Colonies," by Hon. John D. Long; "George Rogers Clark and the Northwest Territory," by Prof. Albert B. Hart; "How Jefferson Bought Louisiana from Napoleon," by Rev. George Hodges; "The Story of Florida," by Rev. William Elliot Griffin; "The Lone Star State," by Hon. John L. Bates; "The Oregon Country," by Rev. Samuel A. Elliot; "The Mexican War and What Came of It," by Prof. F. Spencer Baldwin; "Alaska in 1867 and 1902," by Mr. George G. Wolkins. These Old South lectures, as is well known, are by Mrs. Hemingway's generous provision, entirely free to all the young people of Boston and the neighborhood. A ticket will be sent to any person under twenty applying in his own handwriting and enclosing stamp, to the Directors of the Old South Work Old South Meeting House, Boston. Free tickets are also given to all teachers.

Died of Tetanus.

Arthur W., the 12 year old son of Joseph R. Hathaway, died at his home in Braintree on Saturday of tetanus. July 4, the young man received a wound in his hand by the explosion of a fire cracker. A physician dressed the wound and it was apparently healing all right. Last Thursday symptoms of tetanus appeared and a specialist was called in. He was unable to do anything and the boy died in great agony on Saturday.

CRUSADE TO STOP KISSING.

Society Organized by Sixteen Northwestern University Students.

Following the teachings of Professor Algie R. Crook, the man who never was kissed, kissing has been voted "vulgar, demoralizing and unnecessary in respectable courtships" by sixteen Northwestern university students, men and women, who have formed the Antiosculation society, says a special from Chicago to the New York World. Here is the pledge taken by the members:

Realizing that kissing is very demoralizing and detrimental, but still delicious, and that it is exclusive and contagious, we, the undersigned students of Northwestern university, following the example of our much beloved Professor Algie R. Crook, solemnly swear that we will refrain from all kissing.

Professor Crook, who inspired the idea, has been elected an honorary member of the organization. The words he let fall in his unusual claims to virtue have had a subtle influence on the students at the university and are responsible for the present sudden opposition to kissing. Strange to say, a group of coeds are at the bottom of the conspiracy to discourage the osculatory endeavors of the young men. The men are less enthusiastic, but from force of circumstances were brought into the movement.

To assist the antiosculators in keeping their pledges fasting is absolutely prohibited, and a hearty diet is recommended on the theory that love cannot flourish except on bread and water. Hugging and "googoo eyes" are not tabooed by the society, although members are not permitted to hold conversations over five minutes in length in couples. Boating is allowable provided four persons are in the boat, and to carry out this regulation the society always takes in four new members at a time, maintaining the total membership at some multiple of four.

To be eligible to membership in the Antikissing league a person must be between the ages of sixteen and thirty, good looking, with a past experience in the art of osculation and a student of Northwestern university. The organization was completed the other night at the residence of Miss Charlotte Phillips of Chicago.

BEARPROOF WAGONS.

Style of Vehicles For Transporting Meat In Yellowstone Park.

Bears are more numerous in Yellowstone park this year than ever before, says a dispatch from Mammoth Hot Springs to the St. Paul Dispatch. Among the objects of interest the bearproof meat wagons used to transport meat over the mountain roads to the park hotels occasion no little comment. On first sight they are taken for government ammunition wagons, as they are built along bombproof lines. The wagon beds are about three feet high and covered with heavy sheet iron, iron gratings on the ends providing ventilation.

The bears are so numerous that these wagons have become a necessity. An ordinary wagon bed with a wooden box would be torn to pieces in a single night and the meat taken or carried away. It is doubtful if even these bearproof wagons would withstand the test if exposed too long, owing to the ingenuity and great strength of the animals.

Change In Diamond Fashions.

The diamond importation was greater during May than in any previous year, and at no period have more fine and more very large stones been imported. Within the last few years more attention than ever has been paid to the quaint and fanciful cutting of all precious stones, the diamond included, says the London Board of Trade Journal, and where ten years ago scarcely any other forms than the "brilliant" and the "rose" in diamonds were used during the last year there has been a great demand for stones that are "pear shaped," "marquise," "briolette;" also for table cut stones in all forms—triangular, circular, hexagonal and in the double rose form also, and a modification of the last form has been patented.

Land Given as a Premium.

The Saratoga county clerk's office is flooded with deeds given by Walter E. Kelton to residents of Ballston, N. Y., and Schenectady for lots in Clifton Park, south of Ballston, says the New York Times. The land is given away with two pounds of coffee. Already fifty lots have been disposed of in this way, and more are being sold every day. It is said that a wager of $1,000 was made that the land could not be sold in three months, so it is being given as a premium.

CITY BREVITIES.

There will be no meeting of the City Council tonight. The regular meeting will be next Monday evening.

The Holbrook band gave concerts at Houghs Neck Sunday afternoon and evening. There was an unusually large crowd at the beach all day.

The Quincy Tennis club will hold on Saturday a tournament for singles on the Whitney road courts for all members of the club who have never won a prize in a tennis tournament.

It begins to look like something at City Hall. The lathing has commenced and order is appearing. The wiring for the electric lights has been completed and the telephone system is being installed.

The Exile of Juvenal.

Juvenal first recited his satires in public at eighty. He was supposed to have attacked the actor Paris, the favorite of Domitian; was sent to Egypt to command a cohort of infantry and died of vexation at this honorable exile.

Arctic Cities.

Nearly all of Norway and Sweden are in the same latitude as Alaska. St. Petersburg, Stockholm and Christiania are all in a higher latitude than either Sitka or Juneau. Iceland sustains its hardy population in a region similar to that around Cape Nome and in about the same latitude.

Seashells.

More than seventy kinds of shells are to be found on the seashore at Tenby, Wales.

Big Arizona.

Arizona exceeds in area the following ten states: Rhode Island, Delaware, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, Maryland, West Virginia and South Carolina.

Smallpox Mortality.

The mortality in smallpox epidemics usually rauges from 20 to 35 per cent of the cases.

Pharaoh's Fate.

The Pharaoh of the Book of Genesis was long supposed to have been drowned in the Red sea, but examinations of his mummy showed that he had been killed by having his skull split open.

Canada's Forests.

It is estimated that Canadian forests will furnish wood for the pulp industry for 840 years.

Antiquity of Glass.

Glass, as far as research has been able to determine, was in use 2,000 years before the birth of Christ and was even then not in its infancy. In the state collection at the British museum there is the head of a lion molded in glass bearing the name of an Egyptian king of the eleventh dynasty.

The Serpentine Horn.

The Italian peasantry have a horn called the serpentine, which is made of wood and leather and has six finger holes.

Musicians and Poets.

In great musicians, as in great poets, the gift of genius usually manifests itself at an early age. Mozart and Keats are only brilliant examples of what may be called a general law.

Drain Pipes.

Drain pipes that have become foul may be purified with carbolic acid or chloride of lime, but it is a good plan to first pour down some hot, strong soda water to dissolve any grease that may adhere to them.

Man's Strength.

The average man is at his weakest, from a muscular point of view, when he rises in the morning. His strength is greater after the midday meal.

The Moon.

Everybody who has ever looked at the moon with a telescope knows that it is a wonderful world of extinct volcanoes. We have upon the earth no craters to be compared with the giants of the moon, some of which are fifty or sixty miles in diameter.

Yield of the Cocoon.

It has been shown that the cocoon of a silkworm will yield a thread 1,000 yards or three-fifths of a mile long.

Camels In Africa.

Camels flourish only in the dry parts of Africa. Some years ago a caravan of these animals was loaded with goods near Zanzibar and started for Lake Tanganyika, but not one lived to see the lake.

St. Louis.

Louis IX., the saint after whom the city of St. Louis is named, died of the plague while on a crusade in Africa.

A Japanese Trick.

One of the tricks of Japanese jugglers is to put an egg on a long, slender stick, let it roll down to near the farther end, then raise that end and let the swaying elliptoid roll back into the hands.

Three Sided Houses.

Many Porto Rican houses have only three sides, one being left out to give access to the air. Rain comes down so straight that no harm results from this arrangement.

IT IS PREMIER BALFOUR

Commons Leader Named to Succeed Salisbury

NEW BLOOD IN CABINET

Likely to Be Created by Elevation of Some of Present Ministers to the Peerage—Position of Chamberlain Is the Most Discussed Feature

London, July 14.—The fact of the resignation of the premiership of Great Britain by Lord Salisbury was officially given out last evening. The prime minister laid down the responsibility of his office July 11 and received the commendation of his sovereign. He was able to discharge the weighty, exacting duties of the position through periods amounting to national crises. Within 24 hours the king elevated A. J. Balfour, the government's chief representative in the house of commons, to the position of premier.

While it was expected in official and political circles that Lord Salisbury's retirement would be coincident with the coronation of King Edward, it was scarcely looked for prior to that event. Consequently, about the only surprise expressed as the news spread through London concerned the date, rather than the fact, of the resignation. The real interest was not so much in reference to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal as it was in the appointment of his successor.

The liveliest speculation is rife as to the personnel of the new cabinet. The most discussed feature of the pending change is the position of Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, who, in many quarters, has been regarded the most promising candidate for the premiership.

Although Lord Salisbury's resignation does not necessarily involve the reconstruction of the cabinet, it is believed the occasion will be taken to make some changes. It is not considered unlikely that some of the ministers will be made peers in order to make room for new blood in the cabinet. It has been the idea that Balfour would be elevated to the peerage, leaving Chamberlain to lead the house of commons, the notion being that this arrangement would be the best to conciliate the divergent interests of the cabinet; but it is understood that, for the present, Balfour will continue to lead the commons.

A representative of The Associated Press learns that prior to the acceptance of his new office Balfour first had an interview with Chamberlain and then consulted his other cabinet associates. This is regarded as assurance that the future relative positions of Balfour and Chamberlain will be satisfactory to both. Chamberlain's friends say he always recognized the reversion of the premiership to be Balfour's right as government leader in the house of commons.

As to Lord Salisbury's withdrawal, the main reason is considered by practically all the best informed persons to have simply been a desire for a quiet life on the part of a man advanced in years, whose activities have been unusual, and whose scientific tastes predisposes him to study and seclusion. That the retiring premier' health has failed to some extent is undeniable; but this is not more than, perhaps, is to be expected in a man of his years, and the close of the war in South Africa and the return of the commanding general there is considered to be an appropriate time for his withdrawal.

The retirement of this last great statesman of the Victorian age is universally regarded as the transition from one generation to another and as marking the close of an era in the national life.

Will Remain on Good Terms

Washington, July 14.—The appointment of Mr. Balfour to the English premiership will not result in any change in the existing relations between Great Britain and the United States. This is the opinion of state department officials, who express the opinion that Mr. Balfour will be as much disposed, as was Lord Salisbury, to continue the friendly relations between the two countries.

Viewed as a Natural Event

Paris, July 14.—The Paris papers regard the resignation of Lord Salisbury as a natural event and look upon the succession of Mr. Balfour as insuring no awkward change of policy. The Gaulois says: "Lord Salisbury may congratulate himself upon leaving the country at the summit of its proud aspirations."

Italy's Hope

Rome, July 14.—Lord Salisbury's resignation of the British premiership has produced here a feeling of regret, tempered with the hope that the relations between Great Britain and Italy, which grew cooler under the retiring premier, will, under Mr. Balfour, resume their ancient cordiality.

Rejected Lover's Crime

Trenton, July 14.—Charles McCormick, aged 38, is locked up here charged with shooting 16-year-old Lillie Lane. The shooting was the result of the girl's refusal to receive attention from McCormick. Two shots took effect in the girl's breast and arm.

King Ready For Journey

London, July 14.—The progress of King Edward toward recovery is maintained, and it is understood that he will be transferred to the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at Portsmouth at noon tomorrow.

PASTOR DREW'S TROUBLES

Augmented by Being Bodily Fired From St Paul's Church

Boston, July 14.—An exciting scene was enacted at St. Paul's Baptist church (colored) at the close of yesterday morning's services, when, as the culmination of troubles that have for some time existed between a portion of the society and the former pastor, Rev. Simon P. W. Drew, the latter was thrown bodily from the church by half a dozen constables.

A faction of the church has been trying to have Drew resign but he has defied their attempts and has had quite a number of supporters. On account of financial difficulties in the society the Boston Baptist City Mission society acts as trustee of the church and yesterday's meeting was held under their direction with Dr. R. J. Adams of Cambridge as the preacher.

Mr. Drew applied to Judge Bell Saturday for an injunction to prevent the holding of yesterday's services, but the injunction was not granted, and it was in view of warnings that an attempt would be made to break up the meeting that the trustee society installed a force of half a dozen constables on the rostrum.

Mr. Drew occupied a seat in the auditorium and interrupted the sermon several times by attempting to assert his alleged rights, and intimated that he would not leave the church unless he was forcibly removed. Objection was made to the presence of the constables on the platform, andd they finally took positions in the body of the church. Then matters remained quiet until the close of services. At that time the request was made that everyone should leave the church and all complied except the defiant pastor and the constables, the congregation, as they passed out, lining up in the street awaiting developments.

They soon came in the form of Drew, who made a forcible exit from the front door and landed on the sidewalk with the constables upon him. His hat was knocked off, while his personal appearance indicated that he had not been ejected without a struggle. When he had regained his feet he attempted to address the crowd, but his remarks were drowned by hisses and jeers and he quickly took his departure while the crowd dispersed.

Coal Strike Crisis Near

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 14.—The 10th week of the great anthracite miners' strike may witness the crisis. Everything now depends on the national convention which meets at Indianapolis Thursday. If the convention votes solid support to the hard coal miners now on strike the conflict with the operators may be prolonged indefinitely. On the other hand, should substantial support not be forthcoming, it may have a discouraging effect on the strikers, and the operators, taking advantage of it, may attempt to resume operations at some of the collieries. This is the concensus of opinion as expressed in operators and strikers' circles.

Pelee Again Causes Alarm

Fort de France, July 14.—Saturday night and Sunday Mt. Pelee was in eruption. Morne Rouge, Ajoupa Bouillon and Macedonia were covered with stones and cinders and were rendered uninhabitable for several hours. The volcano emitted a dense column of flame and at the same time electrical phenomena were observed. The eruption was accompanied by deep rumbling, resembling continuous thunder. There were no fatalities reported, but the inhabitants of the northern part of the island were panic-stricken.

Emmanuel Visiting Nicholas

St. Petersburg, July 14.—Emperor Nicholas II, the czarowitch, cabinet ministers and a number of officers greeted King Victor Emmanuel of Italy upon his arrival at the railway station here yesterday. A guard of honor escorted their majesties to the palace, where the czarina and dowager empress welcomed King Victor. A banquet in honor of the royal guest was given last night.

Farmers Suffer by Strike

Carbondale, Ills., July 14.— Fruit and vegetable growers in southern Illinois are much alarmed over the strike of the freight handlers in Chicago. Thousands of dollars' worth of tomatoes are rotting in the fields. Much fruit is ripening and will be in marketable condition during the present week.

Annual Fire at Salisbury Beach

Amesbury, Mass., July 14.—Salisbury Beach was visited by fire yesterday, 28 buildings being destroyed, causing a loss of from $30,000 to $40,000. Two summer hotels and several cottages and stores were burned. This is the third consecutive year that fire has caused a heavy loss at this resort.

Rathbone at Cincinnati

Cincinnati, July 14.—E. G. Rathbone, late director general of posts in Cuba, arrived here yesterday. To all inquiries of newspaper men Mr. Rathbone replied he had nothing further to say regarding Cuban affairs than what he had set forth in his petition to congress for a full investigation.

Concessions on Both Sides

St. Paul, July 14.—Four hundred boiler makers and helpers on the Great Northern railway system, who went on strike for higher wages six weeks ago, returned to work this morning. The strike was settled by concessions on both sides.

SPORTING NOTES.

George Davis is leading the American league shortstops in fielding, but his batting is under .300.

Johnny Mack has posted a forfeit of $1,000 to bind a match between "Kid" McFadden of California and any other 122 pounder in the business.

The green pacer Direct Hal holds the track record for the season at Glenville, O. He showed a mile recently in 2:08½, with the last half in 1:03¾.

One of the fastest and handsomest trotters at the Indianapolis track is Budd Doble's Kinney Lou, the green son of McKinney, 2:11¼, and Mary Lou, 2:17.

The famous Carteret Gun club of New York has followed the example of the trusts and located in New Jersey. New Jersey gives no protection to the birds.

Peter Maher's recent showing against Fred Russell, the western heavyweight, has convinced the Irishman that he has outlived his usefulness as a pugilist.

Seven hundred automobile licenses have been issued in Chicago, but only seventy machines were scheduled for taxation. This is the first time on record that an automobilist ever dodged anything.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

The pongee corsets rival the white net styles in favor for summer.

Delicate transparent sailor collars, yokes and vests are to be worn extensively this season.

Many of the gowns prepared for afternoon wear are in black and white silk or French muslin.

Dunstable straws, rushes, alder stems and other rustic braids loosely woven or lace plaited are in great demand both here and abroad.

One of the season's latest jackets that has already proved a favorite is the Monte Carlo or Kimona coat, fashioned in silk, pongee, veiling or canvas, lined with colored silk and trimmed with lace or embroidered bands.

Linens of every description are in good taste. By French tailors they are made into fairly long skirts heavily strapped, and these are worn either with skirted Russian blouses, the shorter Gibson waists or Eton blouses, with Irish lace collars attached.

One of the new summer skirt models designed for veiling, muslin, etamine and other soft delicate goods is a flaring five gored style with applied folds in tucked effect reaching almost the entire length of the skirt, although any desired number may be used.—New York Post.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Mariano Beulliure has been commissioned to make the statue of Alfonso XII. to be erected by the Spanish army.

Jules Verne has received from the Boys' Empire league of England a gold headed cane in recognition of the entertainment its members have derived from his stories.

Mrs. Marcia Fletcher is probably the oldest active poet living. She is ninety and has lived for sixty years in the same house at Claremont, N. H. She writes verse almost daily and with unabated vigor.

Dudley Hardy, president of the London Sketch club, has been making visits to various places of interest on the north coast of France. His studies in water colors of the fisher and peasant folk are now shown in one of the London galleries.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

U. S. Jackson of Boston has invented a device to secure privacy on the telephone.

Among new surgical instruments is a steam saw for removing diseased parts of the liver.

An eleven foot torpedo boat, built for one man, has been invented by Thomas J. Moriarty of Newport, R. I.

A Hamburg engineer has invented a life saving apparatus the size and shape of an ordinary pocketbook and weighing only one and a third ounces. The action of the water on the contents explodes a small cartridge which generates gas sufficient to enable the apparatus to sustain almost two hundredweight.

PULPIT AND PEW.

The revised constitution of the Swedish Baptist church in Iowa forbids all its members from belonging to secret societies.

Rev. Charles V. La Fontaine, pastor of the Ada Street Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago, is supervisor of the first public church playgrounds in that city. He originated the idea.

Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., lives at Elmington, one of the most beautiful estates in Virginia. King Powhatan lived near his home, and here it was, says tradition, that Pocahontas saved the life of Captain John Smith.

AUSTIN'S LATEST.

Alfred Austin's ode is not disappointing. It is fully as bad as could have been expected.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The chances are that if King Edward can survive Alfred Austin's latest ode he will somehow manage to get well.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Why not speak a good word for Alfred Austin? His coronation ode contains nothing that could bring the faintest blush to the cheek of modesty. —Washington Star.

WILL BE A HARD TASK

For Umpires to Decide the Coming Game of War

THE AWARDING OF VICTORY

Will Be Rendered Difficult Because of Probable Situations Open to Vigorous Dispute by Army and Naval Forces Participating

Washington, July 15.—Plans are materializing for the naval movements which will precede the joint army and naval maneuvers this autumn. The arrangements have been placed entirely in the hands of Rear Admiral Higginson, and he is expected soon to settle matters of general detail, such as the limits within which the "enemy's" ships may attack, the selection of a commander for the "enemy's forces" and the selection of the ships which will compose the attacking squadron.

An interesting part of the work in both sets of maneuvers will be that assigned to the "umpires." Officers will be assigned to each of the ships in the naval maneuvers and to both ships and fortifications in the joint exercises to act as judges, and it is understood that the final decision in the greater maneuvers as to whether the army or the navy has been victorious will be rendered by a board of high ranking officers from both branches of the service, probably headed by Admiral Dewey.

The task of the individual judges will not be an easy one, for the entire scheme of the exercises is to be based on probity. For instance, a battleship steams up past one of the Staten Island forts in the dead of night. A searchlight flashes out into the blackness from the fort, finds her, and the gunners ashore train their big weapons to blow her out of the water. Did the searchlight find her in time to have prevented deadly work if it had been real war? Were the guns in the fort trained on her with the requisite precision, or can she be considered as having run the gauntlet and as flying up the sound to shell the metropolis? This is but a sample of what may be expected in the way of situations open to vigorous dispute from both sides.

As soon as General MacArthur takes hold at New York it is expected that he will co-operate with Rear Admiral Higginson in drawing up a complete and definite plan for the game of war between the army and the navy which begins the latter part of August.

The plans of the joint maneuvers are lagging a little, owing to the fact that General Brooke will turn over the command of the department of the east in a few days to General MacArthur and not until the latter takes hold of the arrangements for the army's participation in the maneuvers are the plans expected to take definite shape.

The battleship Kearsarge, Alabama and Massachusetts of the north Atlantic squadron, which have been laid up for repairs at the New York navy yard for some weeks, are ready to put to sea. Rear Admiral Higginson will transfer his flag from the Olympia back to the Kearsarge and the squadron immediately will begin active work in target practice, drills, maneuvers and evolutions in order to increase its present proficiency, and also with a view to fitting itself for the coming maneuvers.

Provincial Mines Raise Prices

Halifax, July 15.—The coal companies in Cape Breton have advanced the price of bunker coal 50 cents a ton. Many steamers from the southern states for Europe, unable to bunker at Norfolk, are forced to go to Sydney for their coal, owing to the miners' strike in the United States, and the coal companies have taken advantage of the opportunity offered.

An Unlooked-for Flood

Des Moines, July 15.—A cloudburst at Whatcheer last night washed away nine buildings, entailing a loss of $25,000. A wall of water four feet high came rushing down a dry run in the heart of the city at 3 o'clock. Residents barely had time to escape with their lives and were unable to save any property.

ACCIDENT TO ILLINOIS

May Cause Abandonment of Cruise In the Baltic Sea

Washington, July 15.—The navy department has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Crowninshield, stating that the battleship Illinois ran aground yesterday while entering Christiana harbor. The admiral said that both engines were backed, but not in time to prevent the disaster, and that the Illinois will have to be docked for repairs.

Christiana, July 15.—While the Illinois was standing into the harbor, leading the squadron yesterday, her steering gear failed and her helm jammed hard to starboard with the ship headed straight for the shore. Both anchors were let go and her engines were backed promptly. But the port anchor chain parted, the ship struck an obstruction and a hole was punched in her bottom. Two small compartments filled with water, the crew were piped to collision quarters and the watertight doors were closed. The rest of the squadron stood into the inner harbor. The Illinois was eventually backed off and anchored safely.

Rear Admiral Crowninshield will probably shift his flag to the Chicago, and the remainder of the proposed Baltic cruise may be abandoned.

Waller's Tribute to Soldiers

Norfolk, July 15.—The presentation of a sword to Major Waller of the marine corps by the citizens of Norfolk, his native home, in the Academy of Music last night was marked in its simplicity. During Major Waller's speech he said: "I fear that in honoring me you have overlooked the officers and men who shared the hardships and trials with me. I wish you could have seen the enlisted men at times when the odds were as high as 80 to 1 against us. Bleeding, starving and dying, they pushed forward without murmur, without whimper. Such soldiers the world has never seen before."

Famous Monument Collapses

Venice, July 15.—The campanile of St. Mark's church collapsed yesterday and fell with a great crash into the piazza. The campanile, which was entirely detached from the cathedral, fell where it stood, and is now a heap of ruins. Fortunately, premonitory signs of collapse allowed a partial clearance of the piazza, and, consequently, there were no fatalities. It was upon the top of the campanile, the beautiful bell tower of St. Mark's, built in 888, that Galileo, in 1609, set up the first telescope, and there studied the stars. The tower was 40 feet square at the base and 350 feet high.

Measles on Training Ship

Newport News, Va., July 15.—Three cases of measles among the 300 apprentices on board the United States training ship Lancaster, now off Fortress Monroe, caused the vessel to go into quarantine yesterday. The disease is said to be of a mild type. The Lancaster was under orders to sail for Tompkinsville, N. Y., today and her departure is now delayed indefinitely.

World's Record For Green Horse

Detroit, July 15.—C. J. Hamlin's black pacer Direct Hal, with Ed Geers in the sulky, made the opening of the Detroit Driving club's blue ribbon meeting memorable by winning the first heat of the Chamber of Commerce $5000 stake in the record time of 2:06 3-4. This is a world's record for the first winning heat of a green horse.

Lynching Almost Certain

Lafayette, Ga., July 15.—A posse yesterday captured a negro after seriously wounding him. The negro is thought to be the one who assaulted Mrs. Phipps near Lafayette and hundreds of people are gathering here awaiting the arrival of the prisoner. In the event of identification it is not probable that lynching can be avoided.

Spooner Visits President

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 15.—The visit of Senator Spooner to Sagamore Hill excites much interest here. Secretary Cortelyou said that he could say nothing of the details of the matters discussed. It is known, however, that the conference dealt with the question of the title to the Panama Canal company's property.

Journey to Arctic Begun

New York, July 15.—The Peary relief ship Windward finished loading her supplies last evening and sailed away. The Windward will go direct to Sydney, C. B., where she will take on coal and then head for the Arctic region. Mrs. Peary and her daughter will join the ship at Sydney.

Jeanie and Portland Safe

Vancouver, B. C., July 15.—The steamer Melville Dollar from Cape Nome passed up to Ladysmith yesterday. She reported that the steamer Jeanie and Portland had arrived safely at noon.

Charged With Poisoning

Carmel, N. Y., July 15.—John Valstedt, a well-to-do citizen of Brewster, was yesterday committed here to await trial on a charge of causing the death of John Anderson of Brewster by administering strychnine. Valstedt is said to have held a note for several hundred dollars against Anderson, and also had a policy for $700 on Anderson's life. A constable and posse who pursued him found Valstedt lying under a tree with his wrists cut in an apparent effort to commit suicide. Valstedt denies that he killed Anderson, and refuses to explain why he wished to take his own life.

HITCH ON HALF A CENT PER HOUR.

The Chicago Strike Situation Extremely Grave—Costing a Million a Day.

Chicago, July 15.—While the wholesale business of this city is almost completely paralyzed, and while its business men are suffering a loss of $1,000,000 a day, the striking freight handlers and the railroads are in a deadlock and announce their determination to fight to the finish over the question of ½ a cent an hour a man, or a total of about $500 for every 24 hours, this sum being divided on one side between 24 railroads and on the other between 10,000 men.

The situation is more serious than at any time since the commencement of the trouble, and at no time since the walk-out have the points at issue been so obstinately maintained. Three times yesterday the freight handlers sent committees to meet the general managers and three times they came back without result.

President Curran announced that the fight was on to a finish and that hereafter, when the railroads had any overtures to make, or wished to do any business with their employes, that they would be compelled to transact such business through the officers of the Freight Handlers' union. Both sides now declare they have reached the limit and that absolutely nothing will be conceded.

To bring about an end to the blockade which is maintained by the strikers and the teamsters the commission men of South Water street met yesterday to take matters into their own hands. It was out of the question for the employers to look to the teamsters to drive to the depots, and they, therefore, determined to drive their own wagons to the depots today and remove from them all the goods that had been consigned to them, much of which is being rapidly ruined. A message was sent to Mayor Harrison asking is police protection would be given them, and the word was received that ample protection would be afforded.

During the day the officials of the Erie road sent a communication to Chief of Police O'Neil saying they had been informed that merchants in the city were preparing to deliver freight to the freight houses of the Erie railroad and demanding that the police furnish them protection while it was being done.

The letter was referred to Corporation Counsel Walker, who declared that it was the duty of the police to furnish such protection, and the Erie people were informed that protection would be given them.

Charges of bad faith are numerous between President Curran of the Freight Handlers' union, Secretary Driscoll of the Chicago arbitration board and some of the managers. These triangular accusations were made after the various committees appointed had gone to the railroad managers with an amended schedule of wages and with power to act.

The strike reached the rioting stage last evening and it was only after the police had charged upon the crowd repeatedly and arrested 11 men that a semblance of order was restored. Eight policemen who were sent with two teams from the Western Electric company to the St. Paul freight house were unable to extricate the drivers from the pocket into which they were forced by angry teamsters. A riot call was responded to by several wagons of patrolmen and after a fierce conflict with the obstructing crowd the wagons were rescued and the drivers, bruised by missiles, were able to reach a place of safety.

Strike Funds Running Low

Chicago, July 15.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, addressed the convention of International Longshoremen's association here yesterday. Mr. Mitchell said of the coal strike: "If the time does not soon some when we succeed we will have to ask for assistance. Failure to attain success would mean a severe blow to unionism. We must do all in our power to achieve success in this great strife."

Strikers Think It a Bait

Shamokin, Pa., July 15.—The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company yesterday announced that a 10 percent increase in wages would be paid in this region to employes who had remained at work since the strike started. The strikers say this increase is intended as a bait to lure them back to work.

Good Afternoon.

The persistence of Henry H. Faxon is shown in his appeal to the State Board of Health. Mayor Bryant's charge that Mr. Faxon is old has stirred the temperance apostle up.

An attempt will probably be made to apportion the Metropolitan Park assessments of 1900 and 1901 for the future to pay. Three instalments may be too much to pay in one year, but the city should pay at least two this year and two next year, and thereby escape the interest which is becoming burdensome. The park assessments will be larger each year, and the city is as well able to pay two this year as it will two in 1903 and two in 1904. The assessments are:

For 1900,	$5,791.89
For 1901,	7,485.24
For 1902,	8,759.80

The assessment for 1900 must probably be included in the levy this year. Should we not also include that of 1900, and make a one-year loan to meet that of 1901?

The free rural delivery system is wonderfully popular. Just six years ago the first route in this country was put in operation. Today there are 1,461 routes, with 536 others planned to go into operation on the first of August, and the post office department has under consideration 10,198 petitions for the establishment of as many more routes. Iowa leads all the states with 986 routes to be covered by August, first and Arkansas foots the list with 20 routes—the difference in the figures indicating something of the difference in the amount of mail matter received into the two states, and also, possibly, a difference in the degree of zeal manifested by the congressmen of the respective states or of their influence with the postal department.—New Bedford Standard.

It is probable that Quincy, after it gets its new government building and more commodious quarters, will become the distributing office for all the South Shore towns, including the Weymouths, Hingham, Hull, Nantasket, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Hanover, Marshfield, Pembroke and Duxbury. The establishment of free rural delivery routes covering these towns would be appreciated as it is elsewhere, and Quincy because of its relative position to Boston and electric car service will be the natural distributing centre.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Sorrow is as old as the world. Never a day but death is busy and diseases reach their crises or their fatal threat appears. All this we mind little, save as it comes close to us or our little circle, but when those of great station are affected, we make the case of universal interest, and rise or fall with the hopes of those near to the patient. All the world bethinks about a president, a queen or a king, and stands massed like watchers at the bedside. We scan the newspapers and the bulletin boards, we talk and speculate; the illness is common property, and we wonder what effect death will have upon the republic or the kingdom. And yet, when it is all over and the grave grass-grow, we can see how rulers are, pigmies in the drama of the race and of government, how frail and fleeting are even the towering personalities.—Springfield Republican.

A BIG HAUL.

Trunks Full of Stolen Property.

Considerable Has Been Identified.

O'Sullivan Woman and Murphy in Court Tomorrow.

Annie O'Sullivan, the servant girl recently employed in the family of Dr. Dion, who was arrested Saturday, was present Monday at the Police station when her trunks were opened, and assisted the police in identifying much of the property. The trunks were at the office of an express company awaiting shipment when seized. They were opened in the presence of Chief Hayden, Inspector McKay, Inspector McCausland of Boston and Chief McIntosh of Winchester.

The woman made a confession to the police after court on Monday and gave the names of the places where she had worked for the past year. Among these were Miss W. H. Nelson of Marshfield Hills, formerly of 260 Clarenden street, Boston; Albert C. Stearns, 8 Mt. Pleasant street, Winchester; Mr. Warner, 28 Bellevue street, Dorchester; and Mrs. Harrison Loring at Kingston. Mrs. Loring called at the station during the day and recovered $600 worth of her property.

The O'Sullivan woman broke down completely during the ordeal, but after recovering herself aided the officers materially in identifying the property.

The property identified by Mrs. Loring consisted of a lace collar valued at $25, three yards of point lace, silk skirts and waists, lace aprons and waists, silk mufflers, handkerchiefs, tidies, lamp mats, table covers, linen pillow slips and shams, pocket books, coffee pot, tea kettle, salt cellars and hammered brass tray. An express wagon was necessary to carry away Mrs. Loring's property.

Chief McIntosh, took a black silk skirt, two underskirts, a tray, pictures [illegible] all valued at $25.

The O'Sullivan woman picked out a pair of low shoes, black silk waist, table scarf, napkins and satin pin cushion as the property of Mr. Warner of Dorchester.

She also picked out the following as belonging to Miss Nelson of Marshfield Hills: white silk stockings, white dimity waists, night robes, napkins, bread knife, lace tidy, linen and crash towels, two glass vases, silk muffler, pair of red slippers, table knives, vinegar bottle, glass set of four pieces, cut glass sugar bowl, teapot, cups and saucers, glass bowl, seven gilt edge china plates, other fancy plates, cups and saucers.

Aside from these there is a trunk full of goods not yet identified and Chief Hayden hopes all who have lost property will call at headquarters and see if they can identify their property.

Mr. Warner of Dorchester will also visit the police station today to see if he can identify any more of his property than was picked out by the woman.

Dr. and Mrs. Dion called at the station to see if they could trace a silver pitcher they have reason to believe the woman took, but the woman became hysterical upon seeing them and could give no information about it.

It is said by the police that Murphy, when arrested, claimed the O'Sullivan woman as his wife, and that the trunks contained their household effects, and that they gave up housekeeping as he had lost his job in Albany.

The case against the woman and Murphy will come up in court tomorrow morning at which time other warrants will be pressed against the woman.

Never before in the history of the Quincy police has such an amount of stolen property been recovered at one time, and the upper room of the police station on School street, Monday afternoon resembled in a way, a variety store. It is probable that before the affair is ended, the woman will be in a position where she will be unable to help herself to other people's property for some time.

Work of J. Q. Adams.

The Monroe Doctrine and President Monroe were discussed by Prof. A. B. Hart of Harvard, in a lecture at the University of Chicago, Monday evening.

"Monroe was not the father of the so-called doctrine," said Prof. Hart, and it is doing him too much honor to attribute it to him. It was solely the work of J. Q. Adams of Quincy, who kept urging Monroe to take the step until he yielded, rather againt his will. Monroe was an honest, God-serving man, who went to church and paid his debts, but he was no statesman. Adams wrote the doctrine himself, and it appeared in President Monroe's message in exactly the same form in which Adams put it."

The Monroe Doctrine, as the lecturer called it, "the doctrine of paramount interest," was declared a dead letter.

"It is useless to attempt to police all of the American continent," he said, "and we will only get involved in costly wars if we stick to it."

Secretary Hay was complimented by the lecturer, and classed as not only the greatest secretary of state that the United States has had, but the greatest living diplomat in the world.

Among the Granite Men.

The Jarvis Engineering Co. has commenced work erecting a new engine house for the Granite Railway Co. The building, which is to be of brick, will be 36 by 40 feet. The power installation will include a 150 horse-power engine and a 125 horse-power engine, and an air compressor of a capacity of 638 cubic feet per minute. The company is also installing a 125 horse-power boiler at its quarries.

Thomas & Miller are erecting a large new derrick at their plant at South Quincy, which will be operated by a gasoline engine, which will also run their air compresser.

The Merrymount Granite Co. is building an addition to their cutting plant.

The shipments of granite from the railroad terminals in Quincy during the month of June, amounted to 11,249,755 pounds. Of this amount 4,540,420 pounds was shipped from West Quincy, 4,526,205 from South Quincy and 2,183,130 by the Quincy Quarry railroad. Tons are also teamed daily to tide water for the Metropolitan sewer at Nut Island.

Milton Buys Water Plant.

Milton at a special town meeting Monday evening voted 272 to 18 to accept the Water act. The Water Company thereupon tendered in writing all its rights and the town voted to purchase, and to issue bonds to the amount of $315,000, to run for 30 years at 4 per cent. The town also appropriated $3500 for sewer extensions, and voted to accept the reserved space for electric street railway through Blue Hill avenue, Brush Hill road and Milton street.

Henry T. Kidder Dead.

Henry T. Kidder of Milton died on Sunday in Verona, Italy. He was a brother of Nathaniel T. Kidder of Milton and Charles A. Kidder of Boston, and about 47 years of age. Mr. Kidder went abroad a few weeks ago for an indefinite stay, and his relatives and friends here have not known of his being ill at all, therefore, the message, which was sent by the American Consul at Verona, is wholly a surprise on this side of the water.

FAXON PERSISTENT.

He Seeks the Cooperation of State Board of Health.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The following correspondence is self-explanatory. It proves conclusively that the only remedy which the taxpayers have for the present unsatisfactory condition of affairs lies in an appeal to the City Council for an investigation. It will then be determined where the responsibility for existing grievences rests, whether upon the Mayor, the Board of Health, or the City Scavenger.

HENRY H. FAXON.

Quincy, July 15, 1902.

Quincy, July 11, 1902.

To the State Board of Health, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—There is a great deal of fault found with Charles L. Prescott, the scavenger who is appointed to care for cesspools, water closets, etc., in Quincy. If your inspector will only come to Quincy I will convince him that there is immediate need of an investigation by your honorable board. My telephone is No. 36-2, Quincy. Please let me hear from you at once and oblige.

Your truly,
HENRY H. FAXON.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
State Board of Health.
Boston, July 12, 1902.

Dear Sir:—In reply to yours of July 11, the State Board of Health has no power nor authority in the matter of local nuisances, and scavengering in cities and towns, and in any case an investigation by this board would only discover facts without having the power to remedy them.

Yours respectfully,
SAMUEL W. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

H. H. Faxon, Esq., Quincy, Mass.

A Tramps' Paradise.

A paradise for tramps would be the Brazilian state of Sergipe. There a man can put up his mud hut anywhere. He has an abundance of fruit, such as the banana, jaca, caju, etc. The tidal rivers are full of fish, shrimp, crabs and oysters, and the woods abound with game.

A Tiny Model.

So small is a working model of a steamship made by a mechanic of Frankfort-on-Main that it will go into a matchbox.

The island of Ascension, in the Atlantic ocean, is the property of the British admiralty and is governed for it by a captain in charge. Money is useless there, as there are no rents or taxes, and food is issued in rations.

Bedouin Arabs.

Chloroform and Ether.

Artichokes.

French artichokes originally came from Arabia and are considered by epicures the finest of all vegetables.

White Rhinoceros.

African travelers tell us that the white rhinoceros frequently dies from eating poisonous plants which have no effect on the black one, probably because the fine scent of the latter tells him it is dangerous.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

New Boston Post Office.

Postmaster Hibbard expressed his gratification at the latest news from Washington regarding the likelihood of the next congress providing for a new federal building in addition to a new custom house. The old Providence depot, Park square, is talked of as a most suitable site for such a new federal structure, which would afford accommodations for most of the United States departments now in the old building. The present building might be entirely used under the new conditions for the subtreasury and the United States courts.—Boston Advertiser.

—Sidney Jones, who wrote the music of "The Geisha," "The Runaway Girl," "San Toy," and other successful pieces, has, in conjunction with G. H. Jessop, completed a new musical comedy called "My Lady Molly." It will be produced in London in September.

Swimming and Diving.

Probably every summer every one who goes into the water at all thinks he or she will surely learn to swim before the season is over. To such people J. P. Thompson's article in Outing on "A Short Cut to Swimming" will be of especial interest. The sole reason why anyone cannot walk into the water and at once swim is, according to Mr. Thompson, simply because, owing to the novelty of the surroundings, the excitement of the enterprise, and the awkwardness of untried muscles, instructions are not correctly followed. The instant the proper motions are performed, that instance the pupil is swimming. Different methods should be used with various kinds of timid pupils. Coaxing may serve for one; a little good-natured banter for a second, or an affected seriousness for a third.

The first requisite in learning to dive is to learn how to fill the lungs and hold the breath. Those who doubt the benefit of such a course have only to try it to be convinced of its excellence. If they have their chests accurately measured before the first exercise and again measured a month latter they will be agreeably surprised. The length of time one can remain under water depends upon the individual. An ordinary pair of lungs, when properly trained, are easily good for one minute; others can stand twice that time, while a few can stand a trifle more.

Practicing opening the eyes when under water, for with favorable conditions there is much to be seen and enjoyed in the queer ghostly light below. The ability to see when below the surface may sometime prove of priceless value. It is one of the attributes of swimming, and it may be readily mastered. But do not open the eyes until well below. The closed lid is an ample protection when one is plunging from any height, and it should remain closed until the first swift downward rush is ended.

Navy Uniform.

Heretofore the United States sailorman has been oblidged to go into debt to the Government for his outfit when he enlisted, and he could not have any liberty till the full payment had been made. Now Congress has taken a hand in the situation, and the department has issued an order which dates back to July 1. By it every man on his first enlistment is allowed an outfit of clothing to the value of $45. The provision applies to all men but landmen under training, apprentices and hospital stewards, who are specially provided for in the same act. The action will probably have a benefical effect on enlistments, which do not by any means exceed the desired number.

THE PHILIPPINE PEARLS

Chance to Divert a Valuable Trade to United States.

FACTS ABOUT THE JOLO PRODUCT.

Fishing Grounds of Our Tropic Seas Are Credited With Furnishing Greatest Number of the Finest Round Pearls—How the Beautiful Mother of Pearl Is Utilized.

Our new possessions in the orient reach down to within five degrees of the equator, where, scattered over a tropic sea, as though sown from the hand of a creative giant, is found the Jolo archipelago, says a special dispatch from Washington to the New York Tribune. The pearl and shell fisheries of the Jolo waters are little known to the world at large and only to a limited degree to commerce, yet upon the authority of expert testimony they rank in quality of product and possibility of development with the famed and ancient grounds of Ceylon and the Persian gulf and the more modern areas of Australia and Torres strait.

The fishing grounds of the Jolo archipelago are credited with contributing today the greatest number of the finest round pearls that find their way into the channels of commerce. The pearls themselves are simply a side issue, or, rather, a byproduct, the pearl oyster shell, the mother of pearl of commerce, being the principal object of the fisherman's quest. They weigh from one to eight pounds a pair, some of them being as large as dinner plates and almost as round. They are shipped in large quantities to Singapore and London, and the business, like many other industries in the Philippines, is to a large degree in the hands of Chinamen, who pay the natives from 40 to 60 cents a pound for the shells, and it is estimated that only from one-half to 1 per cent of the shells contain pearls.

Aside from the irregular and crude fishing of the natives, there are two companies, one English and one Chinese, with headquarters at Jolo, which pursue the business in a systematic manner, with suitable vessels, and equip their divers with diving suits and employ all the modern appliances for deep sea exploitations. The companies named pay a certain sum to the sultan of Jolo for the privilege of fishing, and that the business is profitable may be assumed from the fact that the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China and the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking corporation have extensive interests in it.

The conditions essential to the greatest development of the mother of pearl and the pearl bearing mollusk are a reefy bottom, near mud, and especially where there is a luxurious supply of submarine vegetation, coral cups and another beautiful coral growth resembling "coach whips" four or five feet in length. Sweeping tides and an abundance of living reefs are particularly favorable to the growth of this beautiful iridescent mollusk. These conditions exist to perfection in the waters of the Jolo archipelago, where pearl fishing is now carried on to a limited extent, and also along the coast of Palawan, as well as along the Mindanao shores of the Jolo and Celebes seas.

It is estimated that the area suited to the growth and propagation of the pearl oyster covers approximately 15,000 square miles, an area large enough to furnish a supply of mother of pearl more than sufficient to meet the present demand of the entire world, and the imagination only can picture the number, beauty and value of the beautiful pearls "of purest ray serene" that await discovery in the warm waters of those faroff eastern seas.

While most mollusks secrete mother of pearl, there are few that yield pearls, and the best producer of both is the pearl oyster of the Jolo waters. The finding of the pearl, however, is as uncertain as the finding of rich nuggets in placer mining. It has been found that in opening over 5,000 shells not a single pearl worth $25 was encountered, and, again, as many as a dozen have been found in a single shell, and there is a story current that an Englishman a few years ago found a shell devoid of the oyster, but containing sixty-five pearls.

The value of the Jolo pearl, as of all others, depends upon its size, shape, color, brightness and freedom from defects. Perfectly round pearls weighing over twenty-five grains are rare and very expensive. Pearls are sold by the pearl grain, four grains being equal to a carat. The formula for finding the price of a pearl, beginning at a size larger than a grain, is to square its weight and multiply the product by the value of a single grain, a two grain pearl, therefore, being worth four times and a five grain pearl being worth twenty-five times the value of a grain.

In the large collection of pearls of the sultan of Jolo have always been many specimens rare in size, form and luster. A few have found their way into the markets of London and Paris as the condition of the royal exchequer ran low, and their excellence may be judged by the refusal to part with them at prices even higher than obtain in Europe. Upon the death of a former sultan in 1879 there was found among his effects a box full of pearls of large size and superior quality. Upon his demise, as frequently occurs in oriental households, the contents of this box disappeared, but a portion of the contents was subsequently recovered by his son and successor, the sultan Buderoodin, and a few were sold in 1882 in order to defray the expenses of his pilgrimage to Mecca. Since that date a large number of fine pearls have found their way into the possession of the reigning sultan, who has been slow to part with them.

The pearl oyster shell is valuable, and its merit depends upon the quality of the hard, silvery, iridescent or nacreous lining particularly noticeable in the Jolo product. The varieties known to commerce are the white, the golden edged and the black edged shells. The market price varies from $300 to $900 a ton, according to quality and the source of production, the Jolo shells ranking highest in the market.

The chief sources of the present supply are Torres strait, Western Australia and the Jolo archipelago. Until 1886 Manila was the great center of this trade in the orient, and the entire product of the surrounding seas became known as Manila shells, but the shortsighted policy of Spain in dealing with her insular possessions forced the transfer of this entire traffic to the British port of Singapore. The present mother of pearl trade of the United States is in an unfortunate and abnormal condition because the raw material, the pearl oyster shell, a product of United States territory, passes first into British or Chinese hands through Singapore and thence to London, whence it is shipped to the United States, to be worked up in American factories. It is needless to say that this condition should not be allowed to continue. Nor is the industry one of little importance. The importations of shells into the United States in 1898 were valued at $906,852, in 1899 at $973,944 and in 1900 at $1,019,730; so it is a business that is showing a healthy and normal growth and is one in which the United States promises to lead the world.

The same care bestowed upon the pearl oyster grounds of the Philippines that is now given to the oyster beds of the Chesapeake bay would no doubt be attention wisely bestowed, and the United States fish commission has no more interesting problem before it than to apply the experience gained from the waters of other lands to the protection and development of the beautiful bivalve of the Philippines.

It is scarcely necessary to mention the many branches of artistic handicraft in which the beautiful mother of pearl of the Jolo seas is utilized. It vies in radiant beauty with the delicate lace, the brilliant plumage and sheeny silk employed in the manufacture of women's fans, it lends inimitable luster to costly cardcases, it is a favorite handle for the finest penknives and is worked into a hundred fancy articles of use and beauty, but its most general use is in the manufacture of buttons.

It now remains for American merchants to divert this shell trade to Manila or direct to the United States and for the American citizen to find new uses for this most beautiful product of our tropic seas.

PROPOSED ARMY UNIFORMS

Board Recommends Shelving of the Blue For Khaki Green Suits.

The army uniform board, which has been in session in Washington for several months and of which Major General Hughes is president, has submitted its report to the secretary of war, says the New York Times.

No longer can the American army be termed the "boys in blue." In future they must be called the "men in khaki," for the famous and characteristic blue field uniforms, if the recommendations of the board are adopted, will be done away with except for "occasions" dress.

For a field uniform the board has designated a suit of khaki green color, not by any means presenting a beautiful appearance, but considered by army officers as most serviceable. In the summer and for hot climates this uniform will be of light weight and in the winter and cold climates of heavy material.

The long blue overcoat worn for so many years by both officers and men will be shelved, and a long overcoat of this same brownish green color will be substituted. In the opinion of the officers who constituted the board the new color adopted will be most difficult for an enemy to see on the field of battle. Its wearing qualities are also superior to the blue uniforms.

Many changes are also recommended for full dress uniforms. The helmet will be abandoned, and a cap of the same shape as worn by Lieutenant General Miles will be adopted. This cap is modeled after that of the Italian army. The shoulder knots are to be greatly reduced in size and made more ornamental. The sword carried by officers will in the future be a weapon in every sense of the word instead of a toy affair such as is now used.

Correct Fobs For Women.

Fobs seem to be coming into favor again for women. Washable fobs in embroidered duck and pique are mostly seen in the shops. Some of them are finished with pretty little enamel slides, others with gold and gun metal stirrups. Leather fobs have novelty slides and a finish of silver.

The Lobster Hatchery.

Nature grim, in remorseless mood,
Undoes the work that she has done,
And out of every lobster brood
Slays ninety-nine and keeps but one.

Art stretches o'er the horrid scene
Her skillful and remedial sway,
And when I speak of "art" I mean
The fish commission, U. S. A.

It takes the tender lobsterlet
And gives him food and kind advice,
Changes his boots if they are wet,
Brushes his hair and makes him nice.

And, lo, this baby of the sea
In gratitude begins to thrive;
Where one per cent it used to be,
Fifty, all fat, remain alive.

Oh, noble work, heroic, grand,
That saves in scientific ways
Those little lisping lobsters and Keeps them for me and mayonnaise.

VOLCANIC TROUBLES

May Have Had Something to Do With the Johnstown Horror

Harrisburg, July 15.—Henry C. Demming, acting state geologist, has written to Mine Inspector Evans at Johnstown suggesting that the apparent uplift of a part of the state of Pennsylvania caused by the recent earthquakes in Martinique and other islands of the West Indies, may possibly have been the direct or remote cause of the catastrophe at the rolling mill mine. He has also called attention to several rifts of earth and rock that have been found in Pennsylvania since he made his report in June.

Johnstown, Pa., July 15.—No additional bodies have been discovered in the Klondike mine, although parties have searched all of the several headings for unfortunates. Superintendent Robinson says the only place where dead men might be found now would be in some abandoned part of the mine where the miners in their desperation might have strayed.

In addition to the miners who went into the mill mine yesterday morning, 150 started to work last evening and this morning almost the full complement of men resumed their labors.

Boers Will Hurry Home

New York, July 15.—Among the passengers who arrived yesterday per steamer Pretoria from Bermuda were 108 Boers who were prisoners at Bermuda. The Boers were clad in the same suits they wore in South Africa. Twenty-one of them had been officers. "We are all going home as quickly as possible," said General Wessels, "and if there was a boat going to South Africa tomorrow we would take it. We will try to build up our burned houses and restore things to their old standing."

For Dean of Boston University

Detroit, July 15.—The Free Press announces that Professor Melville M. Bigelow, a lecturer in the University of Michigan law school, has been appointed dean of the Boston university law school and will assume his new office on the beginning of the September term. Professor Bigelow is a native of Eaton Rapids, Mich., and graduated from the University of Michigan in 1866. Some of his works are used as text books in English universities.

Born a Slave, Died a Millionaire

Philadelphia, July 15.—William Still, who was known throughout the country as "father of the underground railroad" and one of the best educated members of the negro race, died at his home here yesterday. Still was about 80 years old. Though born a slave he worked his own freedom, secured that of his mother by a most romantic escape from a slave dealer, educated himself by his own efforts and leaves a fortune estimated at $1,000,000.

General Wheaton Leaves Army

Washington, July 15.—Major General Lloyd Wheaton closed his active military career yesterday, having reached the statutory retiring age of 64 years. He recently arrived from the Philippines. The vacancy caused by his retirement will be filled by Brigadier General Bates, now commanding the department of the Missouri at Omaha. In giving orders for the retirement of General Wheaton General Chaffee paid that officer a high tribute.

GENERAL RECONSTRUCTION

Looked Upon as Probable In the Near Future—New Premier Unnerved by Emotional Personal Reference to Him by Liberal Leader In Commons

London, July 15.—A. J. Balfour was yesterday formally greeted as Great Britain's premier, and the new regime began its work. The momentous change was marked by only one really dramatic incident, the resignation of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach from his post of chancellor of the exchequer.

Yet this lack of outward show and public prelude to a new chapter in English history is by no means representative of the disturbance which the sudden transition created among the undergrowth of political life. It is safe to say that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is only the first of several whose names have figured largely before the public in the last half century who now will disappear from the political arena. Nothing absolutely definite is yet settled, but the Unionist party expects shortly to hear of the resignations of Earl Halsbury, lord high chancellor; Lord James of Hereford, chancellor of the dutchy of Lancaster, and Earl Cadogan, lord lieutenant of Ireland.

For Hicks-Beach's place R. W. Hanbury, now president of the board of agriculture, is the favorite. In the pending reconstruction, which may not be completed for some time to come, Mr. Balfour, much to the delight of the Unionists, will remain the leader in the house of commons and first lord of the treasury, with Mr. Chamberlain still in command of the colonies as his first lieutenant. If Lord Halsbury, on account of his great age, fills predictions by retiring, Lord Alverstone will succeed to the woolsack, Sir Richard Collins becoming lord chief justice, Sir R. B. Finlay succeeding him as master of the rolls, Sir E. H. Carson, now solicitor general, becoming attorney general, and probably Charles A. Cripps, attorney general to the Prince of Wales, succeeding to the solicitor generalship.

On one point the members of the house of commons seem practically unanimous, and that is that Austen Chamberlain, financial secretary to the treasury, will be promoted, a majority mentioning him as likely to succeed Mr. Hanbury, should the latter take the chancellorship of the exchequer. Friends of Mr. Balfour also say he is certain to require the advance in his cabinet councils of his great friend, George Wyndham, now chief secretary for Ireland.

There is no little gossip concerning some change in the position of Lord Hamilton, now secretary of state for India, one well known member of the house of commons saying he had heard that Lord Hamilton was among those who would throw up their portfolios. His brother-in-law, the Marquis of Lansdowne, is regarded as certain to remain in the foreign office, where he is carrying out lines laid down by Lord Salisbury.

There is absolutely no serious anticipation of a general election, though in some quarters it is thought the desire attributed to the king to have a new parliament after his coronation might cause an appeal to the country, though the new premier is not believed to see any necessity therefor.

Mr. Balfour's first appearance in the house of commons as premier was characteristic of the man and of the assembly. From a party meeting at the foreign office the members trooped over en bloc and shortly after 2 o'clock the house was packed. Both front benches were filled with ministers and ex-ministers, except for a vacant place opposite the mace, where Mr. Balfour was such a familiar figure. Peers came into the strangers' gallery and leaned expectantly upon the rails. Amid a nervous, ceaseless chatter of questions which were rattled through, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach sat gloomily among the colleagues he was so soon to leave.

Suddenly the clatter ceased and there stole from behind the speaker's chair the long, thin figure of the prime minister. From all sides of the house the members rose and kept up the applause till Mr. Balfour reached his seat and buried his head in a voluminous question paper.

He was blushing like a schoolgirl. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, stopped further business by making such a feeling personal reference to Mr. Balfour as is seldom heard in legislative bodies, and which was delivered with an emotion that quite unnerved the premier. When Mr. Balfour rose to reply the ovation was renewed, but his voice faltered and he was only just able, hesitatingly, to declare that he was too overcome to find words of thanks.

After Mr. Balfour's tribute to Lord Salisbury, which was universally commented for its tactful reserve, the house was emptied, the members gathering on the terrace and in the lobbies, discussing the important features that the day had brought forth.

Won't Rob For Some Years

Buffalo, July 15.—Thomas Murray and Robert Cameron were yesterday sentenced to 19 years each in Auburn prison and Harry Boyce to 12 years and four months. They were members of a notorious gang and assaulted and robbed five different people on June 13.

A SECRET MARRIAGE

Disclosed by Death of Young Woman Who Succumbed to Gas

Haverhill, Mass., July 15.—As the result of the finding of the body of Ada G. Matthews by her mother at the family home, death having been caused by asphyxiation, a romance was revealed yesterday which caused great surprise among the relatives of the young woman. A search among her effects to astertain if possible some cause for her untimely death revealed a marriage certificate which showed that she had been married to a former schoolmate, Nelson R. Foss of this city.

It seems that a school love affair developed into a courtship and that in Revere a year ago the young couple were quietly married and up to the time of the death of the young woman they had kept the affair a secret, even from their parents and most intimate friends.

When Foss left school he went to Boston to work and later came to Haverhill, where he was employed in the offices of a hat factory. Miss Matthews was also employed there as a stenographer and it was while there the friendship, already enjoyed in school, ripened into love and courtship.

Yesterday, when the husband learned of the death of his wife, he went to the family home on Groveland street and stated that he was the husband of the young woman. He would have nothing to say about the sudden death of his wife. The parents or the husband can give no cause why the young woman should have taken her life and they cling to the theory that it must have been by accident.

Old Salem Citizen Drowned

Salem, Mass., July 15.—Eben Waters, 91 years of age, one of Salem's oldest citizens, was drowned in the North river yesterday. He left his home at 2 o'clock and at 7:30 his clothing was found on the bank of the river. Four hours later his body was found floating. It is thought that when no one was around the temptation to have a dip was too great to resist and he went in and was seized with cramps.

No Sign of Young Clark

Beverly, Mass., July 15.—At Chebacco lake yesterday the bloodhound and a small party continued to hunt for Wilbur Clark, the missing Beverly boy, but their work was unrewarded. George Clayburn worked through the backwoods with the bloodhound, and Hermit Walton spent the day in a lonely search, but neither found any trace of the boy.

Restraining Order Continued

Providence, July 15.—Judge Douglas yesterday concluded the hearing on the equity action brought by the American Woolen company against officers and members of the Textile union and certain strikers. The court continued the restraining order hitherto granted and told counsel to draw up a form of decree for a temporary injunction as asked.

GOOD LIVING

Quite often results in bad health, because what is termed "good living" is usually the gratification of the palate without reference to the nutrition of the body. When the good liver is a business man and rises from a full meal to plunge at once into work requiring mental effort the result is almost sure to be disastrous, because digestion draws upon the same nervous forces which are employed in thought. In time the stomach becomes diseased, the processes of digestion and nutrition are imperfectly performed and there is a physical breakdown.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates the effete poisonous matter which originates in the system as a consequence of imperfect digestion. It gives sound health to the whole body.

"I wish to say to the world that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Ellen E. Bacon, of Shutesbury, Franklin Co., Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any real benefit. In September, 1896, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced in September, 1897, to take Dr. Pierce's medicine, and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo N Y.

NOTED WAR MESSENGER.

Stories of the Late James J. Dunigan's Narrow Escapes.

Nearly half a century ago, when a small boy, the late James J. Dunigan, one of the oldest employees of the Western Union Telegraph company, went to work for the Western Union as a messenger, says the New York Herald. At the outbreak of the civil war, a few years later, he distinguished himself by carrying dispatches for the government, risking his life on several occasions in delivering war orders to the army posts in and around New York.

Thrilling stories are told of "Old Jim's" experiences in braving death while conveying dispatches to the Union commanders and of his narrow escapes from falling into the hands of Confederate spies, who infested the city during those stirring days. Although only a lad, the Western Union placed great confidence in Jim, and when there was hazardous work to be performed he was generally the messenger selected. He was known personally by many military commanders, who admired the lad for his fearlessness and daring. Nothing daunted him, and the more risk attached to a job the better Jim liked it. Too young to go to the front with the Union troops, the lad rendered as valiant service for the cause as any soldier.

Constantly Jim risked his life, and as the first few months of the great struggle rolled on his danger increased. Although very young, the Confederate spies soon realized that they had a dangerous foe in the lad, for once handed a dispatch to convey to any of the commanders he never returned without delivering it.

Probably the most exciting experience Jim ever had was in the winter of 1862, when he delivered a message to the commander on Governors Island. The bay was frozen over, and a terrific storm had broken the wires from the city to the island. Navigation was impeded, and the only possible way to get to the island was by crossing on the ice floes.

When Jim was handed the message for the Union commander, he set out to deliver it. With a sole companion, John Youdale, he crawled over the ice from the Battery to Governors island and handed the important dispatch to the colonel commanding. Both Jim and Youdale were exhausted when they were hauled up on the island and in such a state that they had to be sent to the Military hospital.

During the thrilling trip over the ice floe they were fired on by soldiers of the island, who thought they were spies attempting to get into a Union post. Youdale was shot through the right hand and rendered unconscious, but Jim, with the bullets whizzing past his head, supported and half carried his companion over the ice until they were rescued from death by the soldiers.

COSTLY HOME FOR SCHWAB

Steel King's New Mansion to Rival Carnegie's New York Palace.

Andrew Carnegie's splendid new residence in upper Fifth avenue, New York, is to have a rival in the home soon to be erected on the west side for Mr. Carnegie's protege, Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation, says the New York World. Plans for Mr. Schwab's city home have been completed, and it will be one of the finest houses in New York. It will cost about $2,500,000 and will stand on a plot for which Mr. Schwab paid $865,000 about a year ago. House and site will therefore represent an investment of more than $3,350,000.

Ever since the young president of the billion dollar steel trust bought the block bounded by Riverside drive, West End avenue, Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets there has been much speculation as to what he would do with the property. One report was that he had bought the land merely as an investment. All doubt as to his purpose has been set at rest, and the bureau of buildings, of which Perez M. Stewart is superintendent, has been consulted about the final plans for the mansion Mr. Schwab will build.

Following the example of Mr. Carnegie, the young steel king will have a city residence, with ample grounds all about. His new home will be 150 by 100 feet, and the house will stand in the center of the block. There will be a fine frontage on Riverside drive overlooking the Hudson, and the grounds on each of the four sides will be laid out on a magnificent scale. The house will be four stories in height and is expected to be ready for occupancy by Christmas time next year.

Boer Generals to Tour America.

The London Daily Mail's Pietermaritzburg correspondent wires: "Louis Botha in the course of conversation said that after their visit to Europe he, De Wet and Delarey intended going to America, but their precise tour would have to be determined by circumstances. Their object was to collect funds for the relief of Boers ruined in the war. Botha is arranging for an official history of the war from the Boer side written by himself, De Wet and other leaders."

COMPROMISE REACHED

Between Four Railroads and Strikers at Chicago

DOES NOT END THE TROUBLE

Twenty Other Corporations Have Yet to Settle Difficulties With Employes —Prediction That Thursday Will See General Resumption of Work

Chicago, July 16.—With agreements reached between four railroads and their employes the great strike of the freight handlers and teamsters that has paralyzed the industries of Chicago for a week is apparently broken. A majority of the strikers are expected to return to work today. By tomorrow, according to the present outlook, there will be few evidences of the strike. Some of the more radical unionists may refuse to accept the terms accepted by representative committees, but apparently they will be able to wield but little influence with the majority of the strikers.

It is possible, however, that the radicals may prevent the strike from being called off at a mass meeting of the freight handlers called for today. Upon the action taken at this meeting will depend the attitude of the striking teamsters. Their national president, Al Young, ordered them back to work today, but if the freight handlers refuse to declare the strike off officially some of the teamsters may refuse to work. It is conceded that their officers exercise little absolute authority.

The four railroads that entered into agreements with their men last night were the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the Chicago and Northwestern, the Nickel Plate and the Illinois Central. Of the four the Northwestern and the Illinois Central accepted the propositions made upon advice of the teamsters' board of arbitration. The Nickel Plate and Lake Shore succeeded in getting their men to sign the scale presented by the railroads on July 1.

Consequently, neither the freight handlers nor the railroads claim a victory. As the employes of the Lake Shore were the first to sign, however, the railroads are expressing the greatest satisfaction over the break in the strike.

The freight handlers return to work without having obtained recognition of their union, time and a half for overtime or the abolishment of the probation period. On the other hand, the freight handlers have obtained increases in pay, the smallest one being 25 cents a day, procured by the truckers.

While the signing of the agreements breaks the strike, it does not end it. It is still in progress as far as 20 of the 24 railroads entering the city are concerned. President Curran of the freight handlers and a few of his supporters are still unreconciled and state they will not recognize any of the agreements.

The agreement was signed last night after all hope of a break in the strike appeared to be at an end.

General Dorward Scents War

Victoria, B. C., July 16.—Major General Dorward, who was in command of the allied troops at Tien Tsin, arrived by the steamship Empress of India yesterday. In an interview he said that unless Russia withdraws from Manchuria, according to the terms of the agreement with China, there will be war in the far east, as Japan is prepared to fight to get Russia out of that territory. In the meantime both powers are strengthening their garrisons and making other preparations.

Elkes' Record In the Shade

Pittsburg, July 16.—Albert Champion of France, and his opponent, Basil De Guishard, also of France, in their one-hour motor-paced race here last night broke the world's record held by Harry Elkes. Champion went 41 miles and 365 yards, which is 2½ miles more than Elkes made. De Guishard made two miles above Elkes' record. The track is six laps to the mile.

Negotiations Are Friendly

Washington, July 16.—Secretary Root returned to Washington last night from Oyster Bay, where he has been in conference with President Roosevelt on the negotiations now in progress between Governor Taft and the Vatican respecting the withdrawal of the friars from the Philippines and the disposition of their lands. Secretary Root declared that he had nothing to say for publication on the question at this time. The negotiations are proceeding in a friendly spirit and without any harshness.

Taft Receives Further Instructions

Rome, July 16.—William H. Taft yesterday received a long cable dispatch from Secretary of War Root giving the basis upon which the reply to the last note from the Vatican regarding religious affairs in the Philippines shall be framed. Judge Taft and his advisers are now engaged in the compilation of this reply.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE FEARED

Towns In Minnesota and North Dakota Swept by Tornado

St. Paul, July 16.—The towns of Borup, Minn., Eldorado and Thompson, N. D., are reported completely wiped out by a tornado. Great loss of life is feared.

The first intimation of the seriousness of the storm was when the Great Northern and Northern Pacific telegraph lines in the storm district were suddenly snuffed out. Telephone lines suffered the same damage. The town of Borup is an absolute wreck. The final report was that the entire town was wiped out and hardly a structure of any sort left standing. This came from a plucky Great Northern telegraph operator, who, after his station office had been laid flat, saved his key from the ruins and tapped the wires at the nearest available point. He also reported the razing of a hamlet some miles distant. The report from Borup came in very soon after the storm struck and contained no information as to the casualties.

With the report from the St. Vincent branch came reports that the towns of Eldorado and Thompson had been destroyed. At Thompson the Great Northern station lies a confused mass of wreckage directly across the main line. Stores and residences are in ruins, and the main portion of the town is wiped out. The population is about 200.

Mere fragments of information come from Eldorado, but these indicate the destruction of that town of about 250 people. Neither of the reports from Thompson or Eldorado speak of loss of life. This is partially accounted for by the fact that they were sent before news could have been received from the outlying districts. The Northern Pacific is unable to gain the slightest information over its wires from the storm district.

King Edward Aboard Yacht

London, July 16.—King Edward left Victoria station yesterday for Portsmouth, to board the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert. He was conveyed from Buckingham palace to the railway station in an ambulance. The removal of the king from the train to the royal yacht was safely accomplished by bluejackets, and the king's couch was placed in a reception room which has been specially constructed on the upper deck. The royal yacht anchored in Cowes road at 4:20 o'clock, after a short cruise eastward. It was officially given out that the king was not fatigued by the journey, not in the least distressed by the transfers and that he expressed great pleasure at the change.

Critical Time In Venezuela

Washington, July 16.—The Marietta, which arrived at Kingston, Ja., yesterday, from Cape Haytien, was met there by the cable instructions ordering her to proceed to La Guiara, Venezuela. The operations of the revolutionists and the government troops are now rather critical at several points, and although two American warships already are in Venezuelan waters, another may be needed for prompt communication.

To Be Buried In Portsmouth

Pittsfield, Mass., July 16.—The body of Miss May Fosburgh, the victim of the tragedy in this city two years ago, which has since been resting in the receiving tomb in the Pittsfield cemetery, has been removed to Portsmouth, N. H., for burial, the Fosburgh family having taken up their residence in that city. It was announced immediately after the trial of the girl's brother that the final interment would be in Buffalo.

Endymion Wins Ocean Race

New York, July 16.—Schooner yacht Endymion, under charter to E. A. Thomas, won the ocean race from Brenton's reef lightship to Seagate for a cup offered by Commodore Todd of the Atlantic Yacht club. The distance is 145 miles, but it was a beat all the way, and she sailed some 225 miles, covering the distance in 26 hours, 30 minutes.

SHIPYARD STRUCK

One Man Killed Without Leaving a Mark, and Others Seriously Injured.

Bath, Me., July 16.—One man was killed and more than a score injured, six seriously, by a lightning bolt which struck in Percy & Small's shipyard here during a severe electrical storm. The dead man is Leander Miller, aged 55, and the seriously hurt are Granville Miller, Levi Spinney, Nelson Butler, Dennis Murray, Henry Vaughn and John Sampson. The six men were made unconscious by the shock, but although they are in a serious condition, it is believed all will recover.

The men were at work underneath a large four-masted schooner in the stocks. The storm was very violent and the lightning almost incessant. Suddenly a lightning bolt flashed over the bow of the schooner and down among the crew of more than 20 carpenters who were at work on the vessel's bottom. None escaped without some injury, but with the exception of the seven named none of the men was badly hurt.

Beyond the injury to the workmen the lightning did not the least damage. The schooner was not even scratched. There was not a mark of any kind on the body of Miller to show how the fiery fluid did its fatal work. Miller is survived by a widow and five children.

Severe Storm Visits Boston

Boston, July 16.—A thunderstorm of unusual severity for Boston passed over this city last evening, lasting little more than half an hour. During that time the rain fell in torrents, filling sewers to their utmost capacity and in several places flooding basements and cellars. A high wind also prevailed, which was so violent in some sections that the windows in street cars were broken. A large plate-glass store front was shattered and many small windows, awnings, etc., were broken by the force of the wind. Lightning struck in several places in the outlying districts, but the damage therefrom was slight.

Drove Knife Into Husband's Side

Portland, Me., July 16.—At their lodging place in Freeman lane last night Martin P. Higgins was stabbed by his wife, and the wound will probably prove fatal. Mrs. Higgins said that Martin came home intoxicated, finding her in bed, suffering from pleurisy. He demanded that she give him a dollar and upon her refusing to do so the man procured a knife and threatened to kill her. In the struggle that ensued on the bed the knife was driven into Higgins' side. Higgins corroborated his wife's story, saying that he was wholly to blame. The couple are of middle age.

Plaisted and his brother were in a boat on the lake engaged in fishing. Williams was in-shore and was shooting a rifle across the lake. One of the bullets glanced from the water and struck Plaisted just above the left eye. Williams was rusticating at the lake. It is said that he left town late in the afternoon.

Blue Flame Oil Stoves.

What's the sense of getting all over heated three times a day during the summer, cooking over a red hot range, paying panic prices for coal, digging out ashes and making life generally miserable for yourself because your kitchen is hot-hot-hot.

How much more sensible to own a Blue Flame Oil Stove. With it you can do your whole summer's cooking, and when in operation it costs only a penny an hour. Life is short at best and if you don't enjoy a few of such comforts as these, why of course no one is to blame but yourself.

Good Afternoon.

The seriousness of the dynamite outrages at "the Rail" on the "Night before the Fourth" is more striking now that one of the inmates has died, largely from the shock. Renewed effort should be made to apprehend the evil doers.

These are busy days at the District court, and Quincy is furnishing an unusually large number of cases. Can it be that crime is on the increase, or is it because our Police department is more active. Crime is spasmodic, however, and strikes in one place and then another. Perhaps it is Quincy's turn.

Quincy's park assessments are not as large as talked a few years ago, even with the interest added. It was one of the times when it paid to kick. There are certain towns like Milton, Brookline, Somerville, Malden, Medford and Revere which are specially benefited and they should pay in proportion.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Whenever one passes one of those automobiles he is reminded of Frank Daniels' experience in his latest opera. Frank says, when a sound is made similar to an explosion, "every time I hear a noise like that, I can taste gasoline."—Waltham Free Press.

☞"During his two terms, Washington was away from the capital (in New York and Philadelphia) 181 days, making two journeys to New England and the south, and passing some time in Mount Vernon. John Adams was away 385 days; Thomas Jefferson, 796 days; Madison, 637 days; Monroe, 708 days; John Q. Adams, 222 days; Van Buren, 132 days; Tyler, 163 days; Polk, 37 days; Pierce, 57 days; Buchanan, 57 days.—Portland Express.

And in the majority of these cases the president was more widely separated from his duty than he would be at the present time if he were in Europe. In the modern time the president can hardly be said to be away from his office at any time, for wherever he goes he take his office with him.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞A battleship is to be built at the Brooklyn Navy Yard because it would take two years to fit up the Boston yard and cost a great deal more money than the $175,000 which Congress authorized the secretary of the navy to expend in getting machinery and tools for any yard in which he should decide to build a war vessel. And yet the chief argument of the labor unions, to which Congress listened rather than to the Navy department, though it might as well have listened to the Good Templars, or the Odd Fellows, or the Daughters of the American Revolution, was that it was a great pity that the Government should have six or eight complete and expensive plants for shipbuilding and not use any of them. The chief constructor of the navy has expressed the opinion that it would cost a million dollars more to build a battleship in a yard than by contract, because the Government always pays the highest wages for the shortest day, and that is why the labor unions have undertaken to manage the navy. The department officials promise that there shall be no politics in the construction; that barbers are not to be carried on the rolls as riveters for a month or two before election.—[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

GOODS IN PAWN.

More Stolen Property Recovered Yesterday.

A New Charge Against Murphy.

People Expected Today to Identify More Property.

Inspectors McKay of Quincy and McCauseland of Boston took Annie O'Sullivan to Boston on Tuesday and recovered a lot more stolen property in a pawn shop. The goods recovered having been taken from the house of Mrs. Harrison Loring.

They consisted of flannels, table cloths, shelf mantles, bed linen, table scarfs and a waist of East India silk which was a wedding gift to Mrs. Loring.

The girl claimed to have lost the pawn tickets, and some difficulty was had in locating the pawn-shop, and in securing the goods. They were finally located at 42 Shawmut avenue.

There were no callers at the police station Tuesday to claim goods, but Mrs. W. H. Nelson sent word that she would call today for the articles which Annie said she had taken from her house.

This morning when the case was called in court, Murphy, who it is alleged received the stolen goods was arraigned upon another complaint charging him with bastardy.

STRUCK IN QUINCY.

Heavy Thunder Storm Passed Over the City Last Night.

An unusually heavy thunder storm passed over Quincy last evening and struck at least in two places. The first indications of a shower came about 4.30 when the sky darkened and there was a decided change in the air. A few heavy drops fell in City Square but not enough to do much more than lay the dust, while Atlantic got a good rainfall. There were occasional light rains until shortly before 7 o'clock. Then a heavy black cloud appeared in the north.

Just as the clock was striking seven the shower broke and the water came down in torrents flooding the streets and turning the gutters into running rivers of water. Accompanying this were heavy peals of thunder and sharp flashes of lightning.

The streets were quickly deserted and but for a passing team or electric car now and then there were no signs of life. The electric lights flickered and those whose premises were lighted by electricity were momently expecting to be shrouded in darkness. Fortunately, however, this did not happen.

There was a very sharp cracking flash of lightning toward the western horizon and it seemed almost as though one could hear the bricks rattling as they fell.

The shower passed over in a short time although it continued to rain for an hour. There was also the occasional roll of thunder in the distance.

Something broke or grounded one of the fire alarm circuits about eight o'clock and a number of blows were struck in rapid succession until the circuit was cut out.

The house of Thomas McNally of Holmes street was struck by lightning Tuesday afternoon and the chimney torn down. The house occupied by Alexander Pitts of Squantum street was also struck and the roof was badly torn.

Wollaston Dog Case.

Wollaston people have been watching with interest the outcome of the case of Annis A. Lincoln, who was charged by Dr. Sweeter with cruelly killing the latter's dog, a bull terrier. The facts in the case, as developed at the hearing last week, were that Sweeter's and Lincoln's dog got into a fight; that Mr. Lincoln rushed out with a knife which he plunged into the bull terrier twice in a cruel manner. The defence claimed that the killing was not cruel. The court took the matter under advisement until this morning when a nominal fine of $1 was imposed upon Lincoln, who appealed.

WHAT INSECTS COST US.

Some Startling Figures Gathered by Dr. H. C. McCook.

In Harper's for June Dr. H. C. McCook in an article on "Insects and Civilization" gives some startling statistics as to the amount of destruction done annually in this country by insects of various sorts. Here are his figures:

"The chinch bug caused a loss of $30,000,000 in 1871, upward of $100,000,000 in 1874 and in 1887 $60,000,000. The Rocky mountain locust, or grasshopper, in 1874 destroyed $100,000,000 of the crops of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa, and the indirect loss was probably as much more. For many years the cotton caterpillar caused an annual average loss in the southern states of $15,000,000, while in 1868 and 1873 the loss reached $30,000,000. The fly weevil, our most destructive enemy to stored grains, particularly throughout the south, inflicts an annual loss in the whole country of $40,000,000. The codling moth, the chief ravager of the apple and pear crops, destroys every year fruit valued at $30,000,000 to $40,000,000. The damage to live stock inflicted by the ox bot, or ox warble, amounts to $36,000,000.

"These are fair samples of the enormous money losses produced in one country by a few of the pygmy captains of pernicious industry whose hosts operate in the granaries, fields, stock farms and the stockyards of our country. What is the grand total? Mr. B. D. Walsh, one of the best entomologists of his day, in 1867 estimated the total yearly loss in the United States from insects to be from $300,000,000 to $400,000,000. In 1890 C. V. Riley, long chief of the division of entomology, estimated the loss at $300,000,000. Dr. James Fletcher in 1891 footed up the loss to about one-tenth of our agricultural products, $330,000,000. In 1899 E. Dwight Sanderson, after careful consideration of the whole field, put the annual loss at $309,000,000."

ROMANCE OF INVENTION.

How Whittling With a Jackknife Had Great Results.

Robert Livingston Stevens sailed from New York to Liverpool eighty years ago. In those days the passage took two months, and Stevens passed many an hour, jackknife in one hand and a piece of wood in the other, brooding over a problem that had often worried him, how to run a railroad without stone stringers for tracks. He wanted to get an iron rail that would "hold" and would take the place of the thin strips fastened to the chair of the roadbed. Just before he reached England his whittling revealed to him the solution of his problem, and that solution took the form of a T rail with a broad base that could be applied direct to a solid wood support. The T rail is still in use on all railways of the world.

The elder Cunard, who was apprenticed as a lad to a Scotch shipbuilder, is said to have amused himself in whittling the hulls of vessels. Occasionally he would fit one of these with masts, sails and rigging complete. Tired of familiar types, he would experiment with ships, and one of these it was that attracted the attention of his master because it would not maintain its upright position in the water. Experiments were made to ballast it in order to give it the proper trim. The clipperlike shape and graceful, long lines of the model promised great speed. Such is said to be the origin of the standard model of the Cunard and later ocean greyhounds.

Some St. Paul railroad officials recently made some tests with a new invention, which has also been tried abroad, by means of which a train can be stopped within its own length whenever it passes a block the semephore of which is not set at "open." Unlike other similar devices, this invention does not utilize electricity, but depends instead upon a spring motor which is wound up by the motion of the rails as engines and trains pass over it. The principle consists in the automatic erection by the clockwork motor of a rod which opens an air valve on the passing engine, which automatically sets the airbrakes for the engineer whenever the track ahead is flagged by a signal.

A Chicago man has invented a device by means of which the rush of a locomotive through the air can be turned to a practical account. Bolted to the end of the locomotive boiler is a frame supporting a 1½ inch steel shaft 2 feet long. At one end of this shaft is a dynamo and at the other an 18 inch blade fan 6 feet in diameter. Some recent tests made with this device proved that sufficient power may be generated through the dynamo to light the lamps of the train and that the pulling in of the wind actually increases the speed of the train instead of decreasing it. The current of course in practical use would be used to charge batteries which in turn would run the lights or fans in the train.

A Machine For Hanging Paper.

The latest thing in the way of automatic machinery is the paper hanger. It is claimed for this machine that it will perform the work in a much more rapid and easy manner than the old method of spreading the paper on a table, cutting it into strips of the proper length, applying the paste and finally placing it in position on the wall. According to the inventor, about all the operator of this apparatus has to do is to turn the crank and place the machine in a new position after each piece of the paper is attached to the wall.

Apportionment of Metropolitan Park Assessment.

Quincy No Reason to Complain.

Brookline and Milton Have Larger Assessments.

Thirty-nine cities and towns are assessed by the State for Metropolitan parks and it will be of interest to note how the apportionment was made and to compare one municipality with another.

Only the assessments for the year 1900 are given below as they are better for comparison. The other years include interest on unpaid assessments of previous years.

At the outset Boston is assessed one-half the total.

Valuation appears to have been the main factor in the apportionment, but special benefits were also considered as Brookline is assessed more than Cambridge, the latter standing second to Boston in valuation, with Brookline third.

Brookline, Milton and Revere are the only towns smaller than Quincy which have larger assessments, but all these with the exception of Revere have higher valuations. Revere receives special advantages.

The 1900 assessments are given below and the 1901 valuation is added: The cents are dropped frm both.

—It is said that when you are molested by ants they may be destroyed by taking a quarter of a pound of flour of brimstone and two ounces of potash, putting them in an iron or earthen dish and standing it over the fire until they are dissolved and mixed together. When cold rub the mixture into a powder; put a little of the powder into water, and sprinkle it around. The ants will leave and not return.

ALL SURROUNDED BY WIDE STREETS.

The Enlarged Prescott Lot Has a Frontage of 689 Feet and Area of 20,500 Square Feet. Bounded by Washington, Canal and Wibird Streets.

The enlarged Prescott lot, bounded by Washington, Canal and Wibird streets, has the largest area of any of the sites offered for the Quincy Federal building. At the same time it is entirely surrounded by streets, giving a total frontage of 689 feet, and area of 20,500 square feet. There are also several intersecting streets in the immediate vicinity, including Elm street, Elm place, Cherry avenue, Revere road, Foster street, Spear street and Newcomb street, making it very accessible. Washington street at this point is 49 feet wide, the entrance to Canal street is 47 feet and at no point less than 40 feet, while Wibird street is 33 feet wide.

The lot has an elvation of two or three feet above the surrounding streets, and the cost of grading would be unusually small. The foundation is excellent, and the cellar would always be dry.

The abutting streets have water and sewer mains and a conduit for telephone wires. Also electric light and power lines and gas mains, and the permanent sidewalk on Washington street from Coddington to South street is the longest continuous one in the city, having edgestone and concrete for nearly two miles.

The Prescott lot is geographically as well as centrally located, it being three miles from the Boston line, and two miles from the Weymouth line; Houghs Neck, the eastern extremity of the city is nearly four miles and parts of West Quincy about an equal distance. At the same time only 1,720 feet by direct thoroughfare to Quincy depot.

The government inspectors at the Fore River shipyard who will probably share the Federal building with the local post office will find the Prescott lot very accessible, and it will at the same time afford them light, airy and pleasant offices.

Besides being conveniently located to serve Quincy, the lot is on the line of electrics between the Quincy depot and East Weymouth, which now carry the mails from the Quincy Post Office to North Weymouth, Weymouth Heights, Weymouth Centre, and East Weymouth. Should the government later decide to make Quincy a distributing centre for Hingham, Cohasset and other South Shore towns through electrics from Boston are run through Washington street by the Prescott lot to these towns.

In the accompanying sketch, the location of both the Prescott and the Newcomb sites are shown with location, areas, street frontage, width of streets, etc. The Newcomb lot, however, as offered, should include 25 feet of land of F. P. Loud on the left or northwest. Mr. Prescott's proposals are three in number; the front lot alone, or with the addition of lot "A" in the rear, or with both "A" and "B;" the whole triangle completely surrounded by streets being offered for $11,200.

Horses In Australia.

There were only 200 horses in Australia in the year 1800. Now there are more than 2,000,000.

Furniture Polish.

An excellent furniture polish is made by mixing together one-third of alcohol and two-thirds of sweet oil. Apply with one soft cloth and polish off with another.

A Norway Custom.

A curious custom is practiced in Norway, where those in search of a drowned body row to and fro with a cock in the boat, fully expecting that the bird will crow when the boat reaches the spot where the corpse lies.

Curious Accident.

While on the wing a pigeon was guillotined recently in Cardiff, Wales, by being caught between a trolley and a power wire on the street railroad.

Barley Gruel.

A barley gruel made of boiling two tablespoonfuls of barley in a quart of water for two hours till it is reduced one-half is a nutritious and excellent food, which may be sweetened and flavored to the taste.

Olives.

In France olives are gathered in November or December and in Italy in February or March.

Blue Peter.

Blue peter, the flag shown on ships about to sail, is derived from the French word "partir," to leave.

The Smallest People.

The smallest people in the world are the natives of the Andaman islands, in the bay of Bengal. They average 3 feet 11 inches in height and about seventy pounds in weight.

Good Roads.

As early as 1867 the improved macadamized highways of France had a total length of 200,951 miles, while the length of unfinished highways was then stated at 174,667 miles, most of which is now finished.

Canada's Capacity.

Progressive Canada estimates that "the population capacity of Canada cannot be less than 100,000,000." There are 1,300,000 square miles of arable land.

THE FRIAR QUESTION

Would Be Unfortunate Should It Be Injected Into Politics

Washington, July 16.—Great secrecy prevails at the war department over the progress of negotiations at the Vatican, and a disposition is evident to declare most of the current reports unfounded. The action of the Catholics of Grand Rapids in protesting against the course of our government is thought to arise from these misinterpretations of the purposes of the Catholic church in America, most of whose leaders prefer to see the friars withdrawn, in order to dissociate as much as possible Spanish rule and the Church of Rome in the minds of the natives.

Great fear is expressed on every side lest this question get into politics. It would be most unfortunate if the opposition, in criticising the administration policy in the Philippines, should make any attack on its attitude toward the friars, since this would compel the Republicans to issue broadcast the senate document containing the testimony taken concerning the friars and their activities in the Philippines. It is believed that the authorities of the church would be as desirous as the administration of preventing a public controversy of this sort, and so, while reports are rife as to the deadlock at the Vatican and the failure of the negotiations, the more general feeling in administration circles is that a way will yet be found to bring them out successfully.

Resignation Rumors Denied

London, July 16.—The Daily Telegraph claims to have authority to deny rumors which are current of the approaching resignation of Lord Milner, governor of the Transvaal and of the Orange River colony and British high commissioner in South Africa. There is, says The Telegraph, no immediate prospect of such a contingency.

Chamberlain Needs Rest

London, July 16.—Joseph Chamberlain, who was sverely cut on the head in a cab accident, is slowly improving, but lost so much blood that he has suffered from an intermittent pulse and consequent weakness. Complete rest and a change of air have been ordered.

General Smith's Protest

Concord, N. H., July 16.—From a communication received by Postmaster Robinson of this city yesterday it would appear that Brigadier General Smith, U. S. A., now in the Philippines, has been the target of abusive and anonymous letters postmarked Concord. In his letter General Smith says: "My parents and grandparents were born and raised in the good old Granite state and I am proud of her. It does appear to me that justice would prompt our good people to hear my side of the charge against me before deciding that I was anything but a loyal soldier."

Government Steamer Damaged

Erie, Pa., July 16.—The United States steamer Michigan was lying at her dock yesterday when the freighter M. B. Grover hove in. While under full headway full for the Michigan, the captain of the Grover evidently lost control of his boat, for she stove into the Michigan. Commander Winder of the Michigan estimates the loss at $10,000. He wired the navy department at Washington of the accident and says the ship will be out of commission several months while undergoing repairs.

Booming American Market

Johannesburg, July 16.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday a member read a cable dispatch which he had received, offering freight from New York to Natal at $2.50 a ton. Other members of the chamber said they had received similar offers. This rate is not remunerative, but is the outcome of competition. It is $5.31 below the lowest freight rate from England. The merchants are overhauling their stock to see what they can order in the United States.

Bituminous Coal Men to Organize

New York, July 16.—Representatives of about 30 firms that ship soft coal from this port met yesterday and determined to form a permanent organization of the trade. The new organization will be known as the Bituminous Coal association, and the idea is to open permanent headquarters in this city, with an ultimate view to opening and maintaining a bituminous coal exchange.

Of the crew of 200 to 250 but two escaped. The cruiser went up like a flash. The United States cruiser Helena picked up the two survivors of the crew from the wreckage.

A CHANGE OF TACTICS

In the Greene-Gaynor Extradition Proceedings

LANGUAGE OF APPLICATION

Changed to Meet Objections Raised by the Accused Men—Latter Insist That Counsel For United States Offered to Settle Case For $500,000

Washington, July 16.—The officials here who are seeking to secure the extradition from Canada to this country of Greene and Gaynor are now feeling more confidence in the success of their efforts. The reason for their optimism is a change in the method of procedure, they having framed their application for the extradition of the men precisely in accordance with the language of the extradition treaty. This was done on the ground that the language of the treaty relative to "receiving any money, valuable security or other property, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen or fraudulently obtained," actually fits the offense of which the men are alleged to have been guilty.

It is expected that the Canadian court thus will be relieved of the necessity of ruling on the objection made by the defendants that the crime charged in the indictment does not correspond with the treaty. Under the new application the court simply will be required to decide whether or not a prima facie case of receiving stolen moneys has been made out against Gaynor and Greene.

If the men are surrendered under extradition proceedings, the Georgia courts will be obliged to decide the difficult and delicate question whether Gaynor and Greene can be tried for conspiracy, as indicted, after having been obtained from Canada on a warrant which does not charge that offense.

Gaynor-Greene Claims

Quebec, July 16.—Messrs. Gaynor and Greene yesterday filed their answers to the motions made by counsel for the United States to quash the writs of habeas corpus issued by Judge Caron on June 20 and 21. Should the writs be set aside the extradition proceedings will be heard on their merits. Among the reasons set forth by counsel for Greene and Gaynor for denying the motion to quash the writs were the following:

That motions and all proceedings in connection with the demand for their extradition were not authorized by the United States, which are entirely strangers in the case; that no power of attorney, no credentials from the United States government have been filed in the record by the supposed counsel for the United States, although frequently asked for; that the present proceedings do not in any manner conflict with those taken before Judge Andrews, as, previous to the latter rendering his judgment, the accused had abandoned their writs of habeas corpus then pending before Judge Andrews; that when Marion Erwin made the complaint upon which the demand of extradition was made before Commissioner La Fontaine he rendered himself unworthy of continuing said proceedings in his name, as he had offered the accused to compromise by abandoning the demand of extradition on their payment of a sum of $500,000; that Erwin transmitted to Attorney General Knox a report of the proceedings in this case very injurious to the administration and judicial authority of Canada. In conclusion the accused protested against Mr. Erwin's conduct and reiterate their accusation that he offered to settle the present case for $500,000.

The Maine Puts to Sea

Philadelphia, July 16.—The new battleship Maine, built to replace the vessel destroyed in Havana harbor, started yesterday on the builder's trial trip off the Delaware capes. The test will begin today. The specifications call for a speed requirement of 18 knots. The Maine is 388 feet long; beam, 72 feet 2½ inches; draught, 23 feet 10 1-4 inches; displacement, 12,500 tons.

Automobiles Not Wanted

Lenox, Mass., July 16.—The war of the cottagers against automobiles has reached an acute stage and the Lenox club, representing the cottagers here, has issued a circular declaring that for all violations of the existing Massachusetts statutes in Lenox from this time until Oct. 30, the club will pay a reward of $25 to each person securing a conviction.

Victims of Dynamite

Johnstown, Pa., July 16.—John Savach was instantly killed and Roger Harvey and John Yelis injured by an explosion of dynamite in a mine at Windber yesterday. Savach was preparing a stick of dynamite for use when, from some unknown cause, it exploded, together with 16 sticks lying nearby. Savach was blown to pieces.

Woman Killed by Lightning

Alton, N. H., July 16.—During an electrical storm yesterday lightning struck the house of Charles Rand and killed Mrs. Rand. She had just gone upstairs to lower a window and was later found dead there by her husband.

Baer to Leave Endeavorers

Boston, July 16.—John W. Baer, secretary of the Christian Endeavor society, has resigned that position to accept one as assistant secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home missions. He will assume his new duties Oct. 1.

BISHOP POTTER'S FIANCEE.

Characteristics of Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark of Cooperstown, N. Y.

The generous philanthropy of Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark's late husband in giving the village of Cooperstown, N. Y., many public improvements and her continuance along the same lavish lines has endeared her to every resident, says the New York World. A beautiful park marking the location of the home of James Fenimore Cooper in the center of the village was the gift two years ago of Mrs. Clark, whose engagement to Bishop Potter of New York has just been announced. On the spot where the writer's house stood is a monument to his memory, also the gift of Mrs. Clark. The monument consists of a bronze Indian and dog standing on a huge bowlder. This is a representation from Cooper's Leather Stocking tales.

In 1890 Mrs. Clark erected a gymnasium for the young men of the village. In 1899 she had built a brownstone building directly opposite the gymnasium, and this she presented to the Y. M. C. A. In it is a library, and every book that goes on the shelves is inspected by Mrs. Clark and pronounced a fit book to be read by the public.

Mrs. Clark leads a very quiet life at Cooperstown, spending considerable of the time driving about her extensive estate. She occasionally appears in the village for a morning drive. She has comparatively few callers at Fernleigh.

It has been Mrs. Clark's custom for years to attend service in a little chapel upon her own premises, where none but members of the family assemble. Services are conducted regularly by the Rev. Dr. Lord, an Episcopal clergyman over eighty years of age. Mrs. Clark never attends the services at the village church. She is an extensive reader, fiction of high class claiming her favor. Very seldom is Mrs. Clark seen at a public entertainment. She never fails, however, to be present at the dedicatory services of the buildings or other remembrances which she presents the village. On such occasions she walks from her home, mingles with the crowd during the ceremony and then walks back again.

Some time ago work was dull in Cooperstown, and in order to provide employment for the idle workmen Mrs. Clark erected an observation tower on the shore of Otsego lake, two miles from her home. The tower is 200 feet high, and from it a view of the entire lake may be had.

TRANSVAAL GOLD.

Predicted Field Will Be Exhausted In Twenty-five Years.

It is impossible to predict with any accuracy the duration of mining in the Witwatersrand district by reason especially of the indeterminate factor of the rate at which exploitation will be carried on, says John Hays Hammond in the Engineering Magazine. It may be observed, however, that the tendency is to exploit the auriferous areas as rapidly as possible and that engineering methods are all adopted with that end in view.

If the exploitation of the deeper levels is not delayed pending the proving of the ground lying above, but is carried on concurrently with the exploitation of the higher horizons of the reefs, the industrial life of the district will, of course, be correspondingly shortened. The working of lower grade ores, made possible by improved economic conditions or other circumstances, would tend to increased longevity of the industry. But were I called upon to express an opinion I would estimate the future duration of profitable operations on a large scale in the district at less rather than more than twenty-five years.

STEEL VESTS IN VOGUE.

New Yorker Introduces Pliable Waistcoat That Is Bullet Proof.

M. Lebargy of the Comedie Francaise, in Paris, and Mr. St. John Gaffney of New York have introduced a new fashion in waistcoats at a notable dinner at which many Americans were present, says the New York Evening Journal. Both of these gentlemen appeared wearing steel waistcoats.

These garments are a curious revival of the mode of mediævalism tempered with modern elegance. The waistcoats are elaborately embroidered and, while pliable and light, are bullet proof. One of the speakers at the dinner warned Gaffney to beware lest J. P. Morgan organize a steel waistcoat trust, especially as these waistcoats are now the rage with Paris dandies.

Monument to African Heroes.

A model of the mausoleum which Cecil Rhodes desired to be erected for Major Allan Wilson and his party, who were massacred by King Lobengula's forces in Matabeleland in October, 1893, has been erected temporarily on the Thames embankment, in London, says the Chicago Tribune. The mausoleum will be constructed of a block of granite which cost $100,000. It is entered by massive copper doors on four sides. At the top huge panels are inserted. The whole will be surmounted by a colossal figure, probably that of Victory.

Nation of Sluggards.

The dispatch of a commission by the British government to investigate the "sleeping sickness" in Uganda promises to throw some light on one of the most mysterious maladies known. The characteristic feature of the disease, according to the Chicago News, is the falling asleep of the patient, who remains profoundly slumbering in spite of the efforts of the doctors. Sleeping sickness or "negro lethargy" is a deadly disease which has been long known in west Africa, but has recently traveled along the Kongo into Uganda.

SETTLED WITH SHORTS

Corn Corner Clique Ends the Deal In July Options

YELLOW CEREAL FALLS

From Fancy Price of Ninety Cents Down to Price of the Cash Article—Profit of Engineers of Deal Will Not Exceed $1,500,000

Chicago, July 16.—The famous John W. Gates corner in July corn came to an abrupt termination yesterday when it become known that shorts to the extent of a good many million bushels had effected private settlements with Harris, Gates & Co., and that the deal was at an end so far as the steel magnate was concerned. The July price responded to the settlement by a quick drop of 15 3-4 cents to 65 1-4. Later it recovered a fraction and closed at 65½, substantially the price of the cash article.

Just how many bushels were subject to private settlement will probably never be known, nor is there much chance that the identity of the "big fellows" in the trade, who doubtless contributed liberally to the fortunes of Gates and the friends associated with him in the deal, will ever be positively known. Gates is in New York and Manager Scotten of the Harris-Gates house would admit only the fact of a settlement by the outstanding shorts.

No special excitement attended the premature puncturing of the bubble by the man whose property it was. The trade has all along admitted Gates' ability to do what he pleased with corn. The only unusual thing in the pit prior to the time at which it became known the corner was at an end was the unusual purchasing of July corn in small lots by various commission houses.

Manager Scotten would not discuss the settlement price. The consensus of opinion among the outsiders was, however, that Gates had demanded either 80 or 81 cents from the people who were foolish enough to sell him corn all the way from 60 cents up. The "length" of the line of July settled for by shorts is also a matter of more or less conjecture. It has been called as high as 25,000,000 bushels, but more generally 20,000,000 bushels. It is a matter of common knowledge that since it became possible to make deliveries on July contracts the Harris-Gates people have taken in and paid for about 3,000,000 bushels. This would leave settlements on some 17,000,000 bushels.

To form an estimate of the apparent profit by the deal would necessitate a knowledge of the average price at which the property was bought. This can never be known unless Gates chooses to divulge it. It is estimated, however, that Gates' profit will not exceed $1,500,000. This amount will be divided up between ten or a dozen millionaires who were interested in the deal.

The corner at one time promised many millions of profit and the farmers whose well-filled cribs line the tracks of nearly every railroad entering Chicago are held responsible for the disappointing ending of the corner. There were substantial reserves from the bumper crop of 1900 and the large yield of 1901. The farmers did not begin to take advantage of the situation until the price of July got up in the 70s and when it finally reached 90 cents the Chicago market was deluged with cash corn as a result and without warning the Harris-Gates people withdrew all support, settled with the shorts and closed the deal.

City May Be Without Water

Boston, July 16.—Secretary Phippen of the Helena Water Works company states that the representatives of the company at Helena, Mon., have been instructed to shut off all city water on July 21, unless the city previously settles the account. Phippen says that this order applies to water used for fire protection, flushing sewers and watering streets, but will not affect private householders, who have paid for the water they have used.

All Are For Clement

Burlington, Vt., July 16.—About 200 delegates to a mass convention of the Vermont Local Option league met in this city last night for a conference preliminary to today's convention. There was much difference of opinion as to the best course to pursue and only on one point were all agreed and that was the nomination of Percival W. Clement for governor.

Irishmen In a Riot

Belfast, Ire., July 16.—A score of policemen and a district inspector were injured while attempting to quell a riot last night at Newry. A number of Orange and Nationalist combatants also were injured. H. Dredin, a Presbyterian clergymen, was severely injured by a blow on the head with a stone.

Lorimer Sails For Europe

Boston, July 16.—Dr. George C. Lorimer of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, and formerly pastor of Tremont Temple, sailed for Europe on the Commonwealth today. Dr. Lorimer, when asked concerning his return to Tremont Temple, said he had not been invited.

Search for Clark Boy Continues

Beverly, Mass., July 16.—The 29th day's search in the woods at Chebacco lake was made yesterday by Mason A. Walton, assisted by a bloodhound, and no trace of Wilbur Clark could be found. Mr. Clark still hopes that the boy is alive and will keep up the search.

INHALED DEADLY GAS

Thirty-Five Men Meet Death In a Utah Mine

ERROR OF POWDER MONKEY

Entered Magazine With Lighted Candle and a Tremendous Explosion Ensued, the Force of Which Killed a Horse Two Miles Distant

Park City, Utah, July 17.—Thirty-five miners were killed in the Daly-West and Ontario mines yesterday, 29 in the Daly-West and six in the Ontario.

The disaster was the result of an explosion occasioned by John Burgy, a miner, going into one of the magazines of the Daly-West with a lighted candle. His own body was blown to small pieces.

The explosion occurred near midnight, and in a moment deadly gas was being generated throughout the mines.

It is not known how much powder was exploded, but whatever amount there was went off with a terrible concussion. The shock was heard for a long distance, although it was over two hours before the disaster was known in Park City, a distance of three miles.

When it is stated that a horse was killed at the mouth of the Ontario tunnel, two miles away, some idea of the force of the explosion may be had.

The work of rescuing the imperilled and dead was quickly undertaken. Men were brought to the surface as fast as the disabled machinery would permit, but the gas in the mine finally compelled the rescue work to be abandoned.

Experienced miners say that John Burgy, the "powder monkey," was a green man and should not have handled explosives. A rescue party found a hand and foot, presumably those of Burgy.

Twenty-five bodies are at a local undertaker's establishment. The majority of the men met their death from inhaling gas and not from shock.

On the local mining stock exchange yesterday Daly-West dropped from $54 to $48 a share, a loss of over $1,000,000 on the entire capital stock.

Back to the Ranks

New York, July 17.—Corporation Counsel Rives sent to Police Commissioner Partridge yesterday an opinion to the effect that 113 men who were promoted to be detective sergeants after April 1, 1901, by Commissioner Murphy are not permanent detective sergeants. About 100 of these men will be sent back to patrol duty and their salaries reduced $600 a year each, thus bringing about a saving of $60,000 annually to the city.

One of the party was a Russian, whom the government insisted should accompany Dewindt through the wilds of Siberia. Dewindt and his party left Paris Dec. 19 and they told of harrowing experiences with cold and hunger.

THE RAILROADS WIN

Chicago Freight Handlers and Teamsters Return to Work

Chicago, July 17.—After 10 days of strife the Chicago freight handlers' strike terminated yesterday in an unqualified victory for the railroads. A meeting of the strikers, presided over by President Curran, resulted in an almost unanimous vote to return to work, leaving the wage scale and other questions for settlement between the men and their respective roads.

At the conclusion of the meeting the strikers went by hundreds to the warehouses to apply for their old positions, and the teamsters, who had remained out in sympathy, again took up their reins.

Renewed activity on the part of the business men followed the settlement of the strike, and at the close of business hours last night thousands of tons of freight had been sent to and from the various freight depots. Every one of the 24,000 strikers who could obtain employment had returned to work by 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The strike, it is estimated, cost the business men of Chicago $10,000,000, and in order to guard against such a contingency in the future they are preparing to inaugurate an educational campaign in opposition to the sympathetic strike. The labor unions will be asked to forego the use of this potent weapon.

Washington, July 17.—Minister Wu has received official confirmation of his recall to Pekin to assume a connection with the new Chinese foreign office. He had previously received a copy of the official decree naming himself and another as the compiler of a new code of laws for China, but he was not certain that the new duty could not be discharged in Washington without the surrender of his mission. Now, however, he is informed that he is to go to Pekin.

St. Louis, July 17.—Captain R. P. Hobson, U. S. N., rescued Miss May Cerf from drowning in the Mississippi river yesterday near Alton, Ills. He conveyed her to the yacht, where she was resuscitated.

POSSIBLE CLUE OF CLARK BOY.

Thought to Have Been Seen in a Gypsy Camp in Maine.

Saco, Me., July 17.—Late last night it was learned that there was a little white boy in a camp of gypsies near the new Old Orchard road whose description tallied remarkably with those of the missing Wilbur Clark of Beverly, Mass. On July 3 Mrs. P. F. Lewis was driving along the road with some friends when she noticed a little white boy with short, golden hair, fair skin and blue eyes in the gypsy camp who was being whipped by one of the gypsy girls, who seemed to have some spite against the little fellow. His appearance was so different from those of his dark-hued companions that Mrs. Lewis' attention was immediately attracted, and she recognized a remarkable likeness between this little boy and Wilbur Clark, in whose case she has been much interested.

Eddie Blanchette, a little French boy, whose home is near the camp of the gypsies, says that he noticed a little white boy in the camp tied to a tree and tried to talk with him, but he was surrounded by a crowd of the gypsies and had no opportunity. The boy had on a light suit of clothes, very much soiled. The camp moved away soon after Blanchette's experience, but later returned.

The camp will be searched by local officers, as will also another camp five miles from this place.

Police Suspect Kidnapping

Beverly, Mass., July 17.—Harry W. Clark, father of the missing Beverly boy, yesterday concluded the 3th day of unsuccessful searching for his son Wilbur, who mysteriously disappeared at Chebacco pond, Essex. A famous bloodhound finished a six-days' hunt in the woods yesterday without finding a single new clew and Hermit Walton was as unsuccessful as the man-trailer. The state police believe that the boy was kidnapped and are confident that their theory is the correct one.

Attempted Healing by Prayer

New Haven, July 17.—The coroner's office is investigating the death of an infant daughter of Clarence Northrup, who, with his wife, is a believer in Christian Science. Thus far the inquiry is said to have shown that the child had been sick with cholera infantum for a number of days, and that no medical attendance was called. A Christian Science healer was sent for, however, and made several visits. The healer, Mrs. Allen, said that the treatment afforded the child was the repeating of "the prayer of understanding." The inquest is unfinished.

An Automobile Smashup

Medford, Mass., July 17.—The chauffeur of an automobile belonging to C. H. Smith of Haverhill was taken suddenly ill while the machine was speeding through this city yesterday and allowed the automobile to dash into a wall. Frank Barrett, one of the occupants, was thrown out and sustained a fracture of the skull, while the chauffeur was also injured. Both were sent to a hospital, where they are on the dangerous list.

Alleged False Pretences

Boston, July 17.—Upon the charge of securing $4500 from John C. Rink of Melrose by false pretences, inspectors yesterday arrested Edwin L. Coy, 71 years old, residing in Melrose. It is alleged that Coy obtained the money from Rink by representing that he had to pay it for certain rights to manufacture smokeless powder, when, the police say, as a matter of fact, Coy had previously already obtained all rights.

Telegraph Operators Satisfied

Boston, July 17.—The threatened trouble among the operators employed by the Western Union Telegraph company in this city has been averted by the entire restoration on the part of the management of the old order of things in the matter of wages, and the men found also that in their weekly wage checks received last night the shortage in pay complained of last week had been made good.

Good Afternoon.

A remarkable instance of the spontanious expression of admiration occurred last week when the President's name was cheered at the Missouri state democratic convention.

Fifteen thousand people are reported to have witnessed the review of the Second brigade on Wednesday by Gov. Crane. We venture there were not half as many as at the launch of the seven-master schooner Thomas W. Lawson.

The people of Kansas are striving to save their superabundant wheat crop by harvesting on Sundays, while they answer objectors with the argument that the Almighty does not suspend the growing or ripening process on the first day of the week.

We are informed that in Attleboro, a town with one-half the population of Quincy, there were 250 single houses built in 1901, and to be occupied by the builders and their families. As these represent the earnings saved in a manufacturing town, this is cited as an instance of real improvement.

Why should not Washington street become a thriving business street from the Stone church to the Point? It is broad, with plenty of vacant land on either side and is moreover the main thoroughfare to the water front and to south shore towns. Quincy is bound to grow rapidly and south of the old stone church should develop a large business centre.

Ex-Councilman William E. Badger who made such an excellent run last year for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner, is again a candidate this year. The straight-forward honorable campaign which Mr. Badger made won many friends, who later saw their mistake when another was nominated. Mr. Badger is probably the only man who stands any chance of defeating Commissioner Wright, who last year "snowed under" Mr. Bowker.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The time has passed when any department in a high school can be placed in the hands of any less a leader than a trained expert. Ten years ago, or even five years ago, in many cases, history and English could be given to anybody, but this cannot be in the twentieth century.—Journal of Education.

☞The Electrical Review notices the fact that the rooms of the King of England, cooled and ventilated during his severe illness, by means of the electric fan, was deemed of sufficient importance to be cabled to numerous daily papers in the country. The electric fan is purely an American invention, and its usefulness is becoming more and more appreciated in all countries.—Lynn Item.

☞The American warship has always been a more or less delicate bit of mechanism, and the battleship Illinois seems to have the fault of most of the big manikillers. She developed "faulty steering gear," went ashore in harbor of Christiana, Norway, and will have to limp ingloriously back to England to be dry docked and patched up. Thus ends a famous cruise that was about to result, it was expected, in showing the people of Europe one of the finest specimens of warships that ever went off the ways.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The displacement of a bolt caused the accident to the steering gear of the Illinois, and the damage to her hull. It recalls the old saying:—"By loss of a nail the shoe was lost; by loss of a shoe the horse was lost; by loss of a horse the man was lost; all for one small nail." A morning paper says:—"Remember the Illinois!" should be the motto of our shipbuilders when designing a safe and sure steering gear." "Look out for the bolts" should be the motto of the shipsmiths as they drive home and head up these important bits of steel.—Lynn Item.

☞Today the new battleship Maine will run her builders' trial off the Capes of Delaware. It is expected that she will prove to be the swiftest ship-of-the-line of the United States. She is Cramp-built and of powerful proportions, larger as well as swifter than the Oregon and Massachusetts, and just about twice as large as the old Maine, whose wreck still lies in the waters of Havana. But great as the new Maine is she is smaller than the monster armorclads now building in the Fore River Yard at Quincy Point, whence the huge seven-masted steel schooner was launched last Thursday.—Boston Journal.

☞The civil service reform committee of the Massachusetts state federation of woman's clubs is advocating civil service of persons interested with children. In New York the women's clubs are working for still more, for the first law in the world making possible the appointment of women as factory inspectors. Women and girls it is claimed are unwilling to make complaints to men. Complaints come to women interested in the matter, that girls working on fifth floors have no water above the third floor, no fire escape and the only stairway a ladder closed by a trap door. The first appointed under the law, as often happens were good. Then the women found that they had simply added to the spoils of the political parties—Worcester Telegram.

☞It so happens that the President's attitude toward trusts is not individual, but in keeping with that of many strong men in his party. If restraint on trusts can be imposed by statute a new law is necessary, and drafted in the light of the latest developments in the trust line. The President has said that where cunning is aimed at and operates against the interests of the people it needs to be "shackled." The sentiment is excellent, and is most felicitously expressed. The department of justice is presided over by a lawyer of recognized ability, whose reputation has grown out of a practice largely devoted to corporation interests. He probably understands the subject as well as any man in the country. He represents the Government at this time, and is in sympathy with the President's views and purposes. His sincerity is open to no question. Mr. Littlefield is at once an able lawyer and an aggressive figure in the field of politics. He has given expression to his opinion as to trusts, and it has attracted attention. Presumably both the President and the attorney general approve of it, and so have sought his assistance in carrying forward their plans. He ought to prove an able coadjutor.—Washington Star.

Torrens Title.

The Boston Transcript says: The plant of the Fore River Ship & Engine Company occupies land at Quincy Point, having a water front of one and three-fourths miles on the Weymouth Fore River, with a total area of forty-five acres. The main building has a total ground area of 451,178 square feet, nearly eleven acres, and contains a forge, annealing plant, carpenter shop, storehouse, pattern storage, power house, coal pockets, woodwork shop, shop, ship tool shop, machine shop, ship house and ship carpenter shop. The forge is one of the three largest in the country. In addition there are a large office building and fifteen smaller structures. Outside of the plant proper the company owns a number of dwelling-houses and other real estate in Quincy. It is upon this property that the company seeks a Torrens title, and has petitioned the Court of Land Registration therefor.

ALL CATAMARANS

Which Will Enter Quincy Cup Races This Year.

Regarded as a Bad Precedent.

May Be Injury to the Sport of Yachting.

There is a good deal of discussion among veteran yachtsmen, and those who are not veterans, says the Boston Advertiser, over the fact that the defender and the challenger of the Quincy cup are both of the catamaran type, without disguise, and if the judges accept both these yachts at the starting line it will be practically the first precedent in the country for the admission of catamarans in a recognized yacht race.

There is always talk anent the catamaran type, but in the coming event for the Quincy cup boats of this class come nearer recognition as legitimate racing yachts than ever before," and yachtsmen do not like to see the influence which a precedent of this nature may have on other yacht clubs.

It is an old story to tell how the Seawanhaka Y. C. last year protested against the catamaran type in the Canadian winner, the Dominion, but it is a new story today that an American yacht club is contemplating recognition of a race between two catamarans as a legitimate yacht race.

Both H. M. Faxon's Flashlight, the Quincy cup challenger, and the Boardman syndicate's Cat 'o Nine Tails, one of the cup-defenders, are unreservedly doubled-hulled boats.

"And there's the rub," said a yacht designer yesterday. "If the judges in the race for the Quincy cup let the two catamarans cross the starting line they are establishing a precedent in admitting the double-hulled boat as a legitimate racing craft.

"As a matter of fact, the catamaran was barred 35 years ago, and the attempted revival at this time is unwise and dangerous. Herreschoff designed a catamaran that would go 20 miles an hour, but from the very fact of the great speed of this type, it has been barred.

"The fastest recorded speed of the Columbia was only 14 miles, and now here in Massachusetts it is proposed to admit the catamaran as a racing boat. It makes no difference whether the hulls are up in the air or down with the chambered nautiles, whether the hulls are joined above or below the water line, the boat is a catamaran, and as such is an outlaw among boats.

"If you can throw a barn door on the water, stick a sail in it, and call it a yacht, it will not be any more radical than in admitting the two boats, one a challenger, and the other a defender, of the Quincy cup, to enter the legitimate yacht race.

"The fault is not with the designers, not with the yachting men, but with the clubs themselves, and it is to be hoped that our Massachusetts clubs will have the courage to prevent any further recognition of the catamaran as a racing yacht. Yachts have changed, yachtsmen have changed, but the same club rules hold today as were adopted 25 years ago. Men may come and men may go, but the rules of a yachting club are nearest thing to immortal acts that were ever written.

"For instance, now as 25 years ago, we measure the water line of a yacht. That is good, but 25 years ago when this rule seemed so blessed, there had not been any tendency to stretch the length-over-all to its limit, or to expand the sail area to the blue sky above. If a yacht is so and so on its water line, its length-over-all is being extended to freakish extent, and the width carried without limit. As long as the water line is known, human judgment seems to hang suspended now on the other dimensions of the boat which sport and fancy to the disgust of real devotees of yachting.

"Another thing, the double-hulled boats are unsafe. Any flaw of wind will quickly overturn boats of this class, and today three-fourths of the yachting accidents are due to the foolhardy distortions of a racing boat, as now seen in the catamaran.

"The real meaning of a yacht is a beautiful boat, but what is the double-hulled affair? The best description I know of is that old line from Virgil describing the one-eyed Polyphemus:

"Monstrum horrendum, informe, ingens, cui lumen ademtum."

"For the reason that the catamaran was abandoned 25 years ago, and has been a Tracy outlaw among yachts since then, it seems to me the race for the Quincy Cup this year with catamarans as defender and challenger, will be a dangerous precedent and injure the sport of yachting."

The Drugging of Drugs.

In the suits brought against a Baltimore concern, one of the heaviest drug firms and manufacturing chemists in the country, claiming damages aggregating $115,000 on the ground, as alleged, that the plaintiffs were made blind by drinking preparations put up by the house, notably the one called Jamaica ginger, in the manufacture of which wood or methyl alcohol had been used instead of pure grain or ethyl alcohol, the interest is by no means confined to the parties bringing the complaint. On the contrary, it is a matter of vital importance to everybody everywhere, inasmuch as the use of wood alcohol, as charged, is a threat to the health if not indeed to the life of every person in the land; for the extract of Jamaica ginger is one of the commonest of household remedies and it is one that is freely prescribed by parents for themselves and children in families where total abstinence from alcoholic beverages and alcoholic medicines is insisted upon as the chief of the cardinal virtues, notwithstanding that Jamaica ginger extract is nothing more nor less than unadulterated alcohol with a ginger flavoring.

Dr. Harlan of Baltimore, one of the leading oculists of the country, is quoted as saying that "wood alcohol is certain to produce blindness when used as drink or otherwise introduced into the system. If a large dose is taken on an empty stomach, death is almost certain to follow immediately." Newspaper readers are painfully familiar with accounts of deaths caused by the drinking of wood alcohol, and if, as now appears, where it does not kill, it destroys the eyesight, who shall say that Dr. Harlan is not warranted in declaring that "it is time that the men who are sending bottled blindness and certain death broadcast through the country should be halted?"

But how is this to be done? The consumption of wood alcohol in the arts and manufactures has increased enormously in the last decade, and it is likely to be even more extensive in the future. Its cost is less than a third that of ethyl alcohol, and generally speaking for the purposes for which it is used it is quite as good as the dearer article. Hence its production is bound to go on; indeed, there is no good reason why it should not. The protection of the people from its surreptitious employment in foods and in drugs put up for internal use must be secured in some other way than the prohibition of its manufacture and sale. Extracts of Jamaica ginger may be regarded both as foods and drugs but existing laws in the United States relative to pure foods and pure drugs are not to be depended upon implicity; in some cases they are not to be depended upon at all. What is needed is the passage of stringent laws in all of the States, or, better, of a general law by Congress, making it practically impossible for wood alcohol or any other noxious article to be sold except under its legitimate name.

There was formerly a law in Massachusetts requiring all poisonous compounds to be labelled with the word "poison;" but interested parties procured the repeal of the statute, and now there is no law to prevent the sale of wood alcohol under the label of Jamaica ginger, or the sale of any other poison similarly disguised. There are, for example, catarrh cures on sale at the drug stores whose active principle is cocaine, a most dangerous drug to meddle with. We hear of one case where the use of a catarrh remedy composed in large part of cocaine sent its user to the insane hospital, and doubtless this is but one instance among many. But what do the manufacturers and dealers care so long as it is profitable to make and sell such compounds?

The only remedy is in stringent enactments to regulate the manufacture and sale of such things. In the meantime, it is incumbent upon all to aid in all possible ways in the instruction of the public as to the dangerous character of many of the commonest of medicines in the market. Not only will this tend to the saving of many lives, but it will so educate the people that they will insist upon the protection that the law ought to give them, and which the law would give them were it not for the powerful influence exerted upon legislatures by men who are commercially interested in the surreptitious dispensing of deadly poisons.

NOT SO RICH.

The Valuation of Milton Less and Tax Rate Higher.

Milton's board of assessors have completed their labors and report the total valuation to be $21,451,336. This is $1,714 less than last year. The loss is said to come in personal estate. The tax rate will be $12.75, an increase of 75 over last year.

Freight Facilities.

East Milton business men are making a big kick at the present freight facilities and a petition will be presented to the railroad to that effect. As it is now, when goods are shipped from Boston, they may arrive the next day or the next week or they may be side tracked at West Quincy and then shipped west with a load of granite. This may seem impossible, but a recent case shows it not to be. An East Milton grocer had goods sent him from Boston by freight. They should have arrived that day or the next but did not. He wanted the goods badly but try as he would he could not locate them either at East Milton or West Quincy. In a week or ten days they showed up and then it was learned that they went to West Quincy. After remaining in the car there several days, goods for outward shipment were loaded into the car, and away they went back to Boston. There are several cases almost as bad that could be told, but that is sufficient. Perhaps, however, mention might be made of a case this week where the railroad people in Boston loaded kegs containing lard on a flat car on top of a pile of bricks, the kegs were not only cover down but were given a ride in hot sun. One can imagine how much lard was left when the grocer got his goods.

DYNAMITE CASE.

Evidence Not Sufficient to Hold Defendants.

Mischief Done on the Fourth

In Vicinity of the Gridley Bryant School House.

The continued cases of John Spain, Jr., and Joseph Tuck, for wilfully breaking glass in the Gridley Bryant school building was heard this morning before Judge Avery.

John P. Reddington, who was a special officer the night before the Fourth, testified that on the morning of July 4 he was on Robertson street at 3.35 o'clock when the explosion took place in a field on Robertson street. Immediately after the explosion he saw Spain and Tuck come out of the field where the explosion occurred.

Dennis Creeden testified: was special officer on the morning of July 4. Was on the railroad crossing when the explosion took place. It shook things up and smashed glass in the lower windows of the school building. Saw the defendants before and after the explosion. The school building was 100 yards from where the explosion took place. It was daylight when the explosion took place.

John Hinnigan, janitor of the Gridley Bryant school, remained in the school building all night the night before the Fourth. A few minutes before the explosion he came out and stood on the lot. The explosion took place at 3.35. I thought it was an earthquake. The place where the explosion took place was 400 feet from school building. Saw Spain on the corner of Robertson and Willard streets at 2.30. Did not see Tuck at any time. The windows on the side toward the corner of Willard and Robertson street were broken the most. Nine panes of glass were broken.

Daniel C. Little was in bed at the time of explosion; was awakened by the shock and breaking glass. The place where explosion took place was one hundred feet from my house. Saw impression in the earth, a tree was blown down and butt shattered. The shock was very severe. Officer Reddington came into my yard about ten minutes after the explosion, and said: "I have got them; they are Spain and Tuck.

Frank S. Leavitt was in bed when explosion took place. It was 300 feet away. Saw defendants after the explosion.

Lawrence J. Falvey was coming across the railroad crossing when the explosion took place. Did not see Spain. Saw Tuck at South Quincy about 2 o'clock. There was quite a few on the crossing when I went over. Foley boy was with me.

At this point the court took a recess for five minutes. When the case was called after recess the government rested and the defendants were discharged.

MORGAN AND POKER.

Devotee of the Game Tells Pierpont What Fun He Has Missed.

[J. Pierpont Morgan is quoted as having said that poker should not be termed our national game; that it is based on deceit and bluff and is wicked. The following verses are compiled from data furnished by a gentleman who seems conversant with the game under discussion, says the Baltimore American.]

Oh, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, what a lot of fun you've missed—
The joy of seeing aces—four big aces—in your fist;
The glad sensation when you split your best and only pair
To make a straight—and draw your card—and find the right one there!
Oh, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, it may be an awful sin,
But poker isn't simply luck; it's science when you win.

Oh, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, you have dallied some with ships,
And yet you glow resentfully when some one mentions chips!
You've made a jackpot of the mines and sweetened it with stocks
And fed the kitty day and night with railroad shares in blocks,
Yet with all this you've missed the thrill that fills you in the hush
That comes when some one raises you and you have made a flush.

Oh, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, you may view it as you choose,
But poker's like some other games—it's wicked when you lose.
When people shuffle stocks and bonds and railroads, ships and mills,
It's much the same as when the game depends on how one fills.
Yet when the poker cards go round the backs are at the top,
And he who has the smallest stack may make the others drop.

Oh, Mr. Pierpont Morgan, it's a bad game, that is true,
But every one may not indulge in such big games as you,
And maybe some one gets as much fun out of two small jacks
As you do when you win a road with miles and miles of tracks,
And, as is hinted heretofore, it is an awful sin,
But poker isn't simply luck; it's science, when you win.

LONDON CLUB OF PILGRIMS

New Anglo-American Organization Started by Noted Men.

The New York Herald's European edition publishes the following from its London correspondent:

A meeting was held at the Carlton hotel the other day to take the first steps for the formation of an Anglo-American club to be known as the Pilgrims. General Joseph Wheeler presided, Mr. H. E. V. Brittain acted as secretary, and some forty gentlemen were present. Mr. Hamilton McCormick, Colonel Mahon of the British army, Mr. Oliver Hereford, Mr. Frank A. Munsey and Mr. James McDonald spoke in unqualified praise of the idea and were in favor of immediate steps being taken for the organization of the club.

An organization committee was appointed, consisting of General Wheeler, Colonel Mahon and Messrs. Brittain, Hutchinson and Russell, which was empowered to frame a statement of the purposes of the club and articles for its government, which will be submitted at a meeting to be called shortly. Lord Roberts will be asked to preside at this gathering.

At first the headquarters will be established only in New York and London, but with the growth of the club branches are likely to be located at Paris, Berlin, Chicago and Washington. Members of the club need not necessarily be residents of the cities where the headquarters are located, but can come from all over different countries.

Among those who have expressed their desire to become members are the right reverend bishop of Perth, Mr. Herbert Noble, Mr. Frank A. Munsey, Mr. K. A. C. Smith, Mr. Marshall Halstead, Mr. H. E. V. Brittain, Mr. Herbert Ingram, Mr. Alfred Stuart, Mr. Joseph Anderson, Mr. Lindsay Russell, Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff, Mr. John C. Wilson, Jr.; General Joseph Wheeler, Colonel Mahon, Mr. George T. Wilson, Mr. Hamilton McCormick, Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, the Hon. C. S. Rolls, Mr. M. H. De Young and Mr. James McDonald.

SO LONG, SHAKESPEARE!

You May Be Unfit to Be Read Ere Long, Says W. N. Guthrie.

"Shakespeare and Homer are not immortals, and I should be bitterly disappointed if they were," said William Norman Guthrie, director of the Cincinnati conference of art and literature at the University of Chicago, the other afternoon, says the Philadelphia Press.

"I hope that in the near future," he continued, "the human race will so improve in its tastes and accomplishments that Shakespeare will be held unfit to read. I hope the literary world will advance so rapidly that Shakespeare and Homer will not only have no reason for being immortal, but will be even forgotten in their insignificance as compared with future writers."

Chess Game Five Years Long.

S. Kayser, an employee of a Canton (O.) steel plant, and R. Bloch of Warsaw, Russia, have made four moves in a chess game which is expected to last five years, says the Kansas City Star. The game is played by letter, and it requires about fourteen days for a letter to pass between Canton and Warsaw. The men are playing for a prize of $5,000, offered by Charles Rosenblum, who is related to both of them.

Suggests Improvements For Vassar.

Loyal daughters of Vassar think the college grounds about perfect, says the New York Press, but W. H. Hart, the greatest apple grower of Duchess county, N. Y., and a progressive horticulturist, thinks that when the new school of agriculture is established on the land adjoining Vassar it ought to dress up the college grounds in accordance with the principles of up to date landscape gardening.

BALFOUR AND SALISBURY

Stories of England's New Premier and His Predecessor.

THE FORMER A DEVOTEE OF GOLF

Once Indulged His Passion For the Sport on a Railway Depot Platform—How He Became the Victim of a St. Patrick's Day Joke—When Balfour Blackened Boots—Striking Incidents of Lord Salisbury's Memory.

A great many folks who are familiar with the name of the Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour as one of England's most illustrious statesmen and the new premier of Great Britain also know that golf is the game invariably preferred by that gentleman when seeking relaxation from parliamentary duties. So ardent, indeed, is his passion for that healthful sport that he has been seen to practice the movements of the game on the oddest occasions, as the following amusing incident will serve to show, says the Golden Penny. Some time ago the distinguished politician was standing on the departure platform at Paddington station, London, waiting for the Windsor train. In his hand he carried a beautiful gold mounted umbrella, on which he leaned abstractedly now and then.

Suddenly his eye chanced to see a cork on the platform. Looking round to see that no one was near, Mr. Balfour measured his distance and made a splendid drive along the platform.

The cork traveled at a great pace, but unfortunately the top of his magnificent umbrella followed it, leaving just the end in his hand. The waiting crowd on the platform roared with laughter as the Conservative leader dived into a first class compartment.

When he was first lord of the treasury, Mr. Balfour was once made the victim of a rather effective St. Patrick's day joke. On the occasion alluded to an oak box about ten inches long was sent to him at the house of commons. On this being opened a sprig of shamrock with a card bearing the inscription, "From a sincere admirer," was disclosed to view, and through a layer of some compound a steel spring could be seen, says Cassell's Magazine. Mr. Balfour is well known for his extreme coolness and scorn of seeming danger, but the whole thing was so strongly suggestive of an infernal machine of the worst description that the services of an expert were immediately requisitioned.

When the expert arrived, Mr. Balfour joined him in his endeavor to solve the baffling mystery. At first both were puzzled, but, the expert having placed a particle of the compound on his tongue, discovered that it was only powdered sugar, flavored with lemon. The box was inverted, and out tumbled an old corkscrew, a spiral spring, a well worn nutmeg grater and a piece of paper, on which was written: "Buy the whisky yourself. You can then concoct the famous lemonade of Ballyhooly."

During the American civil war and consequent cotton famine in Lancashire Lady Blanche Balfour, the mother of Mr. Arthur James and Gerald Balfour, was greatly moved by the tales of suffering coming from the affected districts, says the New York Evening Post. She subscribed handsomely to the relief fund and told her children that if they liked to assist in the household work the money saved in that way should go to help the distressed people. The kitchen was handed over to Lady Blanche's daughters under the supervision of the housekeeper, and they did the family cooking at Wittinghame House. Her son Arthur, now England's premier, and Gerald had a portion of housework allotted to them, such as cleaning the boots and knives. The help sent to the Lancashire relief fund was increased by the amount thus saved in the household expenses, and if you ask Mr. Balfour for an anecdote of his childhood he refers to his mother's action in helping the poor in Ireland.

An amusing manifestation of Mr. Balfour's absentmindedness occurred one evening in the house of commons, says an exchange. He had just finished a neat little speech, introducing the private procedure bill, and was about to leave the house when the speaker hurriedly whispered to him:

"Bring up the bill."

But Mr. Balfour had forgotten all about this part of his task. Mr. Balfour was without his bill.

"Take a dummy," whispered the speaker, and the clerk at the table accordingly handed him a copy of the orders of the day. That was white in color and could not be mistaken for a bill by any possibility; so the minister shook his head. But a happy thought occurred to the clerk.

The journals of the house are printed on blue paper, so he took a copy up at random and thrust it into the minister's hand, who retired to the bar and returned with the usual bows. The clerk scribbled on the back of the journal the names of those who had brought in the bill, and the forms of the house were adequately satisfied.

It was Balfour who initiated the practice of going on tour through the congested districts of the west of Ireland, which has been followed by his successors in the chief secretaryship of Ireland, says the Philadelphia Press. Arthur Balfour once entered a cottage and, not being recognized, was treated with that hospitality which is always accorded to strangers in Ireland. When the woman of the house discovered who her guest was, she was at first rather taken aback, but her natural politeness reasserted itself and she said, "Well, bad as ye are, yer honor's welcome." At this period Mr. Balfour was so unpopular in Ireland that the late Father Healy of Bray remarked to him, "If the people hated the devil as much as they hate you, my occupation would be gone."

Scotland loves him as truly as Ireland does. Nearly every university within her borders has honored him with office or degree. Throughout England he is respected and valued. Mr. Morley and he are united by close bonds of mutual good will, and Gladstone had always a high opinion of him.

It was that Grand Old Man who once said, "He is fit to lead a nation."

It has been said that Mr. Balfour has autocratic tendencies, but that is not true, for he meets on terms of friendship and equality every one who is cultured and refined, no matter what their birth, says the Boston Herald. His constituents and his tenants are devoted to him, and his private character can be termed a very lovable one. He treats his subordinates with a charm of manner and courtesy which raises them to his own level. To his servants and inferiors he is always so polite that by his very politeness he sets a gulf between them.

An amusing story is told of his instructions to his butler, who had been in his service for some years and who, he discovered, was in the habit of helping himself to his cigars. He brought two different brands and placed them in his cigar box and, pointing to the better quality, said to his man, "When you take my cigars, Johnson, please take these." This story illustrates the character of the man.

Here is a story of Lord Salisbury which exhibits the ex-premier in that best of lights, the ability not to forget old friends, says the Family Herald.

In his struggling days Lord Salisbury and a certain pressman worked in the same room and in the small hours used to send out for beer and sandwiches or bread and cheese for two, paying for them each in turn. On one occasion the pressman paid on two successive nights, and, as it happened, it was the last two nights they worked together. Lord Salisbury never again appeared in that room, and the next thing the pressman knew of his quondam colleague was that he had become direct heir to the title to which he ultimately succeeded.

Years rolled on, and the two did not meet. As all the world knows, Lord Salisbury accompanied Lord Beaconsfield, then Mr. Disraeli, as fellow plenipotentiary to the Berlin conference assembled to rearrange the map of Europe at the end of the Russo-Turkish war. The pressman also journeyed to Berlin as special correspondent for his paper. Being desirous of obtaining exclusive information, he sent in his card to the British plenipotentiaries. Instead, as he expected, of being handed over to one of the private secretaries he was shown into Lord Salisbury's presence and greeted with the words: "Look here, B. I'm still owing you for that last bread and cheese that we had together. Sit down and have a glass of wine with me and tell me how I can serve you. The pressman told and in the event was enabled to accomplish what is called a "scoop."

Lord Salisbury's real preoccupation has been public business, and personal interests sit lightly upon him in the presence of affairs. There is a story which the foreign office people are fond of telling, says the Pall Mall Magazine. One day, in the midst of a diplomatic crisis, papers were brought to him by Mr. X. and were discussed. Exit Mr. X. and enter Mr. A., who was Lord Salisbury's official shadow, and this dialogue occurs: Lord Salisbury—Mr. A., who is that intelligent young man who has just gone out? Mr. A.—That is Mr. X., one of your lordship's private secretaries.

Lord Salisbury has long been noted for the possession of a remarkable faculty, if it may be so termed, which enables him to detach himself from the everyday world of men and their affairs, says the Brooklyn Eagle. He will not bother recalling a man's name if the recollection involves any mental labor, and it is said that one of his most able assistants in the foreign office has for years been subjected to the humiliation of being addressed by his chief as Mr. Flower or Mr. Fowler or anything other than his real name, which happens to be Foley.

It appears, according to a story that has been floating around London, that the king, Lord Salisbury, the bishop of London and some others were in a room together. Turning to the bishop, the king remarked: "Do you know what Lord Salisbury just said about you? He turned your way and asked who is that young looking cleric." The bishop laughed somewhat nervously, as though he were embarrassed, and the king continued: "You needn't mind that, my lord. A little while ago I showed him my latest photograph. He examined it carefully for a few moments and then shook his head sadly. Laying the picture down, he said with a sigh, 'Poor old Buller!'"

To Protect the Birds.

A European international agreement has been concluded at Paris for the protection of birds useful to agriculture, says an exchange. The parties to the agreement are Belgium, France, Greece, Liechtenstein, Luxemburg, Monaco, Austria-Hungary, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Spain. Among the birds accounted useful are certain nocturnal birds of prey, as well as bee eaters, swallows and several birds of the sparrow species, while ravens, magpies, jays and some others are branded as mischievous. Italy, a country in which the capture of northbound birds is a regular trade, does not appear among the signatories.

GENERAL SMITH GUILTY

Old and Experienced Soldier In Disgrace

HIS "KILL AND BURN" ORDER

Would Have Left an Indelible Stain but For Good Sense and Self Restraint of Subordinates—Public Reprimand and Compulsory Retirement

Washington, July 17.—General Jacob H. Smith, tried by court martial at Manila on account of orders issued to Major Waller, was found guilty of the charges by the court and sentenced to be admonished by the reviewing authority. The president has so admonished General Smith and retired him under the law which provides that officers having reached the age of 62 years may be retired at will by the president.

The president wishes to use this means of emphasizing his displeasure, as head of the army, with methods of the general, which appear in the present case ridiculous, in view of the very fortunate fact that no such course was taken, or could have been taken, by Waller as the commanding officer ordered.

Secretary Root supplements the reprimand of President Roosevelt in a long circular in which he explains the conditions which resulted in the court martial of General Smith and shows that although Smith issued the "kill and burn" order, as a matter of fact very few persons were killed as a result of that order, the casualties being confined almost wholly to the 11 natives killed under Major Waller's direction.

The demoralizing effect of work of the Smith type is dwelt upon by both president and secretary. Officers are usually expected to give orders to their subordinates in writing, covering everything on which instructions are believed to be needed; but Smith's habit, it appears, has been to issue his written orders only in the most condensed and diminutive form and to follow these with verbal statements of a radical kind.

The luckless subordinate is apt to take the verbal order quite as seriously as the written command, and then he has nothing to show when he gets into trouble by his conduct. Smith admitted giving the oral orders to Waller; but the general practice is one to be severely deprecated, as it might bring unhappy results in its train if it became widespread in the army, and in any event it has enough of the opera bouffe character to bring the service into contempt.

Since the truth has been discovered, that Waller did not meet any enemy to kill on his march and did not have strength enough to do any killing if he had met one, the administration has desired to have this fact understood throughout the United States, so as to counteract the bad effect of the first reports. This, of course, does not wipe out the fact that after reaching a peaceful haven Waller did what seemed a perfecly unjustifiable act of bloodshed. His physical nervous condition at the time saved him from condemnation to a very bitter penalty, but this did not excuse the manner in which he did the cold-blooded killing of his bearers.

Secretary Root, in his review of the court martial, says: "It is due to the good sense and self-restraint of General Smith's subordinates and their regard for the laws of war, rather than to his own self control and judgment, that his intemperate and unjustifiable verbal instructions were not followed and that he is relieved from the indelible stain which would have resulted from a literal compliance with them.

"It is the duty of a general officer whose age and experience have brought him to a high command not to incite his subordinates to acts of lawless violence, but to so explain to them the application of the laws of war and the limitations upon their conduct as to prevent transgressions upon their part and supplement their comparative inexperience by his wise control. In this General Smith has signally failed, and for this he has been justly convicted. Although the sentence imposed is exceedingly light, it carries with it a condemnation which for an officer of his rank and age is really a severe punishment.

"For this reason and for the further reason that General Smith has served his country long and faithfully, has exhibited high courage and good conduct in many battles, has been seriously wounded in the Civil war and in the war with Spain, and is about concluding a long and honorable career as a faithful and loyal servant of his country, I recommend that the mild sentence imposed be confirmed.

"Should you approve of the findings and sentence of the court in accordance with this recommendation, I feel bound to say further that, in view of the findings and sentence, and of the evident infirmities which have made it possible that the facts found should exist, it is no longer for the interest of the service that General Smith should continue to exercise the command of his rank—his usefulness as an example, guide and controlling influence for the junior officers of the army is at an end, and as he is already upwards of 62 years of age, I recommend that you exercise the discretion vested in you by law and now retire him from active service."

CLEMENT IS NAMED

Choice of Vermont Local Option People For Governor

Burlington, Vt., July 17.—P. W. Clement of Rutland was unanimously nominated for governor by the Local Option league convention yesterday afternoon. F. W. Agan of Ludlow was nominated for lieutenant governor and the convention endorsed the balance of the ticket named at the Republican convention at Montpelier.

When the delegates were called upon to adopt a platform it was decided not to incorporate a paragraph personally attacking General McCullough, the Republican candidate for governor, as originally planned. An attempt was made to commit the delegates in favor of a nine-hour labor law and a weekly payment system, but it failed.

The platform demands the repeal of the prohibitory law and favors the substitution of a high license local option statute, and calls for more stringent laws governing party primaries. The resolutions declare that prohibition is ineffective and demoralizing. The use of money in politics is condemned and the declaration was made that the referendum resolution on the liquor question adopted by the Republican convention was only a sleeping potion administered to license and prohibition delegates alike. An accusation is made that the people are obliged to pay for the operation of the prohibitory law for profit by the "party machine."

The platform demands that the legislature pass a high license local option law, to be submitted to the voters and to become effective only when a majority of the people have signified their approval, and in event of such a law being substituted by referendum, all true friends of Vermont are urged to support it at the polls. Economy in the administration of public affairs is advocated.

Majority Against a Strike

Indianapolis, July 17.—The national convention of the United Mine Workers assembled today to discuss the advisability of calling a strike to aid the anthracite men. The sentiment among the delegates, as far as it can be determined from those who are already here, is against a strike. The delegates from the anthracite regions are strongly in favor of a strike, but they are urging their views with moderation.

Abandoned None Too Soon

Chicago, July 17.—The July corn corner was not much more than an echo yesterday, nothing being done in the deal so far as the Harris-Gates people were concerned. The wisdom of the bull leaders in abandoning the corner two weeks in advance of its natural termination was shown by fresh receipts of 453 cars on Chicago side tracks. Of this total, 145 cars were contract grade.

Possible Cabinet Changes

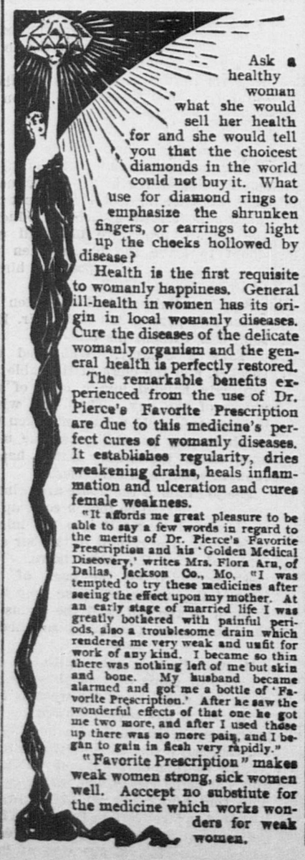

London, July 17.—The Times says it regards it as practically certain that Sir R. B. Finlay, the attorney general, will succeed Earl Halsbury as lord high chancellor; that Alfred Lyttelton will enter the government, and that Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, will take the earliest opportunity to return to London and resume political activity.

Betting In Jeffries' Favor

San Francisco, July 17.—There is an ever-increasing confidence in the training camps of both Jeffries and Fitzsimmons, and a sale of seats for the battle far surpassing anything of the kind known to local pugilistic history. The betting shows Jeffries to be a steady favorite, the prevailing odds being 2½ to 1.

Minnesota Crops Laid Low

Sauk Center, Minn., July 17.—About $400,000 damage was done to the crops within four miles of Sauk Center by a hail, rain and wind storm last night. Corn is almost a total loss and wheat and other crops will average little more than one-third. Hailstones nine inches in circumference fell.

Ask a healthy woman what she would sell her health for and she would tell you that the choicest diamonds in the world could not buy it. What use for diamond rings to emphasize the shrunken fingers, or earrings to light up the cheeks hollowed by disease?

Health is the first requisite to womanly happiness. General ill-health in women has its origin in local womanly diseases. Cure the diseases of the delicate womanly organism and the general health is perfectly restored.

The remarkable benefits experienced from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription are due to this medicine's perfect cures of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mrs. Flora Ara, of Dallas, Jackson Co., Mo. "I was tempted to try these medicines after seeing the effect upon my mother. At an early stage of married life I was greatly bothered with painful periods, also a troublesome drain which rendered me very weak and unfit for work of any kind. I became so thin there was nothing left of me but skin and bone. My husband became alarmed and got me a bottle of 'Favorite Prescription.' After he saw the wonderful effects of that one he got me two more, and after I used these up there was no more pain, and I began to gain in flesh very rapidly."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

VATICAN PROPOSITIONS

Are Not Acceptable to the United States

LATEST NOTE FROM ROOT

Insists Upon the Removal of the Friars In the Interest of the Whole People of the Philippines—Negotiations at Rome Ended

Rome, July 17.—The Vatican is buzzing with comments on the last American note, submitted yesterday, the contents of which were somewhat unexpected, as it was thought that Washington would make counter-propositions. A majority here represent the result as a success for papal diplomacy, while others express the opinion that the friars will not get in Manila better terms than those offered here and that the affair may end in their being obliged to leave the archipelago with less money, as it would be impossible to bring before the courts the 60,000 tenants who occupy their lands, paying no rent therefor.

This, and the partial failure of the visit to Rome of Judge Taft, would be the last straw for the religious orders, as it would justify the governments of France, Spain, etc., which took measures against them without having recourse to the Vatican.

The following is in part Judge Taft's last note to the Vatican: "In reply to the notes of your eminence of June 21 and July 9, I have just received a communication from the secretary of war, in which he says he is glad to see that the holy see is animated by the best intentions to come to an understanding with Washington about the relations between church and state in the Philippines; that his eminence has declared the Vatican to be disposed to give clear and precise instructions to the friars to occupy themselves with religion only, abstaining entirely from politics, and that the holy see proposes to introduce, little by little, ecclesiastics of other nationalities, especially American. Secretary Root adds that he cannot do less than acknowledge the wisdom of these propositions, but that he must observe that they would not solve the question.

"The United States has no desire to violate the treaty of Paris, and seeks not a forcible, but a voluntary withdrawal of certain persons, who happen to be Spaniards and whose previous experiences in the islands had thrown them into antagonistic relations with the people and with the Catholic laity and native clergy, many of whom have left their parishes and can only be reinstated by using material force, which the United States cannot permit. If the question of withdrawal be left unsolved, now that the Washington government has persuaded the ecclesiastical authorities to see the necessity of carrying out this step, the later withdrawal of the friars under order of the religious superior could not be regarded as anything but voluntary and would not violate the treaty of Paris. Nor could such order be regarded as affirming or admitting any accusations against the friars, because the American government made no such accusation. The United States did not desire the withdrawal for itself—it was indifferent to the presence of the friars—but in the interest of the whole people of the Philippines, who were bitterly opposed to their presence.

"It was thought, by the generous proposal of a contract which would bind the Philippine government to certain financial and other obligations, to secure the much longed-for desire of the Philippine people in the withdrawal of the friars. Now that the Vatican does not see its way clear to make a definite withdrawal, the American government has deemed it wiser to recur to the methods of settlement of the various questions at issue suggested by Cardinal Rampolla's first communication, namely:

"First, an investigation by both sides into the possible and probable liabilities and claims and settlement of them by an accredited apostolic delegate with the governor in Manila, after the conditions with respect to the titles of the friars to the land and the amount of claims for rental have been presented by the representative of the church to the representatives of the Philippine government in Manila.

"As to the indemnity for the friars' lands, this might be done by examining the title deeds. The Washington government will immediately order the general commanding the forces in the Philippines to furnish all indications necessary to ascertain what damage has been done by the military occupation. Although regretful that all the questions have not been decided definitely the government is glad to express satisfaction at the results obtained."

Secretary Root in his communication declares that Judge Taft's journey is quite compensated for by the fact that it is possible to fix general lines on which later can be amicably resolved all the questions now pending. Meanwhile, as a preliminary, he wishes Cardinal Rampolla to send to the Philippine government four lists of the property considered to belong to the religious orders.

Judge Taft concludes his note to the Vatican thus: "In obedience to Secretary Root's dispatch, I request that the future negotiations on the points raised be held in Manila between an apostolic delegate and the governor, after the information suggested above by Secretary Root has been ascertained and presented."

What's the sense of getting all over heated three times a day during the summer, cooking over a red hot range, paying panic prices for coal, digging out ashes and making life generally miserable for yourself because your kitchen is hot-hot-hot.

How much more sensible to own a Blue Flame Oil Stove. With it you can do your whole summer's cooking, and when in operation it costs only a penny an hour. Life is short at best and if you don't enjoy a few of such comforts as these, why of course no one is to blame but yourself.

A QUESTION OF HONOR

Mitchell Strongly Opposed to Soft Coal Miners' Strike

HIS ADVICE IS FOLLOWED

By Delegates From States Producing Bituminous Coal, Thus Making a General Strike Practically Out of the Question

Indianapolis, July 18.—If the voice and influence of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers shall prevail with the members of his organization there will be no general strike of the organization. The chances of such a step being taken now are very remote. In his speech in the convention yesterday Mr. Mitchell advised strongly against a strike and urged that the bituminous miners continue at work and that a system of assessment upon the members of the order be carried into effect as the best means of affording aid and support to the striking anthracite men in the east.

His recommendation, if it had been adopted by the convention yesterday afternoon, would have settled the entire question for which the convention was called and an immediate adjournment would have followed. A motion to adopt the suggestions of President Mitchell provoked a long debate in which the general sentiment was against the ordering of the strike.

The men from the anthracite regions finally made a request that they be allowed to hold a caucus to determine upon an expression of opinion as to what they thought the convention should do and asked an adjournment of the convention for this purpose. Their request was granted and the adjournment taken. The men who were in favor of a strike were in a decided minority in the convention. Three speeches were made by members of the anthracite districts, asking that the soft coal men walk out, and twice as many were made by the anthracite men urging the soft coal men to continue at work.

In the course of his address President Mitchell said: "I have been so closely associated with the struggles of the anthracite mine workers that it grieves me more than language can express to say that my views are not in accord with the views expressed by some in favor of a national suspension of coal mining. I have, during all my life in the labor movement, declared that contracts mutually made should during their life be kept inviolate, because a disregard of contract strikes at the very vitals of organized labor. The effect of such action would be to array in open hostility to our cause all forces of society, and to crystallize public sentiment in opposition to our movement.

"As far as my knowledge goes, I do not know of one solitary sympathetic strike of any magnitude which has been successful. In my judgment the United Mine Workers should not repeat the mistakes which mark the path trod by the toiling masses in their never ceasing struggle for better and higher civilization.

"If this convention acts wisely, I feel confident that public sentiment will be so concentrated against the arrogant and unreasonable attitude of the anthracite coal operators that they will be forced to yield and make a settlement.

"It had been the proud boast of United Mine Workers that since our organization became a power in the labor world, contracts based solely upon the honor and good faith of our union have been kept inviolate, and in this supreme crisis a failure to live up to the high standard that has made our union pre-eminent among organizations of labor would prove a substantiation of all the charges and allegations made against us by our enemies. I am firm in my conviction that the strike in the anthracite fields can and will be won without repudiating our solemn contracts with the bituminous operators."

At a caucus of the Illinois delegation it was determined to oppose any general strike. It was also decided to stand by the recommendations of President Mitchell, with the exception of one declaring in favor of an assessment of $1 per week on members of the union. Action similar to that of Illinois was taken by Ohio. The Iowa miners decided to uphold the action of President Mitchell.

The action of the caucuses last night makes a general strike practically out of the question, as the anthracite men cannot carry their point without the aid of Illinois, and with that state and Iowa and Ohio against them, there is no apparent manner in which a strike can be ordered.

Anthracite Breaker In Operation

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 18.—What is said to be the first attempt to operate a breaker in the anthracite coal regions since the strike was declared was made at Nanticoke yesterday, when the Susquehanna company started a breaker at that place. Some of the local operators are inclined to look upon the move as the beginning of the breaking up of the strike. At the headquarters of the strikers it was said the starting up of the breaker had no significance.

British Brethren Will Aid

Cleveland, July 18.—Max Hayes, a local labor leader, has received a letter from Ben Tillett of the executive committee of the British Federation of Trades, which contains the information that English trades unionists are willing to help the striking anthracite miners with money contributions.

UMPIRE RESIGNS

After Having Been Abused on Ball Field by a Lawrence Player

Dover, N. H., July 18.—In a baseball game here yesterday the Lawrence players objected very strongly to Umpire Morris' decisions, and in the eighth inning of the first game Barry of Lawrence attempted to assault him. The Dover players went to the umpire's assistance and Barry was put out of the game. In the first half of the ninth Wiley requested a new ball, which the umpire refused to throw out. Thereupon Wiley threw the ball he held in his hand over the fence and Umpire Morris forfeited the game to Dover.

The second game went to Lawrence, and during its progress Barry threw his bat at the umpire's legs, knocking them from under him, and then rushed up and beat him over the head with his glove. Again the Dover players, with the crowd, rushed to the umpire's assistance, and Morris, rising to his feet, ordered Barry off the grounds. At the close of the game Morris handed in his resignation as umpire.

No Game at Baltimore

Baltimore, July 18.—The baseball game scheduled for yesterday between St. Louis and Baltimore was forfeited to the former club. The St. Louis team took their positions on the diamond and went through the formality of playing the game. None of the Baltimore players appeared in uniform on the grounds.

Old War Veteran Dead

Washington, July 18.—General C. H. Smith, U. S. A., retired, died here last night, aged 75 years, after a long illness caused by a stroke of apoplexy two years ago. General Smith was a native of Maine and served in the volunteer service throughout the Civil war, being captain of the First Maine cavalry and later was made brevet major general. He participated in 63 engagements and was three times wounded. After the war he entered the regular establishment, serving with the Twenty-eighth and the Nineteenth regiments of infantry. He was retired in 1891.

The Maine Is Speedy

Philadelphia, July 18.—The new battleship Maine, built by the Cramps to replace the ill-fated Maine, returned to this city last night after a satisfactory builder's trial at sea. The new war vessel proved herself to be a very speedy ship for her size, she averaging 18.29 knots an hour over a measured course. Her contract calls for a speed of 18 knots. In a preliminary run the Maine attained a speed of 19.95 knots an hour, which she maintained for a period of 30 minutes. Her performance in every particular was satisfactory.

Tried to Kill Two Sisters

New York, July 18.—Henry F. King, 30 years old, entered the office of the New York foundling asylum yesterday and shot two sisters of charity. He then ran into the grounds of the institution and shot himself, making only a flesh wound. King was later committed for examination. Neither of the sisters was fatally hurt. King is believed to be demented.

Taft Asks Farewell Audience

Rome, July 18.—In a personal letter to Cardinal Rampolla, Judge Taft says: "As the document from Secretary Root is conclusive, and as I wish to leave Rome as soon as possible, I beg your eminence to secure me and the gentlemen accompanying me a farewell audience as early as his holiness will deign to grant it."

Slayer Declared Insane

Albany, July 18.—The commission to which was referred the examination as to his sanity of John de Tierre, who murdered his brother in this city on March 22, yesterday reported that in its opinion de Tierre was insane when the crime was committed and further that in its opinion he is now incurably insane.

CAUGHT IN A SQUALL.

Party of Young People Capsized and Fourteen are Drowned.

Portsmouth, N. H., July 18.—A 19-foot whaleboat containing 17 waiters and waitresses employed at the Oceanic House, Star island, Isles of Shoals, who had gone out in the bay yesterday afternoon on a pleasure trip in charge of Skipper Fred Miles, was capsized during a sudden squall and 14 of the occupants were drowned. The other three were rescued by fishermen who put out from the shore in their dories. The names of the drowned are: Henry Farrington, Cambridge, Mass; W. A. Alward, Fredericton, N. B.; Bertha Graham, Danvers, Mass.; Minnie McDonald, Cambridge, Mass.; Eva Adams, Portsmouth, N. H.; May Adams, sister of above; Catherine Bowes, Saxonville, Mass.; Elizabeth Bowes, sister of Catherine; Bessie Chase, Malden, Mass.; Anna Sheehan, Medford, Mass.; Eva Marshall, Haverhill, Mass.; May Marshall, sister of Eva; Isabelle Kaouka, Cambridge, Mass.; Laura Gilmore, Exeter, N. H.

The saved are Alice Haggarty, Lillian Breshan and Skipper Fred Miles.

Farrington and Alward were both law students at Harvard university, rooming at Forsyth hall. Both were good swimmers and lost their lives in trying to rescue the others.

The party left Star island about 4 o'clock on the pleasure trip and had sailed around Appledore island, and the boat was squaring away for home when it was struck by the squall and capsized. The accident happened not more than 200 feet from shore and was witnessed by many summer guests from the veranda of the Appledore House. A warning had been previously shouted to the party from the shore as the boat passed by the landing to look out, as the boat was overcrowded. The boat was heavily ballasted and when it was overturned immediately sank, leaving the 17 persons struggling in the water.

The little steamer Sam Adams, which plies between the islands, was the first to arrive on the scene, but could do little on account of the accident happening so close inshore. The crew, however, rescued Alice Haggarty, and then the steamer had to back away to a place of safety.

A dozen dories from Appledore island, each manned by fishermen, were next on the scene, and each got hold of a body which it took immediately to the shore, where Drs. Warren and Richter tried all means of resuscitating, but without success. The bodies were then taken to Music hall, a small dance hall on Appledore island, where they were laid on cot beds furnished by the hotel, while word was immediately cabled to this city summoning Coroner Shapleigh and Undertaker Nickerson. They went at once on steamer Merriconeag. Coroner Shapleigh viewed the bodies, and decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as the drowning was accidental.

Two waitresses from Star island came over to the improvised morgue and identified the bodies as they lay upon the cots and each was tagged with its proper name. The bodies were then taken on board the steamer Merriconeag and brought to this city, where they now lie at the undertaking rooms of Mr. Nickerson.

The victims were all young people whose ages would not average over 20 years. Most of the Massachusetts girls were schoolteachers who have been in the habit of passing their summer vacations here in serving as waitresses in the hotel, some of them having been here for eight years past.

None of the victims have any relatives at the island, and their respective families have all been notified by telegraph of the terrible accident. Skipper Fred Miles, who was in charge of the boat, has been employed at the islands for years, and has always been considered thoroughly reliable and trustworthy. He is severely criticised, however, for taking out a party of 17 in a 19-foot boat, which is said to be in violation of the regulations of the islands.

The accident created intense excitement upon both Star and Appledore islands, and Oscar Leighton, the venerable proprietor of the Appledore House, who has been connected with summer resorts there for 57 years, was nearly prostrated by the terrible accident. It is understood that Farrington, the head waiter, was a graduate of the Cambridge high school.

Russian Prince to Visit Us

Washington, July 18.—Minister Buck has advised the state department that Prince Boris of Russia sailed from Japan for San Francisco on the 16th inst. The prince will remain some time in the United States, but as he comes incognito, the government will take no steps to receive him formally.

An Inauspicious Opening

Crisfield, Md., July 18.—By the explosion of a barrel of gasoline in the canning factory of E. E. Robinson & Co., at Hopewell, one person was killed, and a dozen other employes frightfully burned. Other deaths are expected. The factory was new and only began operations yesterday.

Hawley Kept His Appointment

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 18.—R. B. Hawley of Texas, who was to lunch with the president yesterday, missed his train at Long Island City and chartered a special train, arriving at Sagamore hill just as luncheon was announced. Theodore A. Bingham came yesterday to consult the president about alterations that are being made in the White House. Mr. Bynum of Indiana, one of the members of the commission to codify the laws of the United States, also was a caller upon the president.

Latimer Inquest Continued

New York, July 18.—The official inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of Albert C. Latimer, who is supposed to have been shot by a burglar early in the morning of July 2, was begun yesterday at Brooklyn and the hearing went over until next Monday. William H. Tuthill, whose name came up at the hearing, sent a telegram saying he would appear at the next session of the coroner's court.

Survivors Out of Danger

Park City, Utah, July 18.—The excitement attending the disaster at the Daly-West silver mine has subsided. The bodies of the 35 men have all been brought up from the 1200-foot level except John Burgh, the "powder monkey," whose body was blown to atoms. The men overcome by the gas and rest sciated by physicians are out of danger. The damage to the mine will not exceed a few thousand dollars.

Earl Cadogan Steps Out

London, July 18.—Earl Cadogan yesterday resigned the lord lieutenancy of Ireland. It is understood that Mr. Balfour intends to reduce the number of ministers in the cabinet, which has been increased in recent years until it has become almost unwieldy. Neither a lord lieutenant of Ireland nor an Irish chancellor is likely to be included in the next cabinet.

Charges Lacked Proof

Rochester, July 18.—The case of Norwood P. Keen and Samuel T. Aber, brokers of this city, accused by a Boston man of grand larceny in obtaining money under false pretenses, was called in police court yesterday. After a brief hearing, Justice Chadsey dismissed charges against both defendants.

To Consider Trust Question

London, July 18.—Details of an important move by Russia, which have evidently been suppressed hitherto by the censor, have transpired in London. This move is no less than a proposal by the imperial government for an international conference to deal with trusts.

Workmen's Terrible Fall

Roanoke, Va., July 18.—While a bridge force was working on a trestle over Reed creek yesterday the scaffolding gave way, precipitating the men 80 feet below into the creek. One was killed instantly and two others received injuries that will prove fatal.

King Rapidly Improving

London, July 18.—Since his removal to Cowes the progress of King Edward has been so rapid that his physicians have ordered a more liberal diet for his majesty.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The young woman from Butte, Montana, whom the indulgent yellow journals are making a great figure in literature, announces frankly that she is "out for the dough." This is the breezy Western way of admitting the wholly commercial nature of her interest in the writing of books. There are others who feel the same way, though they do not say so.—Providence Journal.

☞ So Massachusetts is to follow Maine and make a rousing campaign this fall, departing from the campaign of silence which has been the rule for last two years. The party has two good leaders for this sort of campaign this year, with spell-binders of scarcely lesser ability in the minor places on the ticket, but Massachusetts Republicans have never been lacking in stump speakers. The fact is the campaign is of national rather than of state importance, and it is desirable that even the certain states should give a voting endorsement to the administration that will attract attention throughout the country. The battle of this year is a sort of a preliminary to the battle of 1904 and it is intended to create an enthusiasm that will last over until the beginning of the later campaign. Besides this, there is likely to be a considerable reflex influence from the sentiment of this campaign upon the action of the next session of congress and the congress that succeeds it.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The Hartford Courant make a pertinent plea that the Roosevelt children have a fair chance. The New York yellows are being loaded with drivel concerning the children of the President's family, every somersault that young Kermet sees fit to throw being duly recorded, and every boyish act of Theodore, Jr., or maidenly effort of the daughter is thought worthy a display head. That might be wise enough if we were in a government where power descended through the family, and the nation was anxious to thoroughly know the traits of the future rulers, but it is a little sickening to the people, and certainly must be so to the President and his family, under our conditions, where the children of the ruler are no better for that fact than the million of other children in the land. If the New York correspondents can tell us anything about the President that we do not know, well and good, but why not let the rest of the Roosevelt family alone. The Courant speaks with common sense.—Haverhill Gazette.

AT THE SEASIDE.

Cottages at Houghs Neck Not Equal to Demand.

Planning for Annual Illumination.

The New Arrivals at Hotels and Cottages.

The season at Houghs Neck is fairly on. Practically every cottage is occupied. Those that are not occupied now, have been let and will be occupied in a few days. And still there is a demand for more cottages. The transient visitors this year have been many. Every pleasant day hundreds of women and children come down for an afternoon's outing and it not unfrequently happens that it is necessary to run two or more cars. The street railway company is giving the residents good service and if a crowd comes along an additional car is put on. Aside from the large number of visitors, everything is calm and serene.

J. P. Lewis and family of Brockton are in the Peerless cottage on Great Hill.

Mrs. Margaret Walsh and family of Quincy, are in the Oakland cottage.

F. W. Esterbrook and family of Charlestown are in their cottage on Bell street.

A party from Brockton comes to the beach next Tuesday evening for a moonlight sail on the steamer Houghs Neck.

C. C. French and family of Melrose are at Rock Island.

J. H. Mullane and family of Boston are in a cottage on Great Hill.

Public whist parties are held every Monday evening.

Matthew Connor, treasurer of the Steamboat company, is in the Cavanagh cottage.

The question as to whether Houghs Neck will have an illumination this season will be discussed at a meeting of the Houghs Neck Improvement association on Monday evening. On Tuesday evening a meeting will be held to incorporate the association.

J. J. Delaney and family of Dorchester are in a cottage on Centre road.

J. T. McGrath and family of South Boston are in the Florence cottage.

J. J. O'Callahan and family of Boston are in the Powderly cottage.

A movement is on foot to have band concerts every day during the month of August.

Dr. T. J. Murphy and family of Roxbury are on Manet avenue.

John McDonnell and family of Roxbury are on Centre road.

J. S. Coveny and family of Hyde Park are in a cottage on Bay View avenue.

John Reardon and family of Boston are in the Green cottage.

Those registered at the Fensmere this week are: R. H. White, Boston; A. G. Goodhue, Lynn; Alex McDougall, Brighton; W. H. Ring, Brockton; Henry White, Arlington; Harry Tracy, Salem, Or.; T. W. Johnson, Hartford, Conn; G. W. Chesley, Boston; I. R. Armes, New York; H. Harvey, Walter B. Oakes, Newport, R. I.; Miss Mary Churched, Miss Fish, Boston; Minnie M. Fiske; Esther Barrymore, Liebles, Vt.; G. Lacy, Fort Wayne, Ind.

TODAY'S COURT.

The four cases against Charles C. Smith of Cohasset for violation of the liquor law were heard. He was fined $300 and sentenced to six months in the house of correction. Appealed. Smith was also fined $10 for running a billiard table without a license.

Edward Crowley was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Cohasset.

George Josephs was fined $2 for peddling without a license at Quincy.

Michael Smith was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Henry W. Maxim was arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth by not having an expressman's book. Case continued until next Thursday.

Thomas Condon was arraigned for violating the liquor law at Holbrook. Case continued until next Wednesday.

Remarkable Resuscitation.

The importance of working over persons apparently drowned is shown by a Washington despatch. Supt. Kimball of the life saving service has received a report from Capt. Ludlam of the Hereford Inlet L. S. S., at Anglesea, N. J., of the remarkable resuscitation of Stanley Holmes, a five-year-old boy, after he had been under water 25 minutes.

Capt. Ludlam reported that July 5 during a squall in the harbor W. B. Holmes and his child were overturned in the water and that the little son sank, remaining under water not less than twenty-five minutes before the life saving crew of the Hereford station were able to secure the apparently dead body.

Within four hours after the body was removed from the water the child regained consciousness. Supt. Kimball received affidavits from the father of the child, from Miss Margaret Mace, a medical student, and Mary Hock, a trained nurse, substantiating to the fullest degree the statements of Capt. Ludlam.

The opinion of most of these people is that the child had been under water fully 30 minutes when taken out, and all are certain that the time was not less than 25 minutes.

All Day Court Session.

Another all day session of the district court was held Thursday. A larger part of the morning was taken up with hearing the evidence against Spain and Tuck of West Quincy charged with willfully breaking glass in a school building. The balance of the day was taken up by Cohasset cases.

Charles C. Smith was tried on four complaints for violation of the liquor laws. He was found guilty and the sum total of judgments against him in these cases amounted to $300 and six months in the house of correction. He appealed.

He was also fined $10 for running a billiard table without a license.

Edward Crowley of Cohasset was also fined $50 for violation of the liquor law.

To Redeem Postal Cards.

Orders have been issued by the postmaster-general to all postmasters for the redemption of uncancelled and unserviceable postal cards. The order applies to all cards which have not been bronzed or enamelled and which are not mutilated.

Heretofore postal cards have not been redeemable, but holders were permitted to cover any printing that may have been done on them. This rule led to much counterfeiting of cards and other inconveniences which are removed by the order just issued.

Petition Denied.

Judge Lothrop of the Superior Judicial court has refused to grant the petition of George F. Faircloth of Quincy. This was a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Chief Engineer Williams to restore Faircloth as a member of the Quincy Fire department.

Faircloth was a member of the Central Station company. He was suspended by Chief Williams and charges were preferred against him. A hearing was held before Mayor Bryant who sustained the Chief and Faircloth was dropped from the rolls. A petition was then brought for a writ of mandamus. The petitioner claimed that the hearing was not an impartial one and that under the City Charter he could not be deposed. It also claimed that the charges were not sustained.

Yacht Capsized.

The yacht Aphrodite of the Bunker Hill yacht club of Charlestown, while cruising, dropped her iron keel off Portland Thursday and capsized. The four on board, including a woman and girl, were saved.

NEW CATTLE PUNCHER

How an Electric Device Drives Steers to Slaughter.

SAVES BRUISING OF THE BEEF.

Work Is Done In One-half the Time and With Half the Exertion by a Novel Invention of a Kansas City Man—Approved of by an Armour Official.

The employees of a packing company in Kansas City now employ electricity to drive the cattle into the beef beds instead of shouts, clubs, whips and prods, says the New York Herald.

The application of electricity is made by two insulated wires connected with the light wires over the catching pen and the knocking pens. The current passes through a stick and connects with two brass points on the end.

"Punchers" is the name given the sticks. There are two punchers, each six feet long, in the catch pen and five four feet long in the knocking pens. The insulated wires are about twenty feet long, thus covering a distance in the pens of about thirty feet each.

One hundred and twenty-five volts of electricity are turned on. It is enough to make a sharp, stinging sensation without leaving a mark or a bruise on the beef. It is said fifty volts would be as effective.

The work is done in one-half the time and with half the exertion. The effect on the steer of the magic touch is amusing to see. A steer touched on the left hip immediately throws his hind quarters as far as he can to the right. He cocks one ear straight ahead and one straight back, switches his tail and starts straight ahead, not caring for a second shock.

There is a look of surprise in his eyes, and he seems to know that all the trouble lies in the end of that stick. He doesn't stop to get mad or howl. He has urgent business at the other end of the pen. That is exactly where the drivers and knockers want him.

It completely does away with all back rushes and dragging in with chains, for just as long as the puncher is behind the steer is just as far as he can get in front. The saving of time and of bruised meat is also an item to be considered.

This novel instrument is the invention of L. E. Unroe, the machinist in the beef beds, who has made several other useful improvements in the machinery.

The Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company has been using these punchers about a month. An Armour official has also viewed the puncher in use and speaks highly of the improved method.

Superintendent J. L. Sterrett says: "The cattle puncher is a great money saver as well as an instrument for saving breath, muscle and morals. Many actual dollars are saved because bruised beef is kept at the lowest minimum ever reached."

JOHNSTOWN EXPLOSION.

Calamity Occurred In One of the Country's Largest Mines.

The mine at Johnstown, Pa., in which the recent explosion occurred, whereby many lives were lost, is one of the largest coal mines in the United States, according to the statement of officials, says the New York World. From the entrance in the hill across the river to the one at Mill creek is a distance of three and three-quarter miles.

The Klondike section, in which the explosion occurred, is about two miles from the Mill creek entrance. The mine is divided into a large number of headings, levels and sections. The sections run off to the left and right of the headings and are known as rights and lefts by the miners.

The men who escaped are familiar with the mine. They have spent years working in it; otherwise they could never have reached the surface. Lights were out, and there was no way for them to find their way to the top had they not known the mine perfectly.

PEFFER AS A NOVELIST.

Ex-Senator From Kansas to Write a Book on Economic Questions.

A striking exception to the rule that a statesman out of a political job is out of the world is found in the case of ex-Senator W. A. Peffer of Kansas, now residing in Washington, says the Kansas City Journal. At present Mr. Peffer is devoting his time to writing a series of reviews of certain periods of American history.

For some time past he has had in mind writing a work dealing seriously with questions of labor and capital, but has lately reached the conclusion that to be of practical benefit a work of this sort should be in the form of a novel, somewhat on the order of Bellamy's "Looking Backward," and among the works that he will produce during the coming fall and winter will be a novel on the subject aforesaid. Such, then, is the real Peffer, a man of literary parts and scholarly tastes, mild and conservative.

"Buffalo" Jones a Buffalo Warden.

Charles J. Jones, popularly known as "Buffalo" Jones, was appointed buffalo warden for Yellowstone park the other day, says a Washington dispatch. Mr. Jones has devoted much attention to the preservation of the American bison and was largely instrumental in securing an appropriation at the last session of congress for the establishment of a government buffalo ranch in the Yellowstone park. This establishment will be under Mr. Jones' charge.

Torrens Registration.

The petition of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company for registration in torren brings up a matter somewhat unfamiliar to the general public. In brief it is a form of registration of title to property. The fee for such registration is $50. Applications must be made to the State commission for that purpose. Accompanying the petition must be an accurate plan of the property giving all angles and dimensions. The State board then gives a hearing to abutters and all parties interested. If objection is made to the property as laid out it must be changed so as to be satisfactory to all parties concerned. This done the board then looks up all titles to the property. When all has been done the lines and title of the property is fixed forever, so that at no future time can any question be raised as to the title of the property in question. This would not prevent the Fore River Co. from selling any or all of its property or of adding more to it should they so desire.

SHIP BUILDING.

Difficult Task at a South American Lake.

Engineer Was Without Tools.

He Successfully Overcame All Obstacles.

Quincy shipbuilders who have all the most approved machinery and tools, will be interested in the success of an engineer in South America who labored under great disadvantages at an inland lake. The Scientific American says:

The Andes of Peru are remarkable on account of the railroad engineering achievements, especially on the section of the iron road stretching from the port of Mollendo on the Pacific coast to Lampa, and Puna, on the banks of Lake Titicaca, the highest known sheet of water in the world (13,000 feet above sea level). This inland lake measures 120 miles in length, and varies from twenty-five to forty miles in width.

For many years communication was desired between the terminus of the railroad at Puno and the terminus of the railroad at Chiliaya in Bolivia on the opposite shore of the lake, some 100 miles away. The traffic between the two termini was maintained by means of the primitive native balsas, constructed out of the totora grass which thrives on the muddy banks of the lake. But the exigencies of the increased traffic necessitated a more expeditious and economical means of communication, and so the Peruvian corporation which controls the railroads resolved to establish a steamship upon the lake to ply between the two ports.

The contract for the steamer was placed with Messrs. Denny Brothers, the celebrated shipbuilders of Dumbarton on the Clyde. The vessel is a twin-screw, shallow draught steamer, 170 feet in length, beam 26 feet, 550 tons gross, with accommodations for forty-five first-class and thirty second-class passengers. Owing to the lake shelving gradually from the shore it was rendered expedient to have the craft of very shallow draught, in order to approach the landing stage. The vessel, named the "Coya," was temporarily erected upon the Clyde, but not launched. She was then dismembered and shipped at Glasgow to Mollendo.

To facilitate transport, the parts of the vessel were made as small as possible. The boilers, however, owing to the great care that has to be exercised in riveting the plates together by hydraulic pressure, so that there can be no possibility of their exploding, were shipped intact, and that constituted the heaviest and most bulky portions of the cargo, since they weighed fifteen tons each. The Coya was dispatched to Puno under the superintendence of Mr. John Wilson, F. R. G. S., a young engineer who had served his apprenticeship with the builders of the steamer.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in disembarking the material of the Coya at the port of Mollendo. This port is the terror of all Pacific navigators, since it is exposed to the fury of the Pacific ocean. The surf is so heavy that it is only in the calmest weather that safe landing can be effected. After waiting a few days, the weather moderated sufficiently to permit the plates to be landed by means of lighters.

Apprehensive of the safety of the boilers, which were more liable to accident, the engineer proceeded to Islay, a port ten miles north of Mollendo, where there is a magnificent anchorage. They were here transferred to lighters, and towed back to Mollendo. As an extra precaution, the engineer caused the boilers to be plugged, so that in the event of an accident to the lighters, the boilers would float. The loss of a boiler would have been calamitous, involving several months' delay before it could have been replaced.

The cargo was placed on a train of twenty-two freight cars. The boilers were carefully lashed down to obviate oscillation and collision with low bridges.

When Puna was reached, a primitive ship-building yard was improvised upon the potato patch of a Quichua Indian. Difficulties now confronted the engineer on every side. From some occult reason the railroad authorities at Arequipa had made no preparations for his arrival beyond giving him a pile of disused railway sleepers. Notwithstanding the fact that they had been fully instructed to provide necessary tools. Wilson was not even provided with a hammer. But he remained undaunted by this turn of affairs, and since sending to England for tools would have involved several weeks delay, he set to work to fashion a few tools from some scrap iron that he discovered. The railway sleepers he cut up and used as keel dogs.

The railroad authorities supplied some riveters from the locomotive shops at Arequiqa. The natives who assisted in the work, although slothful, possessed a certain amount of intelligence. Flush riveting was unknown to them, however, and some time elapsed before they became sufficiently expert to render much valuable assistance. Trouble was experienced with the "ne'er-do-wells" of the country, called Gringoes who hastened to the scene from all parts of the country, not to work, but to see how much material they could appropriate for their own special use. Some idea of the arduous nature of the engineer's task may be gathered from the fact that in the forty laborers he employed, sixteen different nationalities from all parts of the world were represented.

In selecting the shipyard care had to be taken to select a suitable spot for launching. Under ordinary conditions the launching ways are laid at low tide, so that at high water the lower ends are sufficiently submerged. In this case, however, he had no assistance from tides. Fortunately, at the time of the year he arrived the lake was low, so that when the rainy season raged the water would rise a few feet. But even this would not have supplied a sufficient depth of water at the end of the ways, they were further submerged by means of heavy weights attached to them.

The stocks for the vessel consisted of the timber utilized by the railroad for the erection of their bridges, and they were placed as near the water's edge as possible. The construction of the vessel's hull progressed very rapidly after the laborers had been initiated into the work of flush riveting.

The boilers were really the only difficult portion of the "Coya" to handle. As a rule the machinery is not installed in a vessel until after launching, but this course in this instance was absolutely impracticable, owing to the absence of any kind of lifting appliances. The engineer was unable to obtain a crane, and also could not improvise a derrick, owing to absence of tall trees in that high altitude to furnish sufficiently long lengths of timber. He finally surmounted the difficulty by purchasing the spars from an old sailing vessel in Mollendo port, which the master of the craft only parted with at a high figure, since he had gained news of the engineer's difficulty.

The boilers were each about 16 feet in length by about 8 feet in diameter, and were moved forty yards from the freight cars to the vessel's side by sheer physical labor. The hauling of the boilers into the vessel by the primitive crane was an exacting operation. The condenser weighed five tons. The cylinders and the various parts of the machinery were not installed until after the launch.

Some idea of the rapidity with which the steamer was built may be gained from the fact that within six months of the arrival at Puno, the "Coya" was ready for launching. The launch was an anxious operation to the engineer, because even in the best equipped shipyards a certain amount of uncertainty attends this operation. The engineer more than anticipated failure upon the first attempt, notwithstanding the infinite care he had exercised to avoid any hitch.

The launching ceremony was the occasion of great festivities in the city of Puno. About five thousand Indians also witnessed the function. The christening was performed by the Bishop of Puno. After the short religious service, holy water was sprinkled over the bow, and a bottle of champagne broken in the conventional style. Immediately this was completed, the engineer pulled the trigger maintaining the cradle in position, and instantly the Coya glided with increasing momentum into the water. No launch in the most modern shipyard could have been attended with greater success than the launch of the Coya.

The article also tells of the fitting out, trial trip, high altitude difficulties, privations of engineer, and concludes:

By the terms of the contract the Coya was to be constructed and delivered over to the railroad authorities within twelve months from the signing of the document. The contract was fulfilled within the specified time by two days. The construction of a vessel of the dimentions of the Coya in such an isolated spot as the shores of Lake Titicaca is an engineering triumph. When one recollects the insuperable obstacles the engineer had to surmount, the absence of any of those appliances with which the modern shipyards are provided to facilitate work, the employment of unskilled labor, then some idea of the magnitude of the task may be gained.

A London medical journal chronicles the successful grafting of a new set of eyelids on a man who had been robbed of the originals by fire. The skin was taken from his thigh and the new lids are said to work with all the perfection of the natural lids.

—The new Mattapan bridge on the Blue Hill avenue parkway will be completed this year.

SCHWAB'S NEW HOME

Features of Mansion to Be Erected In New York.

WHOLE FRAMEWORK IS OF STEEL

Noble Entrance Hall Two and a Half Stories High, Connecting With All Principal Rooms, Will Afford Comprehensive View of the Interior. Natatorium In Basement With Gymnasium and Bowling Alleys. Unique Method of Lighting.

Charles M. Schwab's architect, Maurice Hebert, has furnished the New York World with the following facts about the steel magnate's palatial home to be erected in New York:

The architectural style selected by Mr. Schwab for his new residence is the first period of the French renaissance, which is a transitional period leading from the French Gothic to the French renaissance, representing the French period of architecture dating from about 1450 to 1550. The historical and interesting Chateau of Chenonceaux, Chateau of Blois and Chateau of Azay-le-Rideau are the examples originally selected by Mr. and Mrs. Schwab as keynotes of architecture for the exterior. The Chateau of Chenonceaux, which has been admired by generations, was selected by Mr. Schwab for the composition of the main building, while the compositions of the side and rear buildings are taken from the Chateau of Blois and the Chateau of Azay-le-Rideau. The grouping of the different parts of the building is made so as to produce a pleasing picture, both in line and color, and so as to present a finished facade on all sides of the building, which will stand in the center of the block situated on Riverside drive between Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets. The building, which will be about 75 by 150, will be in the center of a lot 200 by 400 and will be surrounded by large terraces, lawns and gardens, permitting a good view of the architectural grouping.

The front facade, facing Riverside drive, is a reproduction of the front facade of Chenonceaux, with the addition of a large porch, which will command a most beautiful view of the Palisades of the Hudson river. The north facade is composed of architectural groupings selected from Chenonceaux, Blois and Azay-le-Rideau and is so arranged to include a large porte cochere with a gate giving exit to Seventy-fourth street. The south facade has a composition similar to the north facade and includes in its groupings a large porch and conservatory situated in front of the dining room. The rear facade shows a large court surrounded by two small wings, taken from the Chateau of Blois, and a Gothic chapel flanking the rear of the main building in the center of the court. The different facades of the building are connected by a circular gallery leading from the court to the two sides of the building and connected with the terraces and gardens.

The material used for the main building will be cream granite and stone, surmounted by dark blue slate roofs. The two side wings, taken from the Chateau of Blois, will be partly stone and partly brick. The building will be composed of cellar, basement, first, second, third and fourth stories, attic and roof terrace.

The first floor will contain the main rooms, with a good view of the Hudson river, and the second story will contain the principal bedrooms. The third story is given to guests' rooms and the fourth story to servants' rooms. The kitchen and pantries are located in the wing facing Seventy-third street, and a large art gallery occupies the entire wing facing Seventy-fourth street.

The main hall is two and a half stories high and is surrounded by a circular gallery and arcade, which leads to all the principal rooms of the second floor and to the chapel, which contains a large organ and decorated glass windows which can be seen from the entrance hall.

Mr. Schwab is celebrated for his originality, and when he and Mrs. Schwab decided to make New York their home they declined to have anything to do with sites that did not offer an abundance of breathing space, a view of the landscape and a healthy neighborhood. They scoured Manhattan and Brooklyn boroughs and finally selected the block bounded on the west by Riverside drive, on the east by West End avenue and extending between Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets. For many years this plot had been occupied by an orphan asylum. Mr. Schwab made up his mind to build himself a magnificent home on this spot, and he had to pay $865,000 for the entire block.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwab had many ideas which they wished to embody in the building of their new home, and with these suggestions carefully arranged they went to Architect Maurice Hebert of New York and explained what they wanted. This was about a year ago. Architect Hebert immediately went to work, and his plans have been accepted.

Mr. Schwab will expend between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 and possibly more on his home. Almost daily he adds something that will render it even more beautiful and attractive. Everything that is to be used in the Schwab mansion will be made specially to order. No stock material of any kind will be employed.

One of the unique features will be the method of lighting the house. The main hallway, grand stairway, parlor, den, library, billiard room, chapel and music room as well as the natatorium and other important parts of the house will be lighted from above by concealed and reflected electric lights. No electric light bulbs will be visible, excepting where decorative brackets may be placed. This system of lighting insures a mellow light that is very pleasing to the eye and admits of many beautiful ceiling effects. The ceilings of the residence will be exquisite creations of art. Adjoining the lodge, near the corner of West End avenue and Seventy-third street, will be the engine and dynamo room and the heating plant.

The natatorium on the basement floor, directly back of the chapel and music room, will be one of the finest of its kind in this country. It will be about 20 by 30 feet in size and from two feet deep at one end to ten feet at the other. The sides and bottom of the tank will be of glazed brick, while surrounding the pool will be a circular colonnade gallery. The walls of the room will be covered with paintings by celebrated artists. From the four corners of the pool marble steps will enable the bather to reach the water with ease and safety. The arched ceiling will be of art glass of artistic design, it being so arranged that by day daylight shines through this wonderful canopy of glass and at night electric lights placed over the dome will give the same pleasing effect. The temperature of the water in the pool will be regulated automatically.

In the front reception hall will be found many works of art, the ceiling and sides being wonderfully and beautifully wrought. Great columns, rising to the high ceiling, will be of choice marble, while at the left as one enters will be an imposing mantel, also reaching to the ceiling.

The reception hall will give the visitor a very pleasing impression of the entire house, since here will be reflected the choicest ideas of the owner, most carefully brought out by the artist and sculptor. The reception hall at the Seventy-fourth street entrance is another wonderful creation. Here a statue of snow white marble by a celebrated sculptor will be placed.

In the Flemish den Mr. Schwab will entertain most of his intimate friends. It will be especially fitted up for hard usage. Here he will place most of the curios he has gathered from all parts of the world. His collection, which is in his beautiful Pittsburg residence, is large and very valuable. It will be brought to New York as soon as the Flemish den is ready to receive it.

French walnut and antique marble will be the striking features of the Henry II. library, where Mr. Schwab will install his rare collection of books. On high columns of antique marble ranged about the room will be marble and bronze busts of noted authors, sculptors and other celebrities admired by Mr. Schwab. Already Mr. Schwab has collected a large number of expensive paintings by famous masters, and for these he has provided on the ground floor in the northeastern part of his house a large art gallery, in the center of which he will have an expensive bronze. A Turkish bath system with all the latest improvements will occupy a large place in the basement, adjoining the natatorium.

Directly under the main entrance on the basement floor Mr. Schwab will have his bowling alleys, with accommodations for spectators who may be present to watch the progress of the game. A large gymnasium will take up the space on both sides of the bowling alley. The billiard room will be on the first floor.

Rising from the rear of the house, in which are located the chapel and music room with the wonderful pipe organ, is an observation tower and belfry 116 feet high. From the top of the upper lookout a magnificent panoramic view of the entire city, harbor and Palisades of the Hudson will be had. With glasses, transatlantic liners can be seen as they turn into the lower bay on their way to New York.

In the belfry of the tower Mr. Schwab may place a set of chimes to ring every hour and half hour, the clockwork to be connected with the observatory clock at Washington.

An immense refrigerating plant will be another interesting feature. This will be used in connection with the ventilating system to cool the house in summer time. By means of fans the fresh but warm air will be taken from outside of the building and passed through the refrigerating chambers, where it will be cooled. It will then be ready for use in any or all parts of the residence wherever it may be wanted, the temperature being automatically regulated to suit the occupants of the various rooms. In winter weather the air will be passed over steam heated coils of pipe and delivered by fan pressure when wanted.

The entire framework of the house will be of steel, rendering it fireproof. Over 650 tons of structural steel will be used in the house. The great weight of the Schwab mansion makes it necessary to secure a rock foundation, and in several places it will be thirty feet deep. The cellar will be sunk into at least five feet of solid rock. The base of the house will be about a hundred feet above the Hudson river, and the gardens surrounding the palace will be special works of famed landscape gardeners.

Whitehead of Janesville, the stalwart candidate, was placed in nomination by A. S. Mathewson. Davidson was nominated for lieutenant governor.

FEEL SORRY FOR SMITH

Army Officers Think His Punishment Too Severe

EXTRAVAGANT LANGUAGE

Led the Old Soldier to a Disgraceful Ending of His Career—An Eccentricity Which Was Always Taken as a Joke by His Army Friends

Washington, July 18.—There is a belief among certain army officers here that if the military court which tried General Smith had had any idea that the president would exceed the sentence imposed, it would not have convicted the general at all. To retire voluntarily with the stain of a reprimand is a severe punishment, according to army ideas. But compulsory retirement from service, such as the president imposed on General Smith, is, in the opinion of these army officers, beyond what the court martial expected.

General Smith acquired his sobriquet of "Hell-roaring Jake" not because of violence in war, but because of the habitual extravagance of his language in talk. In his written orders General Smith has always been careful to observe the proprieties, but in conversation he delights in blood-curdling epigrams and fantastic oaths. His army friends never take them in any other way than as a joke, and that this eccentricity should have led the old soldier to a disgraceful ending of his career is a matter of sincere sorrow to them. Nobody obeyed the general's orders, as Secretary Root admits, and Major Waller knew that General Smith's violence of language was not to be taken seriously.

General Jacob Henry Smith was born in Columbus, O., and was 62 years old his last birthday. He has fought in three wars, besides spending over a quarter of a century in the west in warfare with the Indians. He was on the firing line always—in the Civil war, in Indian campaigns, around Santiago and San Juan Hill and in the Philippines.

He entered the service of his country as a first lieutenant in the Second Kentucky volunteers June 4, 1861, and in less than a year was promoted to the rank of captain. He was mustered out June 29, 1863, and on the following day was appointed captain in the veteran reserve corps, from which he was mustered out Oct. 21, 1865. Two years later he was breveted a major for bravery at the battle of Shiloh, where he was severely wounded. Immediately afterward he received a commission as captain in the Thirteenth Infantry of the regular troops.

In May, 1869, he was appointed major and judge advocate, both of which appointments, however, were revoked by the president. He was captain of the Nineteenth infantry, receiving his commission Dec. 19, 1870; he was promoted to major in the Second infantry Nov. 26, 1894; lieutenant colonel of the Twelfth infantry June 30, 1898; colonel of the Seventeenth infantry Oct. 20, 1899, and brigadier general of volunteers June 1, 1900.

Citizens Not All Satisfied

Stockbridge, Mass., July 18.—The selectmen of this town yesterday granted the Berkshire Street Railway company a location through Main and South streets. This was the result of a petition that this location be granted instead of a private route which some wealthy citizens had bought. The society for the preservation of highways will appeal to the state board of railroad commissioners against the action taken by the selectmen.

Tracy Again Outwits Pursuers

Black Diamond, Wash., July 18.—Tracy has eluded the sheriff of King county and many picked men who had advanced on his hiding place three miles from here Wednesday night. The posse arrived at Tracy's hiding place six or eight hours after he had left, accompanied by two confederates. Sheriff Cudihee and the posse returned to Black Diamond yesterday afternoon. The chase from this point has been abandoned.

Chinese Accept Ministers' Terms

Pekin, July 18.—General Yuan Shi Kai, the governor of Chi Li province, and the Chinese foreign office, have decided to accept the terms proposed for the withdrawal of the foreign troops from Tien Tsin and will so notify the ministers. This decision will be a surprise to the ministers, who expected the Chinese would endeavor to obtain better terms.

Warships Getting Together

Washington, July 18.—The battleships Alabama and Kearsarge, which sailed from New York with the north Atlantic squadron Tuesday, have arrived at Gardiners bay, where the fleet is to rendezvous. The Scorpion, which is to take part in the maneuvers as one of the "enemy's division," has sailed for Gardiners bay from Boston.

Thieving Bank Teller Convicted

New York, July 18.—Harry G. Bell, formerly receiving teller of the Riverside bank, who has been on trial charged with the larceny of $751 from the bank, was found guilty yesterday. The bank officers testified that Bell's total shortage was more than $20,000.

Mania For Killing Babies

Birmingham, Ala., July 18.—Willie Cannon, a colored tramp, aged 15, yesterday confessed to the chief of police that he had recently killed one white baby and three negro babies.

AMERICAN RACING GEAR

Likely to Be Used In Fitting Out Shamrock II For Cup Races

Providence, July 18.—That there will be a series of races for the America's cup in 1903 now seems to be an assured fact in view of an order given to a prominent block manufacturing concern here by Sir Thomas Lipton, and work has already been commenced on a full set of blocks for Shamrock II, now in storage in a South Brooklyn yard.

Unless the precedent established in the preliminary preparations for other large yachting events is doomed to be set at odds, it seems reasonable to believe that if a challenge has not already been issued, one will soon be forthcoming from Lipton because of the plans in process at this early date for the fitting out of the old challenger.

Yachtsmen believe it to be certain that Shamrock II will be fitted out early next season in New York. The new blocks will be of similar material to those furnished by the same firm for Columbia, Constitution, the British sloop Distant Shore and the Meteor, owned by Emperor William of Germany.

A report here, which comes from good authority, has it that a large duck concern in Lawrence, Mass., is at work manufacturing material for the sails of Shamrock II. The canvas, the report continues, will be cut into sails at the loft of Thomas Ratsey, the British sailmaker, at City Island, New York.

In keeping with these favorable indications comes a report that the wire rigging for Shamrock II is to be furnished by a well known New York firm, all of which leads men well informed on yachting interests to believe that Shamrock II is to be fitted out wholly in her top hampen in American racing gear.

Hid Booty In Corsets

Springfield, Mass., July 18.—Henry M. Wilson, who broke jail in Manchester, N. H., where he was confined on a charge of burglary, was caught in Long Meadow yesterday, where he was ransacking the residence of Mrs. J. Howarth, by William Goldthwaite and Joseph Watters. Previous to going to the suburban town he ransacked the home of John Lawless in this city. On his arrival here Wilson was searched. He was wearing a pair of corsets and inside them were found watches and all sorts of jewelry.

Mystery Deeper Than Ever

Beverly, Mass., July 18.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Wilbur Clark, 4 years old, who has been missing since noon on June 17, is as far from solution as it was 15 minutes after the boy toddled away from his father at Chebacco pond, Essex. Bloodhounds and hunters have failed to find anything new. Mr. Clark has given up hopes of ever seeing the boy alive again, but Mrs. Clark believes that the boy is alive and will eventually be returned to his home.

Chauffeurs Will Be Watched

Stockbridge, Mass., July 18.—Automobilists who tour through Berkshire will have to be careful of their speed, for Stockbridge has now fallen in line with Lenox and Pittsfield in keeping an eye on fast automobiles. Distances are to be marked out on the highways, and a mounted officer with stop-watch in hand will keep close "tabs" on all tourists who desire to speed along the highways surrounding this town.

Yachting Party Capsized

Boston, July 18.—Captain John Morris of the sloop yacht Aphrodite, with James Harvey, Mrs. Harvey, her 7-year-old daughter and another, arrived here last evening on a schooner, having been capsized from their boat about five miles southeast of Richmond island on the Maine coast. None of the party was injured. The yacht drifted away and was later picked up and towed into Portland harbor.

Shot Brother-In-Law

Hartford, July 18.—Joseph Guzeruez pleaded guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree before Justice Beckwith at East Windsor yesterday. At the request of State Attorney Butts he case was continued until Tuesday Guzeruez shot his brother-in-law, Stanislaus Mauditz, in the head Wednesday night, and death resulted yesterday. Guzeruez claimed that he shot Mauritz in self-defense.

A Boy's Unlucky Find

Bristol, R. I., July 18.—Manuel Da Ponta, 10 years old, was killed here yesterday by the explosion of a bo 10. His left shoulder was shattered and he was otherwise injured. It is supposed that the bomb was one intended for use during the celebration by the Italians one night recently, and that the boy found it somewhere.

Clark Probably Not In Maine

Biddeford, Me., July 18.—Local officers are convinced that the missing Wilbur Clark of Beverly, Mass., has not been in this section of the state, although the description of the boy Mrs. C. F. Lewis saw whipped at a gypsy camp on the outskirts of Saco tallies in some respects with that of the missing Clark boy.

Held on Manslaughter Charge

Chelsea, Mass., July 18.—Malachi Rourke, motorman on the Boston and Northern Street Railway company's Revere Beach car which ran over and instantly killed Frank T. Kiff, aged 5, was arraigned yesterday on charge of manslaughter. Justice Cutler ordered him to furnish $1000 for appearance on July 23.

Damage by Electrical Storm

Manchester, Vt., July 18.—A terrific electrical storm passed over this section of the state last night, causing considerable damage. Two large barns owned by Jesse Mattison were struck by lightning aand burned.

FRIEND OF THE POOR.

Philanthropist Spends His Last Days Donating $10,000,000.

CLOSELY INVESTIGATES CASES.

Abraham Slimmer of Iowa Acquired His Fortune For the Sole Purpose of Aiding the Needy and Sick. How He "Drives Bargains" to Make Institutions Self Supporting.

In Abraham Slimmer, Waverly, Ia., has a philanthropist who has mastered the science of successful charity, says the New York Evening World. In many ways he resembles John M. Burke of New York, and he works a great deal along the lines of Mr. Burke's ideas, save that he seeks to help the very poor. He has accumulated $10,000,000, and he is going to give it all away. Already he has arranged for the disposition of a part of it. He gives with as much care as he has exercised all his life in his business. In his own language, he "drives a hard bargain," but the recipients of his charity come to see the common sense of his arrangements.

Mr. Slimmer is a bachelor. He says he has made money all his life, and the only pleasure he finds now is in giving it away. He expects to die without a cent.

In an interview in which he outlined his plans Mr. Slimmer told of some things he has done and discoursed upon the foolishness of the general run of charity. He has a safe full of ironclad contracts he has made with the recipients of his bounty and prides himself on the fact that they cannot be broken. Said he, showing one of these documents:

"Here is a contract with a hospital. I gave them $50,000, and they at first raised the same amount, when a few weeks before they told me they could not raise $2,000 to keep the little hospital they had from being abandoned. Later they raised another $50,000, and it is now a rich institution. My conditions were hard, and they fought me for months over them, but they feel differently now. I provided that the building should cost $25,000 and the remaining $75,000 should be placed in a permanent fund, which I named after the widow of an ex-governor of the state solely because she was a good woman. She had not a dollar to give. Then I provided that every patient who had no money should be paid at the rate of $7 per week out of this permanent fund. If there were no poor patients, they got none of the fund.

"Begging letters?" he repeated in answer to the question. "Yes, I get thousands of letters of all kinds—letters asking me how I work my charities, letters telling me that I ought to have a helper, and winding up with some good woman offering to marry me. But it is not through letters that I find out what to do. I go into a town, attracted perhaps by a little item in a paper. I say nothing, but find out things. One time I went into a town and found there was an old woman's home where the inmates were placed two in a small room that had to be chalked across to keep the occupants from quarreling. They asked me to buy a quilt, as they were having to make and sell things or close the institution. I refused to buy the quilt because I could not see any good that money would do, but I hunted up the richest man in the town and told him that if he and his neighbors would raise $50,000 I would give the same. He laughed at me and said the thing was utterly impossible; that they had been trying to raise $1,500 for two years and had only half of it. I talked to him for half an hour, and he gave $10,000 himself and got the other $40,000 in twenty-four hours."

Mr. Slimmer is now, as he says, seventy-three years of age. He is a small man, perhaps 5 feet 7 inches, and weighs 130 pounds. He is inseparable from his hat and never changes the style. He cares little for dress and wears a twelve dollar suit, with old style boots. Besides his "work," his hobby is old people and old friends. Among the latter he numbers Turk, as rascally an old horse, grown fat and sleek on the best the land affords, as one will meet in a day's journey. He had a little crop eared dog, mention of whose death a year ago is still the signal for a solemn face on the part of the master.

Mr. Slimmer has many plans for the future. He has just begun to give money away, he says. Some of his plans concern Chicago. He will not discuss them except in a general way. But wherever he goes and whatever he does it will be taken for granted that some conditions will be maintained.

"I do not make hard and fast conditions with the sisters," he says, "because they devote their lives to the work, perform the labor of the institutions with their own hands and can make an institution pay where salary drawing people would fail. They are honest and earnest, and if their religion is narrow, according to my way of thinking, they are earnest in it and believe in it.

"I will not have women in the directories of the institutions I help to start. I do not care for a few, but I will not have them given any part of the management of affairs. They are sympathetic and emotional, but they cannot do anything without getting up factions and quarrels, and they put their personal friends in fat positions if they can. And, last of all, I will not give anything to institutions that can get along without me. I prefer to start something myself—something that would not be started without me. I can find enough to do even with all these conditions, so my business will not suffer for want of patronage."

Blue Flame
Oil Stoves.

What's the sense of getting all over heated three times a day during the summer, cooking over a red hot range, paying panic prices for coal, digging out ashes and making life generally miserable for yourself because your kitchen is hot-hot-hot.

How much more sensible to own a Blue Flame Oil Stove. With it you can do your whole summer's cooking, and when in operation it costs only a penny an hour. Life is short at best and if you don't enjoy a few of such comforts as these, why of course no one is to blame but yourself.

"There is music, I know, that is hopeful and blithe
In the swing of the sickle, the sweep of the scythe;
In the lisp of the foreplane, the smith's anvil peal,
In the roar of the mills and the clash of its wheel;
There's music that's timed to the rhthmical beat
Of the quick-step of Fate in the thunderous street;
There's music that's played by the breeze and the gale
In the creak of the mast and the flap of the sail;
And there's something that smacks of an epical strain
In the clank of the engine, the sweep of the train.
This music, tho' mixed with the toiler's tired moan,
And mingled with heart-breaks too deep for a groan,
Is wrought out at length in an anthem sublime
That fills without discord the wise ear of Time."
—Sam Walter Foss.

Miss Corinna Wilde of Billings street gave a lawn party Friday evening to some half a hundred of her friends. The lawn was copiously lighted by odd Japanese lanterns, and joss sticks, fastened to the trees, gave out an aromatic and mosquito-killing perfume. A hurdy-gurdy played during the entire evening, and those who refused the delight of hammocks, danced on the green. Punch was served in a little tent in the near vicinity of the music, and a graphaphone gave many up-to-date and comical pieces beneath a wide spreading tree. While a Virginia reel was in gala progress in the yard, several games of ping pong were going on in the house, which was charmingly decorated for the occasion.

GRANITE FREIGHT.

Rates West of Chicago Reduced One Third.

Great Saving for Quincy Shippers.

Hon. Russell A. Sears Successful in His Trip West.

The agitation of the New England granite and marble dealers, for a reduction of the freight rates on their product in West, has been successful, and will be good news to the granite dealers of Quincy, who have of late found the rates almost prohibitive.

For about two years the rates west of Chicago have been excessive, so that there has been very little profit after competition with western granites.

A meeting of representatives of western railroads was held this month at Charletoix, Mich., and Hon. Russell A. Sears of this city appeared before them as a representative of the New England dealers in granite and marble, and was so successful in the presentation of the arguments, that all the roads west of Chicago have voted to reduce their rates on these products practically one-third.

This means a saving of $100,000 to $150,000 per year for New England manufacturers, and will be of great benefit to Quincy.

SASHE IN COURT.

Fined $25 for Assault on Tupper G. Miller.

Jacob Sashe, who made a murderous assault on Tupper G. Miller at the plant of Thomas & Miller yesterday noon was arraigned in court this morning on a warrant charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Miller, the victim was able to appear in court and give his testimony as to the assault.

Miller testified that Sashe came into the shop a few minutes before noon and said he wanted a pean hammer. He was told he had one of his own. He replied that he would take any one. At this he took a hammer from the bench and started to walk out of the shop. I went after him and asked him to let me see the number. At that he struck me on the head with the hammer. I then struck him with my fist and chased him into the street.

Dr. Hallowell, who dressed the wound, described the cut, which he said was over two inches long and cut through the scalp. The cut was evidently made with some sharp instrument and in his opinion force was used. He did not think the skull was fractured.

Sashe claimed that Miller grabbed him by the throat before he hit him and that the blow was struck in self defense.

The court imposed a fine of $25.

The hammer with which the blow was struck is diamond in shape and very sharp, and the wonder is that more serious injury was not inflicted.

The New Warships.

The Navy department announced yesterday that the two battleships to be built under the authority of the last naval appropriation bill are to be named the Louisiana and Connecticut, and the two cruisers the Tennessee and the Washington.

The battleship to be built at the New York navy yard will be the Connecticut.

The battleships will cost $4,212,000 and the cruisers $4,659,000 each.

The two tugs authorized by the act are to be built, one at the Mare island yard and the other at Boston.

Admiral Bowles has prepared an elaborate plan for keeping the accounts in connection with the cost of the Connecticut in such order that when she is finished comparisons can be made between the respective cost of building ships in government and private yards.

To Blue Hill.

The Blue Hill street railway company has gone to the Railroad Commissioners with its petition for a location in Milton on Blue Hill avenue, Brush Hill road and Milton street, upon which the Selectman have failed to act. A hearing will be given next Thursday.

A Window In Lausanne

By ZOE ANDERSON NORRIS

Copyright, 1901, by Zoe Anderson Norris

IT was a window in the dining room of a pension in Lausanne. It stretched the full length of the dining room, broad, wide, deep. There were two smaller windows, one on either side. This was how I first saw it. I have never forgotten it. I never shall forget it.

I had sailed over a sea of turquoise from Geneva to Lausanne, a dream lake transcendently beautiful, encompassed by mountains phantasmagorical, changing while you looked, each peak surpassing the other in the radiance of its beauty, Mont Blanc first, snowy, sunlit, looking loftily down upon us from the clouds, followed by others and others; an indescribable lake, blue as blue and dotted here and there by sloops, fairy sloops you rarely see elsewhere, twin sailed sloops that in certain positions take on the shape of two wings of a dipping dove.

Walking the deck of the little steamer, I had looked first at the lake and then at the mountains. The deep, rich blue of Lake Geneva had melted gradually into the less blue of Lake Leman, the ripples cut into sharp sparkles like blue bits of broken glass.

And the chameleon mountains! Past the sunshine of Mont Blanc a delicate mist had begun to cover them, like a veil, half revealing, half concealing, the face of a pretty woman. They were volatile, ethereal, so ethereal that I doubted if they were real mountains after you got to them, and, as a matter of fact, some did elude us entirely, hiding behind peaked crags and smiling at us through the flaky fleece of clouds.

The steamer stopped at Ouchy. From there a mountain climbing train had elevated me to Lausanne, where, following a man with my satchels, my camera and my alpenstock, I had walked between tall gray walls, over which from high, sweet gardens scarlet flowers nodded to this pension. Other flowers welcomed me there, greeting me with lavish waste of perfume—roses, sweet peas, honeysuckles and mignonette.

Ordinarily pensions occupy lower floors, but this vaulted skyward. Depositing a franc in the brawny hand of my man of the satchels, I followed at the heels of two nimble white capped maids up three flights of stairs of graystone, somber and circular. My room was located on this third floor, and the dining room was on the fourth. The observatory was on the roof, and above that were the clouds; at night the stars.

There was method in this seeming madness. The town is built on a steep, high mountain side. Across from it, ten miles away, are those other mountains. And between is the lake.

The people of Lausanne live for those mountains, for that lake. Of mornings,

"THIS WAY," SAID THE MAID AS SHE OPENED THE DOOR.

in lieu of the usual stereotyped greeting of "How did you sleep last night?" or "How do you carry yourself?" or "Are you quite well?" they say: "Have you seen the view since sunrise? How is it? Are the mountains pink or blue or a roseate mixture of the two? And the lake—how is that? Is it dimpling with sparkles or is it altogether lost in the mist, that beautiful lake?"

The maids, depositing my satchels, had left me. I had looked about me at the white walls, the white floor, the immaculate rug, with every scrap of its fringe laid flat in a manner forbiddingly precise; at my divan, shaped like Mme. de Stael's and covered with dimity of much the same pattern as hers, but not quite the same quality; at the shining white porcelain stove in the corner and at the tall, white candlestick, decorated with its little flowers of blue. I had taken out my Geneva clock that kept time just two hours fast, set it on the porcelain stove, placed the miniature of a girl I love upon it, brushed the stains of travel from me, smoothed back my hair and was standing at the window regarding the rows upon rows of vines in the vineyards that surrounded the house back, front and sides when Mme. Guinand sent for me to come to the dining room for a cup of tea.

"This way," said the maid, and she opened the door.

I stood on the threshold, transfixed, speechless.

Madame, immaculate as my rug on my floor in her smart gray linen and bobbing curls reaching to her shoulder, stood at the left of the window. She held back the curtain.

She was silent, but her expression and attitude ejaculated, "There!"

I merely clasped my hands, looking.

It is impossible for me to describe that lake, those mountains. Instinctively I shrink from the attempt. Absorbed in the scene, I felt the presence of rather than saw a girl who sat at the right of the window stitching. Madame fastened the curtain permanently back on a large brass hook. I was glad of that. The girl went on stitching.

"The lake is bluer than usual today." It was madame who spoke. The girl was still as a statue. "The wind fans it."

"But is it the wind that flings up that thin blue veil over the mountains," I asked, "or does it seep up out of the too blue of the lake?"

"It is the wind," she replied, "and the atmosphere."

I sat down to tea served in an old blue teapot that at other times would have rejoiced me. I drank it out of an old blue cup. There were thin slices of bread on a rare plate upon which blue ships sailed at half mast on a bluer sea, and in a choice marmalade jar was raspberry jam—dripping, juicy, genuine raspberry jam. But before me was the window, and my bodily hunger was lost in the hunger of my eyes.

Presently the profile of the girl delicately outlined itself against the deep blue of the sea. It was pure as the profile of a Greek. Turning, she rested her eyes on me with a half smile. They were large and deep and blue. From much looking at the lake they had apparently caught the color thereof.

Once more the exquisite profile showed against the glint of the pane, a clear cut cameo. She stared absently awhile out at the small side window toward Geneva; then, taking up her work once more, she stitched.

I finished my tea, gave a regretful backward glance at the window and found my way to the drawing room, where the others were. There some old maids, doubled up in corners, read books; an English mother, stout, rosy, robust, sat surrounded by a brood of meek children built on the same pattern. But it was an American family that occupied the choice divans.

Travers was the name—Sibyl Travers, her father, her mother and her little brother, aged ten. I put Sibyl first because she belonged there. She dominated the family. They sat about her in awed and graceful groups awaiting her word of command, glad to obey, rejoiced to yoke themselves and be led—that is, all but her little brother. Occasionally he mutinied.

Sibyl opened the conversation with a few appropriate remarks. Cleverly putting several important and leading questions to me, she satisfied herself as regarded my position, general standing and character and took me up. We became forthwith firm friends.

Together we haunted the room with the window. Giving the blue eyed girl there a wide berth, we watched the mountains turn purple as overripe plums, turn blue, turn paler blue and disappear. We climbed up and up and up to the roof then and watched the moon rise over them, the stars come out, the little towns across on the opposite coast commence to gleam and glitter in a twinkle of fairy lights and now and again a lonely beacon loom redly, showing itself like a giant eye on some tall mountain top.

When the night grew dusky and the wind arose—the wind soughs through the pines in Lausanne like Kansas; it talks, it whispers, it moans, it wails—we descended to the drawing room and talked of the girl in low tones befitting the talk of the pines.

"Why does she sit by the window all day long," asked Sibyl, looking toward Geneva?"

An old maid with white hair and a mole on her chin looked up from her book. Nowhere in the world outside of France do you find so many old maids as you find in Switzerland.

"If you are sure the door is shut between," said she, "I'll tell you why."

Syble arose, tiptoed to the door, shut it stealthily, tiptoed back again, resumed her seat and looked breathless attention.

The English mother, fearing the story might contain some slight touch unfit for the delicate ears of her brood, shooed it out of the room, closing the other door on herself and it.

The old maid, closing her book, crushed a wrinkled forefinger into it, marking the place.

"It was about three years ago," she began, "when a young man stopped at this pension and stayed three weeks or four. I've forgotten just whether it was three weeks or four, but anyway it was plenty long enough to do the harm. And she was here. She had come only the day before. He fell in love with her, and she with him—she more in love with him than he with her, which is the way of women."

Sibyl gave a toss of her yellow head.

"With not quite all," she interrupted.

The old maid looked hard at her over spectacles split half in two, the upper half for viewing people and the lower half for reading books.

"Umph!" said she and went on with the story.

"All the world loves a lover"—"She got that out of a book," whispered Sibyl—"even old maids. He was one in a thousand. Just standing by watching, you'd have thought he worshiped the very ground she walked on. And she—well, she was so happy her happiness leaked over and spilled out on us. It gave a sort of glow same as that sunshine that's dangling through the window now and fading the carpet in streaks.

"Then he went away. Before he went he said to her: 'I'm coming back in a little while—in a very little while. I'll come back by way of Geneva, over the lake. You sit by the window there and wait for me till I come.'"

"And then?"

"That was two years ago or three, I've forgotten which. Two or three, and she's done what he told her to do. She's sat by that window watching and waiting and watching and waiting. She stitches to fill in the time. Then, fortunately, people buy the things she stitches, and so she lives. People come and people go, but she sits there, always waiting and watching and stitching."

She opened the book at the place of the crushed forefinger.

"And that's the story," she finished, commencing to read.

"But the boy!" cried Sibyl. "Who was he? Where did he come from? Was he German, Greek, Italian, American or what?"

"He was an American," replied the old maid somewhat impatiently, her eyes on the book.

Sibyl leaned forward, open mouthed, wide eyed.

"From what state?" she demanded.

"Is there a state called Kentucky?" inquired the old maid.

"What a question! What ghastly ignorance! Our Kentucky! But you often find them like that abroad—oftener than not. Sometimes I really think that there is positively no end to their ignorance."

"If there is, I believe that's the state he came from. Yes, that was the name—Kentucky."

"Kentucky!" gasped Sibyl. "That's my state. And what was his name?"

"His name was Payton," answered the old maid. "Tom Payton, I think it was, from Harrodsburg."

Sibyl again arose. She grasped my arm. She dragged me from the room, through the hall, down one flight of stairs, into her own room, where, closing the door, she stood with her back against it, I a little way off, contemplating her amazedly, wondering if she had mistaken me for some member of her family that she switched me about after her in a fashion so imperiously regal.

"Tom Payton!" she repeated. She covered her face—it was a pretty face

"HIS NAME WAS PAYTON."

—with slim white fingers. "Tom Payton," she said again, "of Harrodsburg!"

"Well, what of it?" I queried, puzzled.

"Hush!" she cautioned, repeating her maneuver of tiptoeing to the door, closing it more securely, then tiptoeing back again. As if the blue eyed girl sitting at her window in the room above, with every door fast shut between, could hear! Then:

"I don't know whether to laugh or to cry," she explained, a tear in her eye. "Tom Payton! I know that wretch. I know him well. Oh, oh, oh! There she sits at that window waiting for him, stitching, looking toward Geneva and waiting for him, and he—he's married! He's been married a year—a year and a half by now—and—there's a baby boy!"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 20—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Means of growth.—Phil. iii, 12-16; Col. i, 10-14.

Christian growth is a necessity. It is necessary because we can never in this life come to a state of moral and spiritual perfection. At least this was Paul's opinion. After nearly thirty years of most devout and zealous service and consecration he declared that he still pressed forward, "not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect; but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which I am apprehended of Christ Jesus. Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended." Language could not be plainer. Paul at least knew nothing of perfection here, and hence he must needs always press on toward the goal. The same necessity for the same reason rests upon all Christians.

Paul was actuated in his desire for Christian growth and progress by a profound reason. Christ had apprehended or laid hold of him for salvation, and, if he failed in apprehending that for which he was apprehended in Christ, then Christ's work for him would be made vain and ineffective. Therefore he was zealously anxious to follow out and to lay hold on the eternal life which Christ had apprehended for him by His death. This profound motive should influence us all in desiring to persevere unto salvation. Christ died that we might be saved, and lest His death be in vain we should accept Him as our Saviour and persevere in Christian faith and life until the end

Paul's method of progress or of growth is also set forth in the topical reference. It consisted of singleness of aim. "This one thing I do. * * * I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Christianity must have the supreme place in our lives if we are to grow as we should. Christian progress can only be made by putting Christ first and making all things revolve about Him as the planets revolve around the sun. And that we may press forward with singleness of aim Paul suggests that we must forget the things that are behind. Paul's past would have interfered with present progress. But God had blotted out the past, and why should he dwell upon it to the detriment of his advancement in Christian faith and service? The past and everything else that interferes with our constant growth must be forgotten or brushed aside. One thing, singleness of aim, is our only sure method of success.

The goal set before us is worthy our utmost endeavors. It is "the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." The prize is the crown of eternal life, and God on high calls us to it. What an inspiration! The contestant in the Grecian games thought it an honor to win a mortal crown. What should we think, therefore, of a fadeless, immortal crown? And God calls us on. How can we falter or refuse?

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. i, 1-6; lii, 7-9; Jer. xii, 1, 2; Hos. xiv, 5-7; Mal. iv, 1, 2; Matt. xiii, 31-33; Luke i, 8-10; Eph. ii, 19-22; I Pet. ii, 1-3; II Pet. iii, 17, 18.

A Call to Duty.

Every one may help to keep the standard of intellectual honesty at a lofty pitch, and what better service can a man render than to furnish the world with an example of faithful dealing with his own conscience and with his fellows? This, at least, is the one talent that is placed in the hands of the obscurest of us all. And what is this smile of the world, to win which we are bidden to sacrifice our moral manhood; this frown of the world, whose terrors are more awful than the withering up of truth and the slow going out of light within the souls of us? Consider the triviality of life and conversation and purpose in the bulk of those whose approval is held out for our prize and the mark of our calling. Measure, if you can, the empire over those of prejudice unadulterated by a single element of rationality and weigh, if you can, the huge burden of custom, unrelieved by a single leavening particle of fresh thought. In the light of these things a man should surely dare to live his small span of life with little heed of the common speech upon him or his life, only caring that his days may be full of reality and his conversation of truth speaking and wholeness.—John Morley.

The Best Training.

It is never in ease or luxury, with freedom from sense of need and care, that the world's best and strongest helpers are trained. Those who have grown up in the midst of common human conditions, knowing care and the pressure of life's burdens, feeling the press of need and the pinch of narrow limitations, meeting trial and enduring struggle, learn in these very experiences to be sympathetic and helpful to others.—Forward.

Freely Give.

Christian beneficence is a duty, but what is the measure of it? We cannot fix a measure the same to every one, but the Scripture teaching is clear and is a sufficient rule, "Freely give." The giving should be with a free spirit, the spirit of giving, and it should be liberal, and liberality is measured by the means at command. Do you give "freely?"—United Presbyterian.

Unfinished Work.

There is no ruin like an unfinished work. The incomplete stands for hopes never to be realized and prayers to which no answer will ever come.—Presbyterian Journal.

The Whiteness of the Soul.

The man who in this world can keep the whiteness of his soul is not likely to lose it in any other.—Alexander Smith.

HANNA AND ROOSEVELT

Will Have No Break Over Place For General Wood

THE SENATOR WOULD FIGHT

If President's Friend Were to Be Made "Manager" of Canal Commission Because of Alleged Unfair Treatment of Rathbone In Cuba

Washington, July 19.—When Mr. Roosevelt became president the political wiseacres began predicting an early break between him and Senator Hanna, who had been President McKinley's most intimate adviser; and the rocks on which their fellowship would split were all duly charted and labelled. But the crash did not come. All through the late session of congress the president found no more ardent supporter of his policy than Mr. Hanna. In the final controversy over Cuban reciprocity, Mr. Hanna was one of the few senators who persistently urged action along lines recommended by the president, and warned his party that the people wanted this legislation and would resent the failure of congress to act.

But the senator's closest friends say now that the break will surely come if General Leonard Wood is named as the "business member" or "manager" of the isthmian canal commission, as sundry newspapers have announced would be done. This break, however, is likely to amount to no more than the others have, since the best informed observers here have never had any idea that the president expected to name Wood for such an office. Wood has been, apparently, very desirous of an appointment on the commission, but largely because he is interested in the sanitary and hygienic conditions of the tropical canal zone. He will make a number of recommendations to the president about these matters, but there will be no real need of utilizing his services as a member of the commission.

Senator Hanna would undoubtedly have made an open fight against General Wood if he had been named as a commissioner. The senator is firmly convinced that Rathbone was not given a fair trial in Cuba, and that Wood was to blame for the failure. The only thing Wood can hope to get without a fight with Hanna will be the ordinary military promotions. The president knows this; and, though he would not desist from doing his full duty to Wood on such an account, that is a different thing from inviting a set-to with Senator Hanna quite gratuitously.

The provisions of the Spooner bill providing for the appointment of a canal commission are such, by the way, that several aspirants for commissionships are bound to be disappointed. The commission will be composed of seven members, four of whom must be skilled engineers. One of the four must be an officer of the army and another an officer of the navy. This reduces the number of civilians, exclusive of engineering experts, to three.

Many members of congress who have failed of renomination have been mentioned as possible appointees; but, unless the president waits until after March 4, 1903, they cannot be appointed, owing to the constitutional provision concerning offices, "which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased," during the term for which they were elected. If, therefore, the commissioners are selected and named during the coming winter, present members of the house and senate are ruled out. This inhibition applies to Senators Jones of Arkansas and Harris of Kansas, as well as to the rest.

Glenn Will Be Punished

Washington, July 19.—The records of the case of Major Glenn, who was tried by court martial at Manila for alleged ill-treatment of Filipino prisoners by the use of the water cure and in other ways, have been received at the war department and will be sent to the president for final review. There is reason for the belief that Glenn was convicted on one or more counts and sentenced to punishment.

THE BABY GIANT'S FOURTH OF JULY

Copyright, 1900, by Caroline Wetherell

In July the Giant Killer bought some rockets red and blue,
And he got some safety pin wheels for the baby giant, too;
Not to mention Roman candles, powder serpents that would hiss,
Punk and little packs of crackers that would either pop or siss,
And the baby giant hugged them with a look of perfect bliss.
Then they planned a celebration for the baby giant's fun,
That would give the cats hysterics and would make the bowwows run,
And the baby giant chuckled when the work at last was done.

But his rousing celebration of the Fourth was rather brief,
For he didn't know 'twas loaded and, alas, he came to grief!
First a "sisser" burned his finger, and he gave an awful yell
That was louder than the clanging of the 'Piscopalian bell;
Then a cannon cracker scared him, and he only yelled the more,
Till Jack clambered up a ladder quite distracted by his roar
And with words of consolation kissed the finger that was sore.

Tad Lincoln as a Boy.

Tad, as he was called at home, was his father's idol and constant companion. Scarcely a day but he could be seen trudging along the country roads near their summer home or in the city itself, his small figure in comical contrast to the president's tall, lank form. In these walks they had chats which were to the boy as precious memories. His early death was a calamity, for on his return from Europe he promised everything fine, manly and noble which his father had hoped for.

A characteristic incident which he himself related to the writer occurred a day or two after his entering temporarily a foreign school. A rather snobbish young gentleman of rank, not knowing who young Lincoln was, inquired, as boys will of each other, who his father was. Tad, with the slow, reflective smile which was his sole point of resemblance to his father, answered: "A wood chopper."

"Oh, indeed!" was the rather sneering answer. And for a day or two the highborn lad turned the cold shoulder to the "new boy."

Judge of his feelings when very soon, the American lad's prestige being known to all the school, he found that he had made himself ridiculous.—Harper's Young People.

Flight of a Humming Bird.

That it may have the entire field to itself and escape the keen competition of hosts of tropical relatives for the nectar and minute insects in the deep tubed brilliant flowers that please him best, that jeweled atom, the ruby throated humming bird, sole representative of his family east of the Mississippi, travels from Central America or beyond to Labrador and back again every summer of its incessantly active little life. Think what the journey from Yucatan even to New England must mean for a creature so tiny that its outstretched wings measure barely two inches across! It is the smallest bird we have. Wherein lodges the force that propels it through the sky?—Ladies' Home Journal.

Lazy Pussy.

Pussy, pussy, on the fence,
Snoozing in the sun;
Pussy, pussy, all the day
Not a thing you've done!

Pussy, pussy, on the rug,
Taking cozy naps;
Curled up snugly all the day;
Wakes to yawn perhaps!

Puss, I wonder what the mice
Really think of you?
You've no energy at all,
Lazy pussy, you.

INTENDED TO KILL KING

Italian Police Arrest an Anarchist from Paterson

London, July 19.—A dispatch from Milan, Italy, to The Daily Telegraph reports the arrest by the police at Bra, near Turin, of a young barber, who recently arrived there from Paterson, N. J. The prisoner gives his name as Tonetti, which is believed to be assumed, and confesses that he is an anarchist. Papers which were seized at his domicile include correspondence with Paterson anarchists and a document indicating that it was Tonetti's intention to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel, who frequently traverses Bra in a motor car on his way to his private estates.

Undesirable Immigrants Slip In

Ogdensburg, N. Y., July 19.—Fifty Russian gypsies, refused admission to the United States at Ogdensburg and Brockville as underisable immigrants, have succeeded in entering at Cape Vincent. They comprise a filthy, squalid tribe of 10 caravans, living by begging and fortune telling. They have been driven from place to place through Canada by the authorities. Revenue officers have gone to round up the band, who were sent to Canada from the old country in the expectation that they would settle on farms in the Canadian northwest.

Brutal Brothers Killed by Woman

Carbondale, Ills., July 19.—The Jaubert brothers, who operated a small coal mine near Oraville, were both shot to death at their home yesterday by the wife of one of the men after she had been abused by them. The woman gave the alarm and surrendered to an officer. Coroner Knauer impanelled a jury, who exonerated the wife. The brothers have been noted for years for their brutal ways and the wife has endured the abuse of her drunken husband.

Floods Mean Ruin For Farmers

Keokuk, Ia., July 19.—Heavy rains in central Iowa are sending a flood down upon prosperous Missouri farmers which will ruin many of them and cause losses aggregating, at conservative estimate, $2,500,000. There seems to be no hope for the country between the Mississippi river and its Missouri bluffs, between Keokuk and Hannibal, 300 square miles, mostly corn laid by, with some thousands of acres of wheat in the shock.

Strike May Be Renewed

Chicago, July 19.—Another strike of the freight handlers of Chicago may be called Sunday night. President Curran of the Freight Handlers' union has issued a call for a mass meeting of all the freight handlers in the city, to be held at that time, to take action on the refusal of four railroads to reinstate all the old men. Curran says that he regrets having to take this step, but is compelled to do so.

Andrews Believes Himself Rich

Detroit, July 19.—Attorney Kirchner contributed the leading feature in the trial of Frank C. Andrews yesterday when, in opening the case for the defense, he stated that Andrews still believed he was a very rich man and able to pay every cent he owes the wrecked City Savings bank. The impression had prevailed that Andrews had lost everything through speculation in Amalgamated Copper.

Corn Crop of 2,500,000,000 Bushels

Chicago, July 19.—Paul Morton, first vice president of the Santa Fe road, predicts a record crop of corn for the west and the entire country this season. He estimates the total crop of the country at 2,500,000,000 bushels and declares that the railroads of the west will have all they can do to take care of the increased traffic that will result therefrom.

Suicide of Clergyman

New York, July 19.—Rev. Victor C. Smith, rector of the chapel of the Messiah, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling gas at his home. He had suffered from nervous prostration, induced by overwork, and had been to a sanitarium, from which he was a few months ago released. He was 50 years old and leaves a widow and two children.

Three Men Killed and Train Burned

Rhinelander, Wis., July 19.—In a head-end collision between freight trains here yesterday the two engineers and one fireman were killed and a brakeman was seriously injured. The two trains crashed together at full speed. Sixty cars, heavily loaded, went into a ditch and, catching fire, were consumed.

Names Selected For Warships

Washington, July 19.—The navy department announces that the two battleships to be built under the authority of the last naval appropriation bill are to be named the Louisiana and Connecticut and the two cruisers the Tennessee and Washington.

Alleged Firebugs Held

New Bedford, Mass., July 19.—The Webster block arson case was concluded in the district court yesterday and the defendants, Frank Fibbish and Mrs. Clara Le Breux, were both adjudged probably guilty and held for the grand jury.

Good Afternoon.

Braintree will have the best Old Home Week celebration in Massachusetts. She has appropriated $952 to cover expenses and the citizens are looking forward to the week.

Atlantic appreciates the half hour service by the electrics to Squantum on Sundays and holidays, but a turnout on Squantum street would add very much to the convenience and comfort of the passengers.

The Boston Record of Friday published a picture of Henry H. Faxon over caption of "Veteran Reformer and Yachtsman." He is a veteran reformer all right but it will be news to many that the old man is a yachtsman.

Whether it is due to a stricter vigilence on the part of the Police department or because there are so many new comers in town, is a question, but one thing is certain, the report of Chief Hayden for 1902 will show more arrests than ever before. It is a poor court day when Quincy does not have two or three cases.

It is a rather surprising reflection that England, Japan and the United States are the only nations of importance whose armies contain men who have been under fire. Most of the men who participated in the Franco-Prussian war are dead or retired and the recent invasion of China by the powers can hardly be counted.

Secretary Moody's determination to force naval officers, who have demonstrated their proficiency in ball rooms, to endure the perils and discomforts of ocean service may seem heartless but the Secretary's absorption of some of the President's admiration for "men who do things" will not lessen his position in the estimation of the people.

Mr. F. H. Newell, chief hydrographer of the Geological Survey, has gone to the western states to make a preliminary investigation of the irrigation situation. The President will permit no time to be lost in putting into operation the recently enacted Irrigation law but care will be taken that no part of the fund be spent precipitately and injudiciously.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There is another witness to the Nahant sea serpent. He is a man who recalls the visit of two of these mythical denizens of the deep, and quotes an account written by an English lady as proof of his statements. She was a witness of the serpent exhibition, and her version of it published in a book written by her husband, who was representing Great Britain in this country, is quoted in corroboration of the tale of the living witness. He says it was seen by guests of the old Nahant Hotel, which stood at that time on Eastern Point, and was a favorite resort of convivial spirits, who were sure to see sights whenever they tarried long at the hostelry.—Lynn Item.

☞ It is noticeable that the city papers continue to locate the Fore River Ship Building Co., where the recent launching of the seven-masted schooner occurred, in East Weymouth. The company was formerly located at East Braintree, but now the extensive plant is wholly within the limits of Quincy, and the city should have the credit of this great enterprise. With the building of big warships and the prospective $100,000 government building, the only city in Norfolk county is justified in being proud of its position on the map. —Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ There are too many people in the world waiting for favorable conditions. Don't do it. While you are hesitating some one else is plowing ahead of you. Wait for nothing; map out a course and pursue it, rain or shine, mud or dust, storm or lull, cold or heat, good times or bad times. Wait for nothing. —Atchinson Globe.

☞ The accumulated mail of W. W. O'Hara, the absconding Turf Commissioner of Cincinnati, has been opened by Inspector Holmes and Receiver Georgi. There were over 4000 letters, and they were from every State in the Union and from Canada. Amounts from $5 to $500 in checks, mail and express orders, were inclosed. The total amount in the letters opened was $4518, and Inspector Holmes says that O'Hara got away with $7500 which came in the last week's mail. O'Hara's books shows that from July 1, 1900, when he began operations in Cincinnati, until he skipped out over a month ago, he had received from credulous investors, $465,000.

☞ Let investors, and particularly small investors, remember that it is much better to be sure of four per cent. per annum on their money than to have seven per cent. for a time and then nothing, with an even chance of a loss of from one quarter to three quarters of the principal in addition. Thousands of the ablest and most intelligent investors in the country are accepting today less than four per cent. return on their money. If these sagacious and competent men reach this conclusion, how can a small investor untrained in judging value, reasonably expect to get more? The fundamental principle in the wise employment of money, is to think first of the security of the principal. This means, in most cases, a comparatively low return, but a low return is almost essential for all investors, except those who by virtue of their skill in financial matters or their knowledge of particular business can secure a higher return with approximate safety.—Wall Street Journal.

William Reed.

William Reed a life long resident of Braintree died July 16, 1902, at the age of sixty-nine years, at his home on Pond street. He was born in Braintree in 1832 and was the son of William Reed and Susan French Reed. In 1859 he was married to Maria L. Derby of Weymouth with whom he lived in domestic harmony for nearly forty years.

Mr. Reed had been ill for a year but perhaps not seriously until last September when he suffered a slight shock, and since that time has been failing. The end came quietly and peacefully without suffering.

By occupation he was a farmer and was also engaged in the milk business for many years. He was well known throughout the village, a man of pleasant jovial disposition, respected by all.

Four years ago his wife passed away. This was a severe blow to him, from which he never recovered. He leaves two children, Susie M. wife of Herbert Stevens, and Willie P.; also a sister, Mrs. Clara Penniman, the last of the family to mourn his loss. He was a member of the Odd Fellows.

The funeral took place Friday afternoon at his late home on Pond street. The services were conducted by Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy, and Puritan lodge I. O. O. F. The remains were interred in the South cemetery.

Serious Accident.

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Willard E. Dow and son Clarence of Braintree went for a pleasure drive with Mr. G. E. Williams' little black mare and rubber tired open buggy.

They took a circuitous route to the Blue Hills Reservation and were coming out through "Braintree Pass" near Great pond when Mrs. Dow and son were thrown out. The horse ran with forward wheels and in passing a carriage the wheels locked.

Clarence escaped with only a few bruises, but Mrs. Dow, who was conveyed to her home, was seriously injured. Both her arms were broken and he received several bruises.

The accident happened about five o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Southworth as usual rendered valuable services.

Several attempts to call a physician failed until Dr. Ellsworth of Quincy was called. He responded promptly and set the broken bones.

Dr. Tinkham, the family physician, was bound for Hingham upon an electric when the car was hailed and he took the return car to Braintree.

The people of Kansas are striving to save their superabundant wheat crop by harvesting on Sundays, while they answer objectors with the argument that the Almighty does not suspend the growing or ripening process on the first day of the week.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Ex-Constable Faxon Younger Than Constable Hunt.

To Charles M. Bryant, Mayor of Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir:—In your letter refusing to appoint me as constable without pay, you gave as the principal reason that I was "a man too far advanced in years to properly attend to the duties of the position." I shall be 79 years old next September. Mr. Charles N. Hunt, whom you appointed constable, will be 80 years of age in August. Will you kindly enlighten an interested public concerning the fine point of your discrimination between Mr. Hunt and myself. Perhaps it was because Mr. Hunt has been active doing nothing.

Yours respectfully,
HENRY H. FAXON.

Quincy, July 19, 1902.

Letter from Tacoma.

Tacoma, Wash., July 9, 1902.

Editors Quincy Patriot:

I left Boston, June 5, for a trip through the western country. I arrived at Tacoma, July 3d, and remained about a week. It is a city of 50,000, situated on Puget sound and a beautiful spot.

It is not my purpose to describe the city, I want to say a word about our neighbor and friend, Benj. J. Weeks, who is Superintendent of the Tacoma Railway and Power Company. The people here consider Superintendent Weeks a perfect wonder in the railroad line. When he came here he took an old broken down road and has put it into splendid shape. Through his efforts and Quincy pluck he has placed the road among the best in the west. So that today the company have one hundred miles of track, eighty-five cars and a weekly pay roll of $8000.

Monday, June 30, the Superintendent took a very large force of men and commenced to build a new branch 1 1-3 miles long. He graded, set ties, laid rails, set poles, made all connections, had the road completed ready for car to run over it Saturday morning July 5; just five days. I was there while work was going on and went over the road.

Superintendent Weeks is now building a line from Tacoma to Seattle a distance of 44 miles. He proposes to make that run in one hour and a quarter. His rate of speed at the present time is thirty miles an hour. He purchased last year for the company a tract of land containing fifty acres where there is a beautiful lake; water 25 to 50 feet deep, The company spent thousands of dollars and has now one of the finest parks in the west: The company named it Spanaway Park; it is seventeen miles from city proper. Superintendent Weeks got up a grand celebration for the Fourth of July and some ten thousand people were there.

The park is open at all times; 20 pieces of music are on the ground, and there is free dancing, etc. It was Superintendent Weeks' idea; a feature entirely new to this section. Mr. Weeks informs me that the motormen and conductors earn $16 to $20 per week and he can get them to do anything in the way of work; all non-union men. Union, among railroad men, is a thing unknown here. The company are building their own cars and are laying rails, sixty pounds to the foot, seventy feet long.

Superintendent Weeks is a very popular man. He is a member of the Merchants' Exchange, Manufacturers' Association, several clubs, etc.

On the 4th of July it was very cold; thermometer registered 55. Overcoats and furs were worn all day.

Real estate has advanced over 50 per cent. where the railroad has built recently. Both Mr. and Mrs. Weeks are very much liked.

I leave here for Seattle, thence up north; shall not return east until August.

Swampscott to Celebrate.

On Sunday and Monday Swampscott will fittingly observe the 50th anniversary of its incorporation. The churches will usher in the anniversary but the second day will be given up to athletic sports, a coaching parade, a banquet and fireworks.

—The government has decided to dispose of all the old monitors now laid up at League Island Navy Yard. Experts have decided that they are of no use except for old iron. The room they now occupy is needed for other vessels, and they will be disposed of in the near future.

—The time is again set for the coronation of King Edward. About the middle of August will be the date.

Quincy people do not take kindly to apartment houses and the Greenleaf street residents are much exercised over the prospect of one at the corner of Hancock street.

During the thunder storm Tuesday evening, lightning entered the house of Mrs. E. D. Wadsworth, Milton, on the telephone wires, but no damag was done.

THE BLUE HILLS.

What May Be Seen From "Big Blue."

The View a Very Extensive One.

From Lynn on North to Plymouth on the South.

[The following interesting article written for the Appalachia magazine by Mr. E. G. Chamberlain, and reprinted in the Canton Journal may be of interest to Quincy people contemplating a trip up Big Blue.—Eds.]

The Blue hills may be considered as the nearest mountain range to Boston. Their summits do not appear very high to be sure, in tables of altitudes; but as the surrounding country, so near the seacoast, is very low,—the Providence railroad so near Green Lodge having an elevation of only about fifty feet,—their height counts for its full value.

The entire range is seven miles long. Beginning at Little Blue hill in Canton it extends easterly and northeasterly and terminates at Presidents' hill, opposite the Old Colony station in Quincy. The highest summit and at the same time the highest elevation of land in Eastern Massachusetts is "Blue hill or Blue hill mountain," as it is called by those living near it. It is situated in the township of Milton near the Canton line and rises 635 feet above the sea. It was an important station of the state survey, and afterward of the U. S. coast survey. A mile easterly from Blue is Hancock hill, 507 feet; a mile further east, Bear hill in Quincy 495 feet; a mile northeast of Bear is Fenno's peak 518 feet, the second highest of the range.

Seven other summits reach 400 feet upwards. Diligent inquiry for their names has resulted in but slight success. So wild is this region that a section nearly five miles long, extending from East Milton through Quincy into Braintree and Randolph, is crossed only by the cart paths leading to the quarries and wood lots. Between Hancock hill and its western ridge is an elevated basin, open to the north, called the Hancock valley.

On the eastern slope of Fenno's peak is a wild narrow pass, resembling a railroad cut, which I have called Fenno's notch. In answer to a question often asked me, let me say that I have never seen a rattlesnake among these hills.

The quarries of Quincy granite are near West Quincy, where the hills are almost honeycombed with quarry holes. Here is Railway hill, where may be seen remains of what is claimed to be the first railroad in America, built about 1826 to convey the stone to tide water.

While studying the view from Mt. Prospect in Waltham I had found it generally impossible to identify these hills with those shown on the maps; so in 1876 I explored and mapped them out, using at that time a pocket compass and a small pocket level.

During the past year I have revisited the principal summits and fixed their positions by the three point method, by observing the steeples in the surrounding towns, which were located in 1838 by Massachusetts Trigonometrical survey conducted by Simeon Borden.

My apparatus was very simple and portable, constructed by myself fifteen years ago for a similar work on the Waltham and Weston hills, but the value and probable error of each observation were known. The three point stations should be correctly located within fifty feet horizontally and seven feet in altitude. The compass stations are less accurately determined. The highest point of each hill was chosen as a station, and usually marked by a two-inch triangle; but on account of the bushes it was often necessary to observe the three points in pairs in eccentric stations and reduce the centre. The same obstructions usually prevented observations between the stations. A square yard of black and white cloth, tied to the bushes answered for a signal when necessary. To obtain the altitudes I connected by triangulation the summit of Fairmount hills with the Providence railroad, making Fairmount 258 feet above the sea. The state survey made Blue hill 635 feet. When possible I observed to each summit from Fairmount and from each summit to that of the principal peak, taking the mean of the two results as the true height. The original map was drawn to a scale of 1,650 feet to the inch, about 1-20,000. Twenty-five summits were visited and twenty miles of cart-paths "meandered" and paced with pocket compass in hand. For such details as streets, boundaries, and the like, the town maps in the country atlas were copied to a uniform scale, and fitted together and churches observed upon by the State survey being placed in their proper latitude and longitude; the street and boundary lines were averaged where they did not coincide.

Situated so near Boston, the chief summit of the range is frequently visited. It is only 1 3-4 miles from the Readville station at Readville to the junction of Blue hill and Canton avenues in Milton, 220 feet above sea level and from this point a path, seven-eighths of a mile long, leads to the summit. For extent and variety combined the view is unequalled in this state, except by that from Wachusett, embracing as it does city and country, sea and mountain, pond and river and all in a large measure. As it requires many visits to enable one to identify the details of so complex a landscape, I shall perhaps do a favor to future visitors by putting on record in Appalachia a somewhat minute description of this prospect.

All elevations given are reckoned from sea level and all bearings from the true meridian. Those using a compass must remember that the needle points N. by W. or about eleven degrees west of true north and allow accordingly.

Let us take the view in order, turning from left to right. A line due north almost touches the tower of the Harvard College Memorial Hall in Cambridge, eleven miles distant; nearly hidden by which we see, three miles beyond, the Unitarian church in Medford. Directly under the tower is Jamaica Plain. A trifle to the right is another bare, lenticular hill. Bald Pate in Georgetown about thirty-five miles distant, seen directly over the Malden Orthodox church. A little to the left of this, eight miles away, is seen the white tower of the Roxbury stand-pipe. Midway between Holt and Bald Pate appears Somerville, twelve miles off, presenting a red church and brick high school side by side upon a hill.

To the right of the standpipe is spread out the city of Boston. The State House is ten and one-half miles distant; bearing N. 14 degrees, 22 minutes E. To the right of State House one sees the State insane asylum in Danvers, twenty-seven miles distant, a long building on a hill. To the right of the city is Boston harbor, stretching far around toward the east, with its islands, forts and lighthouses. North northeast is the Reservoir hill in South Boston. Looking up and turning to the right we see successively Lynn, Salem and Swampscott, and under the latter, Winthrop. Nearer and a little right of Winthrop lies Fort Independence nearly under whose right are the two steeples of Milton Centre, three miles away. A little to the right is a church in Nahant, eighteen miles off, seen directly over a steeple about six miles distant, near Neponset, and nearly over the left of Nahant church one in Marblehead. To the right, along the horizon, we follow the North Shore, as far as Eastern Point lighthouse in Gloucester, distant thirty-four miles. Northeast eleven miles is Long Island, with its low lighthouse. Far beyond and to the left, between it and Eastern Point are seen against the sky the twin lighthouses of Cape Ann, apparently standing in the ocean. Their distance is forty miles.

We are now looking down Massachusetts bay, several hundred square miles of which are visible. The sea horizon crosses this at a distance of thirty-three and three-eighths miles. Sails may be seen far beyond this, the hulls being hidden by the earth's convexity. Turning to the right we see N. 55 degrees, 5 minutes E., Boston lighthouse, directly over the church spire on Wollaston Heights. Six miles east-northeast is Quincy village, and over it we discern Strawberry Hill, thirteen miles off, with Nantasket stretching a long distance from it both right and left, thus making it appear like a bead strung on a thread. Following Nantasket to the extreme left we find Hull village. On the right Nantasket ends at the triple turreted Atlantic House, which we see over the left slope of Fenno's Peak, the second in height of the Blue hills, and three miles off. Over its right slope is Minot's Ledge lighthouse, eighteen miles distant. Over the right base of Fenno lies Hingham, with three steeples in a cluster.

Just to the right of East one observes a large brick building, some six miles distant with a large village stretching away to the right. The building is Thayer Academy and the village is South Braintree. Nearly over the academy are the two spires of Scituate, eighteen miles distant. To the Southeast the country appears quite level and well dotted with villages and ponds. Of the ponds the more noticeable are Wissahissick of [Houghton's] pond, Ponkapoag, Canton Reservoir and Massapoag. I have named them as they appear from left to right and also in the order of distance, Wissahissick being one mile east-southeast and Massapoag eight miles south-southwest.

Immediately to the left of the easterly end of Wissahissick pond is East Marshfield on the horizon, twenty miles away; over the left portion of the pond, South Weymouth; nine miles looking about midway between Wissahissick and Ponkapoag ponds we see a long ridge, thirty-three miles distant. This is Manomet hill in Plymouth. Holbrook, seven miles is seen directly under it. Midway between Wissahissick and Manomet one sees against the sky, Captain's hill in Duxbury, surmounted by the Standish monument, distance twenty-six miles. The steeple directly under it is in West Duxbury. The large village of Randolph, five miles off is seen stretching from under the right base of Manomet to nearly over the left end of Ponkapoag pond. Ponkapoag being less than two miles distant is apparently the largest pond in view.

Just to the right of its center is seen the city of Brockton, ten miles off. Midway between Brockton and the end of the pond we find East Stoughton, looking between which and Brockton we see, farther off, East Bridgewater. A little to the right of Brockton is North Stoughton church, five miles away. Over this Campello, and far beyond Middleboro, twenty-four miles distant. About midway between Brockton and the right end of the pond, are the spires of Bridgewater, seventeen miles, with West Bridgewater church nearer, but a trifle more to the right.

FASHION HINTS.

The Proper Style of Skirts. A Decidedly Novel Sleeve.

This gown combines all the new features of the current mode. The Eton has loose fronts that open over a vest embroidered with beige and pale blue Corticelli Filo silk, similar embroidery adorning the deep pelerine collar. The sleeve is decidedly novel and deserves special mention. It is cut with a point edged with a band of stitched voile and is completed with a kind of under sleeve of cream liberty silk formed into puffs with straps of beige velvet. Beige velvet ribbon in a darker shade adorns both the jacket and skirt. The latter shows the fashionable sheath effect and in addition to the velvet a trimming of straps in inverted scollops stitched with Corticelli silk.

The new skirts are fitted closely at the hips but flare very much indeed below the knees. A great many skirts with hip yokes are shown, either of shirring, tucking or tiny bands, joined with a fancy open stitch. Some very attractive skirt models in sheer materials are laid in narrow box-plaits from the waist to the knees and below that there is a prettily shaped flounce with insertion of cream lace and a garniture of narrow gathered ribbon.

Brockton Fair Grounds.

The trustees of the Brockton agricultural society viewed the fair grounds yesterday. It was decided to abolish the dining room under the grandstand.

The space will be used for exhibition purposes. It was decided to construct a boulevard from east of the exhibition hall around the groove to stables, and to relocate the cattle sheds and poultry exhibit buildings upon it. Turnstiles will be put in at the entrances and exclusive exit for teams will be provided.

Three Days of Yacht Racing.

The midsummer invitation races of the Hull-Massachusetts yacht club will be sailed next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Hull starting at 1.20 P. M. There will be six classes, with good prizes in each. Special cups, donated by T. W. Lawson, will be awarded the yachts winning the first and second highest percentage in classes D, S and I for the three days' racing.

Another Schooner.

—BAT—

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

Bat Pinaud stood on one of the hills which overlook Portland. Behind him were the forest and his past, the little cabin by the river, with his dugout hauled up on the bank, his traps and fishing poles and battered muzzle loading rifle; before him—what?

The afternoon sun flung its luminous arms into the city, while the forest behind was becoming dark with its own shadows. The future had come to him in the gold of his evening, but it was the future of his dreams. Already he had forgiven the past.

Of his possessions he had brought only his "feedle" and the letter which a passing trapper had left at his cabin. The one was to go with him into his future to be "educat, poleesh;" the other was the magic key which would open the way.

This had been the one grief of his life—that he was "no educat, poleesh." Music to him was only a common, natural thing, like breathing, without notes or science. What matter if he could wake the hermit thrush and oriole and bobolink to ecstasy, or bring moisture to the hardest eyes, or lightness to the most sluggish feet, or gentleness to the heart that had bruised itself into callousness? It was only what came to him naturally, without effort. He was no musician, he would tell you, with a deprecatory wave of his hand—"Non, non, m'sieur; not'in' but a poor little Canuck who love de feedle." He had had no chance "for learn de true music."

But now it was all here in the letter which he held so tightly in his hand, and, though white frost was stealing thickly into his hair and rheumatism taking possession of his limbs, he went down the slope as eagerly and diffidently as a schoolboy on his first journey into the world of learning.

Only once before in his life had the unexpected come to him, $1,000 from the very estate that was responsible for this letter. Half of it had gone promptly as an incentive in a "feedle contest," and little Pierre, who had carried off the popular vote and so won the prize, was now at the Boston Conservatory of Music for his "educat, poleesh." Bat's thoughts reverted to him as he went down the slope, and he resolved that some of this greater fortune should flow over into the future of the poor shoemaker's son.

When he reached the sidewalks of the great city, he went more slowly, for he tried to take his hat off to every woman he met and to smile at every child and to assist all those he thought overloaded with bundles. When a woman happened to glance at him, he dropped his gaze to the sidewalk, and when a child looked at him he stopped as though ready to enter into conversation. Once he patted a dog, and the dog turned and followed him. At another time he picked up a dirty, barefooted child crying in a gutter, and the child turned and followed him also.

But at length he reached the place indicated by the letter and was received with marked consideration by the lawyer, who rose as he entered.

"I am glad you came so promptly," the lawyer said deferentially. "I suppose you understand what a large estate it is?"

"Two hun'r'd t'ousan', me t'ink letter say."

"Yes, two hundred thousand," dwelling fondly on each word. "Here; suppose you take this chair while I explain the matter in detail."

Bat sat down diffidently, placing his hat upon the floor and the "feedle" across his knees. Then as the lawyer talked his thoughts went straying out into the golden future, to the wonderful knowledge that was coming to him and to little Pierre learning to play the "feedle" in the right way. Now and then a sentence of the lawyer drifted into his reverie, and suddenly he sprang to his feet with his eyes blazing.

"Wha' dat you say? Tell me 'g'in, quick!" he demanded.

"About the flaw in the will?" the lawyer asked blandly. "Yes, that is what gives you the money. Lucky flaw, I say."

"Dat mean ol' man Tatro like money go to he Cousin Marie, on'y he make slip in de will? Me get him dat way, hey?"

"That's about it," dryly.

"Den you t'ink me t'ief?"

The lawyer looked surprised.

"Oh, come now," he urged hastily; "it's all right. The law says the money is yours. Everything is straight and aboveboard."

Bat reached down and picked up his hat, which he placed squarely upon his head. Then he tucked the "feedle" under his arm.

"Who money 'long to," he demanded so sharply that the lawyer moved back and placed a chair in front of him, "de law or ol' man Tatro? De law say gib him me; ol' man Tatro say gib him Marie—huh!" And without stopping to parley further words Bat strode contemptuously into the street.

The sun was behind the hills, and in place of its golden beckoning there was only dull, universal shadow, pierced here and there by the electric lights of the city. In the woods the darkness was without break, but the trapper walked quietly into them and disappeared. Over yonder by the river were his cabin, and the dugout on the bank, and his traps and fishing poles, and the battered muzzle loading rifle. He would go back to them.

REPLY OF THE VATICAN

To Latest Communication From Secretary Root

PARTICULAR INSTRUCTIONS

Will Be Given Apostolic Delegate to the Philippines Which Will Doubtless Solve Pending Questions—High Praise For Governor Taft

Rome, July 19.—The following note from the Vatican was presented to Governor Taft last night:

"I hasten to acknowledge the receipt of the letter by which you kindly communicated to me the cablegram from Secretary Root answering my note of July 9, which explained the counter project of the Vatican for the regulation of religious affairs in the Philippines. While thanking you for this important communication I am happy to assure you that the holy see has learned with the liveliest satisfaction the high consideration in which the government of the United States holds the fitness of the measures which the Vatican, independently of the solution of any economic question, designed taking to ameliorate the religious situation in the archiplago and co-operate in the pacification of the people under American sovereignty. These declarations of Mr. Root do honor to the deep political wisdom of the government of the United States which knows how to appreciate the happy influence of the holy see for the religious and civil elevation of the people, especially Catholics.

"With equal satisfaction, the pontiff has taken into account the assurances of Secretary Root that the American authorities in the Philippines and at Washington will put forth all possible efforts to maintain the good understanding happily established with the authorities of the Catholic church. On his part the pontiff will not fail to give the apostolic delegate soon to be sent to the Philippines the most precise instructions according to my former notes.

"The main lines for future negotiations indicated in the notes having been accepted by Secretary Root, the representation of the Vatican in the archipelago will enter into relations with the authorities in the Philippines on the four points indicated by Mr. Root.

"The holy see does not doubt that mutual confidence, combined with the action of its representative and that of the American government, will easily produce a happy solution of the pending questions, inaugurating for that noble country a new era of peace and true progress.

"It is my agreeable duty in ending this letter to be able to render homage to the very great courtesy and high capacity with which you have filled the delicate mission which the government and President of the United States confided to you. Willingly I add that the favorable result of the negotiations must be attributed in very large part to your high personal qualities. While flattering myself that this first success will be a guarantee of the happy issue of ulterior negotiations in Manila.

"I have the honor to be, etc.,
"Rampolla."

Governor Taft was informed last night that the pope had fixed July 21 for his farewell audience.

Pope Thought Demands Reasonable

London, July 19.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says the pope is intensely displeased at the way in which the commission of cardinals has conducted the negotiations with Judge Taft in the matter of the friars in the Philippines. "I learn from an authoritative source," says the correspondent, "that, besides annulling the procedure of the commission of cardinals, the pope has summarily dissolved it, expressing his view that the American demands were reasonable and signifying his readiness to treat with Judge Taft personally."

Sensational Street Duel

Metropolis, Ills., July 19.—In a duel on the street yesterday Ben Faughn was shot and killed by Jasper Abbott. Abbott made remarks to ladies in a hotel, to which Faughn remonstrated. He led Abbott up the street about 40 yards and Abbott then shot Faughn twice. Faughn then wrested the pistol from Abbott and fired at him, inflicting a slight flesh wound. Faughn walked half a square after being shot, and fell dead. Abbott is now in jail and lynching is momentarily expected.

Lockjaw Caused Death

Fall River, Mass., July 19.—After terrible suffering Vincent Campbell, 22 years old, died yesterday from lockjaw resulting from injuries received from the explosion of a toy cannon on July 4. After loading the cannon Campbell remained too close and the powder lodged in his hand, necessitating the amputation of four fingers.

Tracy Safe For a While

Seattle, July 19.—Not a word has been heard of Harry Tracy, the escaped convict, since he left the cabin on Sawyer lake early Thursday morning. Sheriff Cudihee, who returned to Seattle yesterday with most of his posse, refuses to give out any information.

Five Years For Metcalf

Sault Ste Marie, July 19.—Gordon C. Metcalf, a telegraph operator and ticket agent, extradited from Hartford and convicted of robbing the Canadian Pacific railway, was yesterday sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

DISCHARGE OF LASTERS

Expected to Precipitate a Lively Labor War at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., July 19.—The 50 shoe lasters employed in the shoe factory of Waitoe & Logan were summarily discharged yesterday afternoon, when they were paid off and told that their services were no longer needed. It seems that the men held a meeting a few days ago and organized the Lynn Lasters' union, No. 32, of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, and labor men are of the opinion that the firm learned of this and so discharged the men. The Lasters' union has declared a lockout against the factory and a lively labor war is predicted. Commencing today the locked-out men will receive the weekly strike benefit of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union.

Local Agent Jackman will interview the firm and try and find out their reasons for discharging the lasters, and if the reasons are not satisfactory it is said cards will be posted on the factory and an attempt made to close it.

Brothers Killed on a Crossing

Old Orchard, Me., July 19.—William Mills of Winchester, Mass., and Charles Mills of Reading, Mass., brothers, were killed yesterday at a grade crossing, while on the way to a race track in a public wagon. Driver Joseph Vallee and two passengers, Charles Palmer of Boston and Charles E. Sawyer of Kennebunk, were badly injured. The crossing is without flagman or gates, but the road over the tracks has never been accepted by the town. The wagon was demolished and the horse gained his liberty without a scratch. Engineer Tucker and his fireman say they whistled and rang the bell for this crossing. The injured men say they heard no warning signal.

Buildings Wrecked by Explosion

Boston, July 19.—Residents in the vicinity of Egleston square were startled yesterday afternoon on hearing a loud explosion, followed by another one less severe. These sounds came from Byron court. Those who hastened to the scene of the explosion found a frame cottage of two tenements laid completely in ruins, a neighboring house in almost as bad a condition, and more or less glass in several other houses nearby shattered to powder. Several persons were injured, one of whom, Mrs. Morgan, was removed to a hospital. The definite cause of the explosion is more or less of a mystery, although it is believed that it was due to sewer gas.

Carried Off Gold Leaf

Fall River, Mass., July 19.—Henry A. Hahr is under arrest charged with the larceny of a quantity of gold leaf from Marshall Bros., hat manufacturers. Hahr's duty was to label hats with the firm's name. It was noticed that he used more gold leaf than the finished work would account for and also that he made frequent trips to New York. Last night he was arrested while on his way to a boat on which he had secured passage to New York and in his hand bag was found a quantity of gold leaf.

Parents Charged With Manslaugter

New Haven, July 19.—Acting Coroner Pond last night caused the arrest of the parents of Gladys Northrop, an infant who died under Christian Science treatment last Tuesday. Coroner Pond charges that the parents "aided, accelerated and caused the death of their child by neglecting the remedies which the experience of mankind shows to be generally necessary." He filed his report with Prosecuting Attorney Bush, who issued a warrant charging manslaughter.

Missing Bodies Swept Away

Portsmouth, N. H., July 19.—All the bodies of the victims of Thursday's disaster that have been recovered have now been claimed by relatives who have either come to this city in person or have been heard from by telegraph. Diver Hurley went to the scene of the disaster yesterday afternoon to search for the missing bodies, but could find no trace of them.

Much-Wanted Man Held

Springfield, Mass., July 19.—A telegram received by the city marshal here last night from the assistant marshal, who is in San Francisco, reads: "Supreme court decides in our favor. Expect to leave with prisoner at 10 Saturday morning." The prisoner is J. O. Stone, of 20 aliases, the alleged swindler of the Hotel Keepers' Protective association.

Hill Held For Grand Jury

Boston, July 19.—Herbert Hill, the young man who shot and killed his sister, Mrs. Alice Riley, in Roxbury on July 8, was yesterday held for the grand jury without bail. Pending the findings of the grand jury a committee of experts on insanity will make an examination of Hill and will report to the district attorney.

Stabbed In Both Sides

Boston, July 19.—Pasquale Valdari, aged 22, was found lying on the sidewalk on Fleet street early this morning suffering from a deep wound in each side, evidently inflicted with a stiletto. He was taken to the city hospital relief station, where he is in a critical condition. His assailant is unknown.

Officers May Have New Clue

Beverly, Mass., July 19.—There were no new developments in the Clark case yesterday, although the hunt for the boy was continued. State Officer Neal came to Beverly to consult with Harry W. Clark and it looks as if the police are on a new track which they do not care to make public at this time.

Thrown From Wagon and Killed

Fitchburg, Mass., July 19.—William W. Hubbard, aged 74, one of the oldest job teamsters in this city, was thrown from his wagon yesterday by his horse becoming frightened, and crushed so badly that he died four hours later.

MONEY TO AID STRIKERS

The Problem Before Mine Workers' Convention

COSTS $500,000 A WEEK

To Support the Men Now Out of Work—Recommendations of President Mitchell Submitted to a Special Committee For Consideration

Indianapolis, July 19.—At the conclusion of a secret session which lasted the entire afternoon, the recommendations of President Mitchell for the management of the anthracite strike were referred to a special committee, which is to report back to the convention today. The recommendations are:

1. That the treasurer of the order be directed to appropriate $50,000 for the relief of the anthracite miners.

2. That the unions appropriate for the same purpose as large a sum as they can afford.

3. That an assessment of $1 per week be levied on all members of the unions.

4. That all officers of the national districts drawing a salary of $60 a month or over contribute 25 percent of their salaries.

5. That an appeal be made to all trade unions and citizens generally to aid the cause of the miners.

6. That an address be issued appealing to the American people to bring such pressure to bear as will compel the operators to submit to arbitration.

The committee remained in session until midnight, when it adjourned without completing its work. It will reconvene today. While its task is unfinished it is practically certain that the committee will urge the adoption of the recommendations of President Mitchell and the levying upon the members of the union of an arbitrary assessment of $1 a week where there is no check office and of 10 percent a week in localities where there is a check office. It was also decided to use all the funds to be raised for the strikers in the anthracite district.

At the opening of the executive session, Vice President Lewis delivered an energetic speech on an amendment offered by Delegate Haskins to the effect that the fund to be raised for the aid of the anthracite miners be extended to all of the striking miners where their strike has been sanctioned by the general organization.

President Mitchell told the convention that the strikes in West Virginia and elsewhere were being protected by the general organization under the regular assessments of the union, but that the assessment which was under discussion was necessary for the support of the anthracite strike alone and should not be diverted from its purpose. He declared that the cost of maintaining strikes varied according to places and conditions.

Mr. Mitchell assured the convention that the strike in the Pittsburg district and all other strikes would be looked after without splitting up the fund for the anthracite men, and again urged the men to dismiss from their minds all thought of a general strike. His remarks were greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

Several delegates made short speeches, asking the convention to hasten matters. A vote was then taken on the Haskins amendment and it was voted down by a decisive majority. This left before the convention the original motion for the adoption of the recommendations of the president. A number of amendments were then offered, all relating to the manner in which the assessment should be made. One favored 10 percent of the net earnings of the members of the union; another 10 percent of the gross earnings and a third suggested that in some districts the assessment should be made on the percentage basis, and in others on the basis of $1 per week. These were all pending when Secretary Wilson offered an amendment that the matter be referred to a committee consisting of the three highest officers of the national organization and the presidents of the districts represented in the convention. This prevailed and adjournment was taken until today.

At the conclusion of the session Secretary Wilson said: "It will cost $500,000 weekly to support all the men now on strike in the various districts. An assessment of $1 per week upon each member of the union will bring in $250,000 a week. This will leave us $250,000 to raise each week from outside sources and from the promises and offers that have been made us we are confident that we will be able to do this."

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 19.—The fire which broke out here Wednesday night was extinguished last night after having destroyed 90 blocks on some of the principal streets of the city. CURRENT GOSSIP ALONG THE RIALTO.

Elisabeth Kennedy a Bright Young Actress—May Irwin's Proposed Tour.

May Irwin is considering a tour of the world to last three years. The idea is to play through the west to San Francisco, then go to Honolulu, then to Australia, South Africa and England.

The plan was first suggested by George Musgrove, and Miss Irwin, who is now in London with her two boys, has the proposition under advisement.

It can be stated, however, that she is favorably inclined to the idea because, while she owns considerable real estate, she is not as wealthy as is generally believed, and the monetary prospects of the proposed tour are of such a nature that few would care to cast aside such an opportunity.

Miss Irwin has invested her savings in real estate, but these investments have not turned out as well as she expected, and, while she receives a comfortable income from her rentals, she is not averse to adding to her earthly possessions.

The only obstacle to the proposed circuit of the globe is the state of her health, but she hopes that her vacation abroad will restore her. If she improves sufficiently, there is little doubt that she will not be seen in this country for some time after leaving San Francisco next fall.

It is rumored that in any event Miss Irwin will not play at the Bijou theater, New York, again and that she will not appear under the management of the Sires.

Miss Elisabeth Kennedy, who will portray next season the part of Mme. Trentoni in Clyde Fitch's comedy, "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," is a young actress with a bright future. She is well adapted to the requirements of the part, which, however, is somewhat difficult of interpretation, and should repeat her former successes. The Captain Jinks company will be conducted under the management of A. Toxen Worm.

It is a terrible thought, but William Faversham will probably never return to this country. At least so he writes to a friend in New York, and unless he changes his mind, which matinee idols sometimes do, he will remain in England next season.

The erstwhile matinee idol who swashbuckled so successfully through "A Royal Rival" gives no written reason for this sudden and unexpected determination on his part. It is surmised by the wiser, however, that the comments of the press at the time of the divorce proceedings against him are the potent cause.

It is well remembered how Faversham held himself aloof from the public gaze during the last weeks of his tour, so much so that no one ever saw him except while on the stage or while hurrying to and from his apartments. He also made a hurried departure for England after his season had closed and rigorously denied himself to all visitors except his most intimate friends.

And what an aching void William has left behind him! He is very cruel to thus rend the hearts of the matinee girls. But life at its best is uncertain, and we must bear up under the blow and learn to take the bitter with the sweet. MARY A. BARTOW.

New York.

The first bell of the grand circuit will tap at Detroit July 14, and the light harness game will be set merrily going, not to stop until the last big meeting of the year closes the season at Memphis late in October.

On the second day of the Detroit blue ribbon meeting the classic M. and M. stakes of $10,000 will be decided, the starters for which were recently named. Eighteen horses are eligible to start, and it is more than probable that a big field will line up for the word. The only eligibles from New York are Edgar Bronk's black mare Princess Derby, by Charles Derby, and Harry Dykeman's bay mare Kozy, by John G. Carlisle.

Thomas W. Lawson's representative is Juntorio, bay mare by Alturo—Jennie Benton. She has been showing enough speed to be named as a starter. Ted, a black gelding, with a record of 2:24¼, by Norval—Love Knot, named by W. H. Potter, is a Michigan candidate and will undoubtedly start.

Modern Tennis Equipments And Those of Other Days

New Rackets Compared With the 1880 Style....

It is particularly pleasing to the followers of lawn tennis to note the increased interest in the game this year. In fact, many claim that tennis is today more popular than ever. There is perhaps no man in America better qualified to talk on tennis than George Wright, the well known expert, who says that at present the outlook is that the season of 1902 will find lawn tennis more popular than ever and sharing equally in the advance that golf has made during the past three or four years.

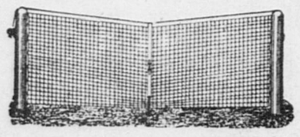

Aside from the active participants in tennis the public is enthusiastic this year, as there is every prospect that America will have a visit from an English team to contend for national honors. This will give to tennis an international flavor that is sure to be beneficial to the game and has caused our crack players to work harder in practice with the hope that they will be the fortunate ones selected to represent the American team and help to keep the Davis bowl from going to England. Mr. Wright says he has been on many golf courses this spring and has noticed that nearly all the golf clubs have had tennis courts built as an annex. This is particularly true of New England, and it is a well known fact that the games are well adapted to go hand in hand. The plan also affords opportunity for old and young alike to indulge in their popular pastimes, as both games are played to a great extent by the same class of people. There is no reason why tennis and golf clubs should not really combine. We have made rapid strides forward in so far as interest in these games is concerned in this country. This is natural, for Americans have improved implements for nearly every known sport and are now practically the leaders in this line.

The most radical changes are made in the rackets used. The rackets of the present day differ materially from those used twenty years ago. The racket of 1880 was curved, with a heavy frame, as the game in those days was generally played in the back of the court with plenty of speed and underhand service. Five years later the racket was a picture frame model, straight, with a small handle and very heavy in the head. Today's racket is straight, with a frame an inch longer than the other styles of rackets and a somewhat larger handle.

These improvements were made as the game became faster. There being more volleying, strokes had to be made quicker and the racket balanced by a larger handle, while the longer frame gives more spring to the gut, less force now being required to get the speed from the stroke, as in the old style. The National association did a very wise thing when it decided this year to make the ball the same size as that used in England. The size of the official American ball last year was not less than 2 15-32 inches and not more than 2½ inches in diameter. The size of the ball this year is not less than 2½ inches and not more than 2 9-16 inches in diameter.

The same may be said of the nets and posts. The nets of the present day do away with the ropes by having iron sockets driven in the ground and the posts placed in them and being the regulation height at each post, 3½ feet, with a center strap that makes the middle of the net the proper height, three feet. To be sure, many clubs still use the old style of post, with the nets attached in an indifferent way, but they do not give the service and are rarely used on first class courts or in important games.

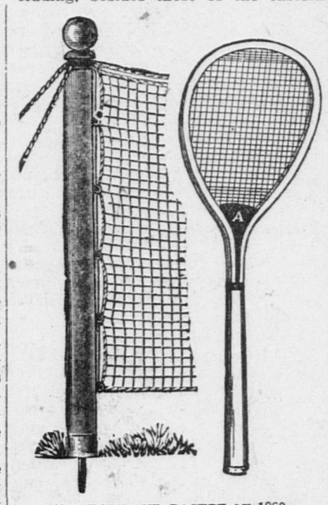

So far as courts go, dirt is mostly used, as it will stand more wear, and it is much easier to keep in good condition than grass. Most of our leading players, however, prefer the grass. It makes the game much more scientific, and the players do not tire so quickly as when playing on a hard dirt court.

If any particular sport can be said to be in fashion this season, it is undoubtedly lawn tennis. The game has really never wanted an enthusiastic following since it became established on American soil nearly thirty years ago, but during the period of golfing infatuation, when almost every man of sporting proclivities was tempted to investigate the mysteries of what to us was an entirely novel form of competition, lawn tennis seemed by contrast to have fallen into desuetude.

Its re-establishment in popular favor has been steadily going on for at least two seasons, and this year the reaction seems to have acquired so sharp an acceleration that the sport bids fair to obtain a greater vogue than it enjoyed in its palmiest days of the past.

This revival has probably been hastened in some measure by the popular craze of last winter for its diverting understudy, pingpong, which, though not to be compared with lawn tennis as a game of skill, much less of physical endurance, possesses nevertheless a fascination precisely the same in kind. That pingpong should awaken a new interest in lawn tennis is quite as natural as that checkers should lead the way to chess.

The plethoric official tournament schedule of the United States Lawn Tennis association testifies to the widespread activity in the sport. It was not so many years ago that, with the exception of Chicago and the Pacific coast, lawn tennis was practically concentrated in the east, while today the schedule comprises no less than twenty-nine sectional championships, including, besides those of the eastern and middle states, the southern, Maryland, gulf states, Pacific coast, tristate of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky; western, northwestern, south Atlantic, Washington state, interstate of Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas; Pacific northwestern and District of Columbia, showing clearly that the game is firmly established in every part of the Union.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Industrial and Agricultural Conditions Are Decidedly Encouraging

New York, July 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Settlement of numerous labor controversies and prospect of early agreements as to other struggles have greatly improved the industrial outlook, while agricultural conditions steadily improve. As these have been the only unfavorable influences for some months the prospects for active trade are decidedly encouraging. Financial conditions are sound, the mid-year dividend distributions producing no stringency, and speculation has been heavy for the season, both in securities and staples. Railway stocks established a new high record, while the corn manipulation reached a settlement without causing any failures. Despite serious interruption to traffic by strikes, railway earnings in the first week of July showed an increase of 7 percent over last year and 21.3 percent over 1900.

Manufacturers of cotton goods hold prices steady and there has been a distinct increase in demand during the past week, although buying is only for imperative requirements, the disposition to delay purchases being still evident.

New lines of lightweight woolens and worsteds have opened at unchanged prices, and the increased activity of mills has aroused more interest in the raw material, which tends to advance.

Eastern shoe shops receive more orders, some of the larger producers refusing contracts calling for delivery before October. Prices are firmly held.

The Whipple's Fast Time

Baltimore, July 19.—The toredo boat destroyer Whipple, built by the Maryland Steel company, returned to Sparrow's point yesterday from her official trial. In every movement the vessel exceeded the contract requirements. The mile course was run at a speed of 29.44 knots and the highest attained was at the rate of 30 1-4 knots. She maintained during the hour's trial required by the endurance test, the speed of 27½ knots, 1½ knots more than required by the contract.

Four People Killed In Cyclone

Chesterville, Ont., July 19.—A cyclone of great fury passed within a mile of this town yesterday and everything in its path, about 60 rods in width, was destroyed. The country presents a scene of devastation. Dwellings are overturned, dead cattle are lying at nearly every farm. It is impossible to estimate the damage now, but it is within the mark to say that it will exceed $200,000. At this time four are reported dead and many seriously injured.

Responsibility Not Placed

Park City, Utah, July 19.—The funerals of the victims of the Daly-West mine disaster were held yesterday. The services began in the morning and continued throughout the day. Business was suspended, flags were at half mast and the public buildings and many private residences were draped. The coroner's jury in its verdict makes no explanation of the cause of the explosion, and does not attempt to fix the blame for the accident.

Policeman Took No Chances

Nashville, July 19.—Policeman Jacobs yesterday shot and fatally wounded Henry F. Beaumont. Jacobs claims Beaumont was advancing on him with a butcher knife, which was found where the wounded man fell, and that he had never seen Beaumont until a half hour before, when the man met him and made a threat and walked away. When they met again the shooting occurred.

Favors Compulsory Arbitration

Chicago, July 19.—State legislation requiring corporations to submit to arbitration all industrial disputes with their employes, where the employes wish it, under penalty of forfeiture of charters in case of refusal, was advocated by Judge Murray T. Tuley, in an address before the Illinois state bar association here yesterday.

Jeffries Out of Condition

Oakland, Cal., July 19.—Rumors are flying thick and fast to the effect that Champion Jeffries is sick as a result of overtraining. It is pointed out that the champion is away below his normal weight. Trainer Delaney admits that Jeffries has worked too hard. Jeffries fell asleep yesterday while being rubbed down.

Bank Teller Sent to Prison

New York, July 19.—Harry G. Bell, the receiving teller of the Riverside bank, who was convicted of thefts from the bank, was yesterday sentenced to not more than six nor less than four years in the state prison at hard labor.

Chamberlain on the Water

London, July 19.—Joseph Chamberlain, who was recently injured in a cab accident, has started on a cruise aboard the admiralty yacht Enchantress to recuperate.

IN OLD AGE the question of health becomes mainly a question of nutrition. If the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are kept in a healthful condition there will be a well-nourished body, and little liability to disorders of the liver, bowels or such other disorders as may result from innutrition and lack of exercise.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and also diseases of other organs which are caused by the diseased condition of the stomach. By enabling the perfect nutrition of the body it increases the vital power and promotes a vigorous old age.

"I was a sufferer from chronic diarrhea for five years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Aaron, of Rolla, Phelps Co., Mo. "I tried different remedies, which would give me relief for a short time only. My trouble would return as bad as ever. I consulted you in July, 1900, and by your advice commenced using Dr. Pierce's remedies. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' three vials of the 'Pellets,' and some of the 'Extract of Smart-Weed,' as you advised. I have not had any return of my trouble since using your medicines. Am now seventy-one years old and I never had anything to relieve me so quick. I think Dr. Pierce's medicines the greatest on earth. Should I ever have any return of my trouble shall use your medicine. My thanks to you for your advice and thanks to Almighty God for restoring me to health through your hands."

THE DEFENDER.

The Outlook Launched Today at Manchester.

Today, at 10 A. M., probably, some time during the day, anyway, says the Boston Advertiser, the Outlook, the first of the Quincy cup defenders of the Manchester Y. C., leaves the ways and takes her maiden plunge into the water. The finishing touches have been made, and Boat Builder Fenton, at Manchester, said yesterday, that the boat would be in the water today. This is the defender which was designed by Burgess, and will be sailed by Reginald Boardman, commodore of the club.

Sails have been ordered of Cousens & Pratt. Until these are ready, sails have been provided by Mr. Eustis, so that the boat may be tried out as much as possible. As a 21-ft. yacht, she is less of the freak type than the Flash-light, the cup challenger, or the Cat o' Nine Tails, the other defender, and looks a speedy and graceful craft. The Cat o' Nine Tails will not be in the water until next week, probably Monday, or later. The Outlook will go over the Manchester Yacht Club course now regularly, under Com. Boardman, until the trials, which will begin about July 28.

Cape Cod Excursions.

On the Bay Line, most popular of all the local day excursion routes out of Boston, the increase in tourist travel the past ten days has been enormous. On Sunday last, as on several occasions before this season, the big steamer carried its full complement of passengers, and, owing to the strict regulations which permit only a certain number of people on board, thereby averting all inconvenience from overcrowding, the accommodations were found to be perfect in every respect. The leaving time from Bay Line wharf, 400 Atlantic avenue, on week days is 9.30, and on Sundays 10 o'clock. Two hours are allowed on shore amid the sand dunes of the Cape, and the experience is bound to prove an inspiration and an education as well. Music is furnished on board the steamer by the Bay Line band.

Lower Tax Rate.

Gloucester announces a reduction of $1.60 in its tax rate, the 1902 rate being $16.60. This was accomplished by increasing the valuation nearly two million dollars.

—The savings banks of New York have been obliged to reduce the rate of interest on deposits to 3 1-2 per cent., but the law still permits the pawnbroker to exact as high as 30 per cent. on pledges left in their custody. Why they should be allowed to thus fleece the poor in their need, when invested funds command so low a rate is a question worth considering. — Milford Gazette.

BRAINTREE.

The Old Home Week committee request that the several stores of Braintree remain closed Monday, July 28th.

Dr. R. F. Burleigh has been confined to his home by illness.

The will of Charlotte B. Crosby was allowed at Dedham on Wednesday.

The Pine Tree club held a meeting at Col. A. C. Drinkwater's Tuesday evening.

The ball game scheduled by the Braintree club for July 26 on the common has been canceled.

Mr. J. E. Hayden is ill at his home on Thayer Place. He met with an accident while visiting in Bridgewater, but it is hoped he will soon be out again.

The Ladies' Aid society and Antietam camp, Sons of Veterans held a successful lawn party Wednesday at the home of Miss Josephine Foster of Washington street.

The ball game today is expected to prove the most exciting of the season. It will be remembered that Boston Dry Goods Co. defeated the Braintrees in the first game of the season by a score of 8 to 5. The new seating arrangements are completed.

Blue Hill Lodge, No. 208, A. O. U. W., had an interesting meeting last Wednesday evening. Master Workman Annis says that the lodge is growing, and that the coming season will witness a large increase in membership. Grand Supervisor Estes of Brockton, and Deputy Jones were present at the last meeting.

Charles Steinharter of Milwaukee, Wis., and one of the best known and most proficient tanners in the west, was the guest recently of his son, Joseph J. Steinharter of Pond street. Mr. Steinharter has decided to settle in New England, for a while at least, and was en route to Vermont, where he will remain for a few weeks.

The Union Vets play first at the muster at Nantasket Point this afternoon.

Charles Nickson of Union street has been entertaining Capt. Jorgensen of Dennis for a few days.

The Oriental Drum corps will accompany the Union Vets to the muster at Nantasket Point this afternoon.

Charles Nickson of Union street lost his valuable collie dog Wednesday forenoon and found him in Quincy Thursday evening.

About a couple of dozen residents attended the All Souls' church picnic at Nantasket Wednesday. Thursday the Episcopal society went to the same place.

Louis F. Bates met with a severe accident Saturday afternoon. He went into the stall to feed his horse and the halter got caught on the horses ear, he attempted to remove it when the horse became unmanageable and kicked him in the arm and side and also knocked out the side of the stall. Dr. G. W. Tinkham dressed his wounds. It will be some time before he will be able to do any work as his injuries include a fracture of the left elbow.

Willie H. Shaw has been appointed administrator of the estate of Harriet A. J. Shaw; bond, $25,000.

Rev. Mr. Griffin is preparing to occupy the house on River street, lately occupied by Mr. Frederick Wilson.

It is reported that the King Philip hand engine of Rockland has been hired by Braintree young men to capture a prize at the Braintree muster the 28th.

Last Saturday morning as Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt of Weymouth was riding on her wheel in North Scituate, she either fell or was thrown on account of being crowded by a barge and a buggy. She noticed no bad effects at the time but a little later discovered that she had sprained her ankle, causing great pain. By a remarkable effort she filled her position as soloist in the Meeting House Hill church on Sunday morning.

The roof of Dr. Simmons' new barn was blown over during the severe store Tuesday night.

In spite of the thunder storm Tuesday evening about sixty people gathered at A. A. Drollett's home, West street, to a lawn party. Those present from Braintree and South Braintree were conveyed in a barge. Vocal and instrumental music furnished entertainment. Refreshments were enjoyed and all present had a very pleasant evening.

NEW ORDER OF SOLDIERS.

Aims of the Organization Explained by "Private" Dalzell.

An old soldiers' organization has been started at Washington, and it is planned to extend it all over the country and to take into it all citizens who ever have fought for the United States, says the New York Times. Speaking for the new organization, "Private" Dalzell said:

"This organization is intended to embrace soldiers of all wars and their sons in a national political organization. It will not interfere with party politics, religion or any other obligations of its members. It will not antagonize the Grand Army of the Republic or the Union Veterans' union or any other patriotic organization now in existence, because the members of this new organization belong to the others.

"The intention of the promoters of the new combination, if it may be so called, is to have organizations by states, congressional districts, counties and precincts, the same as the political parties have organizations today. It is the purpose of the organization to control nominations and elections of men who are favorable to the soldier and if need be to defeat, without regard to party, any man in the country for office who has demonstrated hostility or indifference to the interests of the old soldier of any and every war.

"So broad is this new order that President Roosevelt, himself an honorably discharged soldier of the United States army, may and likely will become a member, as will also, if they desire, General Breckinridge and 'Fighting Joe' Wheeler, although they were fighters against the Union in the civil war. The single requirement for eligibility is an honorable discharge from the military or naval service of the government. Sons of eligible members will also be admitted to the order. The Grand Army of the Republic is prohibited by its constitution and bylaws from interfering in any way in the nomination or appointment or election of any person to civil office."

"AUTO POLO" LATEST FAD.

Boston Sportsman Cleverly Showed Its Varied Possibilities.

Automobile polo is the latest addition to the realm of sport, and Mr. Joshua Crane, Jr., of the Dedham Polo club has demonstrated that "auto polo" is a possibility, says a Boston dispatch to the New York Herald.

The automobile variety of polo is not likely, however, to become very popular, as an unlimited number of machines would be required if there was any "riding off" attempted.

Mr. Crane owns a big touring machine, which runs under his management with the agility and handiness of a well trained pony. At Karlstein the other afternoon he gave an exhibition of his skill in running the machine with one hand and making a pretty series of strokes with a polo mallet, knocking the ball the length of the field as cleverly as he could from a polo pony. At the end of his run Mr. Crane rapped a backhander and then in a jiffy made a dazzling turn at speed with his automobile and was on the ball again for a run to the other end of the field.

Mr. Crane also successfully tried some fancy shots between the wheels of his machine and altogether gave a very remarkable performance. There was one drawback, however, regarding the strokes which may be used by a chauffeur. On a touring machine it is impossible to make near side strokes, but this might be accomplished on a runabout.

Of course it takes considerable skill to hit a ball from the driver's seat on an automobile, as the player must reach out over the wheel and at the same time maintain control of the machine, but Mr. Crane has the trick down to perfection and never missed a stroke on runs the length of the Dedham polo field.

HUMOR OF MANILA FIGHT.

German Captain Related Amusing Incident In Philippine War.

Captain Pohl, who was on board the German cruiser Irene in Manila harbor, relates in the Berlin Marine Rundschau what he deems to be the "amusing basis of the American misconception of the attitude of Germany toward the blockade." He says the band of the Irene played an American air after saluting Commodore Dewey's flag, and the Spanish pilot thought it was the Spanish coronation hymn and related the incident ashore in extravagant language.

The Spanish newspapers in Manila, it is added, printed this version of the incident, and the Spaniards in Manila and elsewhere showed an enthusiastic liking for everything German, the commander of the volunteers of Iloilo telegraphing to the commander of the Irene his thanks for the "sympathetic demonstration."

The Americans in Manila, therefore, according to Captain Pohl, believed the pilot's story, but Commodore Dewey, knowing the facts, laughed at them.

Parasols on Whips.

Mrs. De Lancey Kane has inaugurated a fashion in Newport which is sure to find many followers among horsewomen, says the New York Press. She is using a whip these days which serves as a sunshade. The parasol is placed in the center and protects her from the sun while driving on Bellevue avenue.

A New Culinary Caprice.

Select small cantaloupes, put them on the ice for several hours; then cut each one in halves crosswise, remove the seeds and seed pulp and fill the cavity with ice cream, covering the top with whipped cream, and serve.

Much has been written concerning such curious insectivorous plants as the Venus' flytrap, the pitcher plants and sundews, and the great Darwin has contributed to science a good sized volume on this subject alone, but we may find many other plants that catch insects, but which are not insectivorous, and these have not been of so frequent comment, says a writer in Popular Science Monthly. No doubt there are several species of flowers in nearly any district which, although having no apparatus for digesting animal matter, are nevertheless as surely adapted to insnare insects as the most artfully constructed spider web, but in many such instances it is evident that the catching of insects is an accidental circumstance and the means of such accomplishment not designed by Dame Nature to that end.

On examining specimens of a silver spot butterfly (argynnis) I have sometimes found a pair of club shaped appendages adhering to their feet, in one instance all four extremities being so decorated. When I say all four, it will be remembered that argynnids, in common with many other butterflies, do not use their first pair of legs as organs of locomotion or prehension, these being so modified to other use as to bear but little resemblance to the other legs.

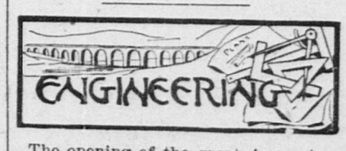

Recalling that most of these specimens were captured about milkweeds, I visited their locality again and found that the flowers held in durance vile a large number of flies and some other small insects, among which was a cabbage butterfly unable to extract its proboscis from the blossom from which it had been sipping. The argynnids, being larger and much stronger than this luckless visitor, were able to pull away from the milkweeds, but carrying the club shaped pollen masses with them. And so we see here that nature had not intended the creation of an insect snare, but primarily a means of pollenizing flowers through the medium of their insect consorts, the captives being among the incidental victims of misfortune that frequently figure as giving up their lives to no evident purpose in the carrying out of nature's grander schemes.

New Gas Mantle.

In reference to gaslight mantles it is reported that an Austrian engineer has discovered and perfected a chemical compound which when added to the thoriacera mantle converts it from a loose, fragile structure into an elastic glass where the chemical constituents are chemically combined and not merely mechanically held together.

Bacteria on Money.

A physician through bacteriological investigation made at the Hopital du Bey, Algiers, has found that almost all varieties of bacteria occur upon currency, but most common are the germs of suppuration. Bacteria are, however, short lived upon metal currency.

The opening of the great Aspen tunnel, on the Wyoming division of the Union Pacific railroad, marks the successful completion of an unusually difficult piece of engineering. The formation through which the tunnel is built is of a carboniferous nature. Rock was at first encountered, then shale and finally a curious "slacking ground," where the real difficulty of the work began.

This ground was very much of the nature of an old fashioned pot of yeast, says a writer in the Engineering and Mining Journal, or it might be likened to an asphalt bed. As soon as the air was admitted to the tunnel it swelled up after the manner of quicklime irresistibly. It was at first thought that Oregon pine beams twelve inches square would suffice, but these were literally smashed into kindling wood. Then 16 by 6 inch steel girders were tried. They were bent like wire by the enormous pressure.

The action was so sudden that the men had often to run for their lives, the effect being almost like an explosion, the ground swelling up and entirely closing the tunnel. Considerable trouble was also caused by the occurrence of oil and water in the shaft. An explosion of the former caused the death of three men in 1899. The greatest depth of the tunnel below the surface is 456 feet, and its highest point is 7,296 feet above sea level.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Music Hall.

For next week at Boston Music Hall the bill will consist of Charles Reade's dramatic version of Tennyson's "Dora," a play that gained immense favor with Boston audiences a generation ago at the old Globe and Boston Theatres. The familiar story proved eminently suited to the stage and Fred Robinson and Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau charmed the play goers of Boston for nearly an entire season when it had its original production here at the Globe in 1867. The preparations made for staging this play promise some notably realistic effects and the cast of characters, which follows, promises to introduce many of the Castle Square players in most congenial roles. Farmer Allan, Edmund Breese; William Allan, Edward Wade; Luke Blomfield, Charles Mackay; Jem Blunt, Louis Thiel; Dora Allan, Mary Hall; Mary Morrison, Katharine Clinton. The usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be continued at the Monday matinee till further notice.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For the week commencing Monday, July 21, another big program is announced, including the following: Edmund Hayes and company, in "A Wise Guy;" the Six Blackbirds, "real coon" singers and dancers; Josse and Willie Barrows, graceful dancers; Kadura's Imperial Japanese troupe of acrobats, tumblers and wonder workers, and trained dogs; Leslie brothers, musical comedians; Baker and Conn, in the funny sketch, "A Man from the Klondyke"; and John Barker, the popular Yankee comedian. The Fadettes orchestra will continue with an entire change of selections, and there will be several additional tableaux vivants. This bill will compare favorably with any offered at Keith's this season, and contains quite a number of acts that will be new to the regular patrons of the theatre. The business done this summer is said to be phenomenal, exceeding all years since 1896.

TODAY'S COURT.

Henry Reilley was fined $3 for drunkenness at Randolph.

Frank Miller was arraigned for drunkenness and assault at Milton. He was fined $3 for drunkenness and $5 for assault.

The liquors seized from John F. Toomey at Randolph were forfeited.

Jacob Sashe was arraigned for assault with a dangerous weapon on Tupper G. Miller at Quincy. He was fined $25.

The continued cases of Michael M. Murphy, for bastardy and for receiving stolen property, were heard. He was held for the grand jury on the former complaint and the second was continued for one month.

The continued case of Annie O'Sullivan for larceny was called and she was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

Needed From Outside Sources to Carry on Coal Strike

APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE

For Funds to Continue War Against the Anthracite Operators—Retaliatory Measures May Be Executed—Strike Has Cost $55,000,000

Indianapolis, July 21.—The convention of the United Mine Workers adjourned after declaring against a general strike, providing for the raising of a fund with which to aid the striking miners and issuing an appeal to the American people for support.

The appeal to the people for support says in part: "The struggle in the anthracite region will be continued until our demands have been granted or a competent board of arbitration has declared that we are wrong.

"Realizing this fact, we appeal to the people at large to bring all possible pressure to bear on the officers and stockholders of the anthracite coal-carrying railroads and other anthracite coal interests to treat considerately the appeals of their employes for arbitration.

"The care of 150,000 men and their families in a protracted struggle, such as this is likely to be, will require the expenditure of a large sum of money in the purchase of food. Our own resources are limited.

"We need money for that purpose and we appeal to very trade union and trade unionist, to every citizen whose interests are involved and to every lover of fair play, to assist us in raising $1,000,000 per month from the outside sources, as long as the strike may last."

The recommendations brought in by the special committee appointed in the executive session of Friday and which are practically identical with those suggested by President Mitchell in his address on the first day of the convention and unanimously adopted by the convention, were adopted.

The delegates sang "America" with much fervor just before adjournment. President Mitchell said that results were far beyond his most sanguine expectations; that his brother miners not only publicly but privately fully indorsed all his recommendations made in his opening address, and assured him of earnest support in views and policies that he had expressed outside of the convention hall. He said he would return to the anthracite field as soon as possible with all the power and support that he desired or was necessary to direct intelligently all the details of the strike.

He spoke earnestly as if he intended now to "war to the knife." The point he refused absolutely to discuss was the plans for stopping soft coal shipments to the anthracite fields, but he evidently has a plan.

The details of the plan have not all been formulated, but will be all in the hands of the executive board. The anthracite strikers demand that their fields be not invaded by other coal as long as the strike prevails, and this demand the executive board will endeavor to meet.

Retaliatory measures upon certain operators may be inaugurated, but they have not been determined upon as yet. The program will be established shortly and be executed earnestly and promptly. Mitchell says he simply wants the funds promised and the best results will follow.

President Mitchell has made an estimate of the number of strikers and dependents in each district and weekly revenues to be derived from each district under the decision of the convention, together with amounts of weekly assessments by districts. The number of strikers in the anthracite fields is etimated at 150,000 and the total number dependent is estimated at 750,000. The estimated weekly expense in the anthracite field is $500,000.

In the West Virginia district the number of strikers is estimated at 25,000, and the number of dependents is estimated at 75,000. The grand total contributions, including those from districts, sub-districts, locals and public gifts, are estimated at $494,000 weekly.

The estimated losses for the 10 weeks of the strike are: Loss to operators in price of coal, $24,750,000; loss to mine workers in wages, $11,550,000; loss to employes other than mine workers, $3,000,000; loss to business men in region, 8,250,000; loss to business men outside region, $4,600,000; cost of maintaining coal and iron police, $600,000; cost of maintaining non-union men, $200,000; loss by damage to mines and machinery, $2,000,000; loss to lace mill strikers, due to miners' strike, $60,000; total, $55,010,000.

May Appeal For Arbitration

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 21.—The strike headquarters of the United Mine Workers in this city, which have been closed since President Mitchell went west, will be reopened on Tuesday when Mr. Mitchell and the district presidents will return to this city. It is said now that the miners have defined their position the Civic Federation will make another appeal to the coal operators to arbitrate.

Vatican's Expensive Obstinacy

London, July 21.—The Rome correspondent of The Morning Post contends that the American authorities can unquestionably expel the friars from the Philippines without violating the treaty of Paris. What the Vatican gained by its obstinacy, says the correspondent, is not clear, but it certainly will have lost about $5,000,000.

Freight Handlers Won't Strike

Chicago, July 21.—There will not be a renewal of the freight handlers' strike in Chicago. This decision was reached at a special meeting of the Freight Handlers' union last night, called by President Curran to consider a report that four of the roads are discriminating against the old employes who went on strike two weeks ago. Committees appointed to investigate the supposed grievances reported that all the railroads, with the exception of the Pan-Handle, are living up to their agreements, and that some of the men had been accorded better terms than had been demanded while they were on strike. It was reported that all the old Pan-Handle men will be back at work in the course of a few days. It was decided that there was no cause for any future controversy with the railroads.

Soldiers Sought Revenge

Leavenworth, Kas., July 21.—The incipient riot started late Saturday night by several hundred soldiers from Fort Leavenworth, who demolished the house of a negro in the low quarter here, folowing the stabbing of a cavalryman by an inmate of the place, ended soon after midnight. A company of the Fourth cavalry rounded up those soldiers who had not voluntarily returned to the post. The general sentiment is with the soldiers.

Pursuit of Tracy Abandoned

Tacoma, Wash., July 21.—After 40 days of continual pursuit by men and bloodhounds, all organized effort to capture Harry Tracy, the escaped Oregon convict, has ended. No further posses will start after him. The pursuit of Tracy through eight counties has cost these counties $10,000. The fact that Oregon declines to pay Mrs. Waggoner of Chehalis the reward for Merrill's body has done much toward the dropping of the Tracy hunt.

Queen Laments Her Loneliness

Brussels, July 21.—La Reforme publishes an alleged interview with the Queen of the Belgians (Marie Henriette) in which her majesty is quoted as saying that the papers have made her out to be dying too quickly. According to La Reforme the queen said: "I am thoroughly soured. I who in times past was so gay, am ill from loneliness. I have only my dogs to amuse me and am already forgotten."

MRS HILL'S CLAIM

Seeks Fortune of Man From Whom She Separated Thirty Years Ago

Exeter, N. H., July 21.—Fred R. Caswell and Dr. W. F. Flask of Northwood have gone to Los Angeles, Cal., to present the claim of Mrs. Charles Hill of Northwood, who expects to obtain a widow's share of the estate of Charles Hill, otherwise said to be Salem Charles, who died in California May 17 last, leaving an estate valued at $142,000. Mrs. Hill firmly believes that the man who has left the fortune was her husband. She says he had a roving disposition and, as she objected to extensive travelling, they separated some 30 years ago, never having obtained a divorce. Mrs. Hill claims to have last seen her husband 20 years ago when he visited her in Northwood. She says he wrote to her periodically, the last time from Australia, when he said he was doing well. Mr. Caswell and Dr. Flask, who have gone to California in the interests of Mrs. Hill, are her nephews.

The faces and hands of Miss Chase and Mr. Farrington had been badly eaten by fishes.

Sunk at Her Pier

Gardiner, Me., July 21.—While bound up the river on her regular trip from Boston for Kennebec river points, steamer Kennebec struck a sunken pier about four miles south of this city, and although she succeeded in reaching her dock here, there was hardly time to remove the cargo before the vessel filled and sank. The passengers were kept in ignorance of the serious condition of the steamer after the accident and there was no demonstration.

No Light on Clark Mystery

Beverly, Mass., July 21.—The Wilbur Clark disappearance case is shrouded in a mystery which a 33-days' search has failed to solve and the authorities are as much at sea as they were on the day the boy disappeared. The search has been practically given up. Mr. Clark has given up hopes of ever seeing his son alive and it is only Mrs. Clark that still keeps the hope alive.

Rattler Killed Snake Charmer

Medford, Mass., July 21.—John Sonwell, a professional snake charmer, was fatally bitten by a rattlesnake while giving an exhibition at a museum in Boston Saturday night and died yesterday. Boston, July 21.—James J. Kelley, an old-time minstrel, died at his home in this city yesterday from a complication of diseases. He was 69 years old, but hardly showed his years and not until recently did his voice, that had won for him the name of "silver-toned tenor," fail him.

TORNADO AT BALTIMORE.

Fatalities in the Harbor and from Falling Trees and Wires.

Baltimore, July 21.—A fierce tornado, characterized by a wind storm of extraordinary velocity, thunder, vivid lightning and a heavy rain, suddenly burst upon Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. yesterday, with the net result that 11 persons lost their lives, hundreds of houses were unroofed, trees in the public parks and streets were torn up by the roots, many buildings damaged and several people injured.

The storm exhausted its fury in less than 15 minutes. The damage done in the business part of the city was comparatively slight, being confined to the blowing down of signs. It was in the residence portions of the city along the river front and in the harbor where the wind spent its violence.

Of those who perished nine were drowned in the harbor from open boats, one was killed by a falling tree and one by a live wire.

Roy Bateman, 12; Joseph Cain, 10, and John Cain, 6, were out in a rowboat on the river with three other companions. When the storm broke the boat capsized and the above named three were drowned, the other three being rescued by a tugboat.

The boy killed by a live wire, Charles Schaeffer, had, in company with two other boys, gone into a shed for protection when the shed blew down and a live wire fell on him, resulting in his death.

The drowning of Mrs. Mary Schuler and her children was the most pathetic incident of the hurricane. Michael Schuler, with his wife and three children, accompanied by his brother-inlaw, Joseph Cooper and his wife, had gone out into the harbor for a sail in a 30-foot boat. When the storm came Schuler and Cooper took in sails. Schuler sent his wife and children into the little cabin and he stood at the tiller to keep the vessel's head toward the wind. A sudden gust of wind threw the boom of the vessel around, knocked Schuler down and pinned him to the deck. Another gust capsized the boat, releasing Schuler, who, with Cooper and his wife, were thrown into the water, leaving Mrs. Schuler and her children pinned in the cabin. A crew from a schooner rescued Schuler and Cooper and wife, and towed the capsized vessel to the wharf, where it was righted and the dead bodies of Mrs. Schuler and her three children taken from the cabin.

Thomas Carroll, with four other young men, was out in the harbor in a rowboat, which was capsized. Carroll was drowned, while his four companions clung to the rudder of a steamship, from which perilous position they were rescued by a tug.

A colored camp meeting was in progress in Paradise grove. The congregation had just been dismissd when the storm broke. A huge oak tree fell upon the tent in which the services had been held. Several of the worshippers were caught beneath as it fell. William Cornish was crushed to death by the falling tree. The others were not seriously injured.

A hole several feet in diameter was blown in the wall of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic church. A portion of the stone cornice weighing more than a ton fell to the street. Fortunately no one was injured by the falling stone and brick.

The weather bureau reports that it was more in the nature of a whirlwind than a tornado. The first indication of the storm was apparent at 1:25 p. m. and the sun reappeared at 1:45. Reports from outlying districts are meagre, but so far as known the storm was confined to Baltimore and suburbs.

Four Persons Killed

Binghamton, N. Y., July 21.—The heavy rains which have prevailed in this section for the past few days reached a climax Saturday night, when three separate cloudbursts occurred in Broome county and several in surrounding territory to the northward, breaking milldams, washing out railroad tracks and highway bridges and doing much minor damage as well as delaying trains. As a result of the water's mad work, four are killed and two seriously injured and $200,000 monetary damage has been done.

Lowlands Being Deserted

Peoria, Ills., July 21.—The Illinois river stands in imminent danger of causing thousands of dollars' worth of damage to buildings and manufactories in Peoria. The damage already caused along the low lands by the floods will be but a drop in the bucket compared with the loss if the water shall rise one foot higher. People living along the bottom lands have sought the highlands and have taken their stock with them.

Good Afternoon.

"Occasional showers" are predicted, but they have become almost a steady thing.

There are several matters to come before the City Council this evening which may cause another protracted session. Certainly members should be informed before they vote.

Evidently Capt. Hunt and H. H. Faxon are both game yet and good for many years of service. Active police duty is not expected of any of the constables. If it was, some of the younger men should be dropped.

Quincy figures in the big floods on the Mississippi river, but she is our big sister in Illinois. Thus far fortunately, she has escaped damage, but all depends on the strength of levees between Warsaw and Quincy. Should these break 175 square miles of Illinois would be flooded and a damage of $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 result. Opposite Quincy in Missouri is a centre of special devastation which is appalling. North twelve miles to Lagrange and south to Holton, large prairies are well under water, reaching from the Illinois bluffs to the Missouri bluffs, at least ten miles. Levees hastily thrown around farms are disappearing in a fierce current rushing from above through the draw of the Burlington Bridge, carrying everything before it. Lone Tree Prairie, ten miles square, is deserted, the population having fled to Quincy and the bluffs on the Missouri side, from which they watch the complete destruction.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Will the various candidates for Presidency of the Senate Speakership of the House and the Lieutenant Governorship please sit down and let the people take breath. One would think that affairs of the State were going to the "demnition bow wows" unless these matters were settled at once. Gentlemen keep calm. Keep your worries to yourselves. The State is safe, no matter who wins in the several contests, and, on the whole the general people care but little about it.—Worcester West Chronicle.

☞ Miss Mary MacLane, whose progress from Butte, Mont., to Cambridge, Mass., has been chronicled with great attention to all the particulars of the journey, is about to disappear from the public gaze. Her friend, Miss Corbin, a lady of refinement, and mentally strong, will see to it that no more interviews shall be given to the press in regard to her Montana visitor. Miss Corbin will seclude the young woman where the reporter can not reach her, but probably her moral influence upon her will be such that Miss MacLane will not desire further publicity. The Cambridge teacher who has won the love of the Montana girl has a study on her hands of no small magnitude, and if she succeeds in cultivating this natural product of the mountains she will accomplish a great achievement.—Lynn Item.

Recovered on Way to Hospital.

Both Badly Burned by Crossing of Wires.

Ellis Robinson and James Landers, two linemen employed by the New England Telephone Co., were severely shocked this morning by coming in contact with a live wire and had a narrow escape from death.

The men were running wires near the corner of Squantum and Billings street, Atlantic. Robinson was on the pole and Landers stood on the ground with one foot on the wire to hold it. In pulling up the wire it became crossed with a power line of the Elecric Light Co., and the 2000 volts passed through Landers' body. His foot was burned through to the bone and his hands was also badly burned.

Robinson hearing Landers agonizing cry as he fell unconscious, attempted to shake out the cross. In doing so he also had the full voltage and had both hands badly burned. He also was rendered unconscious and his body hung limp upon the pole. The horrified bystanders thought him dead and none dared go to his rescue for fear of the live wire.

Word was telephoned to the power station and the current was shut off. James Connelly and another member of the fire department who happened to be near at hand then went up the pole and lowered the body to the ground by use of ropes. Meanwhile Dr. Bruce had been notified and a call sent to the Police station for the ambulance. Dr. Bruce worked over the men until the ambulance arrived, when they were taken to the City Hospital.

Both men recovered consciousness on the way to the hospital and are resting comfortably. They will probably be able to go to their homes before the day is out.

Both men live in Roxbury, Robinson at 33 Catawba street and Landers at 68 Day street.

Battleship Forging.

Wreckmasters George Dean and George Betts will have a tough job on their hands today, says the Post, when one of the tugs owned by Betts Bros. will tow wrecking lighter Farragut up Mystic River to the Jupiter Steel Works where a huge piece of forging will be taken aboard the lighter. It was forged at the works and consists of a stem piece weighing 28 tons. It will be towed down to the Fore River Engine and Iron Works at Quincy, where it is to be placed in position for the new 15,000-ton battleship Rhode Island, under construction at that place with the New Jersey.

Cool July Day.

Sunday's temperature ranged between 59 and 61 degrees being with one exception the coldest July day for seven years. July 13, 1898, the noon temperature was 60. In 1896 and 1897 the lowest was 65; in 1899 it was 66; in 1901 there was a 67 degree day, July 9, and one of 68 degrees, July 25. The lowest noon temperature in 1900 was 70 degrees, while this year six of the 21 days have been below 70.

Speedy Destroyer.

A Baltimore dispatch says the torpedo boat destroyer Whipple, built by the Maryland Steel Company, exceeded contract requirements on her official trial. The mile course was run at a speed of 29.44 knots, and the highest speed attained was at the rate of 30 1-4 knots. She maintained during the hour's trial a speed of 27 1-2 knots, or 1 1-2 knots more than required.

Leased by H. H. Faxon.

H. H. Faxon has leased fifty-two tenement houses, situated in various parts of Chelsea and South Boston, containing nearly two hundred tenements, and a few stores, for a term of ten years, to M. T. Rush, who assumes the entire control. Mr. Faxon thereby is relieved from all care of the estates, and all responsibility.

Postponed Race Sailed.

The postponed races of the City of Boston were sailed Saturday when the Chloris easily outsailed the Thordis and Ideal. The Lobster won from the Wawenock in a close contest. The Pilgrim won in the handicap class.

—The Clapp Memorial organ is being erected in the Old Church, Hingham. It will be as fine an instrument as money can buy anywhere.

THE CUP RACES.

The Outlook Now in the Water---Plans for Contest.

The new Quincy cup defender, the Outlook, passed her first Sunday in the water yesterday, says the Boston Advertiser. The set of sails provided by Mr. Eustis, were used until those of Cousens & Pratt arrive. At the formal launching of the yacht Saturday, only the owner, A. H. Higginson, Mrs. Higginson and Mrs. H. L. Higginson, with the builder, John Fenton were present. The boat slid gracefully into the harbor waters, and today will be taken over the club course for a try-out.

It has been officially announced by the Manchester Yacht club that the races for the Quincy challenge cup between the challenger, Flashlight, and the representative selected by the Manchester yacht club, will take place off West Manchester on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 4, 5 and 6. The start will be made at 10 on each morning.

It is probable that the Quincy Yacht club will run a small steamer daily to the races, leaving Houghs Neck at 7 A. M., but the boat will not be chartered unless 60 or 70 signify a desire to attend the races.

Courses have been laid out for the trial races of the defenders and, although there has been no official announcement, it is expected that the same courses will govern the races between the challenger and the defender. These courses are fifteen in number, six for windward or leeward, and seven for triangular work.

The Manchester defender will have trial races on July 28, 29, 30 and 31, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. On Monday and Tuesday there will be two races, one starting at 9.30 in the morning and the other at 2 P. M. On Wednesday and Thursday the races will be started at 9.30.

Yachts to be eligible for the trial races, must conform to the regulations of the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup, as specified in the declaration of trust. They must furnish a certificate of measurements from the official measurer of the Manchester yacht club, giving waterline length, and must also be inspected by Mr. Louis M. Clark, previous to the race.

Each yacht will be allowed a crew of five persons, whose aggregate weight shall not exceed 850 pounds. The crew must be weighed before the start.

Meanwhile the Flashlight, the Quincy challenger, will be tuned up and put in the best of condition for the fray. The cup races will occur Aug. 4, 5 and 6, and may require one or two days more.

Redskin Well Handled.

The Redskin, owned by Sturtevant Bros., won a great victory on Saturday, as will be seen by a report in the Boston Advertiser, which says: Capt. Nate Watson, with the 105 foot Constellation, was beaten by the Redskin, a little 35-footer, in the races of the Eastern Y. C. at Marblehead, Saturday, and never did the skipper of an American cup defender have a gamier boat against him than in this same Redskin. There was disappointment that more boats were not entered in the schooner classes, but there was no disappointment in the clever manner in which the little Redskin of the Sturtevant Bros. was handled from the starting point to the finish.

The wind was fluky and shifting, and the three boats in the schooner class, and the two in the sloops were the only ones to start, and they had to be towed out of the harbor before the race began this delaying it from 11 A. M. until 12.15, when the Redskin crossed the starting line off Half Way rock. The Amorita was second, with Constellation way behind and up to within a short distance of the second mark Redskin led her class, gamily showing her stern to her rivals. It was then that the big Constellation, catching a puff of wind before the Redskin, closed up on her and crossed the second mark ahead.

The Constellation and the Redskin had a luffing match, but the sea tricks of "Nate" Watson failed to gain an advantage over the Redskin. On the run home the Constellation pulled away from both the Redskin and the Amorita, but by time allowance of 1 min. 40 sec. the race was Redskin's by a comfortable margin of over 25 minutes.

REPLIES TO FAXON.

Capt. Hunt Admits He is Too Old for Police Duty, But—

Quincy, July 21, 1902.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger:

Dear Sir: In Mr. H. H. Faxon's letter of July 19, he mentioned my name in his controversy with Mayor Bryant on the Constable question. Now as I was first elected a constable in 1847 in the old town of Quincy, fifty-five years ago, and have been elected or appointed either a constable or a police officer most of the time since, except from '61 to '65 when I was in the army as private, first sergeant and captain, and in those long years I think I have done some fairly good service to the old town and City of Quincy.

I also served twenty years in the old Quincy Fire Department at the rate of $1.25 to $2 a year. I might also add that among other things I have saved eight persons from death by drowning, six of whom were residents of Quincy.

The reason I asked to be appointed a constable was that I could serve on the dog warrant, looking after unlicensed dogs which I know I am competent to do.

As for acting as a constable to do police duty, I am well aware that I am at least fifteen years too old for that duty. As Mr. Faxon says, I shall be eighty years old the 29th of August next, and I well know that an officer to do police duty often has to get into a mix-up with bad men and no old man of my own or Mr. Faxon's age should think of doing it.

As for Mr. Faxon's dig at me in his last remarks in his letter, it was wholly uncalled for, and unmanly in him to do so. Respectfully yours,

Charles N. Hunt,
Constable of Quincy, also deputy for the enforcement of Fish and Game Laws for the past eighteen years.

A large vault is now being cut here by the men under the big granite shed. J. T. W.

Men Dropped at Navy Yard.

A Boston paper reports that twenty-five skilled mechanics were dropped from the rolls of the Department of Construction and Repair at the Charlestown Navy Yard Thursday, and within the next few days it is expected that about as many more will have to go. Since the war with Spain there has been only one brief period when the number of men in this department was as small as it is at the present time. Within three years it has not been anywhere near present figures. Today the rolls of this department show that about 865 men are employed. A large proportion of these are iron workers; the remainder being divided between the other trades.

He was removed to the police station where he was attended by a physician and then removed to his home on Common street.

LIGHTNING PRANKS

Knocks Out Bed Posts and Allows Bed to Fall.

The interior of the house of Miles Shurtleff at South Weymouth was wrecked last night, being struck by lightning, and the family consisting of six people had a narrow escape. The bolt evidently came down the chimney and before it disappeared, entered every room in the house. Plastering was torn off and great holes were made in the walls. In the room where Mr. Shurtleff's two daughters were the bolt cut off all four posts of the bed, which fell with a crash, but fortunately the occupants were uninjured. In the room occupied by Mr. Shurtleff, the bolt tore a large hole in the wall within six inches of his head but did not injure him.

His Best Role.

They were discussing the amateur theatricals of the previous evening, and Thespis was bewailing the hard luck that had brought on a violent headache and prevented his appearance.

"Do you know, old boy," he said confidentially, "that was to have been the effort of my life. I had the love scene down fine, and Mildred's heart must have been of stone if she failed to see that I was in earnest. I was willing to stake everything on the result, for I was confident she would accept me the moment the curtain went down. And to think that my usual hard luck would step in just when all my hopes were about to be realized!"

"I heard Mildred refer to your non-appearance," remarked Fayer.

"You did? And what did she say?"

"Said you performed an act of charity by not coming on."

It Puzzled Him.

It is said of a former Marquis of Townshend that when young and engaged in battle he saw a drummer at his side killed by a cannon ball which scattered his brains in every direction. His eyes were at once fixed on the ghastly object, which seemed to engross his thoughts. A superior officer observing him supposed he was intimidated at the sight and addressed him in a manner to cheer his spirits. "Oh!" said the young marquis, with calmness, but severity. "I am not frightened. I am puzzled to make out how any man with such a quantity of brains ever came to be here!"

Too True to Be Profitable.

"How about that historical novel?" asked the publisher.

"No good at all," answered the reader to whom it had been assigned. "The man doesn't understand how to write historical novels, and he hasn't perverted the truth as we know it enough to make any kind of a rumpus among the critics. His book would fall flat."—Chicago Post.

METAPHOR OF THE SEA.

Terms Associated With the Water That Are Very Expressive.

"Let me put in my oar," said a gentleman as he joined three of his acquaintances in the hotel cafe the other night and took a seat at a table with them.

"That is about the twentieth metaphor of that sort that I have heard tonight," answered one of the others, "and it seems so strange that we should borrow so many of our figures from the sea. I never thought of it before, but it is curious. I have never been closely associated with the water, and I don't believe any of us have, and yet we are using sea terms all of the time. They are wonderfully expressive, too, and I don't know what we would do without them.

"You want to put in 'your oar,' a moment ago some one talked about being 'all adrift,' and I admitted that I was 'at sea.' We talk about our 'weather eye,' being 'spliced,' our 'mainstay' and all that sort of stuff. We know what it is to 'cast an anchor to windward,' to 'back and fill,' to 'steer' through, to be 'taken aback' and to have 'the wind taken out of our sails.'

"We 'spin a yarn,' try 'the other tack,' 'launch' enterprises, get them 'under full sail' and often 'wreck' them. We cry for 'any port in a storm,' 'take in a reef,' get to our 'rope's end,' 'run before the wind' and sometimes 'keel over.' So it goes on until I believe we can talk about almost everything in the language of the sea."—St. Louis Republic.

Choosing a Minister.

The parish kirk of Driechton had been rather unfortunate in its ministers, two of them having gone off in decline within a twelvemonth of their appointment, and now, after hearing a number of candidates for the vacancy, the members were looking forward with keen interest to the meeting at which the election of the new minister was to take place.

"Weel, Marget," asked one female parishioner of another as they foregathered on the road one day, "wha are you gaun to vote for?"

"I'm just thinkin' I'll vote for none o' them. I'm no' muckle o' a judge, an' it'll be the safest plan," was Marget's sagacious reply.

"Toots, woman, if that's the way o't, vote wi' me."

"An' hoo are you gaun to vote?"

"I'm gaun to vote for the man that I think has the soundest lungs an' 'll no' bother us wi' deein' again in a hurry."—Scottish American.

An Odd Dish.

Mix boiled hog's lard and milk with thick gruel. Stir it well together, with fresh cheese, yolks of eggs and brains. Wrap it in a fragrant fig leaf and boil in the gravy of a chicken or a kid. When taken out, remove the leaf and souse it in a potful of boiling honey. The name of this comestible is derived from the fig leaf, but the mixture consists of equal parts of each, but rather more eggs, because this gives it consistency. This appears to have been a popular dish among the Greeks. To us it seems about as nice as an oyster eaten with brown sugar.

Aristophanes mentions a thirum of salt fish and a thirum of fat. In the "Frogs" there is a dismal joke in the form of a reasonable objection made to leaping from a high tower, "I would lose two fig leaves of brain." The word occurs no less than twelve times in the fragments of the comic poets.

The Cobweb.

A story was told the other day of a little girl who discovered a cobweb and then, seeing a spider emerge from it, called out: "See the cob run! How fast the cob runs!" As a matter of fact she builded better than she knew, for cob, or cop, is, according to the dictionaries, the name sometimes given to a spider; whence the word cobweb, which is, strictly speaking, copweb. Cop in this sense is probably an abbreviation of the Anglo-Saxon attercoppe, a spider.

Odd Records.

Records are kept with knotted cords in Polynesia. During the early part of the nineteenth century and previously the official taxgatherers on the island of Hawaii, in the Sandwich group, did all their accounts on a rope 2,400 feet long, which was divided into lengths, each corresponding to a district. Loops, knots and feathers tied along the rope served as memoranda for the hogs, pigs and pieces of sandalwood collected from taxpayers.

Language.

"It's wonderful," said the meditative man, "how one small word, insignificant in itself, may induce an endless train of thought, speaking volumes, in fact."

"Yes," replied the caustic man. "Take the word 'but,' for instance, when a woman says, 'Of course, it's none of my business, but.'"—Exchange.

$1,000,000 DAMAGE

Hundreds of Farmers Ruined by Floods Along the Mississippi

Keokuk, Ia., July 21.—The great Mississippi has overflowed its banks for hundred of miles on the Missouri side, doing millions of dollars' worth of damage. It is spoken of as the most costly flood, above St. Louis, in the history of "the Father of Waters." Hundreds of rich farmers have been made penniless. Hundreds of acres bearing the greatest crop ever known are now under running currents and entirely ruined. A total loss of $10,000,000 is estimated. Several small towns have been entirely submerged and boats are used in city streets. The overflow rose six inches yesterday in an immense area of 700 square miles. Great lakes have been formed that have never appeared on any map before.

The situation today is much brighter. The Mississippi here shows a stage of 15.4 feet, the highest since 1897, and is still rising, but not as fast as it was yesterday. The crest of the Mississippi rise will probably pass here today and the worst is probably over.

Two Babies For a Cent.

A novel poster was seen by a recent sojourner in Nova Scotia. It was printed on rough paper with red paint, in a childish hand, and was tacked to a telegraph pole in a conspicuous position: "There will be a concert and fair in Mrs. Parson's sitting room today at 2 o'clock sharp. Admission—adults, 5 cents; children, 2 cents; babies, two for a cent."

Slitting Tree Bark.

When a young fruit or shade tree stops growing and looks as if it were about to give up the struggle for existence, the trouble may often be traced to its being barkbound. In this case a long perpendicular slit in the bark will enable it to resume its natural growth.

A Simple Matter.

"John, I'd like you to wake me at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning. I want to catch the early train."

"All right, sir; all right," replied the able servitor expressively; "all you got to do, sir, is to ring."—Philadelphia North American.

A Bright Student.

Among the reminiscences of the class of '02 at Yale is the story of a stout and healthy looking member who was told by his tutor that "he was better fed than taught." "You teach me. I feed myself," was the retort.

His Regrets.

Judge — Your innocence is proved. You are acquitted.

Prisoner (to the jury)—Very sorry, indeed, gentlemen, to have given you all this trouble for nothing.

DEATH OF JOHN MACKAY

Accumulated Vast Fortune In Mine Investments

BEGUN AS A LABORER

Last Survivor of Quartet Who Were Ridiculed For Buying Abandoned Lode, Which Eventually Added $110,000,000 to World's Riches

London, July 21.—John W. Mackay of San Francisco, who had been suffering from heat prostration since Tuesday last, died at his residence here last evening.

Mr. Mackay's condition had improved, but the patient had a bad night, and yesterday morning a consultation was held by three physicians. Mr. Mackay grew worse as the day progressed. He was unconscious most of the time and died very peacefully. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The right lung was found to be congested and the symptoms indicated pneumonia.

Mrs. Mackay, her mother and Countess Telfener were present when Mr. Mackay died, and Princess Galatio Colonna arrived from Paris a half hour after her step-father's death.

The morning papers publish long obituaries of Mr. Mackay.

Mr. Mackay was the last surviving member of the four bonanza kings, Flood, O'Brien and Fair, the other three having long since died. For the past 18 years Mr. Mackay had not been actively identified with the life of San Francisco, but had passed most of his time in the east, making annual visits to the Pacific coast to look after his property interests in California and Nevada. On the occasion of his last visit to San Francisco, early this summer, Mr. Mackay completed arrangements for a landing place for the new Pacific cable, a project that he was much interested in.

During a visit in 1892 Mr. Mackay was shot and slightly wounded by W. D. Rippey, who had a fancied grievance against him, dating from the stock broking days of the Comstock.

Mr. Mackay went to California in 1851, via Panama. He at once entered a mine, working with pick and shovel in the placers of the American river and Downieville. In 1859 he went to Virginia City, Nev., and began mining on the Comstock with varying success. His first real start toward success was made when he became superintendent of the Kentucky mine in Gold Hill.

In 1863 Mackay formed a partnership with Flood, O'Brien and Fair. In 1871 this famous mining quartet purchased the site of the Bonanza territory, north of the Ophir mine, on the celebrated Comstock ledge. They began work on a lode abandoned by Sharon and other large operators. The enterprise was a fruitful source of ridicule in mining circles, nothing but financial disaster being freely predicted. Without losing heart or patience, the four men continued, expending $500,000 in prospecting operations. The ledge was struck and over $110,000,000 were added to the world's stock of precious metals.

Mackay's income from his mines alone was put down for a length of time at $800,000 a month. But no one can tell how much is fiction and how much is truth in a career so romantic.

Mackay lived among his mines, except when he ran over to Europe to see his wife and children and, if the truth were known, to pine for the lower levels of Yellow Jacket and Consolidated Virginia, as he strolled about the Champs Elysees, or wandered through the streets of London.

Mr. Mackay married a daughter of John Hungerford, who went from southern New York to the Pacific coast in the early Argonaut days. The Hungerfords had two daughters. The elder was a already a widow with a daughter, when Mr. Mackay met and fell in love with her. Mr. Mackay was most generous to his new relatives, and gave his sister-in-law, Miss Hungerford, a dot of $1,000,000 when she married Count Telfener.

The daughter of Mrs. Mackay, Miss Bryant, was a very simple and sweet girl. She had few worldly ambitions, and was deeply religious. She was very delicate and wanted at one time to become a nun. Later, she married Prince Colonna, a nephew of the Colonna who was the representative of the old name. Mr. Mackay is said to have given the young princess a dot of $2,000,000.

John William Mackay was born in Dublin, Ire., Nov. 28, 1831. In 1840 his parents came to America, settling in New York city.

New Sultan of Zanzibar

Zanzibar, July 21.—Seyyid Aeei has been proclaimed sultan of Zanzibar in succession to Hamoud Abin Said, who died Friday from paralysis. Mr. Rogers, the present prime minister, has been appointed to serve as regent till the sultan shall have attained his majority.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 21.—President Roosevelt passed a quiet Sunday at Sagamore hill. No callers were expected and none was received. The president and his family attended religious services at the Christ Episcopal church.

A Rejected Lover's Crime

Marshall, Mo., July 21.—George Wiley shot and killed Miss Dovie Flynn at her home last night and then committed suicide. The woman refused to marry him.

GARMENT WORKERS STRIKE

Ranks of 25,000 Now Out May Be Augmented by 15,000 Others

New York, July 21.—Twenty-five thousand east side garment workers went on strike yesterday and it is predicted 15,000 more will follow. The unions affected are the Brotherhood of Tailors, the Vest Makers' union, Trousers Makers' union, Knee Breeches Makers' union, Children's Jacket Makers' union, Sailor Jacket Makers' union and Buttonhole Makers' union.

The Brotherhood of Tailors demands of the manufacturers a 56-hour working week, the payment of last year's union scale, a guarantee that the contractors or middlemen will pay union wages and employ union men, and also a guarantee that in case a middleman defaults they will get their wages.

Conferences between representatives of the union and the employers were held last week, but no settlement was reached. The employers were willing to grant the 56-hour working week, but were not willing to take any pledges as to the payment of wages by the contractors. The Brotherhood of Tailors and the unions that are on strike belong to the Garment Workers' trade council and the other union members went out in sympathy with the tailors.

Trainmen Forgot Order

Rochester, July 21.—A head-on collision occurred between two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley railroad here last evening, in which Fireman Putnam was killed and 19 others more or less seriously injured. Both trains were running at a high rate of speed when they came together. An engine and one passenger coach in one of the trains was thrown from the track down an embankment and into the Erie canal feeder and was completely wrecked. The other engine was demolished, but remained on the roadbed. It is admitted by the crew of the incoming train that they had received orders to meet the outgoing train at Mount Hope siding, which is a short distance south of the scene of the wreck. They say that, having habitually met the outgoing train at Rochester, the order to meet it at Mount Hope siding was forgotten until too late.

Sultan Changes His Mind

Manila, July 21.—The sultan of Bacolod, Mindanao, who recently sent an insultingly-worded communication to the commander of the American expedition to Lake Lanao, in which he threatened to begin offensive operations in August, has now written a friendly letter to the commander of the American forces, in which he disavows all desire to fight and says he will confer with the Americans in the future.

Headed For New England

Lincoln, Neb., July 21.—William J. Bryan left Saturday night for an extended speaking tour in the eastern and New England states. His principal political address will be at the New England Democratic league meeting at Boston, July 24. The present trip is understood to be the beginning of an active campaign on the part of Mr. Bryan during the summer and fall months.

Jury Bribing Case Ended

Chicago, July 21.—Five defendants in the second jury bribing case which grew out of the Union Traction company's transfer fight pleaded guilty and fines were imposed upon them as follows: Cyrus S. Simon, attorney for the traction company, $2000; W. J. Gallagher, ex-convict and go-between in jury bribing, $2000; Chris Miller, J. W. Brown and C. W. Voorhees, jurors, $200 each.

Overdue Steamer Arrives

Halifax, July 21.—After drifting helplessly about the mid-Atlantic for three days, with a broken shaft, steamer Belgenland, Liverpool from Philadelphia, was towed into this port by steamer Scholar and her 200 passengers landed without suffering anything more the inconvenience caused by the delay. Her appearance, although disabled, was a great relief to her owners.

Bulgarians and Turks In Conflict

London, July 21.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Daily Telegraph reports that an engagement has taken place at Strumitza, European Turkey, between a force of 300 Bulgarian troops and a body of Turkish irregulars. Twenty-five Turks were killed in the engagement.

It appears that cotton was known in Persia 800 years B. C., says a writer in Leslie's Weekly. It was raised also ages ago in Egypt. The Arabs sold it in the market in ancient times. It was found in India, too, and it was ginned (the seed and fiber separated) by the women. The ginner sat on a low stool before a flat stone. She rolled a long round stone or roller of iron over the flat stone, using her feet to turn the roller. With one hand she put the rough cotton under the stone and with the other she threw the seeds out in front, occasionally using one hand to pull the clean fiber from the roller and throw it in a heap at her side.

The method was very crude, and one woman accomplished but little during a day, but the correct principle was used even then. Cotton was cleaned by frictional contact between two smooth surfaces having no sharp teeth or cutting edges to tear or break the fiber. And this same principle has been applied by Mr. J. E. Cheesman of Cleveland in a most ingenious and effective manner.

THE CHEESMAN COTTON GIN.

His machine is very simple. There are three parts which operate directly on the cotton as it is fed into the machine. There is a long roller which runs close to a stationary blade with blunt edge. Operating in connection with this are strippers, broad dull blades which come nearly in contact with the roller and the fixed blade. As the cotton is fed automatically into the machine it is caught up by the roller, to which it adheres, while the movable blade removes the seed. The cotton, free from all seeds and trash, comes away in a broad sheet like newspapers from a press.

On one side of the machine the seeds, cleaned entirely from fiber, fall into a long trough, while on the other side the machine works with the rapidity of a little engine, engaging but two horsepower and doing its work gently. By the use of a series of blunt blades called the strippers, which have an elliptical motion, the new invention gins cotton smoothly without injuring the fiber. Neither does it break the seeds, which are very valuable commercially for the oil.

A Decimal Chronograph.

A new form of chronograph which is essentially out of the ordinary is described in the Revue Chronometrique. The hour circle is numbered from 1 to 24, and the hour hand passes over it in one day (mean solar). The minute hand marks the minutes centesimally on a circle divided into a hundred equal parts. To facilitate the reading of time according to the usual form the hour hand carries a little indicator behind it which marks the ordinary duodecimal hour corresponding to the hours included between 12 and 24—that is to say, to the hour of the afternoon and evening. The sexagesimal minutes are valued approximately at the point of the hour hand, the odd hours corresponding to half the preceding even hour. The fractions less than thirty minutes are estimated by inspection.

The Value of a Liner.

An adequate idea of the high value of a modern Atlantic liner may be gathered from the fact that the insurance of the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II., now in course of construction, is $1,591,150. This represents only the launching value of the bare hull. A further insurance sum of $3,549,480 is required to cover the ship for the first trial trip, while the company requires a total sum underwritten on completion of the vessel of $6,175,000. The risk of launching, river work and trials is to be covered by the policies.

New Bears.

The national zoo at Washington is trying to get a specimen of the gray bear of Mount St. Elias, Alaska, which was only discovered to the world a short time ago. This bear inhabits the glaciers and snow covered mountain slopes, and natural selection has made his color of such a blue gray hue that at any distance he is invisible against the ice. A "spectacled" bear, brown over his body and with white rings around his eyes, has also recently been found for the first time on the high slopes of the Andes in Bolivia.

Furnace That Eats Smoke.

At the Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken experiments are being made with a new type of furnace which, according to the claims of its inventor, uses soft coal without producing any smoke whatever. By an ingenious method of producing perfect combustion the furnace actually consumes all the waste matter that under the ordinary method of using coal goes up the chimney and becomes smoke.

MISSION TO ROME ENDS

Pope Receives Taft In Farewell Audience

AMERICA'S GOOD EXAMPLE

In Her Methods of Treating Church Matters—Confident That Vexatious Question Will Be Satisfactorily Solved—Taft Leaves For Naples

Rome, July 22.—The pope received Governor Taft and the members of his party in farewell audience at noon yesterday. Judge Taft and Judge Smith wore evening dress; Major Porter was in full uniform, and Bishop O'Gorman wore ecclesiastical robes. They were received at the great door of the Vatican by the Swiss guards, who rendered military honors. At the foot of the state staircase the Americans were met by Monsignor Bisleti, master of the ceremonies, who was accompanied by several other dignitaries of the papal court. At the door of the pontifical apartments the noble guards and gendarmes rendered the customary honors, after which Governor Taft and his companions were ushered into the private library. As the door was opened the pope went half way to meet them and greeted Governor Taft with great cordiality. He commenced the interview by saying he was most satisfied and happy at the results obtained and was confident that the negotiations would be the starting point of a complete and satisfactory solution of the question under discussion. He added that the apostolic delegate soon to be appointed would be instructed most strictly and precisely regarding carrying out the ideas determined upon by the United States and the Vatican, saying: "I will see that orders be given him as to his work, over which I will watch personally."

Turning the conversation, the pope expressed the highest esteem for American methods of treating church matters. In fact he had more than once pointed to the United States as setting an example well worth copying.

Governor Taft thanked the pope for the promptness and courtesy shown during his visit and promised co-operation with the apostolic delegates in executing the business on the lines agreed upon at Rome. He expressed regret at the fact that the negotiations had been made the occasion for the circulation of false and even calumnious rumors in various papers and by some telegraphic agencies, which had given rise to unfavorable comments upon the Vatican. The pope also protested against such false reports, but he philosophically declared that by this time he was accustomed to that kind of misrepresentation.

The pontiff then rose and walked with the Americans to the opposite side of the room and showed them the mosaic which he is sending to President Roosevelt in return for the president's present of a box containing his (Mr. Roosevelt's) literary works.

The mosaic is a copy of Corridi's well known picture of Pope Leo sitting on the terrace of the Vatican gardens surveying Rome. It was made in the Vatican workshops.

The pope then gave Bishop O'Gorman an autograph letter to President Roosevelt.

Members of Governor Taft's party asked the pope to bless several boxes of rosaries and other religious mementos, which the pope did most willingly, adding that his benediction was extended to all their religious and friends.

After 40 minutes' audience the pope saw the Americans to the door of the library.

Governor Taft and his companions then called on the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Rampolla, with whom they exchanged somewhat similar courtesies.

Later, Governor Taft, accompanied by Judge Smith and Captain Strother, left Rome for Naples.

Mayor's Life Threatened

Kenosha, Wis., July 22.—Mayor Charles P. Fennig, the newly elected Republican mayor of this city, has received a number of letters demanding that he vacate the office of mayor or prepare to die. The letters state that the death of the mayor has been planned and that a man has been selected to kill him. Detectives will make an investigation.

THE WARE MURDER

Long Continued Case Has Reached a Most Interesting Stage

Ellsworth, Me., July 22.—Interest in the trial of William A. Treworgy, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Sarah A. Ware four years ago, is intensified because of the evidence which was developed by the defense yesterday. The defense put on witnesses to show that it would have been impossible for Treworgy to have driven a team with Sarah Ware's body into the Nicholson pasture, where Joseph Fogg claims he helped the accused man carry it.

In the afternoon the most interesting witness of the trial was put on the stand. This witness was Mrs. Elmira Miles, with whom Sarah Ware had lived for many years. After telling about Sarah Ware's disappearance Mrs. Miles told of a mysterious man who had called at her house before the body was found and who claimed to be a detective. She saw this man go into the Nicholson pasture, where the body was later discovered. She said that Treworgy's relations with Sarah Ware had always been friendly.

Selectman Hall also testified relating to Joseph Fogg's retraction of the story he had told which implicated Treworgy.

Francis Ginn of Rockport testified that Joe Fogg came into his store one day. Witness said: "What is the use, Joe, of trying to make people believe that you drove down into that pasture with Sarah Ware's body when you know a wagon never was in that field?"

Witness testified that Joe replied: "I shall tell the story I can get the most money out of."

Fishermen Had Great Luck

Boston, July 22.—Though the mackerel season is well on few dealers or employes on T wharf expected to see such a large fleet of seiners, as well as ground fish, halibut and swordfish schooners, as came in yesterday. During the past week a fleet of 14 seining schooners reached the pier from Georges with a total of 188,240 fresh and 945 barrels of salt mackerel, or double the receipts for the previous week. Yet yesterday came near equalling the record for the week when a fleet of 11 seiners arrived with a total of 165,000 fresh and 578 barrels of salt mackerel. This is claimed to be the record for years in a single day.

Anti-Imperialists Still Active

Boston, July 22.—A number of the anti-imperialists of this city left last night for Bolton's Landing, Lake George, to join other leaders of this movement at a meeting of the special committee appointed last spring to investigate affairs in the Philippines and secure the publicity of the facts. The object of the meeting is to canvass the investigation that has been made and discuss the present situation. These leaders say that they are determined to press the issue with more vigor than ever. It is possible that at the conclusion of the meeting a statement of facts developed will be sent to President Roosevelt.

Teamsters Vote to Strike

Fall River, Mass., July 22.—At a meeting of the Master Teamsters' association last night it was unanimously voted to strike tomorrow if the prices demanded of contractors are not granted. The city employes have already been given an increase of 50 cents, and the superintendent of streets has promised to make further advances if others do so. A number of contractors are already paying the men $5 a day for double teams and $3.50 for single teams. It is expected that everything will be settled satisfactorily.

Want Improved Conditions

Boston, July 22.—The conductors and motormen in the employ of the Old Colony Street Railway company, now a part of the Massachusetts Electric companies, have sent a petition to the officials of that company for increased wages, a change in the day's labor from 12 to 10 hours, and other changes relating to pay day and extra hours. The company has refused to grant an increase in wages, but is considering the other propositions.

Bodies Sent to Relatives

Portsmouth, N. H., July 22.—The bodies of all who met their death in the drowning accident off the Isles of Shoals last Thursday afternoon have now been removed from this city, the bodies of W. A. Alward, Bessie Chase and Isabelle Ziolkouska being sent to their homes yesterday. In each instance, as has been the case with the other bodies, a beautiful floral offering accompanied the body.

A Supposed Team Thief

Nashua, N. H., July 22.—Arthur Stone was arrested here yesterday while attempting to sell to a local liveryman a team said to belong to Liveryman Benson of Fitchburg, Mass. A person who was in the stable at the time thought he recognized the outfit and upon communicating with Benson by telephone the latter informed him that the team had been stolen. Stone was taken to Fitchburg.

YOHE JEWELS MISSING

Ex-Captain Strong Charged With Larceny of $250,000 Worth

New York, July 22.—A formal complaint of grand larceny was made against former Captain Putnam B. Strong last evening, by May Yohe, former wife of Lord Francis Hope, who visited police headquarters, accompanied by her mother and her lawyer, and there charged Strong, who recently disappeared from his home at Hastings, with the theft of jewels which she values at $250,000. Her complaint was entertained and a general alarm was sent out for the arrest of Strong.

Miss Yohe's counsel said that the safes in the Knickerbocker Safe Deposit company, where Miss Yohe had kept her jewels, were opened yesterday and it was found that her jewels, valued at $250,000, had been removed, nothing of value being left in the safe except a few trifling trinkets. He also explained that pawn tickets calling for $100,000 worth of the missing gems had been recovered.

Indignation got the better of affection with May Yohe when reports were brought to her that Captain Strong had been enjoying himself in the Tenderloin.

"I gave up all for him when his father went bankrupt," said Miss Yohe, with just the suspicion of moisture in her eyes. "I loved him dearly and I thought he loved me. For two years I have supported him. Not a penny has he paid to maintain this establishment and the retinue of servants that we keep.

"And now, as I think over what he has done—deserted me, taken my jewels, left me without anything in the world—if he should come walking up the path I would forgive him. I would say: 'Well, Putty, we'll have to begin all over again. I will go to work for you.'"

Fitz and Jeff In Good Trim

San Francisco, July 22.—A brisk run through Golden Gate park to the Ocean Beach and a spirited plunge and rubdown at the training quarters filled in a busy morning for Fitzsimmons yesterday. He ran 11 miles with his trainers, tiring them all, and showing himself to be in splendid condition. He said: "I never felt better and stronger than now and I shall win the fight." Jeffries spent a day practically in idleness, exercising just enough to hold his own. "I will win the fight before it has run its length," said he to press representatives. Jeffries remains the favorite at 10 to 4½.

Honeymoon Ends In Murder

Halifax, July 22.—George W. Cook, aged 45, a retired British soldier, is under arrest for murdering his wife, Lydia A. Cook, whom he married six weeks ago, by cutting her throat with a razor last night. After he committed the deed he went to sleep in the bed from which the body of his wife had fallen after being nearly decapitated, and which was covered with the blood of his victim. When asked why he killed his wife, Cook said: "I loved her, and I am willing to die for her." Mrs. Cook was 42 years old.

Pawtucket, R. I., July 22.—A mortgage for $2,000,000 was filed with the city clerk yesterday by the Pawtucket Gas company in favor of the Slater Trust company to provide for the issuance of 1750 $1000 bonds and 500 $500 bonds, payable in 30 years at the rate of 4 percent annually.

EXCURSION STEAMER SUNK.

Struck by Tug in River Elbe near Hamburg—Over Fifty Drowned.

Hamburg, July 22.—The steamship Primus, with 185 passengers on board, was sunk by the tug Hansa on the River Elbe yesterday. So far as ascertained between 50 and 60 persons were drowned.

The Primus was an excursion steamer from Buxtehude. Among the passengers were the members of the Elibeck Male Choral society. At the time of the accident the Primus was crossing the river channel near Blankenese. According to witnesses aboard the Hansa, the movement was made too precipitately. The Primus struck the tug's engine-room, and the Hansa endeavored to push her ashore, but the tug grounded soon and the ships parted. The Primus then sank.

The disaster caused deep gloom here. Many children lost both their parents. Captain Petersen of the Primus swam ashore and gave himself up to the police. Captain Sachs of the Hansa also surrendered. The Primus was the oldest boat on the Elbe. She was built in England in 1844, and had never before met with accident.

The terrible panic that occurred on the Primus when the Hansa struck her rendered the efforts to save her passengers almost useless. The steamer Delphin came up immediately and succeeded in saving 60 of those on board the sinking steamer, while a number of other boats assisted in the work of rescue.

Some of the survivors furnish graphic descriptions of the awful suddenness of the disaster. According to their story, the band was playing and many couples were dancing on deck when the crash of the collision came. The vessel gave a great list, her deck taking such an angle that it was impossible for the passengers to keep their feet. Those below scrambled up the companion ways, but most of the persons in the saloon were drowned. Men fought for their own safety regardless of others.

In the midst of the confusion the boilers exploded, adding to the horror of the scene, and many persons are said to have been injured by flying splinters of metal. More of the Primus' passengers would have been saved by the ropes thrown from the Hansa had it not been that before those who siezed the ropes could be hauled on board they were pulled off from the lines they had grasped by other persons struggling in the water and all were drowned in the hideous confusion.

Enormous crowds poured out from Hamburg to the scene of the collision, and the shore was thronged with thousands of friends and relatives of those aboard the sunken steamer who had come in heartrending anxiety to learn the fate of their friends who were among the excursionists. Many sad scenes were witnessed as the bodies of those lost were washed upon the beach or brought ashore by divers.

Divers have already recovered 45 bodies, but as yet it is impossible to verify the death list. An attempt will immediately be made to float the vessel, and when this is done it is believed a number more bodies will be found. A large number of survivors were injured, though not seriously.

A Creditable Victory

New York, July 22.—For the first time this season August Belmont's crack sloop yacht Mineola was beaten by J. R. Maxwell's Yankee. Harry Maxwell, the owner's youngest son, sailed the Yankee against Captain Barr, who had the Mineola's wheel. The owners were not on board their yachts. On every point of sailing except the reach the Yankee outsailed her rival and finally defeated her by 10 minutes, 44 seconds.

Groesbeck Asked to Explain

Washington, July 22.—By direction of the secretary of war, General Corbin has written to Colonel Groesbeck asking him for an explanation of the interview published yesterday regarding the court martial of Major Waller. Colonel Groesbeck was judge advocate of the court and the opinion expressed at the war department is that an officer should not talk about such matters.

A Landowners' Combine

Dublin, July 22.—Irish landowners have formed a combination with a capital of $500,000 to protect themselves against the United Irish league. The prospectus of the combination makes complaint that the government has failed to afford the landowners adequate assistance and says that, therefore, united effort on their part is necessary.

Good Afternoon.

If the Tax Collector is voted $700 additional for advertising, printing and stationery, etc., his appropriation will be larger than given any of his predecessors. With the exception of last year, the expenditures under this item have been less than $800. Last year Collector Baker cleaned up many delinquent accounts and his expenses were $1,009.45. If Collector Cleaves gets $700 more his total will be $1,300.00.

Last year, when the Committee on Finance added that clause to the street orders, which provided that the order should not be operative until the abutters had signed a release to the city from all damage, Councilman Hultman, who was a member of that committee claimed that the adding of that clause was one of his ideas and that his motion was adopted without debate. Now President Alden, who was chairman of last year's Finance Committee, publicly states to this year's City Council, that clause was one of his own pet schemes. The question now is, whose pet scheme was it? Hultman's or Alden's? At the time the clause was adopted, it was whispered around the corners that the one idea of it was to defeat the operation of the order, as it was well understood that it would be impossible to get all abutters to sign a release. If that was the case it certainly accomplished its object up to the present time.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A littered street is as unsightly and as inexcusable as a littered room—more so, even, for in the exigencies of housekeeping there are occasions when disorder is inevitable for the time being. But habitual disorder is taken as the sign of a slattern, whether in the house or in the street, betokens not only carelessness, but the lack of desire for order.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Whatever may be said or thought of the writings of Mary McLane, the fact must be admitted that as an advertiser she is one of the cleverest. Her personality, her conversation, her book, her theories of life, are at the present time the theme of converse and of written criticism all over the land. She is distinctly the sensation of the year, and her writings must be selling strongly, and will sell even more strongly in the near future. It may be all right to speak of this young woman as a freak, an oddity, a personage that will lead a brief and shooting star existence and then be gone forever. But that fact remains that for the time the girl from Butte has made herself the talk of the day and has compelled the editors and the people generally to recognize her.—Brockton Enterprise.

Auto Responsible.

A Vineyard Haven dispatch of Monday says: Ariel B. Scott, aged 77 years, died at his residence at West Tisbury Saturday night from injuries sustained by being thrown from his team on the afternoon of the 18th, when the horse became frightened by an automobile owned by Edward A. Mulligan of Wollaston, Mass., a summer resident of Cottage City.

CITY COUNCIL.

Chubbuck and Grove Street Orders Amended.

Ice Privileges Bob Up Again.

The Police Appropriation Increased $290.

Councilmen Adams, Fallon, Faxon, Nickerson and Thompson were absent at Monday nights meeting of the City Council.

ICE PRIVILEGES.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from W. T. Shea relative to leasing the water reservoir as an ice pond. Mr. Shea made two propositions. The first was to pay $300 a year for a five-year lease. The second to pay $400 a year for five years if the Council would give an option for a second five years. He would agree to embody in the lease that the pond should not be sub-let or conveyed to any other person. If required he could give a bond to that effect.

Councilman Bass moved to refer to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Councilman Hughes offered as an amendment that it be referred to a special committee of five of whom the President should be one.

The amendment was declared carried but the vote was doubted, and verification showed a preponderance against.

The communication was then referred to the Committee on Public Buildings.

STREET RAILWAYS.

The Mayor in a communication spoke of complaints in relation to the use of the street car tracks and suggested that the Council take advantage of Section 40-47 of the street railway law and impose regulations. To Committee on Streets.

The City Solicitor sent a communication giving his opinion that the order that the street railway discontinue use of whistle on cars, in its present form was objectionable, but that relief may be obtained under section 40-47 of the street railway law. To Committee on Streets.

PETITIONS.

The Telephone Co. petitioned for a location of one pole on Copeland street. To Committee on Streets.

J. E. Glover petitioned for license for an additional bowling alley at the Casino, Houghs Neck. Laid on the table until later when the license was granted.

LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported ought not to pass on petition of Albert Kaplan for license to hold sacred concerts Sundays at Houghs Neck. Accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported favorable on petitions for several minor licenses which were adopted.

CHUBBUCK STREET.

The joint committee on Finance and Streets reported favorable on the order that the Commissioner proceed to rebuild Chubbuck street notwithstanding the last clause which was that releases for damages should first be given to the city, which is hereby repealed.

A motion to suspend the rules was made, but as Councilman Nichols objected it was withdrawn.

The same committee reported favorable on the Grove street order which had been delayed by the same clause as in the Chubbuck street order.

Councilman Newcomb moved to suspend the rules.

Councilman Nichols objected and the motion was lost by a vote of ten in favor and five against.

Councilman Freeman raised a point of order that the order did not require three readings.

The chair ruled that it did.

An appeal was taken from the chair and the chair was sustained by a vote of eleven in favor to three against.

MORE THAN DOUBLED.

The Committee on Finance reported an order for $700 additional for advertising and printing for the Tax Collector's Department. Took one reading.

WATERING TROUGH.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on the order for $350 for a watering trough in Ward Three. Passed.

EATON STREET.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Aug. 18 on accepting Eaton street.

EDISON STREET.

A public hearing was held on accepting Edison street.

James P. Clare and Thomas B. Pollard favored. When the matter was before the Council last year it was opposed through a misunderstanding. The street would never be used except for residential purposes, and was plenty wide enough. Every lot with one exception was built upon. At the present time the street was badly washed.

Hearing closed.

CHUBBUCK STREET.

Councilman Freeman moved to reconsider the vote on suspending the rules on the Chubbuck street order. Last year this order was passed with a provision that it should not be operative until the abutters had signed off. The Commissioner now desires work for his teams and men, and work could be undertaken at once.

Councilman Nichols raised a point that under Rule 33 the motion was out of order.

The Chair ruled it in order.

Councilman Elcock was called to the chair.

President Alden took the floor and stated that he hoped the order would pass. The Commissioner deems it best to employ his men and teams. This order will free the order passed last year for widening the streets. This matter of getting abutters to sign off was a pet scheme of his own. It now seemed ill advised as the City Solicitor says this clause will not stand the law, as the Council has passed an order for it. Those who refuse to sign are not opposed to the award made, but they want to see how the street is left before signing.

Councilman Whiton. There are plenty of places to keep teams busy besides Chubbuck street. He did not blame people for not signing a release. He was in favor of widening the street. He asked if it could not be taken from east side.

Commissioner Knowlton replied that it could not as the order had been passed on certain plans.

Councilman Nichols was personally in favor of the widening but there were others than the Raycrofts who objected. Certain members not present had stated to him they desired to be present when order came up.

Councilman Alden. If the Council does not revoke that clause these parties still have a right to appeal to the courts. The award of damages was large in some cases, an award of eight cents per foot having been made on property assessed but one cent a foot.

Councilman Polk was opposed to suspending the rules on trivial matters, but if it was for the best interest of the city he should vote for it.

Mayor Bryant said last year this restriction was put on two orders. The opinion of the City Solicitor is that the street having been laid out the clause was not operative. He did not blame people for not signing off until they saw how the street would look. The executive department can go ahead now, but wish the clause removed to avoid criticism. If it is to be built it should be done now rather than thirty days hence when the season will be too far advanced. The money has been borrowed and he would urge that the order be passed.

Councilman Bass understood this order for $6,000 would pay all damages. It was a fact that the Raycrofts owned one third of street and claim if award is not accepted will be large.

Councilman Whiton. It is not a question of award, they are satisfied with that. It is a question of sentiment.

Councilman Newcomb. One of the abutters was in South Carolina and could not be reached. The others are Dunham, Pattee and Raycroft. Mr. Pattee is satisfied with award but will not sign on principle. Dunham says he is satisfied with his award. Miss Raycroft is satisfied with the award, but objects to having the lines changed for old times sake.

The rules were suspended and the order passed by the following vote:

YEAS,—Diack, Elcock, Freeman, Hadlock, Hughes, Langelier, Meyer, Newcomb, Nichols, Piper, Polk, Smith, Stewart, Whiton—14.

NAYS—Bass.

Absent,—Adams, Fallon, Faxon, Gassett, Nickerson, Thompson—6.

Not Voting—President Alden.

GROVE STREET.

Councilman Freeman moved the rules be suspended on the Grove street order.

Councilman Bass opposed. It was not right to dispose of these matters in this way.

Councilman Elcock hoped order would be passed. The Commissioner can now do this work to advantage. All have signed off except one who lives in New Hampshire and has no interest in Quincy.

The rules were suspended and the order passed.

NEW SCHOOL LOT.

Upon motion of Councilman Langelier the report on the Atlantic schoolhouse lot was taken from the table and referred to the Committee on Finance.

MORE FOR POLICE.

Councilman Elcock offered an order for $290 for extra police at Houghs

ANOTHER FREAK.

Not Cat O'Nine Tails, but the Hades.

One of the Manchester Defenders.

May Soil Against Flashlight in Quincy Cup Races.

Late yesterday morning, says the Boston Advertiser, the Hades, the second Quincy cup defender of the Manchester Yacht Club, was launched at White's yard, Manchester, and today she takes her first sail over the club course. The boat slid serenely into the water from the ways, watched by many. It has been generally understood all along that this cup defender would bear the name Cat o'Nine Tails, but the committee which has her christening in charge, after struggling between Cat o'Nine Tails and Hades, has at last decided upon Hades as the proper name for a boat capable of raising itself on the water.

The Hades is distinctively a freak among freaks, and is even more outlandish in her design than the Flashlight, the Quincy cup challenger. Of the Crowninshield design, she is a flat scow, with her two hulls on either side, which float her. They bulge down tremendously at their centers, this being necessary to get the proper displacement.

The syndicate which has built the Hades comprises E. A. Boardman, T. H. McKee, Matthew Bartlett, J. A. Burnham, Jr., R. D. Boardman, F. L. Ames, George Lee, who with designer Crowinshield, have watched the building of the bost with deep scrutiny.

The rigging of the Hades is completed, and yesterday afternoon the mast was stepped in. Members of the syndicate were present at the launching, and today she will take her first sail in Manchester waters. The active crew of the boat will be Richard Boardman, helmsman; S. P. Bremer, Edward Boardman, T. H NcKee, George Lee and Matthew Bartlett.

The Globe adds: The Hades is slightly larger than her rival, the Outlook, being 55 feet on the deckline, 21 feet waterline, of 17 feet beam, and drawing 14 inches. Her two hulls are each five feet wide and she has an eight-foot centerboard. She carries hollow spars, her mainmast being 52 feet and 2 inches above deck, her mainboom 48 feet 6 inches, and her jibboom 24 feet. Her mainsail will spread 1600 square feet of canvas, jib 400 feet and spinnaker 1500 feet.

She is stiffened by two trusses of wire rope, one on either side, which rise two feet six inches above the deck. Her planking is of one-quarter inch spruce, the deck being of two thicknesses of the same, laid diagonally and covered with canvas to make her water-tight.

The Herald adds: On general principles, being of the catamaran type, the Hades should sail very fast and it will be out of the usual performance of such boats if she does not. As under the rules no America's cup defender nor challenger would be built double hulled, it follows, no matter what the performance of the Hades, it will avail nothing so far as furnishing data of the best type of boat to sail for the America's cup. On the other hand, the scow type of boat is entitled to start in Quincy's cup races, and such questions of design on an overall length of 55 feet on less than 21 feet waterline, with 17 feet beam, draw forth answers obtained from practical results which are of immense value to students of yacht naval architecture the world over. Well may the type be given serious consideration when boats carrying 1800 feet of sail on 21 feet waterline can reach as fast as the crack 70-footers. Such performances are remarkable, and, unless all signs fail, all of the three boats which are to take part either in the trial or actual races for the Quincy challenge cups will attain this speed.

DIED.

Struck by Electric.

Again Monday afternoon about 5.40 an electric car struck a team which was entering Washington street from Foster street and going toward Quincy Point. It was one of the grain teams of F. H. Crane & Sons and had got well onto the track, as the front wheel was struck. The driver nearly succeeded in reining the horse back and he was pushed against a hydrant. No one was hurt and the damage was not great, but many got a scare.

The car before nearly struck an ice team of the Crystal Spring Co.

Illumination Meeting.

A meeting of the Houghs Neck Improvement association was held Monday evening to discuss the holding of an illumination this year. The meeting was quite largely attended and the general sentiment was that an illumination should be held. The date, however, was not fixed as the whole matter was referred to the meeting to be held tonight. At this meeting steps will be taken to incorporate the association. Officers will be elected, the date for the illumination fixed upon and various committees will be appointed.

Atlantics Won.

The Atlantics defeated the Vernons of Dorchester Saturday on the Ward Six playgrounds by a score of 19 to 14. The Vernons secured a lead of seven runs in the first inning but the Atlantics by grand uphill work succeeded in cutting down the lead and finally winning out. The features of the game were the playing of J. O'Connell at shortstop, and the batting of J. Brennan of the Atlantic team.

A Correction.

Timothy Sullivan writes that his son Joseph was not injured last week by a fall from a cherry tree, as reported; further, that it was another boy, and that he was not injured under the circumstances as related. The Ledger is pleased to set the boy right in the eyes of the public.

A Miraculous Feat.

"It seemed that nothing short of a miracle could save my little daughter from an untimely death," says City Marshall A. H. Malcolm, of Cherokee, Kan. "When two years old she was taken with stomach and bowel trouble and despite the efforts of the best physicians we could procure, she grew gradually worse and was pronounced incurable. A friend advised

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Lawn Party at Germantown.

A very successful lawn party and entertainment was given Monday evening at Germantown, in honor of the first anniversary of the G. C. C., Germantown Corps Cadets. The grounds were beautifully illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

The prettily decorated tables were presided over as follows; Miss Amelia Price of Boston, ice cream and cake table; Miss Gertrude Hill, of Boston, candy table; and Miss Margery Adams, also of Boston, lemonade table.

The entertainment consisted of recitations, songs and an original sketch, entitled "A Barding School Escapade," the program being as follows:

"The Children's Hour by Master Frederick Abbott.

A sketch entitled "A Boarding School Escapade," by Misses Amelia Price, Gertrude Hill, Margery Adams, and Ella Mackay.

A song, "I don't love you no more, Nigger," by Masters Benjamin Hodgkinson, Jr., and George Hodgkinson.

"Captain Molly at Mommouth," by Mr. Howard Abbott.

"Our Guide in Genoa," by Miss Amelia Price.

Lately there has come a fresh revelation regarding the moon. This is largely due to Professor William H. Pickering, who has studied the moon more assiduously than any other living astronomer, says Garrett P. Serviss in the New York Journal. The revelation is that despite former belief the moon is not dead.

There is something that lives and grows upon the lunar landscapes. It may be some form of plant life, although Professor Pickering is not prepared to say that it is exactly vegetation. But it resembles vegetation more than anything else, and it covers vast areas that are like prairies in extent.

It has color. We may suppose that it is ablaze with something equivalent to flowers when the hot sun beats upon it. It makes its appearance as the sun rises and flourishes throughout the lunar day, which is fourteen times longer than our day, and when the long night comes on it perishes. But its brief duration is no argument against its possession of life. We have on the earth ephemeral forms of life whose entire span of existence is comprised between sunrise and sunset.

And if there is a kind of vegetation on the moon is it likely that that is the end of the story?

Professor Pickering also finds evidence of the existence of snow on some of the lunar mountains, and he has accumulated much evidence to prove that volcanoes are yet active on the moon.

All these things must cause our satellite to be regarded with fresh interest. Already the wrinkles seem less deep and repulsive. Perhaps Diana has been playing with us and all the while laughing behind her fan.

What a rebuke it would be if the first proof that there really is life in other worlds should come to us, not from distant Mars or gleaming Venus, but from the nearby, long despised moon, which we have so discourteously turned our backs upon?

THE PAYMENT OF A DEBT

[Original.]

A party of noblemen were amusing themselves shooting near Dijon, France. After a shot by the Marquis of Tours, aimed at something seen indistinctly in a thicket, a human cry was heard. The party rushed to the point whence it proceeded and found a young girl of sixteen lying on the ground bleeding from a bullet wound in her side. From the opposite direction a man came hurrying, and when he saw what had happened he took the girl up in his arms and, shaking his fist at the huntsmen, cursed them for what had been done.

"Is it thus that you overrun our peaceful fields, you nobles who never toil, but feed on what we common people produce? And, not content with wasting the fruits of our toil, you ruthlessly shoot our children without taking the trouble to discover that they are not birds. Wait, messieurs! The day will come when we will crush you under our heels!"

"It was an accident," replied the marquis. "Here; take this," throwing him a golden louis. "Were it not for your threats I would make it ten times as much. Come, messieurs. Let us go on."

The party proceeded on their way, but had not gone a dozen yards before the coin was sent spinning past the ear of the marquis. One gentleman, a young fellow of twenty, remained behind. Kneeling beside the girl, he stanched the blood with his cambric handkerchief, then said to her father:

"Let us carry her to her home. I am a student in the Paris School of Medicine. I will see what I can do for her."

Henri Duriac did not leave the home of Antoine Garnier until the daughter, Lizette, was out of danger. Indeed, he alone saved her life. The country doctors of that day knew nothing of surgery and could not have carried safely through such a dangerous case. Three weeks had elapsed when the young doctor said to Garnier:

"The crisis has passed. Any physician can now attend to the dressing of the wound."

"Doctor," replied the father, "why have you taken this trouble? You are a noble."

"Yes, but I am a man."

"You have given me the life of my daughter. Some day I may repay you."

"I do not need money, and I trust that I may never need your assistance," replied the young surgeon.

Eighteen years later came the reign of terror. Henri Duriac, now Count Duriac, was about to be arrested, but succeeded in escaping across the border. This was in the beginning, before the revolutionists had become so drunken with blood that they sacrificed women and children. Count Duriac had been married, and his wife and her daughter, Louise, were about to follow him when they received a warning not to attempt to do so.

Mme. Duriac, though beloved by all the province in which she lived, was at last arrested and with her daughter taken to the conciergerie in Paris.

One day they were led out to be tried. For what? For being of noble birth. A man sat behind a rude table, ready to act as judge and jury to send prisoners to the guillotine. Mme. Duriac and Louise sat waiting their turn, watching the people who were pronounced "traitors to France" marched away to die. A portly man, who showed by his dress and bearing that he was an aristocrat, stood before this self constituted tribunal.

"Your name?" asked the judge.

"I am the Marquis of Tours."

The judge flushed.

"Do you remember, marquis, hunting for birds and shooting a maiden?"

The marquis paled, but said nothing.

"Traitor to France!" said the judge. "Take him away!"

In half an hour the marquis' head rolled into the basket.

"Next!"

"These," said a gendarme, "are the Countess Duriac and her daughter."

The judge started. "Madame," he said, "you are accused of being a traitor to France. What is your defense?"

"I make no defense. Defense would be useless."

"H'm!" said the judge. "Take these women to the little jail in Rue St. Jacques and bring them here tomorrow for sentence. The executioner is too busy today to attend to them."

That night a muffled figure appeared before the little jail in Rue St. Jacques and presented an order for Mme. and Louise Duriac. Throwing a mantle over each to conceal her features and especially her attire of a gentlewoman, he led them through some of the narrowest streets in Paris. Stopping suddenly beside a carriage and opening the door, he bade them enter. Not doubting for a moment that they were going to the guillotine, they obeyed, and their conductor mounted the box beside the coachman, and they were driven beyond the barrier. Stopping now and again for fresh horses, they traveled until at last they heard the plashing of waves. Then they were directed to alight and were put into a boat.

"Take this letter to Count Duriac, madame," said their conductor, "and tell him that the man who gave it to you may soon be executed as a traitor to France."

The prisoners were rowed to an English vessel standing off the coast and in an hour were sailing for England. Once on board Mme. Duriac opened the letter to her husband and read:

Count—Eighteen years ago a fiend shot my daughter, and a noble saved her for me. I have sent the fiend to the guillotine, and I send the noble two lives for the one he gave me.

BEARDS AND GLASSES.

Two Ornaments That Are Rarely Found Upon Hotel Waiters.

"Ever see a waiter wearing glasses?" demanded the inquisitor.

No one could remember, although just why a waiter should not be seen with glasses as well as any other man was not apparent.

"It's just like the wearing of beards," went on the inquisitor. "The proprietors of our important hotels, restaurants and cafes will not permit either beards or glasses to be worn by their waiters. It is possible that in some old fashioned family or commercial hotel the servitors may be found with their noses straddled by optical helps, but you won't find 'em along Broadway.

"Now, this is a fact worthy of note because in every other calling in life the number of persons wearing glasses is on the increase, and even in our schools a considerable percentage of very small children will be found wearing glasses, and while, as I say, hotel, restaurant and cafe proprietors are opposed to the glasses, still I have seldom found a waiter whose eyes indicated that he was in the slightest need of them.

"You may argue that restaurant waiters are generally young men. Grant you that instantly, but all the same thousands of men of similar age have to wear them in almost every other occupation.

"The majority of those servitors commence in boyhood, and the demand of their vocation causes no strain on the eyesight. Consequently that may account in a measure for the absence of any necessity for the use of specs. Moreover, the steam from hot viands would render them useless probably."—New York Telegram.

A PLACE FOR M'LAURIN

A Subject For Consideration by the President

PROFFERED APPOINTMENT

To Vacancy on Bench of Court of Claims Had Been Accepted by the Senator, but Newspapar Criticism Proved Too Severe For Him

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 22.—President Roosevelt is in receipt of a letter from Senator John I. McLaurin of South Carolina, declining the proffered appointment to the vacancy on the bench of the United States court of claims. The president, it can be said, much regrets Senator McLaurin's decision, as he believes that McLaurin's senatorial experience and his career as attorney general of South Carolina would have rendered him a particularly good addition to the court of claims.

The president now is uncertain what he will do about Senator McLaurin. It is understood that he is anxious to appoint him to some position in recognition of what the president regards as his services to the country and his demonstrated ability in public life.

Senator McLaurin's letter is couched in the most positive terms, and evidently was based in particular upon a newspaper article which accompanied the letter. The article stated that the senator had sold himself for the prospect of getting such an office as that offered to him. It can be said, however, that the president regarded such a type of accusation as beneath notice, and sincerely regrets that Senator McLaurin should have deemed it necessary to pay any attention to it.

Senator McLaurin evidently has changed his mind about accepting the proffered appointment since he was in Oyster Bay on July 11. At that time he indicated his readiness to accept the vacancy of the court of claims, and the only question then was when he should resign from the senate.

Representative Hepburn of Iowa called upon the president last night in respect to some appointments in which he is particularly interested. No decision regarding them has been reached.

Russell Sage Has a Tumble

New York, July 22.—Russell Sage left his office to go to the Western Union building yesterday and a young man accompanied him to see that he got safely on a car. The young man signalled a car to stop. Mr. Sage was assisted on the step by his companion. Believing the financier to be safe, the young man turned away just as the car started with a jerk. Mr. Sage fell from the step, his clothing being so caught that he was dragged along 15 feet before the car stopped. His clothing was somewhat torn. He said he was not hurt and he proceeded to the Western Union building, where he has an apartment.

Forty Thousand Idle

New York, July 22.—The 25,000 garment workers who struck Sunday for higher wages and shorter hours were joined yesterday by about 15,000 others, who asked that 56 hours be considered a week's work. As this is the dull season in the trade it is expected that it will be some days before the various interests get together. About nine different unions are engaged in the strike.

Mississippi Flood Subsiding

Keokuk, Ia., July 22.—The height of the flood in the Mississippi river was reached yesterday south of here. The river fell an inch and a half at Keokuk and the fall will reach southern points today. Farmers report a much greater loss than before, but estimates approximating $6,000,000 damage over 75 miles of river frontage will not be changed greatly.

Answered Bogus Distress Signal

La Folette, Tenn., July 22.—William Delap was shot and afterward robbed of $1100 and a gold watch by highwaymen while riding on the outskirts of this city late last night. Hearing the Odd Fellows' distress signal he responded to it, when three men accosted him. Delap will recover.

Phelan's Big Contribution

London, July 22.—Ex-Mayor Phelan of San Francisco has sent John Redmond $2500 as a contribution to the Irish Nationalist fund, saying he is convinced that the evictions on the De-Freyne estates were designed to crush the party and destroy the political hope of the Irish people.

Irish Like America

London, July 22.—The final summary of the Irish census returns has been presented to parliament. It shows that during a half century over 3,000,000 persons have emigrated from Ireland, and that 80 percent of these emigrants have gone to the United States.

HAYTIAN STRIFE

Appears to Have Reached a More Complicated Stage Than Ever

Cape Haytian, July 22.—The department of Artibonite has proclaimed M. Firman president, and the inhabitants of the arrondissement of St. Michel and the commune of Marmelade have joined with those of Artibonite with the view of marching on Cape Haytian.

General Jumeau, who is supporting M. Firmin, has received at Gonaives by the steamer Valencia, from New York, 200 tons of coal and war munitions for the cruiser Crete a Pierrot.

The situation here is alarming. The general opinion is that General Jumeau intends marching on Port au Prince and that he will sent the Crete a Pierrot there with troops.

Port au Prince, July 22.—General Jumeau, who supports the candidacy for the presidency of M. Firmin, is on his way to the capital, and General Salnave, with a considerable force, has started for Cape Haytian in order to attack General Nord, the war minister.

The provisional government here is divided into four parts—one Firminist and three anti-Firminist groups—and is without any authority. The population is also divided and it is generally believed that M. Firmin will not meet with any serious resistance in his advance on the capital.

Murder at a Circus

Buffalo, July 22.—Lee Bruce, a teamster employed by Forepaugh & Sells Bros., was shot and killed yesterday just as the afternoon crowd was leaving the circus tent by Denis Bowen, a watchman. It is said that the shot was intended for J. K. Shumate, superintendent of horses, who had reprimanded Bowen a short time before. Detectives seized Bowen, but he was torn away from them by the angry circus men. One of the crowd tied a rope around Bowen's neck. The detectives were reinforced by policemen and they got Bowen away from the crowd, but not until he had been terribly beaten.

Alleged Theft of Nearly $250,000

Greensburg, Pa., July 22.—The climax in the alleged robbery of nearly $250,000 in money and bonds from Jacob Byers was reached here last evening when William S. Byers, a leading lawyer and the Democratic nominee for congress, was arrested on charges of larceny made and sworn to by Jacob Byers, the reputed owner of the lost bonds and money, aged and infirm, and who has been unable to rise for several weeks from what is believed to be his deathbed. The bail bond was fixed at the sum of $250,000.

Counting on Willing Aid

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 22.—Nearly all the delegates from District No. 1, United Mine Workers, to the National convention at Indianapolis have returned home. Those interviewed claim to have great faith in their bituminous brethren and believe that they will all respond willingly to the call for assistance for the strikers. At the offices of the big coal companies it is stated that men are applying for work every day, but no promise will be given when there will be work for the applicants.

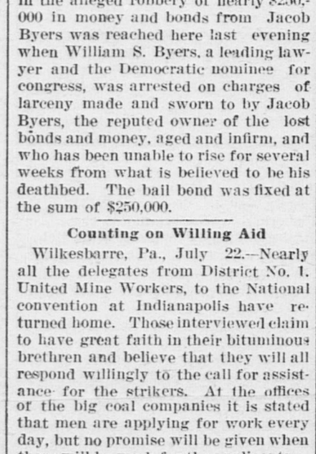

Seems to Be Ill-Fated

St. Petersburg, July 22.—The battleship Retvizan, built in Philadelphia for the Russian government, has arrived here. On her way from Philadelphia five members of her crew were killed by the explosion of a water tube and yesterday two others of the crew were killed by falling to the bottom of the dry dock while painting the battleship's keel.

From Norway to England

Washington, July 22.—The European squadron sailed yesterday from Christiana for Chatham, Eng. The squadron consists of the Chicago, San Francisco and Illinois. The latter ship will go into dry dock at Chatham immediately on arrival, in order that the injuries she sustained when she grounded at Christiana may be repaired.

"IMPOSSIBLE, for you to enjoy the happiness of motherhood," says the doctor. Sometimes he qualifies the statement, and says: "Impossible without an operation." Yet both these "impossibles" have been made possibles by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Many times the hindrances to motherhood are to be found in womanly diseases or weaknesses, which are perfectly and permanently cured by "Favorite Prescription."

This great medicine for women cures irregularity and dries debilitating drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"I wish to add my testimony to hundreds of others as to the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. Ida M. De Ford, of Latona, Hubbard Co., Minn. "Have doctored with a great many physicians—some specialists; have twice been in a hospital for treatment. My case has been regarded as a hopeless one, and they knew not what the trouble was. Heart was bad; stomach all out of order; tired out; severe pains in all parts of the body; sinking spells, and nearly every ailment a woman could have. I took many a bottle of 'patent medicines' without effect. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and ten months afterward I gave birth to a ten-pound boy. All physicians had stated as a fact that I never could bear a child. Both the baby and myself were strong, and I got along splendidly—thanks to your medicine."

The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HARDY SUWAROFF.

Peculiarities of One of Russia's Great Military Commanders.

Suwaroff, Russia's great military commander, was a little man, insignificant in everything but that intangible power of mind and character with which physical strength is never to be compared. He had been sickly in his youth, but became hardy under the stimulus of cold bathing and the benefits of a plain diet. Buckets of cold water were thrown over him in the morning, and his table was served with fare which guests would fain have refused, but dared not lest he should think them effeminate. He despised dress and delighted in drilling his men in shirt sleeves, sometimes with his stockings literally "down at the heel."

But his hardihood of life and action had its effect on the men he commanded. He was often up and about by midnight and would salute the first soldier whom he saw moving with a piercing cockcrow in commendation of his early rising. During the first Polish war he had given orders for an attack at cockcrow, and a spy in the camp carried the news to the enemy. The attack, however, really took place at 9 o'clock in the evening, when the arrangement had been made, for Suwaroff, suspecting treachery, had then turned out his troops by his well known crowing. The enemy, expecting the event in the morning, were entirely unprepared and fell easy victims to his forethought.

"Tomorrow morning," said he to his troops on the evening before the storming of Ismail, "an hour before daybreak I mean to get up. I shall wash and dress myself, say my prayers, give one good cockcrow and then capture Ismail."

Curious Translation Errors.

Some amusing errors are made by translators. An Italian paper turned Kipling's "Absentminded Beggar" into a "Distracted Mendicant." Another Italian editor who translated a passage from an English paper about a man who had killed his wife with a poker added an ingenious footnote to say, "We do not know with certainty whether this thing 'pokero' be a domestic or surgical instrument." The desperate expedient of the French translator of Cooper's "Spy," who had to explain how a horse could be hitched "to a locust," is worth recalling. He had never heard of locust trees and rendered the word by "sauterelle," or grasshopper. Feeling that this needed some explanation, he appended a footnote explaining that grasshoppers grew to a gigantic size in the United States and that it was the custom to place a stuffed specimen at the door of every mansion for the convenience of visitors, who hitched their horses to it.

The Bluejay.

One may pet or patronize, according to one's nature, a chipping sparrow, bluebird or phœbe, but he is indeed well coated with self esteem who does not feel a sense of inferiority in the presence of a jay. He is such a shrewd, independent and aggressive creature that one is inevitably led to the belief that he is more of a success as a bird than most men are as men. Conspicuous by voice and action during the fall and winter, when other birds are quietest, he becomes silent when other birds are most vocal. If he has a love song, it is reserved for the ear of his mate. At this season he even controls his fondness for owl baiting and with it his vituperative gifts. The robin, the catbird and the thrasher seem eager to betray the location of their nests to every passerby, but the bluejay gives no evidence of the site of his habitation by being seen in its vicinity.—Frank M. Chapman in Century.

A Precocious Diplomatist.

Boy—Oh, mamma, I upset the saltcellar over my clean clothes.

Mamma—That was careless. Go and brush the salt off, and see you don't soil the clothes.

"But, mamma, when any one spills salt they have a quarrel, don't they?"

"So they say."

"Well, then, if they don't spill the salt they don't have a quarrel. Isn't that so?"

"Yes, that is so. But why do you ask?"

"Well, because, mamma, it wasn't the salt I spilt; it was the ink."

Zeal and Knowledge.

The Outlook crowds an unusual amount of practical wisdom and good sense into the following paragraph: "Zeal without knowledge, often condemned, is more valuable than knowledge without zeal, often commended, for zeal without knowledge inspires life, and life acquires knowledge; but knowledge without zeal sits in its study, plays with its books and does nothing. All the greatest things in life have been accomplished by enthusiasts whose zeal was greater than their knowledge."

A Business Head.

"You lent him the money to buy that mule from you?"

"Yassir," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley. "It doesn't look like business, but it were sech a good chance to get de bes' of de trade dat I couldn' he'p advancin' de cash."—Washington Star.

Guessing at It.

"Gambler? Well, rather! Why, he's so crazy over games of chance that he patronizes a restaurant where they print the bill of fare in French, and he doesn't know a word of the language."—Chicago Post.

MILLERS SEEK REVENGE

For Holding Up of London Dock Measure

ARE ON HENDERSON'S TRAIL

Said to Be Determined to Compel Speaker's Retirement From Politics —Foraker's Prediction as to Nomination For President In 1904

Minneapolis, July 23.—H. S. Kennedy, secretary of the National Federation of Millers, last night announced that the milling interests of the country are in league to procure the defeat of Speaker Henderson in his race for re-election to congress. The announcement was made prior to Mr. Kennedy's departure for Des Moines to attend a meeting at which measures and the means to compass Henderson's political downfall would be discussed.

The resentment of the millers owes its origin to Speaker Henderson's action in holding up the London dock clause, an amendment to the Harter bill, designed to do away with what American exporters regard as unjust discrimination against United States flour in the unloading charges at London. According to Mr. Kennedy, Representative Fletcher had practically secured assurances of the passage of the amendment and the millers of the country felt certain that their wishes would be carried out, when Speaker Henderson suddenly interposed his interference and held up the measure.

Mr. Kennedy explains that no funds will be solicited outside of Iowa to prosecute the campaign against the speaker, but he intimates that all the money and means necessary are available in that state.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1904

Foraker Says Roosevelt Is the Only Republican Seriously Thought Of

Cincinnati, July 23.—Senator Foraker, in the course of an interview yesterday, on his return home, was asked:

"Are you correctly quoted as to the Republican candidate of 1904, namely, that nobody is seriously thought of except President Roosevelt?"

"Yes; the statement published is correct and the fact is as there stated. Roosevelt is the only man who is seriously thought of by the great masses of the people. There are a few flickering flames that some ambitious partisans are trying to fan into a blaze, but they cannot make them burn steadily and they will all go out in due time, extinguished by the fire damp of American politics."

Missouri Democrats For Free Silver

St. Joseph, Mo., July 23.—The state Democratic convention of Missouri met yesterday and at midnight concluded its work and adjourned sine die. The resolutions adopted declare allegiance to the principles of the Kansas City platform, especial stress being placed on the free silver 16 to 1 plank. The government's Philippine policy is denounced. Drastic legislation is proposed prohibiting the existence of all trusts and combinations that have a tendency to destroy competition. The administration of Governor Dockery is endorsed. "The just and impartial election law of the state" is praised. Government by injunction is opposed. Child labor in factories is denounced. The record of the Republican party in St. Louis in connection with the recent bribery scandals is dilated upon and condemned.

Hint to Dropsical People

Lancaster, O., July 23.—Mrs. Emma Wacker of this city is trying to starve out a case of dropsy from which she is suffering and has, on the advice of her physicians, refrained from eating since June 11, since which date, it is alleged, no food has passed her lips, her only sustenance being water, with a sprinkle of lemon juice. The woman says that her condition is greatly improved in consequence of the fast.

All Going to United States

Berlin, July 23.—The Kreuz Zeitung, dealing with Great Britain's position in the world, maintains that she is not economically independent of other nations. "The colonies," says The Zeitung, "are rapidly severing themselves from the mother country, which will finally be absorbed by America, inasmuch as the rise of the United States means the political and economic downfall of Great Britain."

Present From Sultan to Kaiser

Constantinople, July 23.—In the course of an audience which he granted to the German charge of affairs yesterday, the sultan presented to Emperor William, through the charge, the ruined fortress of Kalaat, Sherkat, on the River Tigris, which has long been desired by German Assyriologists for excavation.

USED PINS AND NEEDLE

Peculiar Method of Self Destruction Adopted by a Young Woman

Providence, July 23.—An autopsy was performed yesterday on the body of Leonie Jodoin, aged 20, who died at her home in Jericho Monday night. In the region of the heart and piercing the pericardium was found a steel hat pin four inches in length, and in the stomach a part of another and similar pin, about 1 3-4 inches long, was found.

Dr. Chagnon, who performed the autopsy, says the larger pin evidently was forced into the body by the girl in a hysterical attempt to penetrate the heart. The smaller pin might have found its way to the girl's stomach by way of her mouth, but this theory he believed improbable.

Previous to the girl's death a sewing needle was removed during an operation and, although the presence of other foreign substances was suspected, nothing was located. The girl suffered intensely up to the time of her death, but she gave no explanation of her strange actions.

The attending physicians believe that the direct cause which led to the girl's suicidal actions was hysteria, which affected the sufferer in a very peculiar manner. Miss Jodoin had only recently returned from a convent in New Jersey to her home because of the severity of her illness.

Unions Will Fight Injunction

Boston, July 23.—The notices to appear in the equity court in injunction proceedings brought by the master brewers against the officers of the various labor organizations concerned in the brewery strike were served yesterday upon the respondents. The unions have decided to contest the proceedings and have engaged counsel to represent them in court.

Traced From Tarheel State

Brockton, Mass., July 23.—Munroe Rogers, colored, aged 21, was arrested yesterday on a charge of arson, made by parties in Durham, N. C. The prisoner said he had trouble with a man who lived at Durham because he wanted to pay attention to a colored girl living there, the householder objecting, and he crawled under the house and set it afire.

Jackies Doing Shore Duty

Block Island, R. I., July 23.—About 1200 men from the battleships Alabama and Kearsarge have gone into camp at Big Harbor Neck at the west end of the island near the channel. They have an excellent location, with plenty of water. The warships will leave this afternoon, but will come back here every week during the summer to drill their men.

Labor Trouble Terminated

Lynn, Mass., July 23.—The 60 lasters who were discharged last Friday by the Walton & Logan shoe manufacturing firm went back to work yesterday at an increase of ½ cent a pair, the firm recognizing the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, with which the men have recently become affiliated. The settlement was an amicable one.

Athol Is Deluged

Athol, Mass., July 23.—A cloudburst struck Athol yesterday, lasting nearly an hour and doing much damage. School street was deeply gullied and electric car service was interrupted for three hours, while other streets were badly washed and many lawns were torn up. Some lakes were raised six or eight inches.

Wanted by Naval Authorities

Brunswick, Me., July 23.—James W. Pennell of Harpswell was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Cushman on the charge of desertion from the United States navy. He resisted arrest, but was overpowered and taken to Portland. He was fined $30 and costs on Monday for having short lobsters.

Flood In Blackstone Valley

Pawtucket, R. I., July 23.—What might be considered a cloudburst last night did a great deal of damage throughout the lower Blackstone valley. The rain fell heavier than ever seen before for a period of about 20 minutes. The streets became miniature rivers and many cellars were flooded.

Thinks Boy Was Kidnapped

Beverly, Mass., July 23.—There are no new developments in the Wilbur Clark case and the police are still unable to account for the mysterious disappearance of the boy. Chief Ferguson of the Beverly police says that the only thing to do now is to wait. He still holds to the abduction theory.

Almost Ready For Jury

Ellsworth, Me., July 23.—The trial of William A. Treworgy, charged with the murder of Sarah Ware, is drawing to a close. The defense has concluded its evidence and the case will probably be given to the jury by tomorrow afternoon.

Striking Miners Marching

Charleston, W. Va., July 23.—The arrest of strikers at the Collins colliery appears to have infuriated the miners there and marching commenced yesterday, large bodies of men moving about the property shouting epithets at the men who are working. The colliery got out 700 tons of coal yesterday, but the men who are working are practically prisoners in the mine, as they do not come outside.

DEATH OF RED POPE

Man of Powerful Influence In the Vatican

HE ONCE DEFIED BISMARCK

Iron Chancellor Had Him Imprisoned and He Afterward Became Controller of Catholic Church In All Countries—Brethren In Dread of Him

Rome, July 23.—Cardinal Ledochowski, prefect of the congregation of the propaganda of the Roman church, died yesterday after a long illness.

Cardinal Ledochowski was out driving as usual Monday evening. When his valet entered his room at 9 o'clock yesterday morning the cardinal had a sudden paralytic stroke.

Cardinal Ledochowski had long been ill. In May, 1901, he became blind, and it was stated at that time that he had resigned his office of prefect of the propaganda, that is to say, controller of the Roman Catholic church in the United States and in all countries of the world where Catholicism is not the state religion. As such the cardinal has been known for the last 13 years as the "Red Pope," in order to distinguish him from the "Black Pope," who is the general-in-chief of the Order of the Jesuits, and from the "White Pope," who is Leo XIII. The latter is always attired in white; Father Martin, the head of the so-called Society of Jesus, wears nothing but black; while the chief of the propaganda as a cardinal wears robes of red—whence their names.

Cardinal Ledochowski had for the last quarter of a century been so remarkable a figure, not alone in the Roman Catholic church, but also in international politics, that his disappearance from the scene cannot pass by unnoticed. He was the only cardinal in the history of a church for 2000 years who had been created a member of the Sacred College while in prison, and who received the red berretta in a penitentiary cell. The prison in which he was incarcerated when he became cardinal was that of Ostrow in Prussian Poland, and he had been arrested and cast into jail by orders of the late Prince Bismarck owing to his refusal as archbishop and primate of Posen, to submit to the so-called Falk church laws.

He spent two full years in prison before being liberated and sentenced to exile, and then he proceeded to Rome, where he spent several years at the Vatican as the guest, first of Pius IX and then of Leo XIII, exercising a potent influence at the papal court, so much so, indeed, that before Bismarck would consent to a cessation of the war between the papacy and Prussia, he insisted that Count Ledochowski should leave the Vatican and cease to be a member of the pope's immediate entourage.

After Bismarck's fall the cardinal became not merely reconciled to the Prussian government, but a particular friend and confidant of young Emperor William to such a degree, in fact, that for the last six or seven years he had been looked upon at Rome as the principal representative in the Sacred College of the kaiser's interests.

The cardinal was a man of the most aristocratic appearance and bearing, haughty and arrogant in his demeanor towards his fellow prelates, but most kind and considerate to his inferiors. At the Vatican all the cardinals and monsignori stood in dread of him, and even Leo himself treated him with exceptional regard, having allowed him a degree of latitude and independence in the management of his department that he tolerated on the part of no other member of the Sacred College.

Cardinal Ledochowski achieved fame in ecclesiastical circles for his marvellous success in connection with the collection of "Peter's pence." These constitute between 30 and 40 percent of the entire papal revenues, and are chiefly derived from countries which are described at Rome as being "in partibus infidelium." So eager was the cardinal when primate of Prussian Poland to increase the Peter's pence fund that he introduced a kind of beef tax into the Prussian, Austrian and Russian portions of his archdiocese by permitting the members of his flock to substitute the penitence of a money fine for that of abstentation from meat during Lent.

It was largely owing to his success in this connection that he was appointed to the chieftainship of the propaganda at a moment when, owing to a series of heavy financial losses sustained by the papal treasury, largely in connection with the maladministration of Archbishop Folchi, who was the treasurer of the Peter's pence fund, the contributions showed an alarming decline. Leo XIII realized that by appointing a foreigner instead of an Italian to the directorship of the propaganda, and, above all, a man of Cardinal Ledochowski's uncompromising and unflinching character, he would convey a kind of guarantee to the faithful in partibus infidelium, that their contributions toward Peter's pence fund would be devoted strictly to the use of the papacy, and not to the relief of a degenerate Roman aristocracy, for which the cardinal as a foreigner would have less pity or compassion than a prelate of their own nationality, such as Archbishop Folchi, who devoted untold sums towards vain attempts to extricate great patricians from their financial difficulties.

Cardinal Count Miecislaus von Ledochowski was born at Gork on Oct. 29, 1822.

People Moved Out In Time

Peoria, Ills., July 23.—The dyke protecting the Louisiana marsh drainage district gave way yesterday and caused great damage. Two square miles of farm lands are covered by from two to ten feet of water. Three weeks ago, when the river began its phenomenal rise, people living within the district moved out.

Windward Starts Northward

Sydney, N. S., July 23.—It was discovered yesterday that the Peary Arctic steamer Windward was leaking. It seems that she was strained in some way while bunkering. The water was pumped out of the Windward last night and she sailed for the frozen north.

Lightning Killed Fourteen

Vienna, July 23.—Storms have done immense damage throughout the country. Many villages were flooded and a large number of houses were swept away. Fourteen persons were killed by lightning.

Quincy Variety Store—Antique Goods.
L. M. Pratt & Son—Flour.

Good Afternoon.

The Saville street grade crossing should be furnished with gates. Sometimes it is difficult for the flagman to keep the teams back.

The order for a school lot at Atlantic should wait until the city gets a larger leeway inside its debt limit. The city could not make an appropriation to build even if it had a lot.

One singular thing about those petitions for ice privileges at the Quincy reservoir is that they come through the Mayor. Why not petition the Council direct? The latest proposition of Mr. Shea, however, seems to the point.

It seems that money has been borrowed under the 1901 order appropriating $6,000 for Chubbuck street and $3,000 for Grove street, and that $2,000 will mature in September, although there was a proviso in the order, that the appropriation should be null and void unless all abutters signed releases. It is another objection to those combination loan orders.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Swampscott weather was all right for a celebration. Much to be preferred to the hot wave that swept over the city when Lynn celebrated the semi-centenial. Too little sunlight is better than too much heat.—Lynn Item.

☞Maine continues obligingly to incorporate Massachusetts men to do business in Massachusetts, who cannot get incorporated in their own state, or who do not care to comply with the conditions of incorporation in their own state. Among the latest Massachusetts incorporations by Maine is one of a telephone company with an authorized capital of $5,000,000 and nothing paid in; another is a metal polish company with an authorized capital of $50,000 and $400 paid in; two citizens of Lowell paid in $3 toward a capital of $200,000 for a patent medicine company, and $500 was paid in on a capitalization of $300,000 for a harbor land and hotel company. The aggregate was $5,550,000 of authorized capital and $903 in hand.—New York Journal of Commerce.

☞If a man should be cheerful at home, it goes without saying that a woman should be. Whatever her cares or anxieties, the wife and mother must make it part of her religion to live above them. What is most prized in household economy is not a temperment which is gay by fits and starts, up today and down tomorrow, full of hilarity on occasions, and heavy as lead at other times, but an even serenity of soul which makes people at ease and happy under the roof. A home in which one treads always on thin ice cannot be tolerable. A cheerful disposition will influence its possessor to make the best of existing circumstances, forget the discomforts of yesterday, and anticipate delightful things tomorrow. To live largely in the present, doing one's best and trusting God, is to maintain an almost unbroken cheeriness of demeanor and of experience.—Margaret E. Sangster, in July Success.

STILL DIVIDED.

Houghs Neck Factions Not to Unite.

Illumination May Be a Fizzle.

Meeting for Incorporation Adjourned Before Members Arrived.

It is an open question whether Houghs Neck will have one illumination this year or two as last year, For sometime past the residents of this resort have been divided against themselves and their failure to become united has worked injury to the beach. It was thought this year that the hatchet would be buried and that all would unite in one grand illumination.

On Monday evening a meeting of the Improvement Association was held and everything was harmonious. At this meeting there was upwards of seventy-five present, and that the association might have funds it was decided that the membership fee should be twenty-five cents. Nearly all present cheerfully paid their money and the meeting adjourned until Tuesday evening, at which time the Association was to be incorporated and the date for the illumination decided upon.

The meeting of Tuesday evening was called for 7.30, and at that hour Vice President B. C. Leonard called the meeting to order. There were but few present at that time. Someone moved that the meeting adjourn. The motion was put and the thing was over.

Ten minutes later residents from the further end of the beach began to arrive, and by 7.45 there was a good attendance. When they learned that the meeting had been called and adjourned they were highly indignant and forcibly expressed themselves.

It was decided to hold an independent meeting. The meeting organized with D. D. Driscoll as chairman and George F. Whall as secretary.

No further business was transacted other than a vote to meet again on Thursday evening and to invite the ladies to be present at the meeting.

Unless the two factions unite it means two fizzle illuminations with nobody satisfied.

The Breeches Bibles in Quincy.

Tuesday's Boston Record has an interesting account of this Bible 350 years old, and adds that there is only one first edition known to be on this side of the Atlantic.

Quincy has two copies of this, but we do not know of what edition they are. Lawyer Pattee has one which we have seen, and Mr. A. E. Sproul is said to own another of these. This version got its name, "Breeches" bible from the following translation of Gen. III:7: "They sewed fig leaves together and made themselves breeches."

Returned.

After a visit of nearly two months, Mr. Walter P. Pinel has returned from England and will be pleased to met his old customers and friends. After an absence of many, many years from his native town, Mr. Pinel has had the pleasure of seeing once again his old home, which no one can appreciate so well as one who has been long away.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas O'Connell was fined $3 for drunkenness at Holbrook, Henry Mattson $3 for drunkenness at Quincy and Thomas E Bramley $15 for drunkenness at Holbrook.

Jeremiah O'Neil and Frank Kelley were fined $10 each for assault on William Dunn at Quincy.

The continued case of Thomas Condon for keeping and exposing liquor for sale at Holbrook was heard and he was discharged.

Frank E. Clapp was arraigned for threatening to assault Etta F. Phillips at Braintree. Case continued until Thursday.

The Magazines.

Little Folks, the children's illustrated monthly, for July (S. E. Cassino, publisher, Salem, Mass.,) is an Independence Day number. Frances Campbell Sparhawk, in a short article, tells the girls and boys just what happened on July 4, 1776, in Philadelphia. Kate Upson Clark continues "The Adventures of Spoity" and Sophie Swett contributes another chapter of "The Lion Tamer's Little Girl."

The moonlight sail which was to be enjoyed on Saturday evening by the Wollaston club was postponed.

WOOD CAME BACK.

Italians Hasten to Escape Prosecution for Theft.

Since the destruction of house at the corner of Washington and Union streets began a couple of weeks ago large quantities of the wood have mysteriously disappeared.

Miss Floretta Vining of Hull, the owner, when she heard of this telephoned to the chief of the Quincy police and demanded police protection.

Failing to get much satisfaction she came to town Tuesday and struck terror into the families of several Italians residing in that part of the city known as Dublin.

With the assistance of the police she searched several cellars and found large quantities of the wood. She threatened all with prosecution unless the wood was promptly returned, and it was surprising how quickly the wood began to go back. Few men would have been as successful as Miss Vining.

Lawyer Cotter Hurt.

James E. Cotter, Esq., of Hyde Park, the well known lawyer, and his daughter were in a runaway accident Tuesday afternoon at their summer home at Rockport. Lawyer Cotter had just alighted from the 5.38 train and was seating himself in a carriage when the horse started, and he was thrown to the ground. His shoulder bone was broken and he was bruised about the head. Miss Cotter was badly shaken up. Both were later taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was reported after examination that their injuries were not serious.

☞A story is told of a Massachusetts chief of police who, being asked if his department could give any assistance in finding Wilbur Clark of Beverly, the boy who has been missing for some time, replied, "Who is Wilbur Clark?" The interrogator was staggered at such a reply, and could only say; "Don't you read the newspapers?" To this the answer was. "No not much, and if I did I wouldn't notice that." Whether the story is true or not, it is a suggestive commentary on the appointments of chiefs of police in this state that persons are found who say they can readily believe it.—New Bedford Standard.

—Mr. John C. Berry of Plymouth, the Prohibition candidate for governor of New Hampshire, says in an open letter: "The peril of the saloon has become greater than the slave curse. It is poisoning and corrupting our whole social life. It is silencing our churches, political conventions, our national, state and local elections are controlled by it. There is not a state and scarcely a town where organized rum sellers do not set law at defiance.

—The war against alcohol has begun seriously in France. A recent publication of the French Academy divides spirituous drinks into four classes. The most injurious are absinthe and its compounds; next come the divers bitters, known as cardamom, sandell, iris, etc.; in the third place vermouth, and lastly chartreuse, anisette and genievre.

A notice has been posted within the bar at the district court rooms to the effect that no more civil trial lists will be posted for a month. That means the court will take a vacation as far as the civil business is concerned.

PAYING THE PIPER.

An Editorial Which Pleases H. H. Faxon.

Good Advice for Any City.

Court Compels One Town to Pay $60 Tax Rate.

By request of H. H. Faxon the Ledger reproduces entire the Herald's editorial of July 22, on "Paying the Piper." Mr. Faxon says it is the best editorial he ever read, and that it is a salutary warning to all cities and towns which are plunging madly into debt. No city wants to have a tax rate of $60 per $1000 just to pay "dead horses," and the lesson should be heeded. The Herald says:

The superior court of Pennsylvania has lately made a decision which enforces the lesson that municipalities cannot be extravagant and escape paying their debts. In Luzerne county there is a township with less than 7000 inhabitants and an assessed valuation for purposes of taxation of but little over $1,000,000, against which judgments have been rendered for debts amounting to nearly $64,000. This sum is simply the aggregate of expenses incurred for meeting which no taxes were levied. The people to whom the money was owed got tired of having their just claims ignored and appealed to the county court which ordered that a tax should be levied sufficient to pay off the judgments together with the expense of collecting and the cost of the legal proceedings. The township authorities carried the matter up to the superior court, which has affirmed the decision of the county court. That township has got to raise this large sum by taxation, and can no longer as a debtor snap its fingers, so to speak, at its creditors.

The decision does not affect one township alone, but several others in the same county which have pursued a similar course. In one of them it is said the schools have been suspended most of the time for a year, because mismanagement of the officials had wasted the school money. Upon all these places the court's decision comes as a mandate to pay their debts and do it at once. It is a costly business, but it is just. The taxpayers have been committing their public affairs to unwise and incompetent, if not dishonest, officials, with a rash degree of indifference. Probably the officials were smooth men, men who were faithful to their party under all circumstances, men who were generous in using money that didn't come out of their own pockets for purposes that they supposed to have the favor of the people, or some of them. It is a policy that works well, so long as the tax rate is kept down. This path to popularity is tempting, and many are pursuaded to walk therein. But the day of reckoning surely comes, and the last state of that easy-going community is worse than the first.

A tax of $60 on each $1000 of valuation, merely to bury "dead horses," is something that is likely to cause the people of a township to do some serious thinking. To be sure, the thinking comes late, and will be charged full with sacrifice and bitterness; but it will be good for them. Rue is the herb they need. They will not repeat the costly experience. It is one of the things that all who happen to own property there will remember to the last day of their lives. Never again will it seem quite so safe and comfortable to incur public debt. Public debt has to be paid sooner or later by the taxpayers. It makes no difference whether the debt be "floating" or funded. There it is, a sum due, and it must be paid, or repudiated. Repudiation is a disgraceful business, and commonly costs a town or a state more money in the end than honest payment at any sacrifice would do.

Too much of such loose management of town and city affairs is tolerated, and it is surprising that more communities are not severely mulcted, as these Pennsylvania townships are, in states where there is no restriction of the liberty of incurring debt. Hardly any legislation is sounder, or affords the people more real and necessary protection, than that which limits the debt that municipal officers, or the people themselves, may create. It is easy for one or two influential men to induce a community to make improvements beyond their ability, if they may do it by borrowing.

In spite of our excellent Massachusetts law, there are towns in the state that are embarrassed by their debts. Sometimes the too great debt is made possible by consenting to abnormally high valuations. Sometimes a debt which seemed not oppressive when it was created has become so by an unlooked for adverse change in the business prospects of a town. Such changes come when least expected, as for example, in the town of North Brookfield, where the closing up of its chief industry has paralyzed prosperity, caused the permanent removal of a large proportion of the population, and greatly reduced the value of real estate. Such misfortunes cannot always be foreseen; are, in fact, rarely foreseen. Like a great fire, they come without preliminary warning. They teach the need of conservatism in drawing upon the future.

Abner Tabb Held.

Boston papers report Abner Tabb of Quincy, a golf expert who is considered one of the best instructors of the game in this State, to have been arraigned Tuesday before Judge Pettengill in the Malden District Court on the charge of breaking and entering the Bellevue Golf Club house in Melrose about 2 o'clock in the morning of July 7, and stealing a large number of golf balls. He pleaded not guilty and after a hearing was held by the Court for the Grand Jury. He furnished the $500 bail.

A Hardened Sinner's End

Greenville, Miss., July 23.—With curses on his lips and with the expressed wish that the people of Greenville perish in the fires of hell, Ashley Cooke died here yesterday. With him, but silently, Tom Lauderdale also met his end. Both were convicted of the murder of G. M. Wray and the swing of a double trap sent both men to their doom. Cooke died boasting that he would be in hell in a few minutes and damning everything and everybody. He said that those who had planned his murder would meet their end and that $1000 would be paid for the death of each of the 11 men who prosecuted him. The execution was witnessed by 6000 people.

Two games were scheduled to be played at Concord between Concord and Lawrence. Lawrence refused to play with Umpire Heckman officiating, and the latter declared both games forfeited to Concord. A third game was arranged, with two players as umpires, Concord winning, 3 to 1.

—Smith N. Penfield remarks, in the Musician: "All through life music is our vade mecum. We serenade our sweethearts; we are married to the strains of music; we dance to its measures; we are welcomed into the church by its anthems; we go to war stirred on by its martial strains; when in trouble we are soothed and when weary we are refreshed by music; and when we die, Chopin's funeral march is our requiem." Mr. Penfield thinks that more time should be given to this important art in our schools; and he urges that all scholars who are reported to the school teachers as taking piano lessons should have certain hours allotted to them for their music lessons and practice, and not to have to add it at the end of a day already filled with routine school duties.

DOMINATED BY WOMEN.

A Welsh Town Where the Feminine Sex Reigns Supreme.

Away in a sequestered little nook on the Pembrokeshire coast there is a village entirely managed by women. In Langum—for such is the hamlet's name—woman reigns supreme. She is the dominating force of the mart of trade, the household financier, the family accountant, and, in fact, fills all the positions which in any other community, whether civilized or not, are by established precedent voted to man.

Langum has a race apart from the world in its laws in its exclusion of the stranger and in its utter disregard of the vast area of world and things lying beyond its borders. Its quiet life is dominated by two all powerful factors—womankind and oysters. There are men in Langum, but they exert little or no influence upon the affairs of the quiet little Welsh village.

The Langum man neither is nor pretends to be. He recognizes the right of womankind to own and rule and is perfectly satisfied to be described as Annie Jones' man or Mary Williams' man.

He neither requires nor appreciates compassion. Sitting of an evening at his cottage door, with his faithful brood playing around him, his wife and daughter busy within reckoning the gains of the day's work, he is vexed by no mental anxieties or perplexities. Divested of all responsibilities of life, he is as pleased as the oyster for which his native place is famed.—London Answers.

The Short Step Between.

"I was on an ocean liner when she ran on the rocks off the English coast some years ago," said a Philadelphia traveling man, "and in the panic that ensued there is one incident that stands out in my memory, illustrating the slender thread between the tragic and the ridiculous. We had a fellow on board who had managed to keep pretty well loaded all the way across, and when we struck the rocks he was in his usual condition. When everybody thought for sure we were going to the bottom, he sat down at the piano in the saloon, and what do you suppose he began playing? 'Home, Sweet Home.' Somebody went to him and begged him to stop. Immediately he switched off from the doleful strains of the old song to the rollicking melody of 'Down Went McGinty.' The absurdity of the thing seemed to strike everybody at once, and a general laugh followed. The tension was relieved, and there was good order after that."—Philadelphia Record.

Antidyspepsia Diet.

"Dyspepsia would no longer be the national disease in America if the people of this country would adopt a plain diet similar to that of Norway and Sweden. Gout is unknown among Swedes and Norwegians, and the rosy cheeks and clear complexions of the young people of those countries are the result of the simple food the children eat," the United States consul at Bergen, Norway, says. "Hot rolls and white bread are rarely seen in Sweden. Knackbrode or hard bread is the standard article of food. It is made of ground oats and rye. There is no yeast in the bread, and it is rolled into thin wafers, which are baked and hung up where they will keep perfectly dry. Swedes eat this bread and drink milk for two meals a day and have one meal at which they eat meat and potatoes. Sweets are almost unknown. Children are allowed to eat candy only on state occasions."

Why She Wanted an Introduction.

"I must have an introduction to that woman."

"Why, yes; certainly," replied her friend, and at once brought it about. Later she asked:

"What made you so keen about meeting Mrs. S.? You gazed at her as intently as if you could not take your eyes from her while you were talking. I never found her so interesting."

"Oh, I don't know whether she is interesting, but didn't you see that lovely tie she wore? I just had to find out how it was made. I know how to make one exactly like it now. Just let me clap my eyes on anything of that sort for a few minutes and I'll reproduce it so that you never could tell the copy from the original."—New York Press.

The Human Heart.

The heart of man is a book—nay, it is an enclycopedia of everything that has ever come within the range of its personal experience. It preserves an eternal record of all the stories in which it has played a part. It is strange what sad things may be hidden in its depth without giving any token of their existence. The heart may be gay and may send the smile mantling to the face, but all the while you see only the topmost stratum. If the graves beneath were to give up their dead, the smiles would seem strangely out of place.

Steel Skyscrapers.

An architect of New York says that with the modern steel frame a building can be carried to a height equal to seven and one-half times the diameter of the base. By this rule on an ordinary city block could be erected a building 1,500 feet high, 500 feet higher than the Eiffel tower. It would have 125 stories and cost about $30,000,000.

The executive committee of the Quincy Yacht club met last evening and decided to formally notify the Manchester club that the Flashlight had been selected by the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup, now held by the to compete for the Quincy Yacht Manchester club, in the races next month.

The Manchester club will also be notified that ex-Commodore Fred B. Rice has been selected to represent the Quincy club on the board of judges.

There has been some talk at the Manchester end that a postponement may be necessary that the defenders may be put in readiness, but the dates for the races having been fixed there can be no postponement.

The committee has decided to charter the steam yacht Josephine for the cup races. The Josephine is 200 feet long, is finished in mahogony, has four state rooms, bath rooms, etc., and will comfortably seat 150 on deck.

The Hades had her trial trip yesterday and also a brush with the Outlook. Both boats will be out now every morning and afternoon, and next week it will be decided which shall be the defender.

A WRECK AVERTED

By Presence of Mind of Engineer of a Passenger Train

Woonsocket, R. I., July 23.—The coolness and quick action of Engineer Bishop prevented a wreck of a passenger express train bound from Worcester to Providence near the Manville station yesterday afternoon. The engineer, when 500 feet away, sighted a pile of earth and stones dumped on the track by a washout down a 40-foot embankment, and by applying the emergency brake so reduced the speed of the train that the engine and cars ploughed through a part of the obstruction, mounted the rest, went over it in safety and landed with all but the driving wheels of the locomotive and a pair of trucks of the smoker on the iron. The force with which the engine struck the obstruction doubled up and smashed the pilot and broke the emergency brake.

When the train stopped the engine was 150 feet or more south of the obstruction which it had struck and within 500 feet of the station. The wrecking train quickly reached the scene, and within two hours after the accident both tracks were in use and trains were running.

HOT HAWAIIAN POLITICS

Climax Reached by a Republican Split

AN EXTRAORDINARY STAND

Taken by Delegate Wilcox, Who Assails the Administration and Missionaries—Says Negroes Are Slaves Who Do Terrible Things

Honolulu, July 15, via San Francisco, July 23.—The territorial convention of the Home Rule Republican party here ended in a split between the two factions, and Prince Cupid with about 40 other delegates bolted from the convention to form a new party in opposition to Robert W. Wilcox as delegate to congress. It is generally thought that the division in the Home Rule party is a serious one, and Republican papers predict that it will end in the defeat of Wilcox in the coming election.

After the bolt of the dissatisfied ones, the regular convention nominated Wilcox for delegate to congress and adjourned. The bolters organized a new party which they call the Non-Partisan party. The talked of naming Prince Cupid for congress and of combining with the Democrats, who also held a meeting last night.

Washington, July 23.—The Evening Star prints a Honolulu letter in which the writer gives a translation of a speech delivered by Delegate Wilcox of Hawaii before the Home Rule party convention. It illustrates forcibly the extraordinary character of the man chosen by the Hawaiians to represent them in congress. In the course of his speech he bitterly characterized the annexation of Hawaii as a wrong, flung epithets at the missionaries, who are today responsible for whatever of enlightenment has been brought to the people, and made assertions with a reckless disregard for the record. Speaking in the native tongue of his native constituents, he doubtless conceived himself secure from observation. Here are a few extracts from the speech:

"We are now in the family of the great United States—not by our own desire. They took us as a lion takes a lamb. I was elected as your delegate to congress. That position I hold until March, 1903. When we first lost our country, and when the monarchy was overthrown and the United States landed troops on our shores, America did not want us to become annexed. It was through the missionaries that we lost our country and our monarchy.

"Then came the war with Spain, and the United States grabbed our islands. Three commissions from the states and two from here were in favor of annexation. Well, the missionaries managed to get nearly all the land, and now they want the rest. The fire during the plague robbed the poor people of their belongings, and now the missionaries are wanting to rob the United States of their money. They wanted me to help them, and I did so, as I knew that it was for the good of our people, the relieving of our poor. All the time the missionaries in congress try to spoil my efforts, and my friends there got tired of constant attempts to hinder me and my attempts and often dropped the whole affair.

"The president has nothing to say, he or his ministers; what congress says or does makes the law. I asked for a trainingship here because I know that only natives would be put on board of her. I may fail in these things, but if I lose I will fight again, as Morgan fought for 20 years for the canal bill. The missionaries work against us all the time. If Christ should come down and say something that was good the missionaries would say it was not.

"About this homestead law. We want 40 or 50 acres, not 20; no man can go ranching on 20 acres. What do we want 40 acres for? To drink milk. We are Americans now, and we want to drink milk with the rest of the Americans. In the United States the niggers are slaves. They are not like us or the Indians, who are treated as white men. They are an inferior race; a low class, composed of the worst people, who do terrible things. We do not wish to mix with such a class, and we are not compared with them, except by only a few missionaries.

"I am sure that Christ will be with us and rule in the next legislature. Already I have sent to West Point young Lyman and young Hons. I want a native boy there, and some day, I may or may not be living then, we shall see a native admiral on the Pacific coast."

Canadian Income From Chinese

Ottawa, July 23.—The gross revenue from Chinese immigration to Canada for the year ending June 30 amounted to $364,972, compared with $178,704 during the previous year. The poll tax last year was increased from $50 to $100. The number who paid the tax was 3525, compared with 2518 in 1901.

Ten Weeks Will Win Strike

Indianapolis, July 23.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers expects to leave Indianapolis today for Wilkesbarre. It is understood that Mitchell and his associates are convinced that they can win the anthracite strike if they can hold out for 10 weeks longer.

An Anti-American Alliance

Vienna, July 23.—The Journal Die Information predicts a fusion of the dual and triple alliances to meet "the American invasion."

READY FOR THE FRAY

Jeffries and Fitzsimmons Have Completed Hard Training

San Francisco, July 23.—Jeffries finished his hard training yesterday. He boxed eight fast rounds before a gathering of business men at Oakland. During the bout he nearly knocked Kennedy out and the latter retaliated by landing a heavy right on Jeffries' nose, drawing blood. Jeffries instructed his trainers to give him a battle and they did so to the best of their ability. Edward Graney, the referee of the big contest, was in the ring and gave a practical demonstration of how he would act toward the contestants. He refrained from going between the fighters, but ordered them to break and they did so. Jeffries will do light work for the next few days and will refrain from boxing.

Fitzsimmons took a short jaunt through the park yesterday morning and boxed at the Olympic club in the afternoon. He sparred with two clever amateurs and wound up by going three fast rounds with Hank Griffin. Fitzsimmons will confine his work for the next three days to light gymnastic work. Both men are ready to enter the ring.

The betting now stands 2 to 1, with Jeffries on the long end. Betting is lively. There is plenty of Fitzsimmons money and Jeffries' supporters are taking up all the wagers in sight.

No Wonder Lives Were Lost

Hamburg, July 23.—The steamship Primus has been partially raised and brought nearer shore. The total number of missing is now placed at 104. Sixty-one bodies have been recovered. Inquiry into the circumstances of the disaster shows that there is a great lack of life saving appliances on the Elbe excursion steamers. The Primus is known to have had on board only six life belts and a single boat. The steamer Delphin, which came up later with 400 passengers, had only one boat, capable of carrying seven persons.

Farmers Ruined by Floods

Keokuk, Ia., July 23.—The Mississippi river fell nine inches here yesterday and there are no signs in Iowa rivers of any more flood approaching. Several hundred farmers are absolutely penniless and with no chance of an income this year. Each community seems to be taking care of its own refugees. The same conditions prevail along the 75 miles of the Mississippi river on the Missouri side and a hundred miles of the Des Moines river lowlands.

Warships Shifted

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Moody in a cablegram to Commander McCrea of the gunboat Machias, now at Colon, directed him to proceed with that vessel to Cape Haytien in response to the request of the United States consul there. Orders also were sent to the gunboat Marietta, directing her to proceed to Colon to take the place of the Machias as soon as she has finished her present work on the Venezuelan coast.

Buller Wants to Give Views

London, July 23.—General Buller has written another letter to Secretary of War Brodrick, in which he complains that Brodrick accentuated charges in the house of commons which were never officially brought against him and to which he was ordered not to reply. In his communication General Buller demands that he be allowed to state his views regarding Ladysmith's capability to hold out against the Boers.

Predicts Tariff Bill's Failure

Berlin, July 23.—The Lokal Anzeiger quotes Count Von Posadowsky as telling the customs tariff committee yesterday: "I can say to you that my belief is our tariff bill will never pass." The count made use of the above expression as a climax to his speech against the proposed increases in the tariff. His declaration has made a tremendous sensation in political circles.

A Pertinent Question

Asbury Park, N. J., July 23.—The convention of the National and State Women's Suffragists closed here last night. One of the questions in the question box was: "Who will care for the babies when the mothers vote?" Rev. Anna Shaw answered it by saying: "Persons who care for them when the mothers go to the opera."

Soldiers' Deaths In Philippines

Washington, July 23.—The war department has been informed from Manila that between May 9 and June 11 76 enlisted men of the army died. Of these 32 deaths were caused by Asiatic cholera.

Bank Head's Small Estate

London, July 23.—The proving of the will of William Litterdale, late governor of the Bank of England, who died last month, shows that his entire estate amounts to only $5000.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Acting Postmaster General Winne has ordered that the postoffice at Oyster Bay, L. I., be kept open on Sundays for one hour. This action is intended for the convenience of newspaper correspondents and others in that vicinity.

Rear Admiral Watson, who was a member of the special embassy to attend the coronation of King Edward, has been ordered back to his former duty as president of the retiring board at Washington.

An engineer was instantly killed, a fireman fatally injured and 15 cars were wrecked by the explosion of a freight engine at Olney, Ills.

A dispatch from Venice reports that the monumental clock tower of Santo Stefano shows signs of collapsing and that precautions have been ordered to prevent its fall.

The torpedo boat destroyer Dale has been turned over to the government at the New York navy yard.

RAILROADING

One of the recent safety equipments of the fast mail trains, which of necessity run at a high rate of speed through the night, is the electric searchlight. A number of engines on the leading roads have been supplied with such powerful searchlights that objects on the track can be seen nearly a mile away on the darkest nights. A small dyanmo in the engine supplies the light, and the lamp itself is so arranged that the fireman can operate it from his position in the cab to suit the needs of the moment. It was found, says a writer in Harper's Weekly, that a permanent light attached to the smokestack, as the old time reflectors were, would cast its path of light off the track instead of on it when rounding curves. The fireman can now touch a lever and throw the light straight ahead, sideways or up in the air. The largest of these locomotive searchlights are 6,000 candle power, which, compared to the old time reflectors, are remarkable products of the age.

The fast mail trains travel over the ground so rapidly that an ordinary headlight casting a reflection 400 or 500 feet is practically of little use. It might reveal to the engineer trouble ahead, but it could never help to avert the accident. The engineer might be able to shut off steam and apply the brakes, but by that time the engine would be upon the object. It is almost impossible for one of the fast trains to come to a dead stop much inside of 1,200 to 1,500 feet, and the heavier and faster the train the greater length of time must elapse before a stop can be effected. Consequently the old headlights were of little real value to trains running fifty and sixty miles an hour. With the new powerful electric searchlight, however, danger ahead can be seen in ample time for the engineer to bring his heavy train to a dead halt. As a safety equipment of the record breaking trains the searchlight has thus become a necessity of the day.

Long Run Without a Stop.

The Pennsylvania railroad has had a run made from Pittsburg to New York, 438 miles, without a stop. This is the longest run of a passenger train on record. In order to accomplish this feat it was necessary for the locomotive to carry an extra supply of coal, and this was done by enlarging the locomotive tender.

THE ANIMAL WORLD

The exploring party from the University of California which has been spending some time in the Humboldt mountains between Lovelocks and Mill City, Nev., has been remarkably successful. Ten large boxes of limestone block have been received at the university, which represent more specimens of the Nevadan ichthyosaurus than are to be found altogether in the museums of the world. The fossils have been sent to the university imbedded in the stone, and it will take from six months to a year to chisel them out of their matrix and prepare them for further study.

The men who made the collection were Vance C. Osmont, instructor in crystallography, and Chung Yu Wang, a chinese postgraduate student in geology. The two left Berkeley a short time ago and joined a party from Leland Stanford university which was in charge of Professor James Perrin Smith in search of ammonites of the triassic period. The University of California men found their specimens in the middle triassic.

The university has sent another expedition to Shasta county to continue the search for other saurian remains which was begun last year. Professor Merriam, V. C. Osmont, W. T. Shaller and Eustace Furlong compose the party, and they will return about Aug. 1, bringing, it is hoped, material which will connect the Nevada saurian remains with vertebrates of an earlier formation. The money for the present expedition has been supplied by a woman from Oakland who is interested in paleontological research.

The Pressure of Light.

The idea that the waves of light produce a mechanical push or pressure was advanced years ago by Clerk Maxwell, but he could only offer theoretical proof. Recently Professor Lebedew of Moscow made an experimental demonstration of the pressure of light. He employs a radiometer resembling the familiar Crookes radiometer, using a larger and more completely exhausted bulb, from which the heating effect, which is the principal agent in moving the Crookes vanes, is excluded. When the light falls upon the vanes, they are driven by it, and the intensity of the pressure thus revealed comes within 10 per cent of that calculated by Maxwell.

A New Vegetable Sweet.

A plant has been found in the northern part of Paraguay whose leaves contain a sweet substance. Small pieces will have the same effect as a large lump of sugar if dropped into a cup of tea or coffee. The stuff is not the same as sugar, though, because it is much stronger and cannot be fermented. The director of the Agronomical institute at Asuncion believes that its chemical nature is different from anything else now known. The herb is a rather common one, and the Germans in that part of the world are about to make some elaborate experiments in cultivating it for the market.

TURNDOWN FOR HANNA

Collector at New Orleans Must Give Up His Office

POLITICS IN THE BAY STATE

Hamlin Sets Ball Rolling by Announcing Candidacy For Democratic Gubernatorial Nomination—Vermont Democrats In Convention

Washington, July 24.—Considerable wonder is expressed here among politicians as to the way Senator Hanna will take the announcement from Oyster Bay that Henry McCall is to succeed Augustus T. Wimberley as collector at New Orleans. Wimberley was one of the men to whom Mr. Hanna was bound by ante-convention obligations in 1896 to see landed safely in the places they wanted or "something equally as good," and the question now is, how far these obligations will continue in the future.

It is known that Mr. Hanna would not stand for such an appointment as Wimberley in his own state of Ohio. When asked the significance of the president's turning down Wimberley so early in the season, although the change of office will not take place till December, an experienced political observer remarked with a cynical wink yesterday: "It must be that Mr. Roosevelt has abandoned the idea of carrying Louisiana for the Republican ticket."

HAMLIN FOR GOVERNOR

Announces His Candidacy to the People of Massachusetts

Boston, July 24.—Charles S. Hamlin, former assistant secretary of the treasury, announces that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Massachusetts. In a statement announcing his candidacy, Mr. Hamlin says:

"If nominated, I shall take the stump actively throughout the commonwealth in behalf of certain reforms which I believe to be vitally necessary to effective representative government, among which are:

The referendum as a popular check upon representative government. Home rule and increased legislative powers for cities and towns. Prohibiting by law under heavy penalties interference with the legislature or legislators by corporations by means of campaign contributions or appointments to office. Rigid municipal control of public utilities with a view to ultimate municipal ownership whenever necessary to make such control effective in public interest. Grants by the legislature or municipalities of rights in or along the public ways or streets to be subject to revocation at the will of the grantor; when not revocable, to be for short terms, for adequate consideration, and subject to the referendum. Concentration of executive power in the office of governor, with seats for heads of departments appointed by the governor in the legislature.

Vermont Democrats In Convention

Burlington, Vt., July 24.—The Democrats of Vermont are holding their state convention here today, and the indications point to the nomination of Felix W. McGettrick of St. Albans for governor, although many leaders of the party favor the endorsement of Percival W. Clement of Rutland, who was nominated by a convention of bolting Republicans in Burlington last week. The platform declares against colonies or dependencies of the United States anywhere, and denounces the Republican party for its alleged failure to procure freedom of speech for all citizens and for autocratic legislation in Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines; declares that trusts are the legitimate children of the McKinley and Dingley tariff bills; denounces the alleged corruption in the Republican party of Vermont; favors a high license, local option law, and calls for reforms in the system of representation in the Vermont house of representatives.

Slate Unbroken

Fargo, N. D., July 24.—The efforts to amend the report of the committee on resolutions so as to include a plank demanding that the question of prohibition be resubmitted to the voters was about the only feature of yesterday's Republican state convention. The effort, while unsuccessful, was a surprise in its apparent popularity. The ticket arranged by the leaders went through solid with Frank White for governor. The resolutions denounce the attacks made upon the administration by anti-imperialists; absolve the state and the Republican party from the charge that either is dominated by corporations and demand the reform of primary election laws.

PHILIPPINE CAMPAIGN

American Troops Lost 4156 by Death and Had 2897 Men Wounded

Washington, July 24.—Major Parker of the adjutant general's office has compiled some interesting statistics regarding the insurrection in the Philippines. There were 2561 engagements with the enemy, more or less serious, between Feb. 4, 1899, the date of the battle of Manila, and April 30, 1902, fixed as the virtual downfall of the insurrection. The larger proportions of these fights were attacks from ambush on the American troops or skirmishes in which only small detachments took part.

In almost no cases in these engagements did American troops surrender or have to retreat, or have to leave their dead or wounded in the possession of the enemy, notwithstanding that in many cases the percentage of loss was high.

The number of troops that have been transported to the Philippines and have arrived there up to July 16 last was 4135 officers and 123,803 men. The average strength, taken from monthly returns for the period of the insurrection, was approximately 40,000.

Major Parker summarizes the casualties of the American army as follows: Killed or died of wounds, 69 officers and 936 enlisted men; deaths from disease, 47 officers and 2535 enlisted men; deaths from accidents, 6 officers and 125 enlisted men; drowned, 6 officers and 257 enlisted men; suicides, 10 officers and 72 enlisted men; murdered, 1 officer and 91 enlisted men. Total deaths, 139 officers and 4016 enlisted men.

Wounded, 190 officers and 2707 enlisted men, a total of 2897; killed and wounded and deaths other than by disease, 282 officers and 4188 enlisted men; total, 4470.

A large proportion of the deaths by drowning occurred in action or in active operations against the enemy. Major Parker makes the percentage of killed and wounded to the strength of the army 9.7.

Frauds Severely Punished

Berlin, July 24.—The following sentences have been pronounced as a result of the criminal proceedings on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy, brought against a number of officials of the Leipziger bank, which failed about a year ago: Manager Exner, five years' penal servitude and five years' deprivation of civil rights; Director Geutzsch, three years' imprisonment; President Bodel of the board of overseers, fined 15,000 marks; Schroeder, Mayer and Woelkes, members of the board, fined 18,000 marks each; Fiebiger, 8000 marks fine, and Forster and Wilkens 5000 marks fine each. The defendants are compelled also to pay the cost of the prosecution.

The body was nude and without marks of identification. Besides the wounds in the throat the index finger and thumb of the left hand had been cut off. The police believe the man was murdered yesterday. No identification has been made. The body was that of a man 35 years old, weighing 200 pounds.

FEELING AT FEVER HEAT

Kaiser's Polish Subjects Have No Love For Him

PROPOSED VISIT TO POSEN

Not Likely to Be Given Up, Though Friends Advise Against It—Russia Utilizing Polish Passion to Secure Advantages on Frontier

Berlin, July 24.—Court Chamberlain Von Morawski, a Polish landed magnate, has appealed to Emperor William not to visit Posen during the army maneuvers to be held in September, as his majesty had planned to do. The chamberlain fears that some Polish fanatic might attempt to harm the emperor. Racial feeling is described as at fever heat and several Berlin journals take the view that it would be unwise for the emperor to expose himself unnecessarily.

The Post (Conservative) says it is informed that it would greatly relieve those responsible for the emperor's safety to learn that he had given up the trip. Prominent Germans residing in Posen are glad that the Polish officials and nobility have determined not to attend the festivities, as thereby the chances of unpleasant incidents arising are lessened.

It is scarcely likely that Emperor William will act upon Chamberlain Von Morawski's appeal, because he never permits himself to change his plans on account of the timidity of his advisers. He goes anywhere he thinks duty calls him; and, besides, it is his purpose to declare the government's Polish policy while in Polish territory; and his giving up of personal supervision of the maneuvers would be unprecedented.

The Polish question is regarded as the most pregnant in the government's domestic policy. While no observer believes the Polish agitation can really amount to much ultimately, it is embarrassing the relations with Austria and Russia. The Poles in Galicia enjoy local self-government and press privileges, which are not in vogue in Prussian Poland. Continual contrasts are made in the Austrian press between the conditions existing in Galicia and in the province of Posen which annoy this government and tend to weaken the triple alliance.

Indications are not wanting that Russia is disposed to utilize the Polish passion by giving greater freedom to the Russian Poles, thus creating along the Russian frontier a Prussian population in sympathy with Russia.

Count Von Buelow, the German imperial chancellor, is well aware of the disagreeable features of the Polish agitation, and it is quite likely he will devise measures to quiet the extreme violence of the Polish feeling.

Fighters In Fine Condition

San Francisco, July 24.—Experts on the scene declare that there is apparently nothing further to be desired in the condition of Jeffries and Fitzsimmons. The consensus of opinion seems to be, however, that Fitzsimmons' age and the difference in weight is against the chances of the Cornishman, and that Jeffries is the logical winner. The betting odds show Jeffries still a favorite at 2 to 1 and 10½ to 4, with much Fitzsimmons money in sight.

Testimony at Variance

Ellsworth, Me., July 24.—The trial of William A. Treworgy, charged with the murder of Sarah Ware, will be concluded today. The evidence is all in. Yesterday's developments were not very sensational, but the conflicting testimony produced by the defense and the state has served to mystify people more than ever regarding the case.

Illinois Farmers Suffer

Springfield, Ills., July 24.—A portion of Lacy levee at Havana was washed away yesterday by flood waters of the Illinois river and 12,000 acres of land, 5000 of which were under cultivation, are now inundated by water. Alarm whistles sounded a warning to the farmers in the flooded district.

Train Robbers Got $53,000

Dispatch Boat Struck Rocks

Newport, R. I., July 24.—United States dispatch boat Scorpion went ashore at the Blue rocks in the upper harbor yesterday, having struck hard and fast, but she backed from the position with her own engines last night. She then proceeded to the bay and anchored for the night. It is believed that the damage to the vessel is slight.

Trolley Line Without Tracks

Franklin, N. H., July 24.—Two Lowell, Mass., capitalists are here to make arrangements for starting the trackless trolley system in this city, where the only line of the kind in America will soon be in operation. A 20-horse power omnibus will be run by overhead wires on a macadam road for one mile, as an experiment.

Two Young Heroes

Woonsocket, R. I., July 24.—Ernest Feather, 15, was seized with cramps and drowned in Blackstone river yesterday in attempting to rescue Michael Tuite, a companion. Tuite, who could not swim, was finally brought ashore by Patrick O'Neil, 13 years old, who witnessed the accident.

In Hands of State Police

Many small appropriation orders are being passed by the City Council to be charged to "any unappropriated money or unexpended balances." These are unknown quantities.

Councilman Meyer is to be congratulated. The auditors who heard his appeal from the award for damages are well known and fair-minded gentlemen who doubtless endeavored to do justice to all. The award is not as high as Mr. Meyer put it, but higher than most people would place it.

President Roosevelt stated, before he departed for Oyster Bay, that he desired a complete rest and hoped to get it in his summer home. While he is "resting" he is receiving the more prominent men in political life, rendering the more important decisions in executive matters and preparing a large number of speeches to be delivered on his fall trip—a fair summer's work for the ordinary man.

All roads will lead to Braintree next Monday, when there will be a celebration in honor of "Old Home Week." The program in brief includes a parade in the morning of a battalion of the Fifth regiment, M. V. M., the Fire department, secret societies, etc.; a firemen's muster, base ball and other sports in the afternoon, and in the evening a public reception at the Town Hall with distinguished speakers.

Chubbuck street people must submit to the widening of the street now, whether they desire it or not. The amount of damage will be an after consideration. Perhaps when they obtain a wide, well-built thoroughfare and electric cars they will appreciate the improvement. Cars should be run to the Fore River shipyard to accommodate the employes.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A criticism upon municipal government from the Philadelphia Record has been going the rounds of the editorial columns recently, to the effect that during the past twenty years the cost of municipal government has increased 300 per cent., while the population of the city has increased but 50 per cent. in the same period. Appreciation of the truth of the criticism and the fitness of its application to local conditions justifies the writers in appropriating the lesson for their own readers, for while the extravagance and corruption in the larger cities of the country attracts the greater attention because opportunity is magnified there and as a consequence operations are greater, in substance the criticism which the Record makes of the administration of the affairs of Philadelphia applies to every city in the country.—Haverhill Gazette.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday school of the Congregational church at Quincy Point held its annual picnic at Nantasket on Wednesday. At 10 o'clock two chartered cars awaited the children at the church. The cars were soon filled with the children accompanied by their teachers, although the weather was rather unpleasant in the morning it cleared by noon and the picnic proved a success, and all had a very pleasant time.

DAMAGE $77,118.

Andrew A. Meyer Awarded That Amount.

For Injury to Fensmere Property.

By Construction of Metropolitan High Level Sewer.

Councilman Andrew A. Meyer, the proprieter of the Hotel Fensmere property at Houghs Neck was on Wednesday awarded $77,118 with interest by the auditors chosen by the courts to settle the question of damages because of the taking of land and construction of the Metropolitan high level sewer.

The State made Meyer an offer of $20,000, which he refused and William H. Baker asked for the appointment of auditors.

The court appointed S. K. Hamilton of Wakefield, Robert O. Harris of East Bridgewater and John W. McDonald of Marlboro, they heard the case for 36 days at the State House. There were about 30 experts called in, and those for the State said that the damage done would not exceed $15,000.

The facts went to show that the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, in the construction of a high level sewer at Houghs Neck, injured the hotel property owned by Meyer. Lawyer Baker was assisted in the case by James E. Cotter of Hyde Park. Attorney-General Parker appeared for the Commonwealth.

The commission took a strip of land about 100 feet wide along the west shore of Quincy bay between the Bayside and Great Hill and near the high water mark. Hotel Fensmere, the dancing pavilion and other buildings connected with the hotel set on low land not over ten feet about high water and commanded a good view and enjoyed the breezes of Quincy bay. The big sewer at this point is constructed wholly above ground, that is the old level, and a high breakwater is being built which entirely obstructs the view of the water of the bay.

Mr. Myer had at considerable expense constructed a low breakwater with a dam, which confined the sea water at low tide and made an attractive pond. This pond will probably disappear when the sewer is constructed as the water of the sea will be entirely shut out.

Few realize the high level of the sewer at this point, but it becomes more apparent every day as the breakwater being constructed grows. It will not continue along the shore of Great Hill but will intersect the street well up on the side of the hill and continue along the street to Nut Island. The award of $77,118 is perhaps the largest awarded in connection with the construction of the Metropolitan sewer.

South Quincys Reorganized.

When the South Quincy teams line up for play on Saturday there will be some new faces. Last Saturday they defeated the strong Glendon A. A. team making its eighth consecutive victory. Capt. Priovano who unfortunately met with an accident recently which resulted in the breaking of his forearm will of course be out of the game for the present and may not be able to play again this season. William Flynn who played last year and who is a member of the present team has been appointed captain. The absence of Priovanno at shortstop has weakened the infield considerably and new men have been filling the position which caused a general shift of the team.

Manager Marnock therefore has decided on making a few changes which will result in the strenthening of the team in both the outfield and infield. Dunn who has played the infield in the past and also pitched will cover shortstop; Faircloth recently of the Jog-Alongs will play second; McDevitt of the Waverly A. A. will play third; Welch of last year's team will do the pitching, and Dunican of the recent Fore River team will play centrefield; Birnie will cover the initial bag; Coughlin will do the backstop work and Flynn will play his present position leftfield and Rich rightfield.

These changes will place the team in a position to make it interesting for any of the visiting teams and beginning Saturday the base ball fans should see the fastest kind of ball at the Ward 3 playground.

Cadillac Won.

The Cadillac, built by Hanley for the Canada cup races last year, was first in her class of 35 footers at Put in-Bay on Wednesday. She out-sailed all the 40 and 45 footers as well, and captured the time flag.

We have all doubtless noticed the effect produced by rapidly swinging a lantern in the dark. The impressions produced by the light linger on the retina of the eye, so that instead of a single point light one imagines he sees a whirling stream of fire.

Mr. John Creelman of Suffern, N. Y., says the Scientific American, has invented an illuminated Indian club with which this illusion can be very pleasingly effected. The club has a hollow perforated body threaded at the lower end to receive the handle portion. Secured to the handle and adapted to enter the hollow is an incandescent lamp. Electricity is conducted to the lamp by means of wires passing through the handle and connected to any suitable source of electric current.

ILLUMINATED INDIAN CLUBS.

When the current is turned on, the light radiates from the numerous perforations in the club. One acquainted with Indian club exercises can give his audience a very fascinating entertainment, especially if colored lamps be used instead of the ordinary white light.

J. D. Martini, who for many years has been the manager of the Alhambra plantation in Iberville parish, La., for General W. J. Behan, in a conversation at New Orleans recently said:

"The crops out our way are looking well, and everything points to a successful year in spite of the rather unfavorable start in some sections. I believe that I have one little matter that will be of general interest to the public of Louisiana, and that is an automatic cane loader which I have lately patented.

"The device is comparatively light and easy to handle and will be drawn by mules. A rake or fork extends along the surface of the ground and picks up the cane and scoops it off the ground. It is carried to a kind of screen incline and up the incline by a series of forks or carriers that operate by a gearing in an opposite direction to that of the machine. These forks take the cane to a table above the incline, and from thence it is placed in carts.

"The saving of time and labor will be worth figuring on, and I believe the scheme is a good one. General Behan is interested with me in the plant that we purpose to build for making the cane loaders."

Sharpening Razors by Magnetism.

A patent recently granted to Oscar Newhouse makes the novel claim that by placing the cutting edge of a razor in close proximity to a bar magnet the former may be perfectly sharpened. The inventor says that the magnet draws the minute teeth or projections of the sharp edge, which may be seen under a microscope, back into a straight line after they have been bent into all sorts of angles by the razor's use. He states that after tests lasting for months he has found that the beneficial effect is very marked and that a razor can be used a great number of times without stropping or honing if it is simply placed in a proper position near the magnet when it is put away.

New Theory of Earth's Formation.

Richard Conrad Schiedt, A. M., Ph. D., professor of natural science and chemistry at Franklin and Marshall college, announces a new and startling theory of terrestrial construction and evolution. His theories are diametrically opposed to those espoused by geologists and scientists of the past and generally accepted today. Professor Schiedt holds that the earth is not solid, as we have been taught for generations to believe, but that the center is gaseous and ultimately will be a vacuum, and that the center of gravity is not at the center of the sphere.

Wood as a Food.

Wood is to be the newest food, says Heinrich Reh, a professor of chemistry in Berlin. He has secured a patent upon a form of animal fodder which has sawdust as its chief ingredient. He argues that animals have a decided liking for young shoots, roots of shrubs, tree bark and other heavy food of the same nature, and, since experiments have proved that the nutriment contained in such growth remains in it even after it has become wood, he observes that with a little salt and water added to it the sawdust will prove to be a highly nourishing diet.

FEDERAL BUILDING.

Government Inspector to Meet Those Interested in Site.

Edward A. Crane of the Treasury department at Washington was in Quincy on Wednesday in relation to the purchase of land for a government building for which $12,000 has been appropriated by Congress.

Mr. Crane in company with Postmaster Hammond made a tour of the city and looked over the several sites that have been offered to the government. Before returning to Washington and making his report, Mr. Crane desires to meet those who have offered land, as well as all others interested in the proposed building that he may get an idea which location or site meets with the greatest favor.

Postmaster Hammond has arranged for a meeting next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, to which all who are interested are invited.

The meeting will be held at the postoffice unless the number should be too large in which event an adjournment will probably be made to the rooms of the Master Builders and Traders Association in the Savings Bank building.

Everybody interested should make it their business to be present at this meeting. It is hoped that they will be enabled to unite upon some one of the sites that have been offered.

Play by Children.

A large number of children, many accompanied by their parents, attended a delightful entertainment given by the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Packard of Chestnut street on the playground in the rear of their residence in aid of the Boston Floating Hospital.

The play, which was a gypsy cantata in two acts, was produced under the immediate direction of Miss Ruth Packard, who displayed marked ability for one of her age. She played the leading part but was ably assisted by her three sisters, the Misses Minnie, Ella and Dorothy Packard. Miss Nina Bates also deserves much credit for the part she took in the play and her singing would do credit to one much older.

Following is the cast:

Daisy—A stolen girl, Ruth Packard
Florence Earle—A school girl, Nina Bates
Kate Bloomer—A school girl, Ella Packard
Frank—A school boy, Dorothy Packard
Willie—A school boy, Hazel Dewhurst
Ike—Gypsy boy, Minnie Packard
School children—Miriam Miller, Margaret Hunt, Evelyn Galvin, Gladys Hunt and Hazel Carlin.

The prologue was read by Zayma Galvin.

A note on the program is of importance. It read: "As we haven't any boys in this play, the girls will take the boys' parts and will sing in the boys' chorus."

When the children commenced rehearsing it was simply for their own amusement, but as many of their young friends signified their desire to witness the production, Miss Ruth decided to charge an admission and donate the proceeds to the Boston Floating Hospital. The idea was popular and although but five cents were charged many adults gave larger amounts, so in all quite a sum was realized.

The stage settings and programs were wholly arranged by the Packard children.

Refreshments were served to all after the entertainment.

It is hoped that the success of these young misses will inspire other children of Quincy by their own efforts to raise money for so worthy a cause.

City Scavenger in Court.

Charles L. Prescott, the City Scavenger, was arraigned before the district court this morning upon two complaints for violation of the city ordinances sworn out by William F. Steadman.

The first complaint alleges that on July 22 he did deposit the contents of a privy-vault cesspool and other filth on his premises without a permit of the Board of Health.

The second complaint alleges that on July 22 he used two carts for the collection of swill, fat, grease and other decaying or offensive animal matter, not protected in such a manner as to prevent the contents and odor from escaping, and that said carts were not marked with the owner's initials and number of the size required by the rules of the Board of Health.

Prescott pleaded not guilty and the cases were continued until next Monday.

For Manslaughter.

The Boston papers report Edward A. Mulligan or Mulliken of Quincy to have been arrested at Cottage City on the charge of manslaughter, by causing the death of Ariel B. Scott of Westbury, whose horse became frightened by an automobile. Neither Mulligan or Mulliken appear in the Quincy directory or on the voting lists of the city.

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

Mrs. E. Rixby and daughter, Miss Alice are visiting friends in Douglass, Mass.

Quincy is represented at the Bryan love feast at Nantasket today, and all of them are not Democrats.

Miss Alice Thomas of 105 Granite street, contributed the short story to the Boston Post on Wednesday.

The stone steps removed from the main entrance to City Hall are being used around the basement windows.

Miss Elizabeth F. Curley and Miss Nellie L. Geary of Atlantic have been spending several days at North Easton.

The Roslindales will be here on Saturday to play the West Quincys on the Ward Four playgrounds. Game called at 3.30.

The joint Council Committees of Public Buildings and Police, and that of Public Buildings and Ordinances will meet tonight.

Kindly remember that the names of the masts of the Thomas W. Lawson schooner are in order: Fore, main, mizzen, spanker, jigger, driver and pusher.

A Boston paper reports Timothy Lehan, 28 years old, was arrested yesterday afternoon by police headquarters inspectors on a charge of stealing a $50 watch from Thomas Bowker of Quincy. Lehan has been living at 71 Kneeland street.

George Chandler, an employee at the Fore River Works, was at work on top of a crane this noon fixing the wire rope when he lost his balance and fell to the ground fracturing his hip. He was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

The funeral of Harry D. Nicoll was held Wednesday afternoon from his father's home on Water street and was largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Ellery C. Butler of the First church. Music was by the choir of Christ church.

John Evans and his wife started today for a trip to the west. They will visit friends and relatives in New York, Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and several other places further west. Of course we will expect to hear from them several times before their return. We wish them a happy trip.

New Battleships.

A Washington despatch to the Herald says: upon the recomendation of Rear Admiral Bowles, chief constructor, Secretary Moody has directed that advertisements for bids for the contract for one of two battleships authorized by Congress be immediately published. The circular defining the characteristics of this vessel and her sister ship, which will be built at the Brooklyn Navy Yard will be finally considered tomorrow at a meeting of the board of construction.

The general features of the vessels will not be altered in any way, they having already been fixed; but there are some minor details still under discussion which must be settled before the advertisements for bids can be issued.

Rear Admrial Bowles has completed the plans for the battleships, which will be, when completed, the most formidable vessels in the world, carrying an armament comprising four 12-inch, eight 8-inch and 12 7-inch guns.

Lodge vs. Lodge.

Saturday afternoon at 3 P. M. a team composed of members of John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., of Wollaston, will cross bats with a team composed of members of Mount Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F. of Quincy in a game of base ball. The game promises to be a very hot one as the sporting blood of the two lodges has been fully aroused by the challenge and answer, and as police protection has been promised the umpire and an ambulance is to be in close attendance, and an enthusiastic crowd of rooters for both sides, everything looks as if the occasion will be one to be long remembered in the history of our city. The game is to be played at Merrymount Park.

Invites an Investigation.

To Editors of Ledger:

After standiug nearly everything in shape of annoyance, damage to my business, etc., from one who would like to dictate and rule our whole community, I now find that he has drawn anotner to his fold, not my friend, but W. F. Steadman, a neighbor. This neighbor swears out two warrants against me.

Providing I have violated any City Ordinance, I wish to say it was not intentional. Further, I wish to say that I would gladly invite a thorough inspection of property mentioned in complaint as to whether or not anything offensive exists.

I remain, very truly yours,
C. L. PRESCOTT,
City Scavanger.

Driver of an Automobile Is Charged With Manslaughter

Cottage City, Mass., July 24.—On a charge of manslaughter, together with violation of the automobile law, Edward A. Mulligan was brought before Judge Eldridge yesterday on a complaint issued by Officer Dexter. He furnished $2500 bonds to appear on July 31. A horse driven by Ariel B. Scott of Westbury became frightened by Mulligan's automobile. Scott, who was 77 years old, received injuries which caused his death.

Lawyer Dies From Poison

Malden, Mass., July 24.—Frank B. Hemenway, a well known Malden lawyer and former member of a Boston law firm, died last evening at his home here under circumstances pointing strongly to suicide. A doctor found that Hemenway was suffering from some poison. An investigation proved that he had a packet of cyanide of potassium in his pocket with about 30 grains abstracted. A strong emetic was administered, but Hemenway died in great agony a few minutes later.

Receiver For Wall Trunk Company

Boston, July 24.—In the case of Eugene O. Pratt vs. the Clinton Wall Trunk Manufacturing company et al., Judge Braley yesterday appointed Allan G. Butterick ancillary receiver of the defendant company, to take possession of all its assets, books, etc., in this state. The supreme court in Maine appointed Charles A. Strout receiver of the company a short time ago. The suit was based on alleged misconduct in the management of the concern.

Strikers Cited Into Court

Plymouth, Mass., July 24.—A writ of contempt was served yesterday upon Michael Bagnall, James Patent, James Delaney and George McNorton, citing them to appear before the superior court in Boston to answer the charge of interfering with, assaulting and intimidating employes of the American Woolen company in its Puritan mills here, in violation of the injunction issued against them some time since by Chief Justice Mason.

Lost Fishermen Picked Up

Boston, July 24.—Fishing schooner Sylph, which arrived yesterday, brought 10 members of the crew of fishing schooner Mary T. Fallon, who strayed away from their vessel in a dory last Sunday on the fishing grounds during a thick fog. Two men who left the Fallon in another dory at the same time have not yet been heard from. The Fallon has not yet returned from her trip, probably on account of being shorthanded.

Motorman Not Responsible

Chelsea, Mass., July 24.—Malachi Rourke, the motorman who was operating the car which ran over and killed Lester Kiff, 5 years old, was yesterday brought before the police court. The evidence showed that the Kiff boy fell from a milk wagon, on which he was riding, on the tracks and directly in front of the moving car; that the boy was killed by accident, and Rourke was not responsible.

Bicyclist Broke Collarbone

Revere, Mass., July 24.—The 25-mile motor-paced race between James Moran, Hugh McLean and Joe Nelson was stopped in the 21st mile last night owing to an accident, in which McLean was thrown, due to the slippery track, and Blanchard, the steersman of McLean's motor, ran into the wreck, breaking his collarbone. The fog was so thick one could scarcely see across the track.

Burglars In Court

Boston, July 24.—Carl and Julius Peterson, brothers, charged with several burglaries, were called for hearing in court yesterday. Patrolman Ferris, who unearthed the stealings, told how he made the arrest and what caused him to be suspicious. The defense did not call any witnesses and the accused were held in bail of $3000 each for the grand jury.

Assessors Criticised.

Editors of the Ledger:

Will you kindly print the following in your esteemed paper?

Has the board of assessors of Quincy the right to levy a poll tax on a non-resident who happens to be visiting his folks?

Is it really the duty of the aforsaid board to act, unasked, as the collector of taxes for cities which, though entitled to the taxes in question, have made no effort to collect them?

The board of assessors of Quincy generously answers "yes" to both queries. How kind of it!

Recently a bill for poll tax came addressed to me. Now, I am not a resident of Quincy, and have not been for several years. Thinking that a mistake had been made, I paid the bill, at the same time plainly stating that my name had been wrongly substituted for my father's, and asking that the mistake be corrected. The money was taken:—and as the assessors rather humorously said, "The money that goes into the treasury never comes out?—I met the board, and asked its reasons for taxing me. 'My name had been given in.'—That I showed to have been due to error.—'You claim no residence anywhere?'—No, not yet; no permanent residence. But I am, and always have been perfectly ready to pay all my dues. If I have not been taxed heretofore, it is on account of the slackness of the cities in which I have been living.

'Yet you must pay taxes somewhere.' Where it is due, and not elsewhere. Above all, not in Quincy, which has not the slightest claim on me as a citizen or resident.—'Were you in Quincy the first of May?'—No. I was on the Atlantic, returning from France. I stayed in New York till the 6th or 8th.—'H'm'—and therefore Quincy could not tax me now. I believe, even though I were to remain here the rest of the year. Besides, I am not a citizen of the United States, and if taxed, can be, only during residence here. So far as Quincy is concerned, I shall be abroad during the next year.—'Well, your folks live here. You received some schooling here.'—My folks pay their taxes; and as for the benefits I have received from Quincy, they cannot, I fear be paid by a poll tax levied unjustly. It is too easy a way out of my debt to the charming city.—'Well, you must pay a poll tax somewhere, we will let you know by mail.''

Today I received a horrible quibble of a note. "The Board voted no abatement on your 1902 poll tax." One would assume that it was a poll tax belonging to Quincy!

If I were angry I should say that the method of the Board is a trifle unbusinesslike: its reasoning bad, and its action officious. But I am not angry. Truly, 'the money that goes in the treasury never comes out.'

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank Fanning was arraigned for larceny. Case continued until Wednesday.

The continued case of Henry W. Maxim of Weymouth for failing to keep an expressman's book was called and he was fined $50. Appealed.

Charles L. Prescott was arraigned upon two complaints for violation of the City Ordinances. Cases continued until Monday.

kills, not necessarily suddenly, but SURELY. It preys upon the intellectual powers more than we realize. It consumes the vitality faster than nature can replenish it, and we cannot tell just what moment a temporary or complete aberration of the mind will result. THE NEWCOMER AT PICKVILLE

[Original.]

There is a flutter among the men of the mining town facetiously dubbed Pickville. Since the place has emerged from the grub (camp) into the butterfly (town) there have been but three women within its corporate limits, and they all married. Now comes a young woman styling herself Molly Grifton and sets up a small store. Mining supply dealers and gamblers are among the eligible men in Pickville, besides a young man, Arthur Huggins, in consumption, who came to save his life and to save souls, though he has neither church nor salary. The day after Molly Grifton's appearance every bachelor in the town was agog as to who would draw the prize, for it was not for a moment supposed that any good looking young woman would remain long in such a community without being appropriated. The question was sifted like an algebraic problem. The parson was not considered at all; the mine owners had wives in the east; the merchants were none of them proficient with the gun; the miners were too busy to look after their interests. This left the gamblers to fight it out among themselves.

The most dreaded among the gamblers was Fox Armstrong, and when he was observed to stop at Molly Grifton's store and buy up the first edition of the stock, cleaning out the shelves entirely, the rest of the profession concluded to keep at a safe distance. But one man in Pickville had the audacity to buck against Fox Armstrong, and he was a young prospector named Stephen Bartlett. Stephen was the only man in town who seemed to find favor with the lady, and, though he had not the means of wooing by trade, as in the case of Armstrong, the scale was turned in his favor by his manly and honest bearing, his cheerful disposition and certain ingenuous traits which rendered him attractive to women. He was warned by his friends that as he valued his life he should refrain from any attention to Miss Molly.

As a firecracker has been known to kindle a city, so a meek and lowly man started the shooting that was bound in time to take place on account of Molly Grifton. Fox Armstrong one night ceased dealing faro at 11:30 o'clock on account of an indisposition, concluding that he would go to his room and turn in for the night early. Passing Molly Grifton's store, he was surprised, though all was dark within, to see the door standing ajar. Thinking that some one might be appropriating Molly's belongings and that he might win credit with her by capturing the thief, he sidled up to the door and listened. Low voices came from the room behind the store where Molly lived, the one a woman's, the other a man's. Armstrong at once assumed that his rival Bartlett was stealing a march upon him and got his revolver in position to handle readily at the exit of the intruder upon what he considered or wished to consider his own domain. Presently the two inside advanced to the shop.

"Come," said the girl; "take it. You are paining me by refusing."

"Do you suppose I could live a moment among these men if they knew you were furnishing me with money?"

"But they don't know it."

"Very well; I will take this. Next week I am going to work with a pick and shovel."

"You will do no such thing."

There was the sound of a kiss, and the man stepped into the street.

Great heavens! It was the parson! Unconscious of being observed—for Armstrong occupied a position where he could not be seen—Arthur Huggins wended his way toward his room. Armstrong followed him and when in the center of a bridge across the gulch accosted him:

"You white livered hypocrite"— he was beginning, but paused. A step was heard on the far end of the bridge, and in a few moments Stephen Bartlett came up and was recognized under the starlight.

"Parson Huggins and Fox Armstrong together here at this time of night! What does it mean?"

"That he has been skulking with Molly Grifton, which I don't permit."

"He has as good a right as you anyway," said Stephen.

"You give me great joy in taking his part," sneered Armstrong. "I can't kill a man with a woman's soul in him, but I can take care of"—

The words were never finished. Had he not had something of the contempt for Bartlett that he had for the parson he would have fired first and talked afterward. Stephen knew full well that firing, and quick firing, was essential or he would be a dead man. Armstrong dropped.

Molly Grifton heard the shot and, fearing that Huggins might have been waylaid, rushed upon the bridge.

"Stephen! Arthur! What does it mean?"

"That dog," said Stephen, "assumes sole right to you. I have maintained that Parson Huggins or any man you choose has an equal right."

"This is all my fault," cried Huggins bitterly as Molly bent over the wounded gambler to assist him. "Molly is my sister. I came here to recover my health. Having no means, I was about to return when she came out to help me. Knowing that this community would not respect me for being helped by a woman, she took another name and concealed our relationship."

The next day the town of Pickville was startled with the news that Stephen Bartlett had downed Fox Armstrong and was going to marry Molly. The rest of the story was not divulged. SARAH PARKE TRIMMINGHAM.

GULF STREAM MARKS.

Its Course Through the Ocean Plainly Indicated.

The color of the gulf stream is a perceptible deeper blue than that of the neighboring sea, this blueness forming one of the standard references of the nautical novelists. The depth of color is due to the high percentage of salt contained as compared with the cold green water of higher latitudes, observation having shown that the more salt held in solution by sea water the more intensely blue is its color. Thus, says a writer in the National Geographic Magazine, even in extratropical latitudes, we sometimes observe water of a beautiful blue color, as for instance in the Mediterranean and in other nearly landlocked basins, where, the influx of fresher water being more or less impeded, the percentage of salt contained is raised by evaporation above the average.

Another important fact in connection with the stream is its almost tropical temperature, due to the fact that its high velocity enables it to reach the middle latitudes with very little loss of heat. Upon entering its limits the temperature of the sea water frequently shows a rise of 10 degrees and even 15 degrees. It was this fact that gave to the stream in the later years of the eighteenth century and the earlier years of the nineteenth an importance in the minds of navigators that it no longer possesses. In those days the chronometer invented by Harrison in 1765 was still an experiment. Instruments were crude and nautical tables often at fault. The result was that the determination of the longitude was largely a matter of guesswork, a vessel after a voyage from the channel to America often being out of her reckoning by degrees instead of by minutes. The idea, first suggested by Benjamin Franklin, that the master of a vessel by observing the temperature of the surface water could tell the moment of his entry into the gulf stream and could hence fix his position to within a few miles was hailed with delight.

Wood Vaccination.

The development of new colonies depends largely upon soft wood for telegraph and railway lines, mines, timbering, buildings and other purposes. Hardwood is too difficult to work, while in tropical climates the soft wood is quickly destroyed by ferments, worms, insects and other agencies. It has been suggested that an important part of the future equipment for settling hot countries will be a portable apparatus for rendering wood antiseptic. Woods treated with creosote or sulphate of copper have proved very durable for railway sleepers.

Heat Measuring.

The Yerkes observatory has a heat measuring apparatus sensitive to almost one-millionth of a degree of heat and has succeeded in measuring the heat reaching the earth from the heavenly bodies, Vega, Arcturus, Jupiter and Saturn. The relative intensities were found to be .51, 1.14, 2.38 and .37.

Biliousness is a very indefinite term. To the public it means a sallow complexion, a dark mind and a dark brown taste. To the physician it means overeating or the eating of indigestible food, lack of exercise and a lack of attention to the daily functions of the body, says a writer in the Philadelphia Press.

I do not think the constant use of drugs is of service to persons prone to biliousness. Far more good can be derived and in a more natural way by taking care not to place too much work on the liver and stomach, and also when there is some noticeable improvement all the more care should be required lest the feeling of good health lead to indiscretions, which will place the sufferer on a lower plane than when the treatment was started.

Great care should be taken with the diet. There is no doubt that people eat too much, and this tendency with the luxury at table in these prosperous days seems to increase the work thrown upon the liver.

Breakfast should be a simple meal—coffee, soft boiled eggs and some fruit. Lunch should also be very light—small chop, few potatoes and some tea. Dinner in the evening for the bilious should be carefully selected, for the dragged out, tired feeling the following morning depends on the evening meal. A small piece of steak or chicken, mashed potatoes, green peas, string beans, plain milk pudding, junket or sago and milk and cut oranges, no coffee, should be the fare.

Do not eat anything with fat or grease, no salt fish, lobster, veal, rich soup, grains, butter, fried articles, cheese, nuts, pies, cake, patties, fried oysters, pastries, beer and ale, coffee in excess, sweet potatoes, bananas, pineapple, radishes, cucumbers, sweets.

Tobacco must be restricted and should be avoided altogether if possible, as should alcohol.

Exercise should be taken systematically, especially that which develops the abdominal muscles and aids the circulation in the abdomen. Lying prone on the back and drawing the stiff legs perpendicular to body is an excellent device. Exercise in the room at night for a very short time without apparatus with muscles tense is sufficient, if persisted in.

Phosphate of soda in teaspoonful doses in a glass of hot water should be taken before each meal and before bedtime and will do wonders.

Regular hours, to bed at 10:30 every night, are necessary, as is constant cleanliness of the skin with friction.

A RELIGIOUS OUTBREAK

Against New French Law Relating to Schools

SYMPATHY FOR THE NUNS

Results In Demonstrations When Attempts Are Made to Close Their Institutions—Threatening Attitude of the Catholic Population

Paris, July 24.—The agitation provoked by the order of Prime Minister Combes to close the congregationalist schools recalls to some extent the scenes enacted when M. Ferry, then premier, expelled the Jesuits in 1880. Demonstrations in favor of the nuns and teaching friars are taking place in Paris and many places in the provinces, where the prefects presented themselves at the schools and ordered that the institutions be closed.

The Nationalists have joined the Clericals in engineering the agitation, and their leaders are in the forefront of the effervescence in Paris. Considerable sympathy has been worked up on behalf of the nuns, and their schools have been made the particular objects of demonstrations. The Clericals called upon their sympathizers to meet outside of the school conducted by the sisters of St. Vincent de Paul, in the northeast quarter of Paris, which was closed yesterday afternoon, and a considerable crowd gathered there, compelling a large body of police and mounted municipal guards to form a cordon in the streets leading to the school. A few trifling collisions occurred between the Clericals and counter-demonstrators, who replied to the Clericals' cries of "Long live the good sisters," and "Vive la liberte" with "Down with the priests" and "Long live the republic."

Anti-Clerical meetings in the latin quarter last evening led to some effervescence, but no noteworthy disorder. A few students, followed by a crowd composed of the rougher element, marched up and down the Boulevard St. Michel till a late hour, chanting anti-Clerical refrains and shouting "Down with the priests and the pope," but these fled at the sight of the mounted guards and patrols.

The greatest excitement in the provinces is displayed in the Clerical stronghold of Brittany, where the peasants have gathered in front of the nuns' schools in several places and declared they will not allow the nuns to be expelled. At Landerneau a crowd of farmers and women have mounted guard before the schools of the white sisters, awaiting the arrival of the police. The inhabitants of Ploudaniel who also are guarding the sisters' school, seized a lay schoolmaster and thrashed him with nettles. At La Bresse, the commissary of police, accompanied by gendarmes, thrice tried to approach the congregationalist school in order to effect its closure, but was obliged to abandon the attempt because of the threatening attitude of the population. At St. Ambroix, near Nimes, the demonstrators detached the horses from carriages which were conveying the sisters to the railway station and dragged the vehicles with their occupants back to the convent, shouting "Down with the tyrants." The gendarmes were powerless to prevent the demonstrators from carrying out their plans, and reinforcements had to be summoned. Against these and similar incidents, however, must be set off the addresses in support of the government voted by many municipal councils.

While considerable sympathy is felt with the sisters personally Prime Minister Combes feels that he is supported by the mass of the country and is not likely to recede from the position he has taken up. The trouble is caused mainly by the ambiguity of the wording of the law of associations, which has led branches of the congregations, such as the schools now closed, to suppose that their position was legalized by the request for authorization made by headquarters. This was even the interpretation of the matter accepted by M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the former premier, but Prime Minister Combes takes a contrary view.

New Record For Motor Cycle

Minneapolis, July 24.—A. A. Hansen completed his 1000-mile road ride on a motor cycle against time shortly after noon yesterday, the elapsed time being 72 hours, 26 minutes, 50 seconds, and the actual riding time, 54:59:30. This is believed to be the fastest road ride of the distance on record on any vehicle that does not run on a prepared track. Hansen also holds the bicycle 1000-mile road record, 92:36.

Boy Gets Life Imprisonment

Guthrie, O. T., July 24.—Governor Ferguson has commuted the death sentence of the Indian boy, Cephus Bruner, aged 14, to life imprisonment. He was to have been hanged next Friday for the murder of Martin West, aged 12.

Dresden, July 24.—King George of Saxony, who succeeded to the throne June 19 last on the death of his brother Albert, is suffering from pneumonia.

A TRIVIAL INCIDENT

Said to Have Led to the War Which Devastated South Africa

Berlin, July 24.—Dr. B. O. Keiner, mayor of Bloemfontein, has arrived in Berlin. He says he attributes the war in South Africa to the impoliteness shown by President Kruger to the late Cecil Rhodes during their last interview, which took place on the street in Pretoria, where Rhodes had arranged to carry on negotiations with Kruger. Before Rhodes could state fully the object of his visit, according to Mayor Keiner, Kruger, who had a bible under his arm, growled: "I must go to church," and broke off the interview abruptly, leaving Rhodes standing in the street. That was the last time Rhodes saw Kruger and he left Pretoria convinced that the old man was implacable.

Boer Leaders' Sentiment

Capetown, July 24.—Generals Botha and Delarey, who started from Pretoria Monday on their way to Europe, arrived here yesterday. At a meeting held in the Duten Reformed church, in thanking those present for the welcome extended to them, General Botha said he wished to impress upon his hearers the necessity for working hand in hand with the British, as South Africa was the only country they could call home. General Delarey said the Boers had buried their Mausers and the flag, but not their traditions.

Stock Carried Off by Flood

Clinton, Ia., July 24.—One of the most disastrous rain and hail storms that ever visited this section swept over part of Whiteside and Bureau counties, Ills., just east of this city. The banks of the Hennepin canal were overflowed, the water carrying away two residences. Hundreds of horses, cattle and hogs were drowned. Fields of corn and small grains were totally destroyed by hail. The loss will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Worried Over American Invasion

London, July 24.—Speaking at Chingford last evening, Richard J. Seddon, premier of New Zealand, referred to the grave menace to British commerce from combinations of American capitalists, which, he said, are monopolizing railways and shipping. The country, declared Mr. Seddon, must awaken to the peril threatening it.

Without Water Protection

Camden, S. C., July 24.—Tuesday night's fire destroyed one of the most substantial blocks of Camden, entailing an estimated loss of $70,000. The town was entirely at the mercy of the flames, the water plant having been recently destroyed by fire. A change in the direction of the wind finally checked the flames.

Investigating Mine Disaster

Johnstown, Pa., July 24.—Coroner Miller yesterday began the inquest into the disaster in the Cambria Steel company's rolling mill mine on July 10, by which 112 men lost their lives. When the inquest adjourned for the day 12 witnesses had been examined without any unusual incident having developed.

Schley Question a Factor

Piedmont, W. Va., July 24.—The Democrats of the Second district yesterday nominated John T. McGraw of Grafton for congress. McGraw was defeated by Dayton four years ago. The platform denounces Dayton for his stand against Schley's recognition by congress.

Want Tips on Philippines

Washington, July 24.—The Japanese minister, accompanied by the governor of Formosa, yesterday called at the war department. They desired to obtain information from the insular bureau concerning the Philippines, as conditions in the island of Formosa are similar in some respects to those existing in the Philippines.

The man on the stage who does the trick of escaping from firmly tied ropes, submits to the bonds with a smile. He knows he can get out of the ropes that are being knotted. Put the same man in the woods and let Indian captors bind him to a tree for torture and he would struggle to the last against the bonds.

When the stomach is diseased there are bonds being woven every hour about the organs dependent on the stomach—heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, etc. The folly of mankind is to passively submit to the fastening of these bonds with no effort to escape until the pain they cause arouses fear.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys and other organs, when these diseases, as is often the case, have their origin in the diseased stomach.

"For a long time I was suffering and was hardly able to get about," writes Mr. Andrew J. Jennings, of Thomas, Tucker Co., W. Va., Box 194. "Was bothered with kidney trouble and my whole system was out of order; had no appetite. A friend of mine told me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I did so and the first bottle restored my appetite. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and some of the 'Pleasant Pellets' and feel like a new person."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from impurities.

A MAN AGAINST A NATION.

The Most Curious European War That Ever Was Waged.

The most curious European war ever waged was that which in the sixteenth century, the period of the reformation and the renaissance, was carried on single handed for between five and six years between a bankrupt grocer of Berlin and the elector of Saxony, who was the most powerful German prince of the period. The grocer's name was Hans Kohlhase, and the immediate cause of the quarrel was the arresting of two of his horses in the elector's territory, he being a subject of the elector of Brandenburg. Failing to get redress, he adopted what was then a perfectly legal expedient and declared formal war on the realm of Saxony. The declaration was accepted in due form, and the war began.

The extraordinary part of the story is that the grocer kept the war up for nearly six years practically single handed and even went to the extremity of declaring war on his own sovereign in the meantime before he was caught. He burned farms and even villages, employed mercenaries after the fashion of the times and made himself the terror of the district. He was finally influenced to stop hostilities by Luther, and after he had taken the sacrament from his hands he was betrayed into a further act of hostility by treachery and, being captured, suffered death on the wheel after refusing an act of grace which granted him the painless and honorable death of the sword. The story is perhaps the strangest of all the romances of that romantic age.

He Saw the Joke.

Here is a true story of a curious personality well known to many professional men in London today: He is a Scot, whose business ability is above the average, but everything he does is done with the air of a man constantly wrestling with some problem of the soul. He rarely speaks unless spoken to. He never smiles, and his eyes have a fixed but intense expression. One day he was returning to London with several companions. The whole party were Scotch, but the companions were of genial type. One of them told a humorous tale, over which the rest laughed uproariously. Not so the human problem. He sat in a corner of the railway carriage glowering at his mirthful friends. Half an hour afterward, however, when all were standing at a street corner before separating he took one aside and said solemnly and slowly: "Ye would obsairve that I did na' laugh at yond' story. Well, I saw the joke. Ye might not think it, but I have a keen sense of humor."—London News.

An Impossible Task.

The committee waited upon the successful man.

"Your fame has preceded you," they said as he entered the room. He smiled serenely. "I am rather well known," he admitted modestly.

"You have given names to sleeping cars, new cigars, health foods and games—names that have pleased the public and your patrons?"

The successful man bowed.

"Well," said the spokesman, "we have a new baby at our house, and we have come to you to select a name that will please her parents, sisters and brothers, grandparents, cousins, uncles, aunts and friends of the family and herself later on."

The successful man frowned sternly.

"Sir," he said, "I do not undertake the impossible!"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Telling the Weather From Mists.

The motion of mists, rapid or slow, was regarded as one of the best methods of foretelling the approach of rain or snow. When there was a mist before the rise of the full moon, if clouds were seen in the west before the sun rose or there was a mist in the fields before sunrise, wet weather was expected. When the mists vanished rapidly and the moon seemed to rise faster than usual, fine weather was sure to gladden the hearts of the merrymakers on the succeeding day. When the winds changed and the clouds flew along on "tail," the farmers predicted a storm.

Railroad Time Folders.

The average person who picks up a railroad time folder does not realize the enormous amount of work which the preparation of such a publication involves.

The big Burlington system, for instance, has a general time folder made up from sixteen different division time tables. The folder contains 2,000 names of towns, gives the schedules of over 500 trains, and whenever there is a change in time 60,000 figures have to be carefully checked and corrected.

No Smoking.

There is one country in the world where it is considered a crime to smoke—Abyssinia. The law forbidding tobacco dates from the year 1642. It was at first merely intended to prevent priests from smoking in the churches, but it was taken too literally, and nowadays even foreigners have to be careful not to be seen smoking.

Conceded It.

"There's a burglar in the house, Benjamin," said Mrs. Frett, arousing her husband in the dead of the morning. "Hear that?" she continued. "It's surely the sound of a chisel. He's a safe burglar."

"You bet he is," sleepily returned Benjamin, turning over for another nap.—Richmond Dispatch.

Couldn't Improve the Method.

Mrs. Chugwater—I'd be ashamed to sleep in church the way you do.

Mr. Chugwater—I can't help it. It's the only way I know how to sleep.—Chicago Tribune.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN AT NANTASKET.

The Twice Defeated Candidate for President is for Harmony---Gives Reasons for Defeat and Reviews Problems of Today.

Boston, July 25.—Nearly 4000 Democrats gathered at Nantasket yesterday afternoon and participated in the "harmony" meeting, arranged by the New England Democratic league, the new political organization which is expected to develop its strength in the fall campaign. Mayor Collins of this city acted as "moderator," as he expressed it, and presented in order Edward M. Shepard of New York, Senator Carmack of Tennessee and W. J. Bryan of Nebraska, who expounded and discussed the issues of this campaign.

W. A. Gaston and C. S. Hamlin, rival candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Massachusetts were both present, while Lewis Nixon of New York and Congressman Wilson of that state and John R. Thayer of Massachusetts were conspicuous among the guests of the occasion.

The gathering was called to order by George E. Hughes of Bath, Me., president of the league, who called Mayor Collins to the chair. The latter gave notice that he should present the orators of the day with as little delay as possible and promptly introduced Mr. Shepard.

Shepard Defines the Issue

Mr. Shepard told the assembly that the issue for the Democratic party in the coming campaign ought to be tariff reform. He urged that the American people are thoroughly ready to strike at the monopolies of the country by taking away the special tariff privileges on which, he said, these monopolies [illegible] even millionaires find their interest allied with those of the working classes rather than with the multi-millionaires of the trusts and monopolistic combinations; and he made it evident that he believes the Republican movement toward the passage of an anti-trust bill is only the throwing of a sop to appease those who may be discontented until after election. The reason why the Republicans would make no real change in trust conditions, he thought, was that such a change could not be accomplished without modifying the tariff. This, he said, the Republicans do not dare to do.

Mr. Shepard was listened to closely and at the conclusion of his speech he was saluted with enthusiastic cheers.

Strength Not In Colonies

Senator Carmack followed and for nearly an hour and a half held the attention of the audience. His discussion of the trust issue brought forth applause, which was repeated frequently during his argument on the Philippine question.

Mr. Carmack assured his hearers that whereas the Republicans would try to avoid, rather than to remedy, the inequalities and evils of the monopolistic combinations, the Democrats, if placed in power, would act; yet although he gave considerable time to this question his main point was the question as to expansion and colonial possessions. Here he made much of the fact that this country, in spite of being without colonies, had won a place already in advance of the great colonial powers, and queried whether the Philippine market, now almost within the nation's grasp, could be worth anything like what it cost. He ended by taking the conservative attitude, decrying anything that might unchain the spirit of revolution, and urging that the nation's life and safety lay in a perpetuation of the stable national character built up by the fathers.

Bryan's Address

The presentation of Mr. Bryan developed great enthusiasm. Cheers greeted him as he stepped to the front of the platform and he was several times interrupted by demonstrations of approval. He said:

I always come to New England with pleasure, because I recognize how much fidelity it requires to plead for Democracy in New England. I have come here several times, and I confess that my missionary work has not been crowned with the success I thought it deserved.

I thought I might be of some service here in aiding those who desire harmony in the Democrat party. I think there is no Democrat between the oceans that desires harmony more than I, for no one has suffered more than I from lack of it.

Jefferson's Rules of Harmony

In view of the numerous harmony dinners, and the discord they have created, it may not be out of place to consider the basis of harmony. The word "harmony" is euphonious, and the idea which it conveys it a delightful one. Harmony! How it soothes the ear and calls up visions of peace and love and joy. Harmony is but a synonym for order, and it not the result of chance, but a product of inexorable law. The musician must learn the scale and properly arrange the notes.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

or harmony, no matter how earnestly wooed, can never be won.

Harmony in government is likewise the result of fixed and unchangeable rules. Jefferson states two of these rules—namely, absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority and frequent elections—the second aids the first by giving hope of a remedy from present ills, however grievous. If he were living today his observation would probably suggest a third rule, namely, the ascertainment of the will of the majority by methods so direct, so fair and so honest that the minority cannot doubt that will has been actually expressed.

Jefferson also laid down the rules by which real harmony can be secured within a party. I say real harmony, for that harmony cannot be considered worthy of the name which, like the harmony temporarily existing between the confidence man and his victim, is purposely employed for deception and injury.

The great founder of the Democratic party, not long before the end of his eventful life, said in a letter to Mr. Lee that there were but two permanent parties, the aristocratic and the Democratic; that those two parties existed in every country, and that where there was freedom to think, speak and write, these parties would become apparent. With the aristocratic party he classed "those who fear and distrust the people and wish to draw all power from them into the hands of the higher classes." With the Democratic party he classed "those who identify themselves with the people, have confidence in them, cherish and consider them as the most honest and safe, though not the most wise, depository of the public interests."

Aristocrat and Democrat

Every well informed student of history will recognize this distinction. In every community you can draw a line separating the aristocrat from the Democrat. It will not separate those of illustrious lineage from those of humble birth; it will not separate the rich from the poor; it will not separate the educated from the uneducated; it will not be along lines of vocation or occupation; but it will separate those "with the tastes, spirit, assumption and traditions of the aristocracy" from those who "believe in a government controlled by the people and favor political and legal equality."

Jefferson was born of refined and well-to-do parents; he was even rich for one of that period and he was educated far above the most of his associates; he was a lawyer and his social connections were favorable to aristocratic ideas, but he was a Democrat. He believed in the brotherhood of man. He believed in the rule of the people, in their capacity for self-government, and in their right to the control of their own affairs. He was a friend of everything that helped the people, and the unrelenting foe of everything that injured them. He organized a party that has lived for more than a century, and he so impressed his ideas upon the party that no defeat, however overwelming, has been able to crush its spirit or disintegrate it.

There can always be harmony among Democrats who have the purpose that Jefferson had and are willing to employ the methods that Jefferson employed. There can always be harmony among Democrats who believe in a government of the people and are willing that all the departments of the government shall be operated by the people and for the benefit of the people. Differences of the mind can be reconciled; differences of purpose cannot. Between one who is at heart an aristocrat and one who is in reality a Democrat there is a great gulf fixed.

Between those really Democratic in purpose there can be no personal or permanent alienation, because, having no ulterior motives, they are open to arguments and amenable to reason; being honest in purpose, they have confidence in the triumph of their cause, and are content to employ honest methods. They will neither conspire against others nor against each other. If they make mistakes in judgment, as all are liable to do, they are not only willing, but anxious to correct their mistakes. In politics, as in religion, there is an essential difference between a doubt of the head and a doubt of the heart.

Republican Ambiguity Arraigned

It is impossible to secure harmony between people of opposite sympathies and it is a difficult thing to change a man's sympathies; it requires a political regeneration to make a Democrat out of an aristocrat. The Republican party of today is aristocratic in its policies and tendencies, for it is controlled by a few in the interest of a few, but there are many Republicans who remain with their party only because they do not understand the change which has taken place in that party within the last few years. There can be no doubt of the Democratic instincts of a large majority of the members of the Republican party, but that party today is so controlled by organized wealth that the rank and file of the party are not consulted about its policies nor are the interests of the rank and file considered by the leaders.

With the exception of the tariff question [illegible] recent years honestly submitted a single important issue to the arbitrament of the ballot or even to the judgment of the members of its own party. It has written ambiguous platforms and forced its policies through congress after elections.

In 1896 it used a promise of international bimetallism to conceal its real purpose to fasten the gold standard on the country. In 1900 it practiced the same deception on imperialism and on the trust question. Even within a month it has refused to announce its purpose in regard to the Philippines, and has put off until after November the passage of the subsidy bill and the consideration of the trust question.

PATRICK A. COLLINS.

The leaders of the party show their lack of vital faith in the doctrine of self-government by their unwillingness to take the people of the country, or even the voters of their own party, into their confidence. The hope of the Democratic party lies in bringing this fact to the knowledge of those who have been in the habit of voting the Republican ticket. One aristocratic party in the country is enough. Democratic success must be won, not by imitating the Republican party, but by exposing it; not by making the Democratic party aristocratic, but by convincing the people that it is really Democratic and can be trusted to defend Democratic ideas and to cultivate Democratic ideals.

As to Deserters

To attempt to patch up an apparent harmony between those who are not in sympathy with Democratic purposes is not only a waste of time, but would prove disastrous. The men who deserted the party in 1896 may be divided into two classes—those who left because they understood the issue presented and those who left because they did not understand the real nature of the contest. Until the former are completely changed in their sympathies, they cannot return to the party without injuring it. The latter will be reconciled to the party when they themselves become aware of the real character of the life and death struggle now being waged between plutocracy and democracy.

The Democratic party must have a controlling purpose, unchanged by victory or defeat; it must stand for that purpose at all times and everywhere, unmoved by threats of disaster and uninfluenced by promise of temporary gain. It must have a character, for character is as essential in a party as it is in an individual. Our party must have principles and proclaim them; it must stand by them and defend them, relying upon its faith in the righteousness of those principles and upon its faith in the intelligence and patriotism of the people.

The struggle between human rights on the one side and greed on the other is an unending one. Our party must take part in the struggle, but that struggle cannot be permanently settled by this generation or by any future one.

I hope to bring back every one of those who did not understand the struggle. And I hope we can bring in multitudes of Republicans who can see that our party stands for the doctrine of human rights and free government.

Reasons For Defeat In 1900

Mr. Bryan reviewed recent Democratic history along the lines of his previous political addresses. Speaking of the reason for defeat in 1900 he said that without abandoning its position on the tariff question or on the money question the Democratic party again espoused the people's side of a great issue. That it did not win that year was due to a conjunction of causes any one of which would have been insufficient to have accomplished defeat. The administration having carried out [illegible] heir to the enthusiasm which usually attends a victorious conflict; an unexpected increase in the suppy of new gold and an unexpected influx of European gold, due to large crops here and a famine abroad, increased prices, relieved the stress of hard times and gave to the people the benefits that always flow from a growing volume of money.

The protected manufacturers, of course, stood by the administration which had given them a Dingley law. Trust promoters and trust magnates, recognizing in the Democratic party an inveterate foe, and numbering among their stockholders many of the most influential Republicans, threw all their strength to the Republican party, and by their support purchased immunity from punishment. The Republicans were greatly aided by another influence, namely, the influence of the financiers, who, not yet having completed their schemes, were willing to risk trusts, imperialism or anything else rather than forego the advantage which they expected from a gold standard and a bank currency. In spite of all these obstacles the campaign of 1900 only showed a net change of 150,000 votes in favor of the Republicans out of a total vote of over 13,000,000.

Problems of Today

And what is the situation today? Since the election of 1900, imperialism is more openly avowed and imperialistic methods more boldly entered upon because the administration can point to that election as an apparent endorsement, although the party leaders at that time vehemently denied imperialistic intent. Those who expect to make a profit out of a colonial system favor it on the ground that it will pay; those who think that it opens up the Philippines to proselyting insist that it is providential, while those who are simply seeking some reason for supporting their party's policy fall back upon the doctrine that circumstances got us into the trouble and that we must stay in until circumstances get us out.

Since the election of 1900 the trusts have grown and flourished under the Republican administration, as might have been expected. Almost two years have elapsed since the last presidential election, and no legislative attempt has been made to interfere with them, and the executive efforts, instead of being directed toward the enforcement of criminal statutes, are confined to the equity side of the court, and these efforts have not in the least retarded the formation of new combines.

And all the while an exorbitant tariff is working injustice to the consumers and enabling the beneficiaries of protection to sell at home at a high price and compete in foreign markets at a lower price.

While the exploiters have been pressing their advantages at home and abroad the interests of the producers of

Drift of Opinion.

☞There is plenty of serious thought in the state board of health over the way smallpox is hanging on in Massachusetts this summer. This is deemed too sure a portent of grave trouble in the fall. The people might as well be ready for it, says Dr. Walcot and other members of the state board. Get your pest houses in order, and make it easy for the people to be vaccinated.—Beverly Times.

☞One of Newport's wealthy residents has made the trip from that city to Boston at an average speed of twenty-five miles an hour. This is interesting and satisfactory to the people who own automobiles and like to use them as racing machines, but to the people generally, not one in ten thousand of whom own automobiles, it raises a question as to the right of any man to use our highways for such a purpose. Children, women driving in the country and users of highways generally ought not to be obliged to encounter a steel carriage, moving forty miles an hour to make up for time lost in slowing up in cities and villages. A regard for the public safety should cause those wishing to race in automobiles to do it on a private track.—Boston Transcript.

☞We chance in a copy of the Transactions of the Massachusetts Horticultural society on the remark by a professor of Amherst college that "except for insects human life upon the earth would be ended in five years." Good and bad insects exist, he said, as good and bad people exist. Most persons do not know this, or, if they do know, do not appreciate the truth. So whenever they see a bug, their first impulse is to kill the creature, and when the army of bugs comes along they want to begin a tremendous campaign at once. Much insect destruction goes on in absolute ignorance of whether it is judicious or whether the means employed are the best. In the long run, nature will probably manage the insects better than men can; and while in some cases a crusade is necessary, in all cases the crusader ought to know exactly what he is about.—New Bedford Standard.

☞We may call spirits from the vasty deep, but they may not come. It is impossible to make an enduring military hero of Gulliver arrayed against the Lilliputians, troublesome and annoying though they prove to be. The chivalrous spirit still abides in men and forbids. Singular also has been the fatality attaching to the creation of heroes out of the Spanish war. One only has made it count in the rise to power and place, and the unwritten statute of limitations will soon fall across his way. This latest war is apparently to differ from all others in which the country has been engaged, in failing to consume much of the nation's time in honoring with civil power and otherwise the men who come gloriously out of it. No real glory has been obtainable from it, and hence no lasting heroes. Plenty of good men in the army have done their duty, as always, even though the service was not of their choosing or to their liking. But the sum of glory measures far less than in the other armed conflicts in which the United States has engaged, and here the republican idea triumphs by indirection, for the work has been unrepublican.—Springfield Republican.

—Fitchburg and Framingham both announce tax rates of $18 per $1000. The former reports an increase of $147,000 in valuation.

TOOK FATAL DIVE.

Sad Fate of Adin P. Wilde at Cottage City.

Son of Ex-Councilman Roger H. Wilde.

Promising Student of the Thayer Academy, Braintree.

Gloom has been cast over the whole of Atlantic by the sad death of the promising 18-year-old son of ex-Councilman and Mrs. Roger H. Wilde of Billings street.

The young man was the guest of John A. Duggan and family at Cottage City, where he has been since Saturday, July 12. He was fond of the water and an expert swimmer. Letters to his parents and friends reported that he was having a very enjoyable time, and mentioned swimming as one of the sports.

They had been in the habit of bathing near the Duggan cottage, but on Thursday they went to the public beach. The water is very clear near Cottage City, and usually deeper than one would think.

Young Wilde was the first to enter the water and Mr. Duggan's son John was ready to follow. Unfortunately where Wilde dived the water was not over three feet deep, and when he came up he was unconscious and floated.

At first it was not realized that he was seriously injured, as there was no cut or bruise, but doctors were promptly summoned. Dr. Moara and Dr. Butler responded.

Among others attracted to the scene, were Mr. A. F. Hayward and his son Henry P. of Quincy, who had met the young men while enroute to Nantucket, and came ashore for a half hour on the return of the boat.

Young Wilde recovered consciousness but had evidently broken his neck and was in such a precarious condition that the doctors recommended his removal to the Massachusetts General Hospital. He was taken aboard the 3.30 boat accompanied by doctor and nurse, Mr. Duggan and son, and Messrs. Hayward. At Woods Hole the regular train was boarded, but the conductor very kindly made arrangements to hold the express at Buzzards Bay and the party tranferred to that, and thereby reached Boston at 6 26, half an hour earlier.

Meanwhile Mr. Wilde had been notified by telegraph of an accident to his son, and was at the terminal station with Dr. Bruce to meet the injured young man. They then became aware of the seriousness of the accident.

The young man was taken to the hospital and Mrs. Wilde was summoned, and soon arrived with her daughter, Miss Corinna. Adin was conscious at the time but unable to speak. He recognized all and smiled.

Four or five of the best doctors of Boston examined him, but could do nothing to save him, and he passed away about 9.30 P. M.

The news of the fatality was a great shock to the many acquaintances of the young man in Atlantic, Wollaston, Quincy and Braintree. Adin was the only son and idol of his parents and popular with all. He was a student at Thayer Academy and would have graduated with honors next year. At the recent Founder's Day exercises, as president of his class, he delivered the address of welcome, together with a sketch of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer, the founder.

A few weeks ago Adin took the preliminary examinations for Harvard College and was very successful. He was manager in the spring of the Thayer Academy base base ball team, and had been elected manager of the foot ball team for next fall.

As one Atlantic gentleman expressed it today, no death could affect the people of Atlantic more. Adin was upright, sturdy, active and popular.

The bereaved family are prostrated by the sad accident, but have many sympathizing friends. Mr. Wilde was a member of the first City Council, and served three years. He has also been prominently mentioned in connection with the mayoralty.

The body was brought to Atlantic this afternoon by A. W. Fay of Wollaston, and the funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from No. 38 Billings street.

LOCATION GRANTED.

Connecting Link of Electrics Through Milton to be Built.

The Milton street railway appeared before the Railroad Commissioners Thursday to protest against the grant of a location in Milton to the Blue Hill Street Railway Co.

The Blue Hill Co. had petitioned for a location and the selectmen had given them a hearing Apr. 17 last, but nothing had been heard from them since, and as ninety days had expired, an appeal had been made to the Railroad Commissioners.

During the protest by the Milton company it appeared that it had been granted a location by the selectmena a ta meeting held Wednesday, but no public notice had been given.

The Milton selectmen were severely criticised by counsel for its star chamber proceeding.

The hearing is being continued today.

Snailology.

According to the London Spectator, one of the current medical fads among the English laboring classes is the following: Snails crawling up a church wall are caught—those crawling down possess no virtue—placed in a pan with a little water and boiled, being stirred meanwhile with a quill plucked from a black crow. When the mixture has boiled down to the consistency of a salve, it is ready for use. When rubbed on the soles of the feet, it is a sure preventive of disease, being especially efficient in the case of what is locally known as "hinfooenzy." It is also valuable in strengthening weak spines. Snails, whether raw or cooked is not evident, are also considered a valuable remedy for consumption.

A Bicycle Invention.

Two ingenious cyclists have collaborated to turn the handle bar into a gas generator for an acetylene lamp. The handle bar is divided into a water chamber and a carbide chamber, the two being connected by a pipe, and the flow of water being controlled by a valve from outside. In the center is a gas chamber having an outlet to feed the lamp.

Why Not Tunnel?

It would seem, hardly necessary, in connecting the Woodward Institute with the public sewer, to cut a piece out of the concrete sidewalk. Residents of that section are asking why it was not possible to tunnel under the sidewalk. The trench in which the pipe is being laid is fifteen feet or more deep and the sidewalk ten feet wide. As the trench is opened on both sides of the sidewalk it would appear to have been an easy matter to have dug a tunnel. As it is now there will be a hole in this sidewalk until sometime in the dim future when a patch of concrete may be put in.

FASHION HINTS.

Jacket of Black Tafetta—A Novel Basque.

This charming little jacket is of black taffeta tucked in clusters and perforated in a small, neat design showing the white satin lining. It is fashioned with a novel basque or skirt which appears only at the side and back, and the large collar is of embroidered batiste over a still larger collar of embroidered taffeta. The sleeves are very wide and flaring at the wrist and have double turned-back cuffs of taffeta and batiste. A belt of folded taffeta completes the jacket which is a pretty model for spring wear. All the tucks are stitched with Corticelli Sewing Silk.

A novel feature for blouse jackets as well as for Eton skirt jackets and dressy garments in general is the jabot vest effect. It has been stated that some of the foremost Paris houses will accentuate the drooping shoulder effect both in waists and in outdoor garments. Quite a feature in jackets is the long coat collar of taffeta which are variously enhanced with large collars and revers of lace or of ribbon-run embroidered linen.

PRESERVATION OF WOOD.

Many Ingenious Methods by Which Timber Is Kept From Decay.

On South street are several concerns whose business is the preservation of wood, says the Vancouver correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. Each has its own favorite method, and each experiments more or less toward obtaining better and cheaper systems. The problem is very involved and is full of rich reward for successful inventors. "I have been in the business twenty years," said a member of one of these houses, "and although in that time the trade has progressed considerably, yet still much remains to be done, and whoever does it efficiently will make a large fortune. In spite of the substitution of iron and steel for wood in house and bridge building and in the construction of ships, piers and other structures the consumption of wood increases yearly.

"All wood decays, and its value depends chiefly upon its durability. The element of decay is only one factor in the durability. Besides decay there is the destruction of wood by teredos and other marine creatures and in tropical countries by the white ants and other forms of insect life. The simplest method of preservation is charring. Every old farmer knows that if he burns the end of a chestnut post in the fire until it is covered with a thin coat of charcoal it will last from ten to thirty years longer when set in the ground than if put there in its normal condition.

"The only process which seems absolutely efficient is to charge the wood with some poisonous fluid which is antiseptic, nonvolatile and permanent. Solutions of zinc, iron, copper, arsenic and mercury have been tried and have given good results. The best were obtained by forcing through the pores of the wood a strong solution of the double chloride of ammonia and mercury. After the wood was charged it was laid aside to dry, during which operation the ammonia and the water evaporated, leaving the corrosive sublimate uniformly distributed through the ligneous tissue. This made the lumber proof against any form of animal life.

"Why is it not universally used? The cost. It requires a heavy pressure and expensive apparatus, and the mercury itself is worth something like 50 cents a pound."

BIG FAIR FOR WOMEN

Features of an Exhibition to Be Held In New York.

EMPLOYEES ALL OF THE FAIR SEX

Exhibits From All Parts of the World Will Be Seen at Madison Square Garden—Street of Nations to Circle Arena and Venice Street to Occupy the Basement.

"There's a feminine finger in every ple, and the Woman's exhibition will prove it."—Mrs. Sara Knowles, President Professional Woman's League, Director General.

"The ple's the thing in America, and the Woman's exhibition proposes to convert the world to this cult."—Mrs. Gertrude Andrews, Official Piemaker.

Woman in all her phases, with a multiplicity of activities to indicate her past and future possibilities, will be the daily living picture at the Madison Square Garden in New York during the two weeks, Oct. 6 to 18, while the Woman's exhibition holds the boards, says the New York World. From east and west, north and south, whether as almond eyed daughter of Asia or dark haired Mexican senorita, she will bring her best to add to the sum of greatness of the sex.

The enterprise found its origin in a distinctively feminine organization, the Professional Woman's league, and it is this body of 600 women who are working with might and main to bring it to a successful accomplishment. It will comprehend an investment of over $250,000 and will employ more than 3,000 persons, all of whom will be of the gentler sex and as comely, say the managers, as any Broadway chorus.

A street of all nations will surround the arena of the Garden, where twenty-four peoples in characteristic occupations will give a kaleidoscopic idea of the scope of the undertaking. Within the inclosure which this thoroughfare circles the industrial section will be placed. A Red Cross field hospital, with its corps of doctors (again women) and nurses and the appliances for emergency surgery, will be shown.

Of interest to mothers will be the nursery as it was and as it is. The old fashioned ponderous crib and chairs will be seen in the former exhibit, while the latter will include all the modern furnishings of the nursery, the kindergarten chairs, etc., and the various ways of amusing a child. Baby incubators with improvements suggested by women will also be on view.

In this department, as in the kitchen, the proposed colored women's part in the exhibition will come into play. The old mammy nursing her little ones on the floor and crooning the songs of the old south, as well as the aunnie in the cookhouse making wonderful corn pones and battercakes, will be a study in national customs.

One element of the kitchen display, which will represent many countries, will be distinctly modern and distinctively American. This will be the pure white apartment, fitted with a gas stove, where Mrs. Gertrude Andrews, with the assistance of Miss Carmelita Beckwith, will prove to the male understanding that a woman can make and bake seventeen pies in a batch as palatable as any "mother ever made" and yet look pretty throughout the performance.

Women designers in wall paper, carpets, book covers, etc., will be an important addition to the ensemble. Carpet weaving, making furniture and the turning out of metal novelties will have their place.

The Professional Woman's league, which has each year made its bazaar a feature of the Christmas season, will use a large section near the center of the floor for its contribution. Theatrical dolls, in imitation of celebrated actresses in their favorite characters, will be the special commodity. Two hundred of these dolls, with the waxen representatives of various nations, are now in the hands of their modistes. Hairdressing and beautifying with all manner of feminine art in the way of personal adornment or improvement will be shown.

In the commercial section all that a woman uses, from a hairpin to a steam launch, will be in evidence, and milliners, bootmakers, dressmakers and others of that ilk will be in their glory. The costume exhibit is intended to cover exhaustively changes in fashions from the period immediately succeeding the fig leaf to the present. Theatrical wardrobes will have part in this. A picture gallery and museum, as well as an educational exhibit, will be in different parts of the Garden.

One of the most picturesque spots and the haven for amusement seekers will be the Venice street, to be located in the basement, where typical Venetian houses of discolored stone will flank the broad way, with its bridges crossing hidden canals. The vista of seemingly endless gardens will be accomplished by mirrors. Shops, cafes, restaurants and places of amusement will cluster at the entrance of the bridges, fakirs and sideshows will fill every place, and the Italian will dominate the whole.

The Japanese booth will show a middle class family of Tokyo in its home. The Chinese department is to be flooded and planted with rice. A picture of Boer life is expected to be of especial interest in view of the late war, and the exhibits from our new possessions are others that promise much. In connection with the exhibition concerts, lectures, etc., will be held. Many feminine attractions have already been engaged for performances during its run.

To keep the womanly element absolutely unbroken throughout the league will have a detachment of women police, a woman doorkeeper, with assistants, a corps of women carriage attendants and other employees usually of the sterner sex. The costumes of these attaches have all been specially designed, and in order to insure the perfect working of the scheme prominent league members will act as the leaders of the different bodies.

If there be riot in the Garden, it will be handsome Amelia Summerville, disguised in a policeman's helmet, with blue coat to the knee, black hosiery and the daintiest of high heeled shoes, who will draw her miniature club and rush to investigate. Dr. Ida C. Nahm, in the trimmest of green livery, with top boots and high hat, will spring down the steps to open your carriage while you wait, and a blond haired doorkeeper in biscuit colored costume with blue facings, her white belt and tan boots and smart cap the accompaniments, will sweep back the portals.

Marguerite St. John, in zouave dress of red, will lead the guard which patrols the Garden, and Pauline Willard, in the picturesque costume of Italy, will appear in the Venice street to direct the Venetian girls. During the exhibition a paper written, edited and published by women will be a feature. Belle Jennings, one of the union workers, will run the linotype machine.

Mrs. Sara Knowles, the president, is director in chief of the exhibition. Her executive committee follows:

Mrs. Louise Eldridge, Mrs. Alice Maddock, Mrs. Belle Gray Taylor, Mrs. Ida Wells, Mrs. J. S. Ferguson, Mrs. J. H. Van Tine, Miss Mary T. Stone, Miss Minnie Wortendyke, Miss Cora Tanner, Miss Rosa Rand, Mrs. W. G. Jones, Mrs. Susanna Leonard Westford, Mrs. Mary H. Bancker, Mrs. Edwin Arden, Mrs. John Glendenning, Miss Maude Banks, Miss Maida Craigen, Miss Sara Palmer, Miss Emily Rigl and Miss Marguerite St. John.

Mrs. E. L. Fernandez heads the advisory committee, Mrs. A. M. Palmer the reception and Mrs. Fred Ross the bazaar committee. Miss Emma Field, Miss Rosalie de Vaux, Miss Jane Holly and other actresses are of Mrs. Ross' helpers in the quest for theatrical dolls. Headed by Lillian Russell, Edna Wallace Hopper and Bijou Fernandez, many prominent professionals are likewise pledged to the cause on various committees.

Mrs. Alice Cram and Miss Alice Brown will preside in the box office.

Sir Hiram Maxim, the famous engineer and inventor, sends word from his London home to President Francis of the St. Louis world's fair that he will go to work as soon as his health will permit upon new experiments for a flying machine. Sir Hiram is slowly recovering from an attack of bronchitis and has gone to the south of France for a course of special treatment at one of the baths.

He expects to return Sept. 1. His idea, as is generally known, is a machine which will have either the smallest relation to or none at all to a balloon. He firmly believes that an effective machine can be made with which to navigate the air. He has already spent about $75,000 in experiments and is quite as strong as ever in his belief of final success. It is extremely probable a little later in the year, if his health is fully restored, that he will visit St. Louis and enter more fully upon the matter, giving the committee the benefit of his experiments and of his great knowledge of aerostatics.

NEW FILIPINO COINS.

Design Selected Submitted by a Native of the Islands.

For the new Filipino subsidiary coins a large number of artists submitted drawings, says a special dispatch from Washington to the New York World. The design selected by the president and Secretary Root is the work of a Filipino named Figueroa. Admiral Taylor submitted designs, which were rejected.

According to the plans submitted by Figueroa, on the obverse appears a female figure clad in flowing robes and with hair streaming to her shoulders. Her left hand reposes gracefully upon her bosom, while her right holds a hammer which rests upon an anvil at her feet. In the distance appears a smoking volcano, a representation of the celebrated Mayon volcano in the province of Albay, Luzon. Above this design appears the denomination of the coin and below it the word "Filipinas."

On the reverse is an American shield bearing the stars and stripes, with an eagle perched above. The words "United States of America" and the date are on this side.

wealth on the farm, in the factory and in the mines have been utterly ignored and the small business man has been left to such precarious existence as the trusts permit him to enjoy.

A Democratic Remedy

How can the opponents of aristocracy and plutocracy be united for a successful attack upon intrenched privilege? Not by making peace with the enemy; not by imitating their works, their methods or their phraseology, but by an honest, straightforward appeal to the American people upon a platform that can be understood and with an organization that can be trusted. Already many of the Republicans are wavering, but they can never be won to the Democratic party as long as they say that our party is as bad as theirs. Not by surrender, not by compromise, not by equivocation, not by ambiguity, not by vacillation is victory to be won, but by bold constant, persistent, steadfast defense of the interests of the people at all times under all circumstances and on all questions. To lose faith in the expediency of such a course is to lose faith in the omnipotence of truth. Upon this basis we can not only harmonize all who are democratic in sentiment and sympathy, but we can draw to our party those of the opposition who cherish democratic ideals, but have been misled by Republican arguments.

In the accomplishment of this work the New England Democratic league can be, and I doubt not will be, a powerful factor.

VERMONT DEMOCRATS

Nominate Felix McGettrick of St Albans to Head Their Ticket

Burlington, Vt., July 25.—The Democratic state convention here yesterday refused to endorse the nomination of Percival W. Clement of Rutland, nominee of bolting Republicans, for governor, and nominated instead a straight Democratic ticket, headed by Felix W. McGettrick, a St. Albans lawyer. The supporters of Clement did not give up until the votes were counted, and although outnumbered more than two to one, made the most noise in the applause which marked many nominating and seconding speeches.

The ticket was completed by the unanimous nomination of Elisha May of St. Johnsbury for lieutenant governor; J. M. Burke, Middlebury, secretary of state; J. M. Pollard, Windsor, treasurer; J. E. Barnes, Rockingham, auditor.

The platform declares against colonies or dependencies anywhere, scores the Republican party for alleged failure to procure freedom of speech for all citizens, denounces the Republican party for autocratic legislation in Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, declares that trusts are legitimate children of McKinley and Dingley tariff bills, denounces alleged corruption in the Republican party of Vermont, favors license local option law, and calls for reform in system of representation in the state house of representatives.

MORGAN CHIEF GUEST

At Banquet of Leading British Statesmen

HOB-NOBBED WITH CABINET

With Members of Which He Appeared to Be on the Best of Terms—Somewhat Nervous Feeling Over the Present Condition of King Edward

London, July 25.—J. P. Morgan was the guest of honor at a remarkable dinner given in the house of commons last night by Archibald W. Maconochie at which nearly every member of the cabinet and all the leading statesmen were present, including Mr. Choate and other diplomats. The dinner began at 8 o'clock in a private dining room within the precincts of the house of commons. A majority of the guests sat and chatted until nearly 11 o'clock.

The proceedings were quite informal and the conversation was peculiarly frank. The South African war, international yacht races, the shipping combine and King Edward's health were all discussed in turn. Mr. Morgan and Premier Balfour were both particularly animated. One of those present said to a representative of The Associated Press:

"It was one of the most remarkable gatherings in which I ever took part. Practically a quorum of the cabinet talked over, in the simplest, most open way, leading American subjects which now vitally concern both countries. To see Mr. Morgan and Mr. Balfour together, one could scarcely imagine that the former had ever been regarded as a bogey who threatened England's commercial existence. If some things which passed around that table could be repeated it would be an eye-opener to those who are fomenting commercial rivalries between England and America."

A feeling of uneasiness pervaded the diners with regard to King Edward's condition, even leading members of the cabinet displaying nervousness lest the king should be unable to fulfill his duties in the coronation ceremony. This was due, to no little extent, to the statement of the doctors that the king is not yet allowed to walk and to the somewhat natural apprehension that the severe strain of a fortnight hence will prove too dangerous an undertaking. There was not the slightest whisper that the king is worse than the bulletins indicate. The only fear was that the doctors had possibly been too optimistic in setting the date of the coronation on Aug. 9.

Mr. Balfour somewhat allayed the feeling of nervousness by explaining that the doctors had been instructed that under no consideration whatever must they decide upon the date for the coronation unless they were absolutely positive the king would not disappoint the people again. Mr. Balfour pointed out that as the doctors had shown so be presumptous to doubt their judgbe presumptous to doubt their judgment now, however difficult it might be for a layman to understand how a patient who could not stand up today could be crowned Aug. 9.

There is no doubt, however, that the cabinet will follow very anxiously the king's convalescence during the coming week.

AN UNTIMELY DEATH

What Colored People Think Will Befall Rogers If Extradited

Brockton, Mass., July 25.—Munroe Rogers, the young colored man who is charged with setting fire to a dwelling in Durham, N. C., some months ago, and is held here awaiting an officer from North Carolina to take him back to answer to the charge, is having efforts in his behalf put forward by the Racial league. Rev. W. H. Scott of Woburn, a representative of the league, called on Governor Crane yesterday and asked him to refuse extradition papers until he was absolutely sure that Rogers was the man wanted, as he knew that the young man's life would be forfeited, innocent or guilty, if he were taken to North Carolina, charged with arson.

He saw City Marshal Leach and told him that North Carolina visited the death penalty for murder, criminal assault and arson, but that only colored persons had been executed on the charge of arson in that state in several years. He said that if Rogers were taken there he would either be hanged by the authorities or a lynching party as soon as he got near the scene of the fire.

City Marshal Leach received word yesterday that an officer had left North Carolina to take Rogers back with him.

Bagnall, Patent, Delaney and McNaughton of Plymouth, who were served with writs of contempt charging them with violating an injunction restraining them from interfering in any manner with their fellow employes in the Puritan mill of the American Woolen company at Plymouth, came before the superior court yesterday. At the suggestion of counsel for the company, the hearing was postponed for a week to allow the parties to confer, counsel intimating that the difficulty might be settled without resort to further legal proceedings.

Preferred Death to Arrest

Treworgy's Fate In Jury's Hands

At a late hour the jury was still out and the judge retired, leaving word that if a verdict was reached that it be sealed and returned to the court today.

The Social Realm.

How soft the music of those village bells,
Falling at intervals upon the ear
In cadence sweet! now dying all away,
Now pealing loud again and louder still,
Clear and, sonorous as the gale comes on.
With easy force it opens all the cells
Where mem'ry slept. Whenever I have heard
A kindred melody, the scene recurs
And with it all its pleasures and its pains.

County Commissioner.

Commenting on our recent article on the county commissionership the Quincy Patriot says: "The only man who can defeat Commissioner Wright this year must come from Quincy, and it is questioned if any one can." All of which means that unless the Republican convention nominates Mr. Badger of Quincy, the whole push will go for the present Democratic commissioner. —Hyde Park Gazette.

Now wouldn't that jar you? The Republicans of the county have got to nominate a Quincy Republican or the Quincy Republicans will bolt their party nomination and vote for a Quincy Democrat. This is the sum and substance of it. Quincy must be given the earth or it won't play in the party back-yard.—Dedham Transcript.

Not exactly that, esteemed contemporaries, but many Quincy Republicans prefer the reelection of Commissioner Wright to any other gentleman. He was their choice last year when he received 2,218 votes to 804 for Mr. Bowker, and they see no reason for reversing their votes this year. He has proved an able member of board, especially in connection with the plans and details for the new Registry building to be erected at Dedham. Quincy voters know Commissioner Wright through and through. He is not a politician, but an honest, capable business man whom the county is fortunate to secure on the Board of Commissioners. We repeat, it is a question if any one can defeat Mr. Wright. Naturally, a popular Quincy Republican would be a more formidable candidate than a Republican from any other part of the county.

Houghton--Walker.

At the Mispa Presbyterian church, San Francisco, California, Saturday evening, July 12th, at half-past eight was solemnized the marriage of Miss Susie Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walker, formerly of Quincy, and Mr. Frank B. Houghton of Philadelphia. Long before the appointed hour the church was crowded. The bride and her father, were preceded down the aisle by the maid of honor, Miss Julia Rice who wore a blue organdie and carried a bouquet of la France roses. The bride's gown was of white organdie over white silk and she carried a bouquet of Bride roses. The bridal party were met at the altar by the groom, his best man, Mr. Conrad Fredericks, and the pastor of the church Rev. Mr. Doane, who solemnized the wedding, the bride being given in marriage by her father.

A largely attended reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, 249 Fifth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Houghton received under a large floral horse shoe. A wedding supper was served after which the young couple left, amid a shower of rice and good wishes, for the Grand hotel. The number and beauty of the presents testified to the popularity of the bride and groom.

The bride and her people are well known in Quincy where they formerly resided and have many friends and relatives.

The sports will consist of the following events and will be open to all amateurs residing in Braintree: 100-yard dash, 50-yard potato race, mile run, obstacle race, 50-yard race for boys under fifteen years, 440-yard race, 2-mile bicycle race for boys under fifteen, 2-mile bicycle race for championship of Braintree.

H. E. Reynold Elected.

Mr. Henry E. Reynolds of Braintree, superintendent of the Quincy division of the Old Colony Street Railway, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the New England Street Railway Club, to take the place of Mr. Edward J. Rauch, formerly of Brockton, who resigned when he accepted a position as superintendent of the Canton-Massilion Street Railroad in Ohio.

Mr. Reynolds has been connected with the street railway business for the past seventeen years. The Stree Railway Bulletin of this month publishes a brief account of his career in street railroading and also an excellent picture of him.

Braintree--Sharon.

Braintree and Sharon are very much alive for old home week, and each will have celebrations worthy of the occasion. In the former town Col. Drinkwater and citizen Hobart have conspicuous positions on the committee of arrangements and will see that none go away dissatisfied. The committee has sent out very pretty and appropriate invitations, embellished with a picture of Gen. Thayer's boyhood home, and giving the program of exercises for the opening day, July 28.—Hyde Park Gazette.

Cholera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by all druggists.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Declared by Bryan to Be Plain and Specific

DISCUSSES MONEY QUESTION

Says Republicans Confessed That Gold Standard Was Not Satisfactory —Imperialistic Tendencies and Fostering of Trusts Charged

Bangor, Me., July 26.—William J. Bryan came to Bangor for the first time yesterday and received a welcome from the Democrats of this city and the surrounding country that must have been gratifying to him. He reached here at 6:05 p. m. from Augusta, where he spoke in the afternoon. At the station the leaders of the local Democracy gathered to greet Mr. Bryan and his party. At the hotel Mr. Bryan held a brief reception.

Last night the Auditorium was well filled long before the speakers arrived, but the crowd was not so great as had been expected.

Mr. Bryan said that on the occasion of his previous visits to Maine he had come as a candidate seeking support from the voters of the state and he doubted not that many persons had thought that selfishness promoted his arduous endeavors. He was willing to admit even at this time that he was actuated by selfish motives, but selfish only in the sense that he desired to live and have his children live under the best government in the world. He believed in principles, and believed if these principles were applied, the best possible government would result.

"I do not come to bring you new and strange documents," he said. "I have no new arguments. It is my wish to restore the ancient landmarks, which give us common grounds on which to rest. If original conditions prevailed I would not be here, but they do not prevail. The Republican party has changed completely about, has forsaken the position it once held, and it will continue to change as frequently as the little party of leaders which control its movements directs.

Mr. Bryan said that the time was not far distant when the Republican party would be made up of a body of trained athletes who would stand ready to turn a succession of political somersaults whenever the leader said "flop."

Referring to the tariff he said that some of our infant industries had thrived so well under the fostering care of protection that now they were able to go out into all the lands of the earth and furnish their products cheaper than they would furnish them at home. The trust was the result. And even the Republican party admits that trusts are not good and has promised to regulate them. This promise, however, he did not believe to be sincere.

There is a penal clause under which those who enter into combinations in restraint of trade may be deprived of their liberty, yet the attorney general proceeded against the beef trust by injunction. Mr. Bryan remarked that the beef trust would make those who could not think with their heads think with their stomachs and finally they might be brought to the point where they would resist the monopoly.

He touched upon the money question and said that he was more than ever convinced that it is still a living issue. In closing he devoted half an hour to the Philippine question and said the people should insist that the Philippines be dealt with in the same manner as has Cuba.

An immense crowd had assembled at the depot at Augusta long before the arrival of Mr. Bryan and party. The distinguished visitors arrived there shortly after 1:30 and as soon as the Nebraskan made his appearance he was given an ovation. City hall was filled with citizens desiring to hear the speakers.

Mr. Bryan began his speech by saying that he was glad to come to Maine, because the Democrats of this state are not afraid to stand up for the Kansas City platform and let the whole world know that they are willing to abide by the principles of that platform. He spoke against the gold standard and charged that that system of finance was created by the Republican party while it was committed to the doctrine of international bimetallism.

"In 1896," said Mr. Bryan, "we had a division on the money question and my party gave you a platform that was plain and specific; you could tell what the party meant. The Republicans wanted the gold standard, but not because it was a good thing. The very promise of international bimetallism was a confession that the gold standard was not satisfactory. And they went out and fought the campaign, and when it was over and the votes were counted 13,000,500 people had voted for the double standard against this gold standard, and the one party that stood for the gold standard was the gold Democratic party. It carried one precinct in the United States and there were only six votes in the precinct and they only got three out of the six. When the election was over the Republicans who fought the campaign on international bimetallism came out and declared that it was a victory for the gold standard. They claimed a victory for the doctrine that they dared not espouse during the campaign.

"And how was it in 1900? By that time the question of imperialism had become the paramount issue, yet in the campaign of 1900 while we charged imperialism upon the Republicans they denied that they intended it. The Republicans denounced us for stating that they intended imperialism and the president himself, after the election was over, made a speech at Pittsburg in which he said there was no thought of imperialism in the American mind. They denied their imperialistic intent, and yet since the election they have put themselves behind a decision of the supreme court that plants this nation on imperialistic grounds. I want to show you that the Republican party stands for the doctrine that in denied in 1900.

"And how about the trusts? We charged them with fostering the trusts, and they said that they were going to destroy the trusts and they have been in power ever since and have not destroyed them. It was within their power to do it, but they have not exercised the power.

"In 1900 they told you that the Republican party would protect you from the trusts and the first thing that was done after the election was the appointment of a United States attorney general who was the biggest trust attorney in the United States. And he has stood there as the representative of the trusts in his country to protect them from being punished, and a Republican party by appointing him has been paying back to the trusts the money raised from the trusts to carry the election. It is strange that you Republican farmers and laborers and business men can't understand that you can't destroy trusts through a party that goes to the trusts and gets its campaign funds to carry on the campaign and win the election."

Mr. Bryan said that President Roosevelt would do nothing to curtail the power of the trusts, although the papers say he will do so after the election this fall.

The watch was held upon Mr. Bryan during the closing periods of his speech, as the time for the train to leave for Bangor was approaching. He reached the depot in season, however, to shake hands with hundreds before the train pulled out.

THE LEONARD MEMORIAL

Monument to Commemorate Our Oldest Iron Foundries.

ELABORATE DESIGNS PREPARED.

This New Work of Art Will Be Erected In a Square at Taunton, Mass.—Charles H. Niehaus Is the Sculptor—Monument Will Be on a Large Scale.

The Leonard family were famous in England and Wales for their iron foundries during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and in accordance with the spirit of the age they kept the secrets of their art to themselves, handing them down from father to son. About 1651 certain members crossed the Atlantic and established a foundry in Massachusetts, says the New York Times. Two years later one of them went to New Jersey and opened the first furnaces near Rahway. Since that period many of the family have continued in the business, especially those who live at Taunton, Mass. In order to embellish that city and raise a memorial which shall have its foundation stones laid on the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the industry in America the Leonard family intends to place at Taunton a monument on a large scale.

The sculptor is Charles H. Niehaus. He has made two designs consisting of groups of figures about a base, which represents an island in a circular basin of water, and of a shaft rising from the base. In the one the shaft rises about ninety feet in the form of an obelisk, square in section. The plinth has low reliefs, with figures showing man and woman plighting troth, vestal virgins caring for the fire on an altar and other groups, treated in the classical vein, which refer to family life. The groups below are designed for bronze and show the prospector discovering iron ore, the iron master extracting the metal, the smith and the artificer in iron. In this design provision is made for an abundant fall of water which may gush from grottoes on two sides of the island.

The second design is not so tall. Here the groups are more concentrated, the island being smaller and the cascade feature being omitted. Behind the groups, which are also calculated for bronze, rises the base of a granite pedestal, against which tree forms are to be displayed in bronze. On the cap of the pedestal stands a great draped female Genius holding a torch on high and in her other hand a Mercury's helmet, with wings. The figures for the lower groups in each design are calculated for a height of eight feet. The monument will cost from $150,000 to $200,000, the shaft or pedestal and island being of granite.

In the second design, with the draped Genius and torch, the groups for bronze on the four sides of the island or lower base are studied with much care and are agreeably diversified. Each side has three or four figures. Here are laborers prying the ore from the earth, there the molten iron is being poured from the crucible by the foundrymen, while the furnace flames in the background. Yonder is a seated master explaining his craft to a 'prentice boy in leather apron, who holds a big, long handled hammer, while the mother stands behind listening. A fourth group shows the iron being fashioned. The groups on this model are much more studied and composed than on the other. They have variety and good movement and a certain rhythm of line and mass which those of the other model lack.

The two designs will be forwarded to Taunton in order that the local committee of Leonards may judge the work. Perhaps the simple shaft with its frieze of low, classic reliefs on the plinth in the first model will find favor. On the other hand, the groups of the lower part in the second model may be preferred. Then the sculptor will sacrifice the big Genius and put the tall shaft in her place, thus combining the finer features of each.

The Leonard memorial, as can be easily imagined, is not to be finished for a long while. The studies for a larger model may occupy a year or two, and it may be five years before the monument is unveiled.

The site for this important work of art is a square in Taunton surrounded by immense trees, which look as if they might have been planted when the Leonards first came from England. There is a fountain in the center of the square just where the monument ought to stand. Perhaps in the completed design the fountain idea may be included. In any case within five or six years Taunton is likely to have a more important monument than anything of the sort in Boston. The family is so large and so many members are still engaged in the iron industry that the heavy outlay for a work of art of these dimensions will not stand in the way. The sum of $100,000 is already secured for the fund.

New Padding For Tables.

VOLCANIC REGIONS.

The Five Active Groups of the Western Hemisphere.

The active volcanic groups of the western hemisphere occur in five widely separated regions:

First.—The Andean group of volcanoes of the equatorial region of western South America.

Second.—The chain of some twenty-five great cinder cones which stretch east and west across the south end of the Mexican plateau.

Third.—The Central American group, with its thirty-one active craters, extending diagonally across the western ends of the east and west folds of the Caribbean corrugations, fringing the Pacific side of Guatemala, San Salvador and Costa Rica. This is separated from the Mexican group on the north by a large nonvolcanic area, the isthmus of Tehuantepec, and on the south from the Andean volcanoes by the isthmus of Panama, where no active volcanoes are found.

Fourth.—The chain of volcanoes of the Windward islands, marking the eastern gate of the Caribbean sea, standing in a line directly across the eastern termini of the Caribbean mountains, trending east and west and parallel to the Central American group similarly situated at the western termini.

Fifth.—The volcanoes of Alaska and the Aleutian islands.—Professor Robert T. Hill in Century.

Circumlocution.

A young Yorkshire collier, anxious to pop the question to a girl whom he honestly admired, but not having the courage to ask her straight out, adopted a method of sounding her which romantic people will be inclined to think rather too practical.

"Jessie, my lass," he said nervously, "Ah've insured my life."

"Has ta, lad?" said the damsel indifferently.

"Aye, an' Ah'm thinkin' Ah'm a fool for doin' it."

"How's ta mak that art?"

"Why, supposin' Ah get killed in t' pit, where does ta think t' money'll go?"

"Why, to thy feyther, for sure."

"True enough, an' it ain't fair. It ought to be paid to my wife."

"To thy wife! Why, tha hasn't got one, Bill."

"That's just it," cried Bill in a burst of confidence. "Tha're a nice lass, Jessie, an' Ah want thee to have that money."

"Why couldn't ta say so at fust?" cried Jessie joyfully.

Then the happy couple embraced and trotted off to break the news to Jessie's mother.—Pearson's.

Went Him One Better.

A well known Glasgow divine related the following anecdote, showing that the ready wit of a countryman was more than a match for him:

He was going to the country for his holidays and was in a railway train when a young man entered. In a short time the two commenced a conversation, in the course of which the clergyman asked the youth what he worked at.

"I am a coupler, sir," was the reply.

"A coupler! So am I," replied the clergyman with a laugh.

The youth looked at him for a minute or so, then burst into a fit of laughter and said: "Oh, I see; ye'r a meenister. Ye marry folks. But I gang farther than ye dae. I baith couple and uncouple."

The clergyman laughed heartily and acknowledged that the youth had the better of the sally.

MORE SCHOOLS CLOSED

France Continues War Against Congregations

STRANGE SCENE IN PARIS

Women Implore President's Wife to Appeal to Her Husband to Stop Prosecutions—Schools Guarded by the Population In Many Districts

Paris, July 26.—The Journal Officiel publishes a decree, signed by President Loubet, designating 12 congregationist schools in Paris and 14 in the department of the Seine which it orders to be closed immediately, as they have been opened since the passage of the law of associations, without authorization. As a matter of fact, most of the schools designated have been closed already and the sisters in charge of them have returned to convents.

A strange scene, reminiscent of stormier, sadder days in France, occurred yesterday at the Elysee palace. A large delegation of women, including the wives of several members of the chamber of deputies, assembled at the palace to endeavor personally to implore Madame Loubet to appeal to her husband, the president, to stop the school prosecutions.

Madame Loubet sent out word to them by General Dubois, head of the president's military household, that it was impossible for her to receive a deputation upon a subject which was solely within the scope of the executive.

The wife of Deputy Reille made a violent protest. "Tell Madame Loubet," she said, "that the blood of women will flow if measures are not taken to stop this ill-treatment of the sisters. We will address a letter to the wife of the president in which we will declare war upon the oppressors. The Christian women of France have decided not to suffer in silence."

The population of Landerneau has formed relays to guard the school and peasant women sit on benches opposite the gate, knitting while awaiting the coming of the gendarmes. They are greatly excited and declare they prefer to be shot rather than abandon the sisters. The lady superior of the Landerneau convent said: "Like true Bretons, we will only yield to force. The women and other people who are guarding the school night and day have given us a courageous example."

The population of Roscoff is guarding the schools night and day. Sentinels are watching the roads and men are sleeping on the ground in the neighborhood in order to be ready at the first alarm.

Count Albert de Mun, the clerical leader in the chamber of deputies, is stumping the country, denouncing the action of the government and urging resistance.

A great clerical demonstration was made in front of the town hall at Angers, capital of the department of Maine-et-Loire, last night, and was continued till midnight. The municipal council was in session at the time of the demonstration. There was much fighting between students of the Catholic college and the radicals, in which several persons were injured. Twelve arrests were made.

Marconi Loses Honors

London, July 26.—The Saturday Review says that the Official Journal of the patent office contains a brief notice of a very unusual character. It announces that Guglielmo Marconi who, Sept. 10, 1901, had filed a patent in his own name for wireless telegraphy, now seeks leave to amend the application by converting it into an application for a patent for an invention communicated to him from abroad by the Marquis Luigi Solari, an Italian naval officer.

Western Texas Inundated

Dallas, Tex., July 26.—The rainfall in western Texas, which is characterized as the worst ever known, continues, and at Stephensville three lives were lost in a rushing torrent of water. Cloudburst was followed by cloudburst in western Texas and lakes and seas of water have inundated the country, causing great loss to the railroads.

Named After President

Washington, July 26.—The great marine camp on Culebra island, W. I., has been named Camp Roosevelt. Culebra island is to be defended against the three United States fleets in a war game this year by the marines, assisted by a flotilla of torpedo boats and other small craft.

Eruptions Threatened

San Jose, July 26.—Unusual activity has lately been shown by Costa Rican volcanoes. The lands in the neighborhood of Terraba have been considerably disturbed, and the government has sent a commission to that locality to study the conditions.

A $1,000 HOME.

Small Dwelling That Has Some Very Attractive Features.

[These plans and designs were made by Dennis & Gastmeyer, architects, 280 Broadway, New York.]

The elevation and floor plans as here shown represent a neat little home that can be built with plumbing for $1,000. It is very attractive and conveniently arranged and is suitable for almost any location, especially for small or narrow lots.

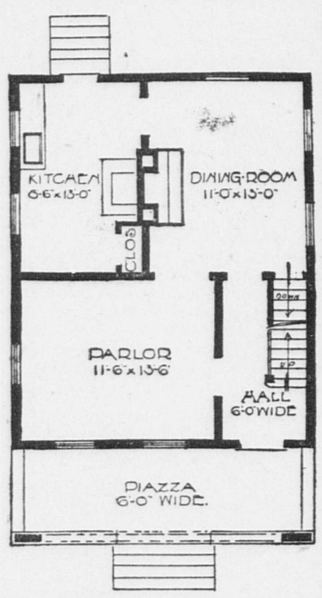

FRONT ELEVATION.

There is a cellar under the entire house, with walls of stone and a flooring of cement.

The entire frame is built of hemlock lumber complete. The exterior walls are all sheathed, papered and covered with beveled siding and cedar shingles.

All of the shingles are stained dark green, all of the body color is of a dark green, and all of the trimmings are of a very light shade of green. The main roof is covered with cypress shingles and stained with the brush one good coat of dark colored stain.

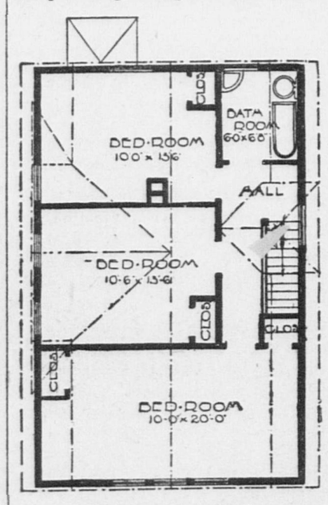

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

The floors throughout are laid with tongue and grooved North Carolina pine flooring boards. All of the walls are plastered with patent plaster, finished with hard white finish.

All of the interior woodwork is of cypress and is finished in the natural wood complete with one good coat of liquid wood fillers properly rubbed down and two good coats of interior varnish.

The staircase is built of cypress, and the newels, rails and balusters are of ash turned to suit.

The house is heated by hot air, and the plumbing throughout is of modern and up to date arrangements, as shown on plans.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

The hardware throughout is of plain imitation bronze.

This house can be erected in most places for the price above named.

Decoration In Metals.

Nothing is probably more marked at the present time than the tendency to introduce the metals into interior decoration, copper being at present a favorite, says the Architectural Record. The extension of the electric light has created a demand for light hand wrought fittings in metal, from which the use of that material has been extended to fire screens, stands or trays, flower and lamp standards and to all the hundred and one small objects that crowd the modern drawing room. So far as the architect is concerned, he is affected by the increased use of metal in the furniture of doors, in the fittings of all kinds of windows, in grilles, in and about the fireplace, as in hoods, blowers, basket grates, firedogs, etc., as well as in the use of metal moldings to inclose marble or tile linings.

THE CASE AT CANE HILL

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

One day a stranger arrived at Cane Hill. He said he was Charles Williams and had $13,000 with which to start a bank. Soon after a dead body was found and identified as that of Williams.

John Carnes was arrested for the murder. He couldn't explain his whereabouts on the evening previous for a good reason. He was robbing a house. Another man suspected of being an ex-convict, Joel Fisher, was arrested, who also could not give his whereabouts on that evening because he was robbing a freight car. It was believed that he and Carnes were partners in the crime.

Still another man was arrested, a single man who kept house for himself. While no money was found, it was argued that he had buried the sum secured from Williams, and for three days more than 100 people were ransacking his house and barn and every foot of his land in hopes to unearth the treasure.

The name of the third party arrested was Black. He employed me to defend him. My first idea naturally was to prove an alibi. He claimed to me that he had not left his house during the evening. Living alone, we had only his unsupported word for this, and by accident I ascertained that he was lying to me. Three different persons had called at his house between 7 and 10 o'clock and found him absent. Then Black made a confession to me. A farmer with whom he had quarreled had a large barn on the farm three miles away, and Black had gone there to burn it. His intentions were bad enough, but the fire he kindled went out, and the barn did not burn. To clear himself of the one he must own up to the other.

As if the case was not complicated enough, the sheriff took another step. He worked at the two men first arrested until they "confessed" that Black planned the whole affair, did the killing and that they only watched to see that he was not interrupted. The prosecution now felt assured that it had a straight case, while I realized that Black must run the gantlet for his life. The sheriff naturally wanted to convict Black, and when Carnes and Fisher were "pressed" they cooked up a very plausible "confession."

I had verified Black's story. I had gone to the barn and found a candle in a box just where he had told me to look for it. I had timed his journey to and fro and found it occupied the interval stated. I had found mud on his boots which had come from a spot near the barn. However, when the case was called in the higher court I was appalled at the strength of the evidence against my client.

I could only prove one thing in defense—previous good character. Black boldly confessed that he had intended to burn the barn and thus accounted for his time, but it only hurt his case. Everybody jumped to the conclusion that a man who would commit arson would not scruple at murder. It was shown that he was hard up financially, that certain men were rather afraid of him, that he had been heard to make dire threats, and they could not have painted him blacker had he been one of the Younger brothers.

On top of all this came the "confession." Carnes and Fisher had occupied the same cell for days and therefore agreed in all the details. They swore to meeting Black just outside the village. They entered the town to look for Williams and found him on the street. Fisher swore that he accosted him and directed him to the mill race, telling him that the owner of the mill wanted to see him. After the murder all went back to Black's house, where the money was to be divided. He had given Carnes and Fisher $50 apiece and put off the division for a week. While neither saw the blow struck nor the body flung into the water, both agreed as to what Black said on the way home. He had told them that Williams seemed suspicious and was about to run away when struck down.

I lost my case, of course. The jury went out simply for appearance's sake and in seven minutes returned with a verdict of guilty. You may ask what had been done to trace Williams. Very little. He had said he was from Chicago. No one knew his full address. The affair had been published in the Chicago papers, but no one had identified Williams as Williams. He seemed to have neither relatives nor acquaintances.

Black was to be sentenced to death, and Carnes and Fisher were to get off with a term in state prison. They had not yet been sentenced when Williams, the man who had been murdered and buried, returned to town as quietly as any other traveler. He left town on the night of the murder at 9 o'clock, going to Milwaukee to see about a bank safe and other things. He was taken ill en route and left the train at a small village where he had relatives. He had been sick with fever for weeks, and nothing whatever was known of the case.

My case was won by the reappearance of Williams. It was for his murder that Black had been tried. Who was the victim? That was never found out, though it was generally believed that he was one of a pair of bad men who had come to Cane Hill with some evil intent and had quarreled with and been done up by his pal. Carnes and Fisher at once went back on their "confession" and accounted for their time on that evening. This gave them away on the robberies, and they were duly tried and landed behind the bars.

TREWORGY NOT GUILTY

End of Case Which Dragged Along For Nearly Four Years

Ellsworth, Me., July 26.—The jury in the Treworgy case came in yesterday with a verdict of acquittal.

One of the jurors states that the first and all subsequent ballots up to the last stood 11 for acquittal and one for conviction. All night long the debate continued and when the jury was called out at 8 o'clock yesterday there was no more prospect of an agreement than when the first ballot was taken. Later, however, the 12th man weakened and a verdict of not guilty was reported.

William T. Treworgy was charged with murdering Mrs. Sarah Ware Sept. 17, 1898. The body of Mrs. Ware was found in a field two weeks after her disappearance from home. In March, 1899, Joseph Fogg, Jr., a man of 30 or thereabouts, who does odd jobs about town and goes to sea when work on shore is slack, went to the police with a statement that he had assisted William T. Treworgy to remove a body to the spot where it was found. This statement resulted in the first arrest of Treworgy, which occurred March 11 of that year. He was given a hearing and held for the grand jury. Then Fogg retracted his story, and Treworgy was released. The affair drifted into politics and Treworgy was rearrested. At the trial Fogg testified to his original statement that he helped move the body. Evidently the jury did not believe him.

Bitzer Trial In September

Greenfield, Mass., July 26.—Chief Justice Mason has assigned the murder trial of Louis Martin Bitzer for the second Monday in September. The crime with which Bitzer is charged was committed in Turners Falls on Dec. 31 last, when Bitzer shot his clerk, Miss Ida Colombe, 17 years old, and killed her, and also killed his 6-year-old son, Louis, besides wounding his wife and two daughters. No motive for the crime has ever been shown, and many believe Bitzer insane.

Slander Suit Against Clement

Boston, July 26.—Percival W. Clement, candidate for governor of Vermont, has been made defendant in a slander suit for $50,000 damages brought by Samuel D. Wilson of Cambridge, Mass. Wilson, while serving as a detective to ferret out illegal liquor sales, shot and killed a man named Gosher last December, was tried by jury and acquitted on the charge of manslaughter. Wilson charges Clement with having called him publicly in his speeches a murderer.

An Unaccountable Shooting

Littleton, N. H., July 26.—Miss Nora McKenna was taken to the hospital at Hanover last night suffering from a shattered right arm, the result of a shot fired at her, it is alleged, on Main street by Will Delaney, with whom she had formerly kept company. Her injuries, although painful, are not fatal. After the shooting Delaney disappeared. The cause of the shooting has not been ascertained.

Bank Bookkeeper Admits Theft

Springfield, Mass., July 26.—George E. Parker, 25, head bookkeeper at the Springfield National bank, was arrested last night on a charge of stealing $1530 on the passbook of a depositor. Parker admitted the theft and was locked up. Parker has been in the employ of the bank for five years and says that his peculations began about a year ago.

Spellbinders Will Be Busy

Burlington, Vt., July 26.—At a meeting of the Republican state committee here last night, it was determined to commence the state campaign at once and to carry it into every town and district of the state. Prominent national and state speakers will deliver addresses, and every effort will be made to elect the regular Republican ticket.

Bad Season For Farmers

Chester, Vt., July 26.—Hundreds of tons of hay throughout this section has remained flat in the fields for 10 days, owing to the rainy weather, and a large portion of it is worthless. The damage all through Vermont will be very heavy on the farmers. There are oat fields that have been cut green for feed and are nearly ruined.

Opposed to Oleo Law

Providence, July 26.—The makers of butterine in this state are understood to be favorably disposed toward joining hands with the western manufacturers of oleomargarine in contesting the new law, by which a tax of 10, instead of 2 cents a pound, as formerly, is imposed on the product which is colored to imitate butter.

To Wait Another Week

Fall River, Mass., July 26.—The Master Teamsters' association last night voted to postpone its proposed strike until after a special meeting to be held next Friday night. It was states that many contractors in the city have granted the advance asked, and it was decided to give the others a chance to do so.

Search Around Pond Abandoned

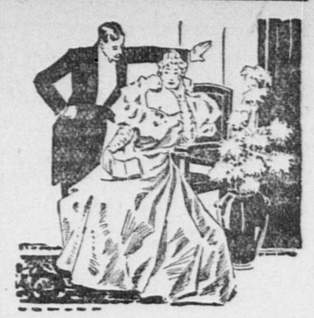

Beverly, Mass., July 26.—The search for Wilbur Clark, the missing 4-year-old boy, has been officially given up around Chebacco pond, Essex, where the boy disappeared on June 17. The state police are still at work on the case and still believe that the boy was kidnapped.

Vaccination Might Have Saved Him

Cambridge, Mass., July 26.—Putnam J. Ramsdell, a Christian Scientist who refused to be vaccinated, died from smallpox yesterday and was buried in Cambridge cemetery.

Hangman's Day In Arkansas

Little Rock, July 26.—Six men were hanged in this state yesterday for murder. Two of the number who paid the death penalty were white men.

Health is a magnet which irresistibly draws the man to the woman in life's mating time. Health does more than tint the skin with beauty; it puts music into the voice and buoyancy into the step, as well as happiness into the heart. A great many women covet beauty and are constantly seeking aids to beautify them. Let a woman first seek perfect health and all other charms shall be added to her.

There can be no general health for women while there is disease of the delicate womanly organism. The first step to perfect health is to cure womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I used four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Elmer D. Shearer, of Mountjoy, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and can say that I am cured of that dreaded disease, uterine trouble. Am in better health than ever before. Everyone who knows me is surprised to see me look so well. In June I was so poor in health that at times I could not walk. To-day I am cured. I tell everybody that Dr. Pierce's medicines cured me."

The Dingley Tariff law has been in operation just five years and those years have shown a development of American industries and general prosperity such as the world never before witnessed.

Wonder if that $60,000 appropriated for sewers has been borrowed and put into the city treasury to pay current expenses of all departments. If it was not for special appropriations for various objects some of the departments might be hard up.

Another Census Bulletin has been received, and is devoted to the "Wool Manufacture." William J. Battison of Wollaston was the expert special agent for this division and he presents 125 large pages of comments and figures. There are 42 different tables. Massachusetts had $90,128,754 of capital invested in wool manufacture in 1900, a large increase over 1890, and by far the leading State.

The Thomas Crane public library and grounds are always pointed out with pride to visitors. The new Federal building should have as much land as possible that it also may have green lawns about it. It is not probable that Quincy will continue a "one-street city," but that it will develop in all directions, and it is for the future that the building will be erected. It will be five or six years at the best before it will be ready for occupancy.

When Mr. Shaw became Secretary of the Treasury there was an employe on the rolls whose duties were so varied and multitudinous that he was regarded as indispensible, notwithstanding the fact that he went on frequent sprees. One day Mr. Shaw inquired what would be done if "Mike" were dead, and the reply was that they "supposed they would have to get along." "Then consider him dead so far as this department is concerned," said the Secretary.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Secretary Shaw denies that he ever said he would remove all the old heads of bureaus in the Treasury Department. Those who knew did not credit it at the time the statement was published, and those familiar with the work of the department did not believe it would be practicable. The chief clerk has been in the department for 37 years, working his way up from the lowest to the highest place. The knowledge of the business he has acquired through his long service is invaluable, and it would be a blunder to displace so efficent an official. His case is by no means exceptional, and in every division there are men who have by long experience acquired a knowledge of the regulations and decisions that render them of the highest value not only to the government, but to those who have dealings with the department, in the dispatch of the business consequent upon their familiarity with everything that pertains to the service.—Lynn Item.

THE SEVEN-MASTER.

Has the Thomas W. Lawson Reached the Limit.

Comments by Winthrop Packard.

How Prophets of Past Have Gone Astray.

Winthrop Packard contributed to the Boston Transcript of Wednesday a very interesting article on "The new seamanship as exemplified in the huge seven master built at Quincy, which is reproduced in full below:

Down at Quincy Point, within the the placid confines of the Fore River, lies the hull of the largest sailing vessel the world has yet seen. This vessel marks the culmination of a new era in wind-propelled vessels—or else the beginning of one whose extraordinary developments the imagination hesitates to reach out after. There will be wise heads whose belief is that in a seven-masted, ten-thousand ton (displacement) schooner, with a carrying capacity of eight thousand tons, the type has reached its limit, and no further progress in size and number of masts is probable, and others prophesy that the development of the idea is only in its infancy and the sea-freighting of the world is yet to be done in vessels to which even this is but a pygmy.

Only a little while ago people who failed to take the advice of the late lamented Hosea Biglow. "Don't prophesy onless ye know," were saying that the building of great steel steam freighters in the many magnificent shipyards the world over was sounding the doom of the large sailing ship, that great ocean cargoes were soon to be carried entirely in steamers and that the old ships with their towering clouds of canvas were to live only in memory and the pages of romance. Now what do we see? The Fore River Engine Works, mammoth, modern, turns out side by side with a Government cruiser an equally enormous ship of steel for the carrying of coal, to be driven from port to port, not by mighty engines and triple screws, but by the same wind and clever trimming of sails and setting of keel to current that sent the Argonauts of old on their historic course.

Truly this ship, whether the alpha of an era or the omega of a type, is extraordinary among sailing vessels and on her today extraordinary weapons are at work. From the great powerhouse alongside come all sorts of occult forces, their work on board, controlled and directed by a hundred men, making a seeming pandemonium. The blows of the riveting machines within the hull blend in such rapidity that you cannot hear yourself shout. On the decks men hold a hose ending in a steel tube to the head of a cold chisel, and with it cut steel as if it were cheese, the chisel driven by the buzzing blows of a hammer concealed within the tube and vibrated by compressed air. On the wooden deck being laid above the steel one the calking irons are driven by the same wizzard hammer, and one man calks as ten might without it. And out of it all grows the city, beautiful and stately, which is, after all, to be a sailing ship, wind-driven and wave-tossed, as was the first little schooner launched at Gloucester early in the eighteenth century.

As the vessel marks the present summit of achievement in building sailing vessels, so he presents forcibly the new seamanship which her type has brought about. The old time idea of a sailing ship culminated in the three-masted full-rigger. As the vessel of the Argonauts had but one mast with a single square sail hung from a cross yard, so the subsequent greater vessels grew on this model, adding more masts and more square sails until we have the great cargo ships of the last century. Many of them are extant today, with towering masts hung with five or six square sails to a mast, to say nothing of studding sails for light weather, stay sails hung between the masts, and jibs, jib topsails, and flying jibs till one is bewildered with the number of sails and appalled at the number of men required to handle them.

Then, I take it, some genius discovered that instead of having the yard hung to the mast by the middle it worked better in a small boat with a single sail to hang it at the end, and have the sail swing by its edge from the mast. It made things one-sided, but it was a splendid thing in tacking and beating. Thus we had the cat-boat rig, properly so called because it is as quick as a cat in tackling. Somebody put a bowsprit and a jib on a cat-boat and behold, the sloop. Again an extra long sloop giving chance for a second mast similarly rigged, and we have the first schooner. Yet from that first two-masted schooner of two centuries ago, to the many masted leviathan of today, is a long look ahead and the change has come in the main within just a very few years.

Not until the time of the Civil War was so huge a schooner as a 300-tonner thought of, and it was not on the seven seas at all, but on the great lakes in the year 1850 that the first three-master was built. Twenty years later the three-master had become the favorite rig of all schooners of above 150 tons or so. The growth from that time forward was steady but slow and it was not till 1880 that we had a four-master, and vessels of the schooner type began to run up into the 1200 and 1500 ton class.

It was in 1889 that the experiment was carried still farther. The demand was for greater tonnage, greater coal-carrying capacity, for coal seems to be the chief burden of the great schooner. Yet as the size of the vessel increases it is unwise to increase the size of single sails beyond a given point lest they may be unwieldy. To get greater spread of canvas, therefore, another mast mast be added and the Governor Ames, the first five-masted sailing vessel afloat, was built at Waldoboro, Me.

There was much controversey as to the worth of the Ames and it was not until about four years ago that the experiment was declared a success by other builders and followed by the John B. Prescott, a five-master with a capacity of 4500 tons, and the Nathaniel Palmer.

Two years later came two greater than these, the George W. Wells and the Eleanor A. Percy, six-master, each with a capacity of about five thousand tons, and the only two in the world, and now two years later still, we have the seven-master sliding off the ways.

Certain peculiarities in the handling of the two six-masters, however, showed that in them the limit of size in wood construction was reached. In sailing it was discovered that the six-masters were "tender," that is to say, the rise and fall of the seas under their great length, made them wiggle and spring, their keelson not being rigid enough when built of wood although of hugh thickness, was reenforced in every possible way. Hence the Lawson is built of steel, giving a rigid keelson, although a much slenderer one, all of which helps the carrying capacity. From the tip of her eighty-five foot bowsprit to her great stern, which lifts almost a half hundred feet out of the water, 478 feet aft, and from her keel to her seven mast heads, 135 feet above it, she is practically all steel the deck and cabin fittings and the 55-foot topmasts only being of wood. The names of the masts, by the way, are in order, fore, main, mizzen, spanker, jigger, driver and pusher.

With her nineteen sails set she will spread more than an acre of canvas to the wind and yet she carries or is to carry a crew of only sixteen men. The largest full riggers of the present day carry crews of thirty to forty men and it is obvious that the sixteen men of the Lawson could not handle her without special appliances, in the knowledge of the working of which comes the new seamanship.

The jovial "yeo-heave-ho," the rollicking sea chanty, and the tramp, tramp, of feet as the sailors hove her short at the capstan by main strength, is no longer heard in taking up the anchor. It could not well be, for each anchor of the seven master will weigh ten thousand pounds and must be handled by grips of steel and the giant strength of steam. So the huge cable will grind in and out of the hawse hole to the puff of an engine with the power of forty horses throbbing in its heart, the touch of a man's hand on the throttle and lever being all the human agency required in its handling.

Again in the hoisting and lowering of such great sails there is no more call for the watch to tally on the falls and "walk away up the deck with her" while the great gaff swings aloft or is dropped. Instead a valve is turned in the steam winch which sits at the foot of the mast, the drum revolves and with a man to "hold a turn" of the halyards on this the sail goes aloft with no strain except it be on the piston rod of the engine.

So too, in the steering. The steersman may watch the leach of the fore-sail indeed, to see that he is giving her the proper "full and by" when beating to the windward, but he will no longer be able to gauge the progress and point of his ship in a dark night by the feel of the straining seas on the rudder, as he might do in the old-time smaller ships that steered by hand. Instead he will stand with his hand on a little wheel that turns at a touch to starboard or to port and merely transmits his will to the engine whose pistons sway the great rudder to the right or to the left as the command comes through the mechanism. In the darkness of the night the steersman will have but to keep his eye on the needle and lubber mark on the compass and swing the ten thousand tons of his monster ship, by a touch of the finger.

The new seamanship is founded upon

That Pale Face

Tells you that you need iron and you can have it in the most approved and agreeable form by taking Pept-iron.

This new iron tonic ironizes the blood, and that means it gives the face, lips, cheeks, and ears a good, healthy color, and strengthens and tones the whole system.

It is a specific for paleness so common to delicate women and girls, for all anemic and dyspeptic conditions in either sex at any age, for nervousness, weak, unstrung nerves, poor circulation, cold hands and feet.

Needs Iron

It is pleasant to the taste, acceptable to the stomach, and does not injure the teeth nor cause constipation.

"I have now been taking Pept-iron six weeks," said a grateful lady the other day, "and am realizing great benefit, feel stronger, and know by what my friends say that I look better. I am glad my confidence in Hood's Sarsaparilla led me to take Pept-iron."

Peptiron

Peptiron is made in two forms: In a liquid—an aromatic cordial elixir—at $1 per bottle, also in chocolate-coated pills at 50c. or $1 per box. By C. I. HOOD CO., proprietors Hood's Sarsaparilla, Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.

THE BLUE HILLS.

Mountains of New Hampshire and Distant Towns May Be Seen.

Mr. E. G. Chamberlain's article on the Blue Hills first published in the Applachia is concluded today. The first instalment appeared last Saturday.

Turning nearly south, the large village, six miles off is Stoughton. Nearly due south is the tower of the water-works in Fall River, about thirty-five miles distant, a portion of the city is seen to the right. More to the right is Reservoir Pond in Canton, three miles off.

Over its right end is Great Meadow hill in Rehoboth, at a distance of twenty-three miles. Just south-south-east is Oak hill in Attleboro, a small, sharp peak, twenty-two miles away. Under this peak we see Massapoag Pond in Sharon, and still nearer the villages in Canton. East Attleboro is seen just to the right of the peak. Facing nearly south-west, the wooded hill, eight miles off, is Moose hill in Sharon. Sharon village, seven miles and Foxboro, twelve miles, are respectively one-third and two-thirds the angular distance from Oak hill to Moose hill. Now turn nearly to the west southwest. Just as far to the right of Moose hill as Oak hill is to the left, is Franklin, seventeen miles away, where we see the cupola of Dean Academy, and several steeples against a distant ridge. To the left of Franklin, one-fourth the way to Moose hill, rises Woonsocket hill in Rhode Island, S 54 degrees 35 minutes W, twenty-eight miles distant. Spread along to the right of west southwest is Norwood village four miles off. A trifle to the right of due west stands West Dedham church, upon a hill five miles off. At its right, more than forty miles distant, is Leicester church spire. Nearly in line with this lies Hopkinton, twenty-one miles away. Considerably to the right stretches a low distant ridge, Asnybumsket hill in Paxton, 1,407 feet high, and distant forty miles. A little to the right of west-northwest is Wachusett, the most conspicuous mountain in view. It is situated in Princeton, is 2,018 feet high and forty-four miles away. Just at its left is Little Wachusett; as much more to the left, Princeton village, forty-two miles off.

A trifle to the left of Princeton and exactly west-northwest, Marlboro is seen, twenty-five miles. Under these two villages lies Natick; and still nearer, South Natick. Turning back two-thirds of the way from Wachusett to Asnybumsket, we see on the horizon Rutland church, forty-four miles distant. A little to the right of Wachusett is Nobscot hill in Framingham, about twenty miles off, nearly under which is Wellesley college, a cluster of brick buildings, eleven miles distant. Far to the right of Wachusett is Mt. Watatick in Ashburnham, 1,847 feet high, and fifty-two miles distant.

It resembles a great hay-stack, and is nearly over the court house in Dedham, which we see at its left, only four miles away. Asybumskit, Wachusett and Watatick are the principal summits of a range called, "The back bone of Massachusetts," crossing the state from north to south. This range we may follow in New Hampshire, by Kidder, Spofford, Temple and Pack Monadnock, and Cretchett mountains. Beyond this range a trifle to the right of Watatick, stands the Grand Monadnock in Jeffrey, representing the main range in New Hampshire. It appears as a sharp peak, falling away gradually to the right. It is 3,177 feet high and sixty-seven and one-half miles distant.

To the right and exactly northwest we see Mt. Kidder in New Ipswich, then across Spofford's Gap is Spofford's Mountain in Temple, and the sharper Temple Mountain. Next on the right we see the Pack-Monadnock, a remarkable mountain near Peterboro, with two similar summits connected by a short ridge. The northern peak is just sixty miles distant. Its height is 2,260 feet; that of the southern peak is 2,280 feet. In range with this mountain lies Sprague pond, two miles off. The next mountain group to the right is in Lyndeboro, N. H., a low ridge with two summits of which the right hand one, called Lindeboro Pinnacle, is sixty miles distant. Over the left side of Pinnacle is Crochett Mountain in Francestown, sixty-six miles off, bearing N. 35 degrees 15 minutes W. A little to the right of Pinnacle N. 30 24 minutes W. is Prospect hill in Waltham, fourteen miles distant, a rounded hill with a smaller summit rising from its left, balanced by a spur from its right flank. Between Pinnacle and Prospect we see Lincoln on a hill eighteen miles away. At the right base of Prospect lies the village of Waltham, over which is Joe English hill in New Boston, N. H., distant fifty-eight miles. Further to the right, about north-northwest are the twin Uncanoonucs in Goffstown, N. H., about fifty-nine miles distant.

The right hand peak is nearly over Readville schoolhouse. Just to the right of this building in the foreground stretches the large village of Hyde Park, three miles distant, and nearly over its most prominent church are seen in the distance the spires of Arlington.

To the west and north-west we also look down upon the meadows of the Neponset River, which stream we can follow for several miles. Directly under the summit of Pack Monadnock we get glimpses of the Charles River. Some one of several hills about west-southwest may prove to be in Conneticut, but it is doubtful. The most of these interesting features of the view can be seen with the naked eye, or merely an opera glass. I have identified some prominent building in one hundred and twenty-five villages, and sighted many others of the locations of which I am at present doubtful, but many of these can only be seen with a telescope, and others can not easily be described in an article of this length.

THE BURRAGE HOSPITAL.

Last week on Bumkin Island, at the entrance to Hingham harbor, which can plainly be seen from Houghs Neck, the Burrage Hospital was opened for the care of sick and crippled children.

Mr. A. C. Burrage, while yet a young man, has become one of Boston's very rich men through fortunate association with the "inside" of the Standard Oil enterprises, and he has not delayed to make the public a sharer in his good fortune. The children's hospital which he has built and equipped and endowed on Bumkin's Island is a monument to his humanity. This island was bequeathed to Harvard College in 1683 by Samuel Ward of Hingham, a personal friend of John Harvard. The property has been totally unproductive, and as, by the terms of the bequest, the Harvard authorities are without power to transfer the title, they readily accepted Mr. Burrage's proposal to lease the island at a gross rental for a term of 999 years. A great heap of sand and shining pebbles, devoid of vegetation, but with dancing surf and a merry expanse of beach all around the island, it has been converted into a model child's sanitarium. Costly buildings, a staff of expert nurses, physicians and surgeons, lawns and shrubbery have grown up as if by magic, and the hitherto desolate spot has become at once a place of healing and a playground by the sea. Henceforth it will be known as the home of Burrage Hospital, a summer retreat for sick and deformed children.

Mr. Burrage's plan was inspired by a football accident which temporarily crippled his nine-year old son Russell and for long weeks confined him to his bed. On the boy's recovery Mr. Burrage set his heart upon the task of alleviating, in some measure, the hard lot of less fortunate children who are crippled for life.

He is now determined to maintain at Bumkin's Island a permanent haven for these children of misfortune—a spot where nature, love and science will work together to heal and to make glad some suffering and cheerless lives.

A building has been reared upon the island's lofty summit, designed in every detail with special reference to the maximum benefits to be derived from its superb location at an altitude of over one hundred feet from high water mark, which, for the magnificence of its views, perfection of hygienic conditions and thoroughness in all its appointments, is unsurpassed by any other institution of its kind in the world.

On the first floor in the main building are situated the offices of administration, rooms of the superintendent, reception room, etc., the dining hall for patients and another for officers, the kitchen, serving room and scullery flanked on both the east and west sides with wings, each containing wards large and small for patients. A double inclined runway takes one to the second floor; this unique feature to take the place of a stairway was the idea of Mrs. Burrage, who saw something of the kind when in California. By its easy rubber-covered slopes, making two turns between each floor, the little ones with the aid of crutches can ascend or descend without danger or fatigue, while wheeled chairs and the house ambulance can be propelled from floor to floor without difficulty.

The basement contains a thoroughly equipped laundry, baths, various rooms of utility and a gymnasium equipped with all known modern appliances for boys and girls. This department will be under the efficient management of Mr. Otto Lofsted, the medical gymnast, a noted specialist in the correction of deformities by physical training. The entire building is heated by steam, the boiler and engine house being an independent structure of rough stone situated on the slope of the hill in the rear. Nearby is located the gas plant.

Fresh water is brought to the island in a main from the system of the Hingham Water Co. The building is of yellow pressed fire brick with slated roof and makes a prominent landmark from all points of the surrounding country. We are indebted to the Boston Journal for the loan of the above cut.

After the Prize.

Monday evening there assembled in the engine house, Hollis avenue, Braintree, about 75 gentlemen to consider the formation of a hand engine company to compete for prize money next Monday, and perhaps continue as a permanent organization.

The following officers were elected:

President,—H. R. Drinkwater
Vice Pres.,—E. Stanwood Hollis
Secretary,—H. W. Woodworth
Treasurer,—D. J. Gallivan
Foreman,—M. F. Drinkwater
First assistant,—Daniel Ahern
Second assistant,—W. R. Frampton
Steward,—Clifford Thayer

A tub has been procured and Supt. Maybury gave it a thorough overhauling.

The engine will be known as the Cochato next Monday and if she is worked well she may reside in Braintree under that name for years.

It was voted to adopt the name Cochato Engine Company.

Thursday evening by verbal announcement about 300 people of all ages gathered at the bridge, near Price's blacksmith shop on Adams street for a playout of the new tub. After waiting nearly two hours the Cochato arrived and at 9.17 a good stream of water was put through the hose. Several tests were made to the entire satisfaction of the company.

Fire at East Braintree.

At 5 o'clock Thursday morning the community was awakened by an alarm from Box 27, which was rung in for a fire in the shop of the East Braintree Baking Company on Commercial street. The fire had gained considerable headway before the arrival of the department and the interior of the building was completely gutted.

Prompt action with the mill hose by Messrs. Rowell and Frazier saved the house next door occupied by Fred Curtin and kept the bake shop from complete destruction. Cause of the fire—ignition of doughnut fat.

HOW JIMMIE WAS ELECTED

There were four of them—all boys. They were to have a regular club, with officers, just as any big person's club did. Miss Jane, who was older than any of them and who knew just exactly how clubs should be managed, had promised to show them how to vote and elect their officers and how the secretary should keep the minutes and how to do all the many things about clubs that come under the long word "parliamentary."

"Now, boys," said Miss Jane, "we're going to vote. I'll give you each a slip of paper, and you must write on that the name of the boy you want for president, and the one who gets the most votes will be elected."

Thereupon Miss Jane passed around the slips. But, alas, she hadn't thought to tell each boy not to vote for himself. When the votes were gathered up, it turned out that Dickie Brown wanted Dickie Brown for president, and Jimmie Saunders wanted Jimmie Saunders, and so on throughout the list. No boy had voted for any other boy but himself.

Miss Jane lay back and laughed till the tears came in her eyes, although the boys couldn't see just where the joke came in.

"You're such goosy boys," she said. "Don't you see you mustn't vote for yourselves? Nobody ever does that. You must pretend that you want some one else even if you don't."

The boys all thought that was silly.

"Well, but you just must," said Miss Jane. "That's the way it's done."

So they voted once more, but the same thing happened again. It was evident that each boy thought no other boy in that club would make quite such a good president as he would. In fact, Dickie Brown sat back in his chair and actually sulked each time that there was the least suggestion that any one else should be president.

"I'm sure I don't know what we'll do," said Miss Jane, wrinkling her forehead into a knot. "We'll never get a president if you boys keep on doing this."

"We'll let Arthur be president if we can be other things," suggested Jimmie Saunders.

But Dickie Brown threatened to leave the club if such a thing as that was done.

Miss Jane tried to coax him, but he wouldn't be coaxed. Evidently there was nothing to be done. Finally, however, Jimmie Saunders came forward with another idea.

"We'll lag!" he said, and "lagging" meant nothing more or less than for each boy to fall down on his hands and knees and flip pennies against the wall at the other end of the room, and the boy who came nearest to the wall was to be the president.

Miss Jane wasn't laughing any more, but there was a twinkling look in her eye which seemed very much as if she would at any minute sit down and laugh until the tears came again. She objected very strongly to the "lagging" and promised the boys that if they wouldn't think any more about president for awhile she would tell them a bear story.

The bear story wasn't at all interesting, though, and as soon as it was over Dickie Brown, who was anxious to bring matters to a finish, suggested that they vote again and that they all vote for Miss Jane for president, letting Dickie and Arthur and Walt Jones divide up the remaining three honors of vice president, secretary and treasurer. Poor Jimmie didn't exactly see how he himself was going to figure in the bargain, but he drew a long breath and decided that if there was to be any club at all and one boy had to give in that boy might just as well be he as any one else.

When they all sat down around the table at their next meeting, Miss Jane talked about everything under the sun except voting. Jimmie was bubbling

"BOYS, I WAS READING THE OTHER DAY ABOUT A HERO."

with excitement and anxious for the time to come when Dick Brown would get the wind taken out of his sails.

But apparently voting for officers didn't come into Miss Jane's plans for the day.

"Boys," she said, "I was reading the other day about a hero whom no one has ever heard of."

"Oh-h-h!" said Jimmie, with a long, ecstatic sigh of anticipation that was echoed by every one.

"And I'm going to tell you about him," continued Miss Jane, "for I know that every one of you boys knows how to admire a hero. Well, this wasn't a boy who saved a child from a burning house or stopped a runaway horse or flagged a train. He was just an ordinary sort of a boy who did his duty fairly and squarely every day. He liked to have good times the way all boys do, but when he found that his good times would be in the way of other people's good times he cheerfully gave up his own plans. Now, you see this boy was so very quiet about his own good deeds that no one ever knew anything about them, and that's why I think he was a hero, for he knew how to do the good and brave thing without expecting praise or reward for it. You know most of the heroes whom we know about have been rewarded."

"I think that fellow was bully," said Arthur Davis, and he meant it so much that every one immediately felt the same way.

"Well," said Miss Jane with a sigh and turning to her books to read them some new story, "I think he was, too, Arthur. I wish we had such a boy in our club. Then we could make him president of it and settle all of our disputes as well as reward him. Don't you think so, boys?"

"Bet your life," said Arthur so warmly that even Dickie said the same thing and with almost as much enthusiasm. In fact, the spirit seemed to go all around the table, and Jimmie and all of them looked wistfully at each other, wishing that they could each be like that unknown hero of Miss Jane's.

"Oh, boys, I'm glad you think so!" said Miss Jane, clapping her hands. Her eyes were sparkling. "We've got him!"

Everybody gasped as if a cannon had exploded.

"And he's sitting right down there on the other side of Dick Brown."

It was Jimmie Saunders! Jimmie himself could hardly speak. His tongue got stopped in the upper part of his mouth every time he tried to ask a question.

"I'll tell you why it's he," said Miss Jane. "It's what lots of people would call a little thing, but I think it's a pretty big thing. You know that last week every boy wanted to be president in this club, and you know just how very much you each wanted to. You wouldn't any of you have liked to give it up. Well, Jimmie Saunders did. He gave up entirely any idea of being president himself and worked like a soldier to have another person made president just so that the club might be saved, and he was willing to go without any honor himself just for the sake of the club. Boys, that's the way states are made and governed."

"I say," said Dickie Brown, getting up so excitedly that he stood up in his chair, "I vote for Jim Saunders for president of this club!"

"And I!"

"And I!"

"And I!"

The echoes came so fast that they sounded like one roar.

Miss Jane knew, though, and she, too, stood up, her eyes fairly glowing.

"Jimmie Saunders is hereby elected president by acclamation!" she said.

And there followed a ringing cheer and a hurrah for President Saunders.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

How Japanese Children Are Named

In Japan children are called by the family name or "last" name first and their "given" or Christian name second. For instance, if a little Japanese boy were named one of our names, such as John Farley or Hugh Miller or Peter Smith, he would be called Farley John or Miller Hugh or Smith Peter. When he learns to lisp his name, it is always the family name he learns first; so that if you were to ask our little Americo-Japanese boy his name he would say "Farley" or "Miller" or "Smith." Later he would add the other name when he had learned to talk.

If a little Japanese boy is named Sing Foo, you will probably find that his sister's name is Sing Fa, and his brothers may be named Sing Lee, Sing Foy and Sing Amee. But all are addressed merely as "Sing" instead of by the "first" name.—Exchange.

All She Did Was to Smile.

"You look very much pleased about something," said a gentleman on a suburban train to the conductor, who was ordinarily a somewhat grim and stern faced personage.

"I presume so," replied the conductor. "I've just seen a little girl who takes this train to go in to school every morning, and she always smiles up at me when I punch her ticket. I declare, it makes me good natured for the rest of the trip!"

Yet all she did was to smile.—Youth's Companion.

A Gentleman.

I knew him for a gentleman
By signs that never fail;
His coat was rough and rather worn,
His cheeks were thin and pale—
A lad who had his way to make,
With little time for play—
I knew him for a gentleman
By certain signs today.

He met his mother on the street;
Off came his little cap.
My door was shut; he waited there
Until I heard his rap.
He took the bundle from my hand,
And when I dropped my pen
He sprang to pick it up for me,
This gentleman of ten.

He does not push and crowd along;
His voice is gently pitched;
He does not fling his books about
As if he were bewitched.
He stands aside to let you pass,
He always shuts the door;
He runs on errands willingly
To forge and mill and store.

He thinks of you before himself,
He serves you if he can,
For in whatever company
The manners make the man.
At ten or forty 'tis the same,
The manner tells the tale,
And I discern the gentleman
By signs that never fail.

—Margaret Sangster in Harper's Young People.

Although to superficial observation it might seem that the great bodies of the universe could radiate their light forever, the modern generalizations of physics show that such cannot be the case, writes Simon Newcomb in the International Monthly. The radiation of light necessarily involves a corresponding loss of heat and with it the expenditure of some form of energy. The possibility of such a restoration completely transcends our science. How can the little vibration which strikes our eye from some distant star and which has been perhaps thousands of years in reaching us find its way back to its origin? The light emitted by the sun 10,000 years ago is today pursuing its way in a sphere whose surface is 10,000 light years distant on all sides. Science has nothing even to suggest the possibility of its restoration, and the most delicate observations fail to show any return from the unfathomable abyss.

It can be said with the confidence of demonstration that the energy generated by the sun's contraction could not have kept up its present supply of heat for much more than twenty or thirty millions of years.

It will suffice to say in a general way that the study of earth and ocean shows evidence of the action of a series of causes which must have been going on for hundreds of millions, quite probably for thousands of millions, of years.

Moreover, the commencement of the geological operations of which we speak is by no means the commencement of the earth's existence. The theories of both parties agree that for untold eons before the geological changes now visible commenced our planet was a molten mass, perhaps even an incandescent globe like the sun. During all those eons the sun must have been in existence as a vast nebulous mass, first reaching as far as the earth's orbit and slowly contracting its dimensions. And these eons are to be included in the physicist's estimate of twenty or thirty millions of years.

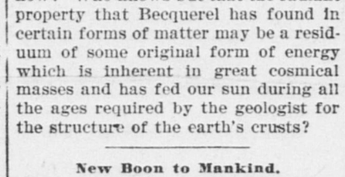

Granting the evolutionary hypothesis, every star has its lifetime. We can even lay down the law by which it passes from infancy to old age. All stars do not have the same length of life; the rule is that the larger the star, or the greater the mass of matter which composes it, the longer will it endure. But no cautious thinker can treat such a subject with the ease of ordinary demonstration. How can he essay to describe what may have been going on hundreds of millions of years in the past? Can he dare to say that nature was the same then as now? Who knows but that the radiant property that Becquerel has found in certain forms of matter may be a residuum of some original form of energy which is inherent in great cosmical masses and has fed our sun during all the ages required by the geologist for the structure of the earth's crusts?

New Boon to Mankind.

The possibility of keeping living rooms at a temperature of 70 to 72 degrees in the hottest weather, which means practically an end to summer suffering from heat, is held out by Professor Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, who has filed application for a patent on what he calls a gravity air cooling, drying and purifying machine. The new apparatus is the result of several years of study and experiment. Professor Moore believes the invention to be of immense scientific and practical value. The cost of the machine will be so small that it will be within the reach of nearly all.

A Big Blast In Granite.

The London Engineer says that a monster blast was fired at the Bonawe granite quarries, Argyleshire, Scotland, recently. The mine was driven, with compressed air as the motive power, into the center of the quarry face for seventy feet, with two arms fifty feet each and a chamber at the end of both the arms, in which was placed 20,000 pounds of gunpowder. The operation was carried through in the remarkably short time of ten weeks. Powder of the highest grade was used, and the blast was so successful that upward of 250,000 tons of rock were displaced.

Among the closing papers read before the twenty-fourth annual congress of the American Laryngological association were several dealing with the presence of foreign bodies in bronchial cavities. Dr. Emil Mayer noted the increase in bronchial troubles and expressed his belief that the use of the automobiles would cause a yet greater increase in the number of cases. The high speed attained by chauffeurs, he thought, was favorable to the entrance of foreign particles into the cavities.

The Automobile In Porto Rico.

The inhabitants of Porto Rico seem well inclined to the automobile, a machine which until recently was almost unknown there. An agent of an automobile company states that he has been able to sell some $20,000 worth of vehicles to Porto Ricans. According to the Automobile Magazine, the vehicle in the Philippines promises to play an exceedingly prominent part in the development and cultivation of our recent possessions.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 27—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Missions. A meeting in the interest of medical missions. "Preach—heal."—Matt. x, 7, 8.

In this chapter we have the commission of Christ to the twelve apostles just before He sent them upon their first missionary journey. In this commission two things are uppermost: First, they are to preach; second, they are to heal. "And as ye go preach, saying the kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, cast out devils, freely as ye have received freely give." In this commission we can see that Christ recognizes the importance of both the body and the soul, and we can also see that he recognizes the opportunity of reaching the soul through the body.

One of the superior characteristics of the church of Christ is that it pays proper attention to the entire man. It not only emphasizes the value and the importance of the soul, but also of the mind and of the body. Stoicism emphasizes the mind and ignores the body and the soul. Epicureanism emphasizes the importance of the physical life, but ignores the mind and the soul. But Christianity attaches due importance to every part of man. It also recognizes the great advantages that come to spiritual workers through attention to and the care of the body.

The intimate relations that exist between the body, the mind and the soul illustrate the importance of Christianity's position in this respect. It would be an impossibility to lead a man to Christ who is hungry. No less a distinguished evangelist than Mr. Moody has declared, "A man with cold feet cannot be converted." The body, the mind and the soul all bear the most intimate relations the one to the other. It is impossible to treat one without due and proper attention to all. Recognizing this principle, Christianity has paid proper attention to the mind and to the body, having of course in mind the reaching of the soul above everything else.

This attitude of Christianity toward the body has been specially applied to the work of foreign missions. This has been done for a number of reasons. (1) In most heathen countries medical science is very little advanced. Perhaps there is nothing cruder in heathen life than the methods of taking care of the body. Medical science is scarcely understood at all. The methods of the physicians of heathendom are most crude and instead of benefiting the health are usually injurious to it. This condition made it absolutely necessary for Christian missionaries to pay attention to medical science. Even before medical missionaries were sent to the foreign fields the others had to give some attention to this subject. (2) Medical missionaries are not only necessary, but they are also a very powerful influence. It is possible through them to gain admission to many places where otherwise it would be impossible to go. The women of most oriental countries can be reached through the women doctors as in no other way. They live ordinarily most exclusively and under most circumstances are absolutely inaccessible or were so until medical missions played such an important part in our foreign missionary work. (3) Through medical missions it is possible to gain the confidence of foreigners as in no other way. They are naturally suspicious and prejudiced, but when they see the beneficent results of medical missions their loved ones healed or saved from disease, this prejudice largely passes away. They can realize that this attitude is at least beneficent, and they are naturally, therefore, the more readily convinced that the gospel truths will have the same effect upon their souls. The king of an oriental country was led to practically embrace Christianity and to support Christian missions as a result of the healing of a sick son. Such illustrations are very common. The hearts of the people are reached through the medical work, their confidence is obtained, and thus it is an easy matter to present the truths of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and the minds of the people instead of being prejudiced against it are open and free to receive it.

Lead, Kindly Light.

The light fails for the hesitating step, and a wavering allegiance leads to the confusion issuing in darkness. "Ours is not the reason why; ours is but to do and die," if necessary, assured that being obedient unto death is to enter into an abundant life. This cannot be too strongly insisted upon. Obedience is the law of service, and obedience to this moving Light is the means whereby it becomes clearer to us. The Light is moving on. The night darkens before the dawn, and then with the dawn the moving Light becomes transformed for us into the welcoming Presence, and we find the Light has led us home, to go out no more forever.—Episcopal Recorder.

Two Good Rules.

Remember that charity thinketh no evil, much less repeats it. There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart—never believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it is true; never tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary and that God is listening while you tell it.—Henry Van Dyke.

In Sacrifice and Purity.

Love is best shown in sacrifice and blossoms sweetest in the white garments of purity.—Hohenzollern.

Resignation.

With adverse fate I will no longer cope;
Ambition and despair alike shall cease;
Where lately bloomed the wondrous flower, hope,
I plant and tend the humble herb of peace.

PUT UP A GOOD FIGHT

Jeffries Vanquishes Fitzsimmons In Eighth Round

CHAMPION BADLY MAULED

Lanky Cornishman Had the Battle Well In Hand When Stiff Punches In Jaw and Stomach Put Him Out—What They Have to Say About It

San Francisco, July 26.—After fighting a battle of eight rounds that was fraught with brilliant and courageous work, Robert Fitzsimmons last night forfeited his last claim upon the heavy weight championship. He was knocked to the floor by James J. Jeffries and counted out after he had so badly punished the champion that it was a foregone conclusion among the spectators that the Cornishman must win. Bleeding from a number of gashes in the face, apparently weakening, and clearly unable to cope with Fitzsimmons' superior skill, Jeffries delivered two lucky punches as Fitzsimmons paused in his fighting to speak to him, and turned the tide. The battle was brief, but noteworthy, and will live in pugilistic history.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

Fitzsimmons tried once to arise from the mat, but sank down again helpless and heard himself counted out, where but a moment before he had apparently all the better of it.

"I will never fight again," said the battle-scarred veteran of the ring when he had sufficiently recovered to talk. "The fight was won fairly and to the best man belongs the laurels."

"You are the most dangerous man alive," said Jeffries in return, "and I consider myself lucky to have won when I did."

Fitzsimmons had been fighting at a furious gait, cool and deliberate, and chopping the champion to pieces with the terrific rights and lefts that have made him famous.

It was the draughthorse and the racer from the tap of the gong. When the men came together Fitzsimmons appeared rather worried, but upon the opening of the first round he assumed an air of absolute confidence and fought with the deliberation of the general that he is.

As early as the second round Fitzsimmons had Jeffries bleeding profusely from mouth and nose. Again and again he landed on his bulky opponent, getting away in such a clever manner that brought down the house with cheers. It seemed, indeed, that Jeffries could scarcely weather the gale.

In the eighth round the end came, and under a series of hot exchanges Fitzsimmons paused with his guard down and spoke to the champion. The latter's reply consisted of a terrific left hook to the stomach, followed by a left to the jaw that brought back to him the fleeting championship and forever removed the veteran Fitzsimmons from the fistic arena.

Fitzsimmons took his defeat with amazing good cheer. He walked to the centre of the ring and raising his hand addressed the multitude, saying: "The best man has won. Had I beaten Jeffries tonight I would have conceded him the championship and retired forever. I retire just the same now, but without having accomplished my ambition. I am satisfied."

Champion Jeffries was jubilant over his success, despite the terrible scars of battle. He said to an Associated Press reporter:

"Well, I have won, just as I expected to. It was a fierce fight—the fiercest I ever had—but I won. Yes, I got a good beating as far as the marks of a battle count, but then I rather expected that. I knew Fitzsimmons had a cutting punch and would land it at some time of the fight. But the few marks and the loss of a little blood won't hurt a man. I took them and only waited for the opportunity to land my punch. I found out that Fitzsimmons could not harm me even with his famous right. He cut me up, of course, but that did not hurt. I never was tired at any stage and was stronger than Fitzsimmons at all stages. I think Fitzsimmons can yet defeat any other man than myself."

Cheerful in the face of defeat and full of praise for his vanquisher, and writhing in agony on his couch, surrounded by a score of friends offering their consolations, Fitzsimmons, between short sentences, interspersed with groans, announced that he had fought his last battle.

He said: "After receiving the terrific body blow I knew I was gone and told Jeff to keep away, but he was anxious to finish me and he sent a right swing to my jaw. I fought in the way I did because both my hands were gone when I entered the ring. I injured them on Wednesday boxing with Hank Griffin. My right hand in particular was almost useless. I am confident now, even more so than ever, that in my first battle with Jeffries I was doped. His showing tonight proved to me conclusively that my defeat at his hands in our previous battle was unwarranted."

Dr. L. C. Cox, after a careful examination of the defeated pugilist, announced that Fitzsimmons' ribs were not broken but that his left side was badly bruised, the muscles being so constricted as to cause the Cornishman great difficulty in breathing.

Clark Ball, Fitzsimmons' manager, expressed his opinion that Fitzsimmons was too confident.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

General Conditions Justify a Feeling of Confidence

New York, July 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Each day brings the agricultural products of the nation nearer maturity and as the possibility of any serious injury becomes smaller, the feeling of confidence is fully sustained and trade grows stronger. Aside from a number of small disputes among garment workers the labor outlook has improved. The heavy distribution of merchandise is shown by railway earnings thus far reported, for July 25 percent larger than last year and 20 percent in excess of the corresponding period of 1900.

Insufficient fuel is the one serious difficulty in the iron and steel industry, interruptions and delays from this cause becoming more noticeable each day. Shipments are retarded by the car and motive power shortage.

Footwear factories have returned to almost full operation, contracts coming forward freely from the wholesalers at the large cities. These orders are for fall delivery and represent business usually placed in June, but held back this year in the hope of better terms.

Aside from moderate buying for Red sea ports, there has been little trade in the export division of the cotton goods market. Domestic purchases are confined to immediate requirements as a rule, the finer grades alone being ordered in advance. New lines of men's woolen and worsted fabrics are opened slowly, the most important goods not yet appearing.

Priests Friendly to Friars

New York, July 26.—Rev. J. F. O'Reilly of Lawrence, Mass., made public yesterday resolutions adopted by the quadrennial chapter of the Augustinian Order at Villanova, Pa., July 16, and presented to President Roosevelt yesterday at Oyster Bay. The preamble praises the friars for their work as philanthropists, educators and pioneers of civilization. The resolution deplores the seeming disposition of the government to discredit the friars and protests against their general condemnation.

Mitchell Says Strikers Will Win

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 26.—President Mitchell returned to strike headquarters in this city last evening. He said there was no change in the situation in the anthracite region. The strikers were remaining firm and were confident of victory. As regards the situation in West Virginia, he said the courts would be appealed to to secure the release of the organizers of the Miners' union, sentenced to jail for contempt.

Shaky Structures In Venice

Venice, July 26.—A technical commission has ordered the demolition of the Santo Stefano clock tower, which has shown signs of collapse. Several houses also have been ordered to be demolished, and other precautionary measures have been taken. Three hundred thousand volumes of the library in the ducal palace are eing removed, as danger is feared to the back facade of the palace.

Electricity to Replace Steam

Baltimore, July 26.—Mayor Hayes yesterday approved the ordinance recently passed by the city council requiring the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company to substitute electric motors for steam locomotives in hauling freight trains through the tunnel which passes underground through the heart of this city.

May Change Coronation Program

London, July 26.—The fullest satisfaction is expressed at King Edward's progress, but as he is still unable to walk projects are being mooted for the adoption of means to avoid exertion by him on coronation day. Modifications, therefore, may be made in the coronation ceremonies.

Won't Encounter Ice Floes

St. Johns, July 26.—The mail steamer Virginia Lake, which arrived here yesterday from northern Labrador, reports the entire coast free from ice. This will enable the Peary steamer Windward to make a quick run to Davis straights.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, July 27.
Sun rises—4:31; sets—7:10.
Moon rises—10:44 p. m.
High water—3:45 a. m.; 4:15 p. m.

There has been no material change in the position of the high and low pressures. Moderate temperature prevails in all districts. There will be showers in New England. The winds along the coast will continue fresh east to southeast.

A RACE FOR ROOSEVELT

Cowboys to Ride 600 Miles to Welcome the President.

WILD DASH OVER THE PRAIRIES.

Mounted on Broncbos, Former Rough Riders Who Fought at San Juan Will Race From Deadwood to Omaha to Greet Their Old Leader—Winner to Receive $1,000.

When President Roosevelt visits the west this fall, he will be met in Omaha, Neb., by a big delegation of former rough riders who stormed the heights of San Juan hill with him and who will come from all over the plains and mountains of North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana, writes a correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. They will not go to Omaha in Pullmans, either, but will make a wild dash over the prairies from Deadwood, S. D., 600 miles away, on their stout little bronchos. In addition to welcoming his old friend and leader, the winner of the race will receive fifty twenty dollar goldpieces, $1,000. There will also be a five hundred dollar cash prize and half a dozen other prizes, consisting of silver mounted saddle, bridles, bits, etc.

The race will test to the uttermost the endurance of both horses and men, one of the rules being that each man shall ride the same horse from Deadwood to Omaha. There will be no relay riding, and the terrible strain is expected to show the superiority of the western horseman over all others.

The only condition imposed upon the entries is that each man shall finish on the same mount on which he started and that the horse must be a western bred horse. Any one who cares to enter the race may do so.

The starting of the race will be under the supervision of Tom Hartzell, city marshal of Chadron, Neb., when that town was wild and woolly, and Captain Seth Bullock, first sheriff of the Black Hills and captain of rough riders. The men will be ranged in front of the city hall at Deadwood, and after being addressed by the mayor of that city will be started by a pistol shot. They will keep together as long as in the city limits, after passing which they are at liberty to choose their own routes.

Already more than fifty men have signified their intentions of joining the race, and three cowgirls from Slim Buttes, Wyo., have notified the promoters that they will also compete. Among the well known characters who have entered are "Doc" Middleton, formerly one of the really bad men of the border, scout, frontiersman, gun fighter and picturesque character; James Hartzell, the crack rifle shot of the west; William Charwick, "Bar Z. Kid," "Cayuse Bill," the famous broncho buster; "Scar Face" Thompson, "Seven Up Kid," "Mexican Pete" and "Lariat Pete." The Indians from Rosebud and Pine Ridge agencies are very much worked up over the event and are preparing to make a number of entries. Several will also come from Buffalo Bill's Riding college at Cody, Wyo.

The only handicap some of the riders will carry is that some of their fellows will better understand the topography of the country and thus be able to ride a more direct route.

Army officers all over the west are watching the coming race, and the government will probably have an official report for future use.

SANDOW GIRL THE LATEST.

New Shirt Waist Lends an Athletic Effect to the Figure.

The Sandow girl is in style. The new shirt waists are built so that a woman looks twice as wide as she is, says the London Times. In her skirt she looks narrower, for skirts are very clinging, and they are fitted as far down as the knees. But with the waist it is different. Here the figure must be broad and apparently muscular, so that the midsummer woman comes very near being top heavy.

The new waists are made with the shoulder plait. This is a fold of cloth which is put on in such a manner that it projects over the shoulders. In certain shape it is called the "Gibsonian," and its immediate effect is to make the shoulders look very wide. It is really more becoming to a slender woman than to a plump one, but both styles are wearing it, and you are gradually getting used to the woman who looks twice as broad as she did in the spring.

Sleeves display the same peculiarity. They are tucked in rows of tucking running around the arm, and they are trimmed with bands of lace going round and round, all of which tend to make the sleeves large and the arm big.

"Piffpuff" Is Pingpong's Rival.

The peer of pingpong has been invented in a new game on which the title of "piffpuff" has been conferred. The new pastime, which may eclipse pingpong in its own field, is described by a New Zealand exchange as a table game, played with a miniature pair of bellows and an air ball, which is very light. At each end of the table are upstanding goals, and the play lies in directing the ball through the opponent's goal. This, by a stroke of luck, may be done in a few minutes or it may not be accomplished in a night. The authority on "piffpuff" comments on the hazards of the game as follows: "The ball in no way confines itself to the table, as a too vigorous puff may send it circling upward to the ceiling, and the player, nursing his impatience, stands awaiting his opportunity to gently blow it back into place."

ARMY AND NAVY WAR GAME

Big Balloons Will Watch For the Warships.

The most spectacular feature of the maneuvers of the fleet in sham attack on the land defenses of New York harbor will be the use of balloons by the signal corps, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Journal. One balloon will have a capacity of 12,000 cubic feet and probably will be used at Fisher's island. Eleven others will be disposed along the coast from New York to Narragansett. The balloons will be used both by night and day.

The object is to get advance news of the sighting of the fleet and signal the forts of the approach of Admiral Higginson and the warships. Balloons were used in the Shafter campaign against Santiago, and they were used in Washington forty years ago to locate the enemy across the Potomac. It is said, however, that Shafter's balloon was of more real advantage to the Spanish than to the American forces.

The signal corps will make the night of the attack on Long Island one of a remarkable fireworks display. The corps has invented a system of signals of varicolored rockets which can be read more easily and rapidly than the wigwag of the ship signals. The signal service men in the balloons, 2,000 or 2,500 feet in the air, will, they think, catch Higginson thirty or forty miles out at sea. They will then begin their aerial telegraphing by rockets to the forts.

The real interest in the game now appears to be to learn what Higginson has up his nautical sleeve to counter on the elaborate preparations which have been made to keep him in sight all the time.

There are whispers at the navy department that he has also some devices which will astonish the men in the balloons. He certainly will not try to run in with his searchlights in action, and it is a dangerous undertaking to steam in with lights out. He may, however, display lights from vessels which are not coming in at all and take the chances with his warships with a minimum of light. The balloonists may definitely locate a mock squadron of small boats with lights, while the Alabama, the Kearsarge, the Massachusetts and Indiana may be "turning" some other forts than at New York or in fact be actually passing the entrance to the sound.

Landsmen at Washington say that the navy people will be stopped at every turn, and the navy people say that there are some surprises in store, due to the ingenuity of Captain Swift and the general naval board.

AUTO IN RURAL MAIL WORK.

Experiment of Enterprising Carrier Successful In Every Way.

The postmaster general has issued special authority to Oscar Werking, mail carrier on rural route No. 2 from Hagerstown, Ind., to use an automobile in making his daily delivery of mail, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Accordingto the official document, Mr. Werking is the only rural route agent in the country who regularly uses an automobile in his work. The route is thirty-two miles long. He had a fine horse and started to use the animal to make the daily trips. For several weeks the horse stood up to the work in good condition, but when the winter rains made the roads heavy it was found to be all but impossible to urge the horse over the long route every day. Occasionally Mr. Werking would go over the route on his bicycle.

He continued to make the deliveries in that manner until a few weeks ago, when he determined to invest in an automobile. The machine cost $600, which is exactly the amount of money Mr. Werking receives for a year's work in delivering the mail. It is estimated that it will cost less than a third as much to operate and maintain the automobile as it does to keep a horse and vehicle in repair. With the automobile he covers the route in two hours and a half. The patrons along the route are rejoicing over the fact that they get their mail, many of them, almost six hours earlier than before, as frequently when delivering with a horse the entire day was consumed in making the trip.

The experiment has attracted wide attention, and many other carriers are considering the matter of purchasing automobiles to use in their work. The postoffice department is highly in favor of the innovation and will encourage its adoption in many places. An official test will be made of this machine in the near future, when a report will be made to the postmaster general on points covering the time required to cover the route, the expense of maintaining the machine in repair and all other questions touching the good of the service.

Santos-Dumont's Airship.

The frame of the airship in which Santos-Dumont, the young aeronaut, expects to fly around the statue of Liberty is sixty-three feet in length, tapering at each end to the width of about a foot. The shape will be very much like that of a cigar, according to the Philadelphia Press, while on the underside of the middle section is a framework which supports the forty-five horsepower gasoline motor. A little in front of the motor is a wicker basket about four feet in height, the sides being the height of a man from the feet to the armpits. Within easy reach of the operator are several wires for the purpose of manipulating the steering gear and for controlling the motive power. The propeller is sixteen feet in length. The balloon over all is seventy feet in length and is divided into three sections, each independent. It has been made of oiled silk.

Preached at Braintree.

Last Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Norton of Quincy, preached an interesting and thoroughly practical sermon, from the text taken from Jer. 13: 23, "Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the Leopard his spots? Then may ye also do good, that are accustomed to do evil." The speaker said, the tendency of life is to fixity. Life it has been said is a bundle of habits.

The text is a startling one. Habit is something that has been. There is no slavery like that of an evil habit, it is like a chain that binds and holds us. The tendency of a physical life is to fixity, it is the same with our thoughts our words, our manners and customs, all these having a tendency to fixity.

Character is fixity, the thing that has been is the thing that is. The great lesson for all to learn is to point their lives in the direction they would have them go. This truth the young should learn and if followed would make life easy.—Braintree Observer.

Cape Cod Steamboat Excursions.

The Bay Line steamboat excursions from this city to Provincetown seem to be a greater attraction to the majority of people than ever. Every fair day finds the new, staunch and elegantly appointed steamer Cape Cod comfortably filled with passengers, many of whom hail from other points than Boston, for the varied pleasures, instruction and inspiration of this all day sea trip have been well advertised, and are thoroughly appreciated.

The steamer itself is unquestionably the fastest in the harbor, and now that her machinery, like everything, else is in tip-top condition, the timetable shows a decided reduction from that of her sister ship of last year, the Martinque. Leaving Bay Line Wharf, 400 Atlantic Avenue, Boston, on week days at 9.30, and on Sundays at 10 o'clock, it takes rather less than four hours for the Cape Cod to reach her destination, and even less time on the return trip. Meanwhile the tourists have an hour and a half for dinner and sightseeing in Provincetown. The music of the Bay Line Band, an invariable accompaniment of these all day ocean trips, is one of the many agreeable and inspiring features.

Flashlight Speedy.

The Flashlight, H. M. Faxon's Quincy cup challenger, was showing her speed in Hull Bay yesterday, and in spite of the fact that she is a freak, no one gainsays her speed. While Herreshoff designed a catamaran that went twenty miles an hour, the Flashlight has not shown this marvellous ability, but she is a wonder for speed all in all, and the 21-footers, now racing at Hull, are pretty well content that the Flashlight is a catamaran and is not entered in the association classes. The trials off Hull show the Flashlight is speedy and will give the Outlook or he Hades a hard race for the retention of the Quincy cup.—Boston Advertiser.

THE SEVEN-MASTER.

the old, indeed, but differs from it in the size of the forces which it handles and the methods used as much as the Yankee designed and built schooner differs in size and appearance from the old-time brig that was built in Liverpool and sailed from Southampton docks, differs almost as the modern great freight engine differs from a donkey cart. The romance of many men and little sails is swallowed up in the romance of enormous cargoes and mighty forces controlling them under the guidance of a few. And it is a romance incomparably greater. To feel thus, you have to stand on the stern of the Lawson and look forward along her mighty deck, see the sheer of her hull sweep upward and forward till the forecastle deck marks its culmination. Already she is no more a structure of steel, but a living creature of the sea, harnessed by man, to be sure, to do his bidding, but to do it with a stateliness, a grace and a dignity that is matched by no other creation of his hand.

"The days of the large sailing ship are numbered; steam is to take its place. said the unwise prophets of a few years ago. Now we see steam added to the sailing ships merely to assist in the handling of them, that they may be larger, and drive a still greater hull than would be otherwise possible. Yet in view of the great increase in the number and size of schooners, one is tempted to prophesy with like rashness that the days of the square-rigger are numbered. Capital works always in the direction of economy. If it finds, as it must, that the schooner type will carry as great a cargo, with a crew one-third as large and other expenses no greater, it is obvious that it will in the future employ the schooner.

Today in the waters of Massachusetts Bay, a full-rigged ship is rare enough to cause comment from those who look from the land. The schooner is more easily handled by fewer men, may be handled more quickly in a given manœuvre, and though in sailing directly before the wind, where many of her sails would blanket one another she may not be so speedy as the ship with square yards, yet on any given voyage of much duration she would come in ahead because of her superior speed in reaching and tacking.

There may be a limit to the size of schooners, but it is doubtful if we have approached it yet. The first four-master came about almost by accident. The hull was intended for a very large three-master, but it was found that to supply the proper sail area three masts would be very large and the sails unwieldy, so a fourth mast was added as an afterthought. The first five-master was deemed an unwise experiment by many builders, and was not duplicated for a decade. Now we have a seven-master and there is little doubt that though most of our harbors will not admit vessels drawing greater depth than this, there is room in them for vessels still longer, and no reason why an eighth or a tenth mast might not give the ship still greater length and coal carrying capacity. Indeed the problem of handling these great vessels is not so much the matter of entering harbors, for in many coastwise ports the big six masters already in commission sail directly to the dock, and in others where it is not wise to attempt this, tugs meet them outside and tow or push them in; the trouble will come in the open sea.

The addition of each new mast seems to bring an added problem in the matter of handling the ship. Thus the five-master has ways that are new and tricks that are vain which never confronted the captain of the three-master, and these are to be learned only by actual handling. Captain Crowley, who is to be the master of the Lawson, well knows this. He has grown up with the schooner type, and has handled each additional mast as it came into use. Yet he sees no reason why the seven-master, when her little ways are once learned, should not be handled as well as the smaller ships.

Within a few weeks the Thomas W. Lawson will be spreading her acre of canvas to the breezes of Massachusetts Bay, and her skipper will be face to face with the latest conundrum of the sailor man's world, and the half of the world, that goes down to the sea in ships and does business in great waters looks on with intense interest in this latest and greatest venture in the new seamanship.

BIDS FOR WARSHIP.

Forty-two Months Allowed for the Construction.

Quincy may have another battleship to build. Circulars were issued at Washington yesterday and bids will be opened Oct 1 for the new battleship Louisiana.

The maximum time for the construction of the Louisiana is 42 months. For any delay beyond the contract time the builders are to forfeit $300 per day for the first month and $600 a day thereafter.

In considering bids preference will be given to the bidder who offers to construct the ship in the shortest time. The speed of the ship is to be 18 knots. If it falls below that limit $50,000 is to be deducted from the contract price for each quarter knot down to 17 knots and $100,000 for each quarter knot below the latter figure down to 16 1-2 knots.

If the ship fails to make 16 1-2 knots, the secretary of the navy can reject her in his discretion.

In a general way it can be said that the Louisiana and the Connecticut will be of the same type as the battleships Georgia and New Jersey.

They will measure 450 feet on the load line and will have an extreme width of 76 feet and 10 inches. The mean draft will be 24 feet, 5 inches, and coaling capacity 2200 tons.

The main batteries will consist of four 12-inch, eight 8-inch and twelve 7-inch guns, with a secondary battery of 20 3-inch rapid fire guns and some smaller semi-automatic guns.

The hull will be protected by a complete belt of 9-inch armor. The maximum 11-inch armor will extend 200 feet amidships, forward and aft of which will be 9-inch armor, to protect the magazines, and decreasing in thickness gradually to four inches at the stem and stern.

The casemate armor and the bulkhead armor will be six inches thick. The armor is to be supplied by the government.

The constructors are to furnish the steel for the protective deck, which is to extend from stem to stern, flat amidships and sloping at the sides.

The races were very close in Classes D, S and I at Hull yesterday. The order in Class D was: Calypso, Seebonnook, Sally VI, L'Aiglon, Cheewink and Early Dawn.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

BOSTON MUSIC HALL.

The Shakespearian production made in past seasons by the players of the Castle Square theatre stock company have proved so popular that the management has arranged to present "Romeo and Juliet" by this organization as the attraction at Boston Music Hall the coming week." With a view to including all of the scenes incidental to the beautiful love story told by the great poet, in the most concise fashion, a special acting version of the play has been prepared for this production, some artistic stage settings have been designed and painted, historically accurate costumes will be provided and the music will be appropriate. Many letters, requesting this production, have reached the Castle Square theatre management in recent seasons and the opportunity to become acquainted with this play will undoubtedly prove most gratifying to the patrons of this company. The cast announced is as follows: Romeo, son to Montague, Hallett Thompson; Mercutio and and Benvolio, friends to Romeo, Charles Mackay and James A. Keane; Paris, a young nobleman, Edward Wade; Capulet, father to Juliet, Lindsay Morison; Tybalt, nephew to Lady Capulet, Edmund Breese; Friar Laurence, a Franciscan, James A. Bliss; Peter, servant to Juliet's nurse, John T. Craven; Balthasar, a servant to Romeo, Frank Minzey; Juliet, daughter to Capulet, Mary Hall; Lady Capulet, wife to Capulet, Katharine Clinton; Nurse to Juliet, Fanny Addison Pitt.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For the week commencing July 28, the chief contributor to the Keith program will be Peter F. Dailey, the well known comedian, who will be supported by John Kearney, Edwin Garvie, Grace Dare and Mollie Thompson, in a comedy sketch that is made up of excerpts from "Champagne Charley," the Augustus Thomas farce that Mr. Dailey starred in some time ago. Other entertainers will be: Arthur Buckner, the sensational trick bicycle rider; Stella Mayhew, a newcomer, who has acquired considerable repute as a singer of "coon" melodies; Fisher and McDonough, in an idyll of the slums; Collins and North, singing and talking comedians; the Fadettes orchestra, making an entire change of selections of popular music, and new subjects in the grand production of tableaux vivants, which are decidedly the best that have ever been exhibited in this theatre or elsewhere. More tourists are visiting Keith's this season than during any summer for half a dozen years.

Take Part In School Demonstrations In Paris

CROWDS WERE KEPT MOVING

A Number of Fights, Without Any Serious Results—Clerical and Anti-Clerical Women and Politicians Help to Enliven the Proceedings

Paris, July 28.—The demonstrations made yesterday in connection with the decree of Premier Combes ordering the closing of the Congregationist schools proved to be quite as much of a manifestation in support of the government as of opposition to its anti-clerical measures. The crowd which gathered in the Place de la Concorde numbered 15,000 persons, while as many more thronged the Champs Elysees. The clerical and anti-clerical forces about equally divided the gatherings. The former were distinguishable by the red, white and blue paper flowers which they wore, while the latter sported red eglantines.

Though many fights occurred, they never became general, nor was any person seriously injured. An imposing force of police and mounted municipal guards had much trouble in keeping the manifestants constantly moving, and at times they were forced to charge to prevent the crowd becoming too dense. On the whole, the crowds were good-natured and mainly confined themselves to shouting "Liberty," "Liberty," "Long live the sisters," and "We want the sisters," to which the anti-clericals replied "Long live the republic," and "Down with the priests." The occasional appearance of a priest was the signal for much hooting, and several fights were due to their presence.

A striking feature of the manifestations was the large number of women, many of them well dressed, who actively participated. Nor were these all clerical in their sympathies, for the anti-clerical women were also out in strong force and they occasionally made things lively for their clerical sisters, whom the police had some difficulty in protecting. In one instance a detachment of mounted guards had to rescue three women from the hands of a group of socialist women who were bent on mobbing them.

The clericals made several attempts to reach the Place Beauvees, on which the elysee and ministry of the interior are situated, but were prevented from doing so by strong cordons of police and municipal guards, which were stationed at all the approaches in order to prevent demonstrations in front of these buildings. The demonstrations culminated when a group of 30 women, some in carriages and some on foot, attempted to reach the ministry of the interior in order to present to Premier Combes a petition on behalf of the sisters. The police, however, refused to allow them to pass.

Subsequently the clericals made an angry rush on the cordon guarding the Avenue Gabrielle, and the soldiers had to use the butts of their rides to keep the crowd back.

Another incident occurred on the Champs Elysees, where the crowd began throwing the small iron chairs bordering the sidewalks among the feet of the horses of the mounted guards. One horse fell, injuring his rider.

A number of prominent nationalists, including Deputies Millevoye and Auffray and several municipal councillors, were conspicuous in the crowd and were much ovated by their followers and hooted by the anti-clericals.

Had Terrible Experience

Halifax, July 28.—After three days without food and water, and in an exhausted condition, Reuben Muise and William Butler, two Gloucester fishermen, reached North Sydney Saturday night. While trawling in a dory on Thursday morning they lost their schooner, the Helen G. Wells. United States Consul West will send them to their homes in Gloucester.

Bryan to Rest at Block Island

Bridgeport, Conn., July 28.—William J. Bryan left Bridgeport yesterday on board a yacht owned by Lewis Nixon of New York, whose guest he will be for the next two days. The yacht put into New Haven harbor last night, and will cruise to the eastward through Long Island Sound today. Mr. Bryan will rest at Block island for several days.

Precautionary Measures

Berlin, July 28.—The warnings to Emperor William against going to Posen for the army maneuvers to be held in September have had the effect of causing an order to be issued that the festivities be confined to a strictly military character and that all windows be closed along the line of march of the procession at Posen.

MONROE ROGERS' CASE

Requistion Papers From North Carolina Found to Be Defective

Boston, July 28.—A sergeant of police, who had come from North Carolina with a requisition for Monroe Rogers, the colored man under arrest in Brockton on a charge of arson in that state, must go, or send back, for more papers. Assistant Attorney General Nash has found that the extradition papers brought by the sergeant were not in accordance with the revised statutes of the United States, as they were accompanied with neither an indictment nor an affidavit, as is necessary when the culprit is charged with committing a felony.

The man is charged with arson, which is punishable in North Carolina by death, and he believes that if he goes back he will die, either with or without trial, and for this reason a colored clergyman of Woburn has asked the governor to grant a hearing to determine, if possible, his guilt. As the matter now stands, however, more papers must be secured before anything can be done by the Massachusetts executive.

Motorman's Fatal Mistake

New Haven, July 28.—An inquest will be held on the trolley disaster of Saturday night which caused the death of Motorman Lindstrom, the serious injury of three other persons, and injuries in less degree to at least 15 others. Coroner Mix caused the arrest and detention of Joseph J. Smith, a motorman who was in charge of the car which crashed into the car upon which Lindstrom was motorman. It is alleged that Smith took his car past a turnout upon which he should have waited and that he was led to make the fatal mistake by the passage of two special excursion cars which preceded the regular car.

Old Home Week In Bay State

Boston, July 28.—The first Old Home Week in the history of Massachusetts began yesterday. It was chiefly in the churches that note was made of the occasion and there were no elaborate programs. Throughout the state, more especially in the town and village churches, Old Home Week was referred to in one way or another, to a greater extent in those places where the program includes on some day of this week public exercises of a general character. In the western part of the state the week will be made much of by those who are returning to the scenes of their childhood.

"Wide Open" Sunday at Revere

Boston, July 28.—For the first time the Revere Beach park reservation had a Sunday that vied with a week day for its lively scenes, nearly every amusement and business enterprise being open. The carousels had a rushing trade and itinerant merchants peddled their wares without hindrance. The park police claimed that they had no authority to stop the flying horses, and when the Revere police tried to do so they were shown signs that the receipts were for charity.

Blames Drink For Shooting

Littleton, N. H., July 28.—William G. Delaney, who wounded Norah McKenne, a hotel waitress, with a revolver, has been locked up. For his act he says he is sorry beyond words, for the young woman was his best friend, and he was drunk when he shot her. Delaney pleaded guilty to the charge of attempted murder and was committed without bail until the outcome of Miss McKenna's wound is determined.

BOTH SIDES STILL FIRM

Rumor That One Coal Company Will Soon Start Up

STRIKERS SAY IT CANNOT

Real Test of Strength of Operators Will Come When Supply of Hard Coal Is Exhausted—Shortage In Shipments of Over 11,000,000 Tons

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 23.—The beginning of the 11th week of the anthracite miners' strike finds apparently no change in the situation, although the rumor has been revived that an effort will be made some day this week, upon the part of one of the large companies, to start up one of their collieries. The companies have a sufficient number of coal and iron policemen enlisted now to prevent trouble should it arise, and all that would be necessary to get a mine in operation would be a sufficient number of miners and laborers to blast the coal and load it on the cars. No doubt plenty of ordinary laborers could be secured, but it is a question whether the requisite number of miners could be persuaded to go into the workings.

At strike headquarters the belief is as strong as ever that the operators cannot resume and that it is idle talk to even suggest such a thing. President Mitchell simply says that the situation is about the same and that the strikers are as firm as ever.

Mine workers' officials believe the actual crisis in the anthracite coal strike will come within the next two weeks. While the contest has been waged with all the vigor possible on both sides, the operators so far have had the advantage, they say, in that their product has been on the market all the time. The real test of the strength of the operators will come, it is believed, when the supply of hard coal in the market shall be completely exhausted. This situation promises to develop within two weeks at the outside and probably within a very few days.

With the exception of 2,000,000 tons shipped during May, no hard coal has been hauled from the mines since May 1. The shipments for May, June and July last year amounted to 13,129,296 tons, making a shortage for this year of 11,129,269 tons.

A shortage existed in the anthracite market before the strike was inaugurated, and with the shipments cut off absolutely by the tie-up, the supply on hand practically has been exhausted. A few days, it is believed, will leave the eastern market absolutely barren.

This may test the real unity of the operators. Whether they will be able to resist the demands from manufacturers and the public generally is the question.

Suicide of Insanity Expert

Wahington, July 28.—Dr. Eugene Grissom, aged 71, once well known as an alienist and neurologist, committed suicide here yesterday by sending a bullet through his brain. Dr. Grissom had been dejected and morose for several weeks and had become physically and mentally weakened from the use of strong narcotics. He was a native of Granville, N. C., served on the Confederate side until wounded during the Civil war and afterwards was a member of the state legislature.

Lee's Prediction as to Cuba

Indianapolis, July 28.—General Fitzhugh Lee said last night: "I believe that the crisis of Cuban affairs is now. The Cubans were promised an independent government and they have it. Now they will have to prove that they can give security to property and maintain order in the island. If they do not come up to the mark, the island must become either a part of the United States or a dependency of this country."

LAW MUST BE CHANGED

Before True Reformers Can Do Insurance Business In Massachusetts

Boston, July 28.—The Massachusetts branch of the Grand Fountain of the United Order of True Reformers, having been forbidden to admit more members in this state, now occupies a unique position. Unless it is assisted by the legislature the branch must die out. Members are paying their regular dues and beneficiaries of those who die are receiving the sums expected.

The True Reformers order is considered by prominent members of the negro race as its best insurance organization. The troubles which it has had in connection with the Massachusetts laws began 18 months ago, when technicalities in insurance regulations of the order and legislation with regard to such laws conflicted.

Since that time an effort has been made to effect a change whereby the order will not be affected in this way by the laws of Massachusetts, which is the only state in the union in which the reformers cannot do any business as a state organization.

All business in Massachusetts has been suspended for the past 18 months. No more policies can be issued in Massachusetts until the order shall comply with the insurance laws. There are in America 60,000 members of the Grand Fountain. The order was established in 1881. It has paid out in sick benefits over $1,500,000, and has given over $662,000 for death benefits.

There is in connection with the organization of a savings bank with business transacted amounting to over $6,000,000, together with real estate, printing and old folks' departments, and a Reformers' mercantile and industrial association.

To Eliminate American Teachers

Manila, July 28.—Commissioner Moses, head of the department of public instruction for the Philippine islands, is perfecting plans for the organization of a college in Manila for the training of Filipino teachers. Commissioner Moses' object is to fit Filipinos for the task American teachers are now performing, it being considered inadvisable to continue to import and maintain American teachers.

An Actress' Complaint

Philadelphia, July 28.—Najib Hashim, manager of the Grand Opera House, was held in $5000 bail for court, charged with converting to his own use jewels valued at $30,000 belonging to Mrs. Constance Biddle, a variety actress. Mrs. Biddle says she entrusted him with the care of her jewelry which, she alleges, he pawned in New York for $3450.

No Light on Clark Case

Beverly, Mass., July 28.—The whereabouts of Wilbur Clark, the 4-year-old son of Harry W. Clark, promises to be an unsolved mystery, despite the unceasing efforts of thousands of searchers who have been seeking during the past five weeks to obtain some trace of him. The state police are apparently as much at sea as when they first began their investigations.

Cholera Making Rapid Headway

Manila, July 28.—During the 48 hours ended yesterday morning 150 fresh cases of cholera were reported in Manila. No reports regarding the disease were received from the provinces, owing to a storm.

Messenger Boys' Strike Settled

Chicago, July 28.—The strike of the Illinois District Telegraph company's messenger boys was settled at a late hour last night. By the settlement the boys will receive increased wages and extra pay for overtime.

Good Afternoon.

There should be no delay on the part of the city of Quincy in accepting the appropriation of $12,000 for a Federal building site. It is very doubtful if the government will increase the amount and in the meanwhile the $12,000 might be diverted in other directions. Some desirable sites have been offered for less than $12,000, one with over 20,000 square feet of land.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The Weymouth Gazette is our authority for the statement that a woman was fined $3 in the local court at Quincy "for violating the city ordinance in regard to the use of language on the street." Our valued contemporary is not explicit in regard to the kind of language used, whether sulphureous, over some local municipal disturbance, or Mary MacLane-ish, according to Montana. At any rate, to have to give up three good dollars for "using language" in the fine old streets of Quincy must have jarred the free and easy going citizens of the only city in Norfolk county.—Hyde Park Gazette.

SAD DROWNING.

Sank in Presence of Mother, Sister and Friends.

There was a sad fatal drowning accident Sunday at Quincy woods. The victim was Adolph Dubord, Jr., aged 18 years of 60 Martland avenue, Brockton. The young man came to Quincy, with his mother and sister and a party of friends, to spend the day in Quincy woods. Shortly after noon Dubord with Joseph Fornier and a young man named Bushee went in bathing. Near where they went in was a deep hole that had been dredged out so as to allow scows loaded with material for the Metropalitan sewer to come to the shore.

It was into this hole that Dubord walked. He could not awim and upon coming to the surface cried out for help. Mr. Nephew, the young man's uncle who was on shore and the others who were in the water went to his rescue, but before they could reach him he sank.

The services of Hiram W. Phillips the diver were secured and late in the afternoon he recovered the body which was viewed by Medical Examiner Jones who ordered its removal to Hall's undertaking rooms. Later it was taken in charge by a Brockton undertaker.

Blueberry Pie Contest.

There was great sport at Post Island on Sunday when George F. Lowell, the caterer at the South Terminal station, inaugurated a blueberry pie contest. Twelve contestants entered and had their hands tied behind them. Three prizes were offered and were won as follows: First by Jack Shriever, second by Earl Lowell, and third by Ray Fales. It is doubtful if some get the stain of blueberries off their face for a week. Candidates are wanted for another contest on Sunday at 4 P. M.

LOVED BY ALL.

Notable Funeral of Adin Packard Wilde.

Nearly One Hundred Floral Gifts.

Probably Five Hundred People in Attendance.

The funeral of Adin Packard Wilde, the 18-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Wilde on Sunday, was a notable one in many ways. All Atlantic seemed to take his sad death home, and there was also a large attendance of friends and school-mates of the young man from Wollaston, Quincy, Braintree and elsewhere, particularly students from Thayer academy, the young man being president of the class of 1903, manager of the base ball and also the foot ball team.

Not over 25 per cent. of the friends could be accommodated in the house, but at the close of the services all were permitted to file through the house and view the remains, and it is estimated that nearly 500 people were in attendance.

Atlantic people do not recall a funeral where there was such a profusion of flowers. There were fully one hundred offerings, including elaborate set pieces, beautiful flat bouquets in variety, etc.

Perhaps the most noticeable set piece was the large pillow from Co. N, United Boys Brigade of America. On it was a shield, and also the words "Sure" and "Steadfast." There were others from the Sunday school, schoolmates, business associates of Mr. Wilde, neighbors and friends, including wreaths, crescents, harps, pillows, etc., etc.

The remains were encased in a rich mahogany casket.

The Boys Brigade was in attendance in a body and during the services were drawn up at parade rest in front of the house.

The service was brief but impressive not occupying half an hour. The Harvard Male Quartette sang "Eternal Goodness."

Rev. John H. Whitaker, pastor of the Memorial Congregational church, and an intimate friend of the family, conducted the services. The usual Scripture reading was omitted, but Mr. Whitaker spoke in eulogistic terms of his young friend, and read a beautiful quotation from Whittier. The lesson that he drew was comforting.

Then the quartette sang "Cast Thy Burden on the Lord," and after the prayer, sang "Saved by Grace."

Albert W. Fay, the funeral director, is entitled to considerable praise for the admirable manner in which he handled the large attendance, so that there was no confusion. After all friends had viewed the remains, the relatives were left alone for awhile with their dead, and then carriages were taken for the Pond Street cemetery, at South Braintree.

The pall bearers were three members of Co. N of the Boy's Brigade: Lieut. David G. Moffat, Lieut. Russell Hammond and Corp. Horace Jenkins; and three from the Sunday School class: William Duggan, Henry Swansen and Henry Hinkley.

The Boys' Brigade escorted the funeral cortege as far as Barry's corner.

It was almost impossible to get the flowers into the ambulance wagon of Mr. Fay, and some were left behind. The flowers reached the grave in advance of the funeral cortege and were very prettily displayed. Never was a lot in the Pond Street cemetery more completely covered with flowers. Since the services many have been attracted to the cemetery just to witness the display.

SCAVENGER CASE.

A Hearing Given This Morning and Then Continued.

The continued cases of Charles L. Prescott, the city scavenger, for violation of the City Ordinances by dumping the contents of vaults and cesspools upon land for which a permit had not been granted and for using teams not properly lettered, numbered and covered.

Dr. Dion secretary of the Board of Health testified that the Board of Health had not defined any particular place for Prescott to dump and under cross-examination said the board had not restricted him where to dump. That the regulations of 1901 were adopted by the present Board of Health at a meeting held July 25, 1902. That these regulations had not been published since May 4, 1901. Section 3, was intended to apply more particularly to transporting swill, garbage, greese, bone, etc.

W. F. Steadman testified that on July 22 he was at the Baxter avenue dump. He described the deposits there. While there he saw a two-horse tip cart of Prescott's come from the dump loaded with what appeared to be, by odor, the substance that had come from a vault. There was a very strong odor and no covering of any kind over the team. It was dumped in front of my house.

Cross-examined: He had seen Chairman Gay of Board of Health on July 18, July 19 and July 20. On the latter date Mr. Gay informed him that the Board of Health would take the matter up at a meeting to be held on night of July 22. That morning he got out warrants.

Fred Johnson had visited Prescott's dumps on Tuesday. Described the place and the odor coming from a tip cart which was uncovered. The vault matter in cart was not mixed with earth. Saw the contents of cart dumped near Steadman's.

Other witnesses corrobrated the testimony of Johnson and Steadman about the Baxter avenue dump.

Michael T. Sullivan saw teams go by his house and turn into Prescott's on Tuesday. The contents appeared a compose of cesspool matter and earth. Was a very unpleasant odor to it.

C. L. Prescott, the defendant, city scavenger, testified that no place was designated where he should dump, but would use the Quincy avenue dump if he could get permision. On the Tuesday in question he was carting material from the dump, composed of vault matter and earth to his premises where he was mixing it with manure from his stable, to make a compost which was immediately covered up. The matter he was taking away from the dump had been there upwards of fourteen months.

John S. Gay, Chairman of the Board of Health, testified to conversation with Steadman and to accompaning him Sunbay to Prescott's place. No odor was noticeable at that time. Saw Steadman again Thursday and told him the Board would have a meeting Tuesday evening. Prescott was not compelled to dump in any particular place, except that it must be satisfactory to the Board of Health.

Had seen waste material on the roadway where it shook out of the cart. Had seen vault matter dumped in front of his house.

Charles E. Leavitt, the man who drove the tip cart on Tuesday, testified that loam, gravel, leaves, sticks and cesspool matter was what he carted. Cesspool had been thus over a year. The matter was all mixed and was taken from the bottom of the dump. Had instructions from Prescott if anything dropped from the cart to stop and clean it up.

Michael Milan testified to the kind of material taken from the dump on Tuesday.

The court reserved its decision until Saturday.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday school of the Calvary Baptist church held its annual picnic at Highland park on Saturday. At 1 o'clock, two chartered cars awaited the children at the church. The cars were soon filled with children, accompanied by their teachers. Although the weather was rather unpleasant, the picnic proved a success; ice cream, cake and watermelon were served in abundance at the park. The cars returned at eight o'clock, with all on board praising God with singing. All had a very enjoyable time.

W. Y. C. LADIES DAY

A Sail in Bay and Other Attractions.

The Yachts and the Guests.

A Hop at the Clubhouse in the Evening.

The annual ladies day of the Wollaston Yacht club was observed Saturday afternoon, by a review and sail, refreshments and dancing.

The lowery weather of the morning together with the cool easterly breeze doubtless kept some from participating yet there were many that did not allow these things to interfere with the afternoon pleasures

A cool whole sail easterly breeze prevailed such as might be called a ladies' breeze, wind enough to take the white winged yachts swiftly over the course without being rough.

Commodore Baker was early on the scene but owing to some unavoidable delay his steam launch, the Endymion, which was to be used as the flag ship, was a little late in arriving but not enough so to mar the pleasure of the day.

After passing in review the yachts sailed over course one.

Returning from the sail Capt. Charles W. Page served ice cream, cake and lemonade at the club house.

A promenade concert was the attraction until evening, when there was dancing.

The yachts and guests were as follows.

Mr. Robertson was formerly proprietor of the Creighton House on Tremont street, Boston.

The funeral will be held Tuesday. The Elks will perform their service at the house.

Q. Y. C. Race.

A club race under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed Saturday in a good easterly breeze. The Eclipse in the first class added another victory to her long list, as did also the Cleopatra in the special class. Mabel G. won in the second class and Marjorie in the "Larks" class.

There was also an interesting race between the launches Marjorie, Mildred and Alepo. The Marjorie broke down early in the race leaving the Mildder and Alepo to fight it out alone. The Mildred won, the corrected figures giving her a lead of 3 minutes 36 seconds.

Prize Fight With Fatal Ending

Portland, Ore., July 28.—Frank Carlson and George Baldwin, each aged 19 years, quarreled over two girls, to whom both were paying attention. Carlson challenged Baldwin to fight. The fight took place with bare knuckles, in the presence of relatives and friends of both boys, in an unfrequented part of the city. Carlson received a blow in the stomach and fell. When picked up he was dead.

Lowell, Mass., July 28.—Charles E. Bent, who accidentally shot himself while handling a 32-calibre revolver at his home, is dead. He was a Civil war veteran, and while his wound was not thought likely to prove fatal at the time, his age, 72, militated against recovery from shock.

MAJ. MORRISON, CHIEF MARSHAL.

The West Quincys defeated the strong Roslindale team for the first time this season by a score of 7 to 5. Although West Quincy had two of their regular players missing they put up a very fast game.

The visitors started off like winners scoring two runs in the first inning, and keeping the lead until the seventh when West Quincys by a batting streak managed to pass them and win out.

The features of the game were the all-round work of the home team, Kiley making a double play unassisted in the last inning with three men on bases.

Kussmaul and Dewar played good ball for the visitors.

West Quincy has probably the strongest team that has represented Quincy for years. They are arranging games with Dorchester, obtaining grounds being the only drawback.

South Quincys Win.

The reorganized South Qnincy base ball team put up a good game on Saturday, and evidently has been strengthened. Three of the five errors were made by McDavitt at third, who was not familiar with the grounds. The South Quincy's also batted well, four of the players getting two safe hits each. The home team took the lead in the first innings and held it throughout; score 10 to 7 as follows:

Odd Fellows' Game.

Evidently base ball is not one of the strongholds of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows, or else the goat was not in as good trim as was the goat of John Hancock lodge to inspire the nine representatives with courage, for the latter won 45 to 8.

The two teams which lined up at Merrymount park on Saturday were composed as follows:

The Ledger has been requested not to print the full score, out of compassion for the defeated nine.

The Hancocks were first at the bat and mainly through errors scored 5 runs.

For three innings the Mt. Wollastons went out in one-two-three order, six of the nine men striking out.

Meanwhile the Hancocks had scored 3 in the second and 9 in the third. In the first half of the fourth they added 17 and the score was 34 to 0 against Mt. Wollaston.

The weak side did not give up, however, and actually did somehow score 8 runs in the next three innings, and did whitewash the Hancocks once. At the end of the sixth they were glad to cry "enough."

The only safe hits by Mt. Wollaston were made by Hobart, C. Wood and Holmes, but there were only four. We might tell how many struck out, but will not. Ela's pitching was very effective. All the Hancocks batted well, Stevens and Fisher having two-baggers. They went around nearly nine times in the six innings.

OUR ARMY IS INDICTED

In Open Letter to President From Anti-Imperialists

A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT

In Which Torture, Robbery, Murder and Outrages on Women In Philippines Are Alleged—Claim to Have Proof of Allegations

Lake George, N. Y., July 28.—At a meeting of representative anti-imperialists held in New York city last spring a committee was appointed to investigate army conditions in the Philippines. That committee has since then been prosecuting its inquiries. President Roosevelt's recent review of the court martial of General Smith seemed to the committee to demand some reply and at a meeting just held at Lake George an open letter to the president was adopted. The letter says in part:

On the 16th of April last the secretary of war, under your personal order, issued a "memorandum" of instructions sent to General Chaffee, relating to outrages and acts of torture alleged to have been perpetrated in the Philippines. Shortly after a meeting of persons interested therein was held in New York. At this meeting we were appointed a committee "to take all necessary steps to effect the full disclosure of the facts connected with processes and executions in the course of military operations in the Philippine islands." The duty thus imposed has since engaged our attention; and, in the performance thereof, we have investigated many cases of alleged outrage, besides otherwise seeking to inform ourselves in relation thereto.

Coming directly to the point, and speaking historically, our investigations have led us to conclude that the demoralization of the officers and soldiers of our army in the Philippines, including all branches of the service and all grades of rank, was far more general, as well as pronounced, than might be inferred from your review of the court martial findings in the case of General Smith. The essential facts charged in this case, we believe we have reason to say, were rather notorious than exceptional.

The inquiries we, as a committee, have made, necessarily imperfect, have yet been sufficient to satisfy us that General Smith and Major Waller were not the sole culprits, nor should they suffice in the character of scapegoats.

Certain facts have been elicited in the proceedings before the senate Philippine committee or through the imperfect reports of evidence given in the more nortorious of the courts martial proceedings, but these, though very suggestive, are far from complete, much less exhaustive. To our minds they indicate unmistakably a condition of great and general demoralization.

At first, also, the charges of the infliction of torture, by the so-called "water cure," met with an indignant denial. One general, recently promoted for the capture or killing of those whose bread and salt he, starving, had just begged for and eaten, even went to the length of recording his belief that in no case had "the water cure" ever been administered by an American. When the actual notoriety of the practice thus denied was proven, evidence of utter demoralization is found in the testimony given before sympathetic courts martial by officers, apparently inclined to be humorous, to the effect that, before administering a torture not unknown to those familiar with the processes of the medieval inquisition, they had first had it tried on themselves. As so applied, they had found it productive of no injurious effects; in certain cases even, they alleged, it had proved most beneficial to the health.

Where, in other cases, inquiry revealed the systematic use of torture by subordinates, the officer in responsible command is pronounced free from blame on the ground that his praiseworthy absorption in other duties of his position was so complete that such trivial incidents failed to attract his notice.

Finally, every severity known to a state of war—practices which have excited the special reprobation of the American people when reported as features of the hostilities in Cuba, under the Spanish regime, or in South Africa, during the Boer war—have been of undisputed and frequent occurrence in the Philippines. Such evidence, gravely given, is not only proof conclusive of utter military demoralization but, we submit, it is with difficulty distinguished from what is usually known as audacious mendacity.

In like manner as respects concentration camps. These as a feature in recent Spanish and South African operations excited in us as a people the deepest indignation, combined with the most profound sympathy for those thus unmercifully dealt with. By one army officer they have been likened to "suburbs of hell." Meanwhile, the most persistent effort on our part as a committee has failed to bring to light any statistics of disease or morality in those camps.

The allegations we make are grave; the conditions of affairs we describe, serious. As a national record it is discreditable. The good name of the country is implicated; as also is the professional character of officers of the army some of them retired, many still in high command.

This we submit and are prepared to show, is established by the evidence before the senate Philippine committee; by the findings of the courts martial published, or on the files of the war department, and by documentary proof already accessible. Cumulative proof would, therefore, appear to be superfluous; nor is there any tribunal before which it could be adduced. None the less, from the scanty material thus by mere chance made accessible to us here, we hold ourselves ready to direct your attention to concrete cases the investigation of which would demonstrate the following criminal acts, contrary to all recognized rules and usages of war, on the part of officers and soldiers of the United States:

1. Kidnapping and murder, under circumstances of aggravated brutality.
2. Robbery.
3. Torture, both of men and of women, and rape of the latter.
4. The infliction of death on other parties on the strength of evidence elicited through torture.

In conclusion the letter scoffs at what it terms the alleged efforts of Secretary Root to gloss over the conduct of officers in the Philippines, asserts that the inquiry made regarding the outrages attributed to the troops has been wholly inadequate, and asks that a competent tribunal be appointed by the president to fully investigate the whole question of outrages.

The further charge is made that obstacles have been placed in the way of investigation into Philippine matters, and the committee representing the anti-imperialists holds itself in readiness to present evidence before such a tribunal as it suggests.

DRUNKEN MEN'S DOINGS

Caused Serious Wreck by Placing Obstructions on Trolley Track

Rochester, July 28.—An attempt by five men to wreck an incoming trolley car at the rifle range, a short distance north of this city, late last night, resulted in a rear-end collision in which seven passengers were seriously and several others slightly injured, while two score or more passengers miraculously escaped.

Shortly before 10 o'clock a car left Summerville, bound for the city, heavily laden with passengers with orders not to stop at the rifle range, which is a flag station only. As the car approached this point the motorman discovered an obstruction on the track and brought his car to a stop just in the nick of time. The obstruction, which consisted of several lengths of picket fencing and other material, had been placed on the track by five men under the influence of liquor, because, as they said, they had attempted to flag other inbound cars without success and determined to make sure of the next attempt.

While the crew of the car was trying to clear the track in order to proceed, another inbound car came along at a rapid speed and crashed into the rear of the car ahead. The vestibules on both cars were smashed and their interiors were wrecked. The five men who placed the obstruction on the track disappeared immediately after the wreck and have not yet been captured.

President Has Quiet Sunday

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 28.—President Roosevelt passed a quiet Sunday at Sagamore hill. No visitors of an official character were received. The postoffice at Oyster Bay was opened for an hour for the first time on Sunday in the history of the village. Rev. Alexander G. Russell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, sharply criticized those who inaugurated the movement which resulted in the Sunday opening.

Devoid of Excitement

Manila, July 28.—The anti-friar demonstration which the municipal government had been informed was to be held here yesterday proved to be unimportant. The police forbade the holding of a procession and the reserves were assembled for the purpose of maintaining order. The leaders of the movement conducted a meeting in the Zorilla theatre, but no disorder occurred.

Two Hundredth Anniversary

Stow, Mass., July 28.—The First Parish church (Congregational) of Stow yesterday celebrated the 200th anniversary of its organization. Church services were held in the town as early as 1683, but 1702 was the year of the first church. It was organized under the name of the Congregational church of Stow.

Strikers Destroying Property

Vienna, July 28.—Over 100,000 agricultural laborers in East Galicia, most of them Russians, are now on strike and a full fledged rising against the landed proprietors is progressing. Extensive stores were burned down, while other excesses are reported to have been committed.

Two Deaths Through Jealousy

Springfield, Mo., July 28.—Charles Weyley, 25, last night shot and killed Miss Josephine Sheridan, his former sweetheart, at her home and then killed himself. Jealousy probably prompted the act. Up to a month ago they had been engaged to be married.

One Desperado Less

El Paso, Tex., July 28.—"Black Jack" McDonald, a noted border desperado, was shot and killed in his saloon at Juarez, Mex., yesterday by an American whose name is unknown. The fight resulted from a game of dice.

WHAT WISDOM DENIED US.

The Most Fatal Gift That Could Be Conferred on Mankind.

Granted the power to do it, which would be the most fatal gift that could be conferred on mankind?

Omnipotence without omniscience. An omnipotent man, with the best of intentions toward his kind, could easily wreck the universe and probably would, since, unless he knew everything, he would infallibly make some mistake which could not fail to have very terrible consequences. Next to this would be the power of foreseeing events. This would eliminate the greatest factor in human happiness, because the man who could foresee everything would have no hope. He would not only know his own fate, but that of all other human beings and also all their feelings and intentions, which, of itself alone, would make society impossible.

Equally terrible would be the power of prolonging life at will, since no man or woman would willingly die so long as life remained even tolerable. This is proved by the shocking conditions under which people now consent to live. The race would probably continue to multiply indefinitely until all the habitable portions of the globe became overcrowded. Then would commence a struggle for existence which no human imagination could portray. War would be an impossibility, since no man could kill another who did not wish to die, and humanity would reach some inconceivable climax of misery from which nothing but the intervention of a higher power could possibly release it.—Pearson's Weekly.

It Satisfied Lincoln.

Among Lincoln's callers one morning in 1862 was a stranger seeking both personal and official assistance from the president and who brought with him some letters lauding his loyalty that bore the signature of a former governor of Maryland. Lincoln received the stranger with some warmth that was not chilled even when one of the attaches, who had overheard the conversation, interrupted to explain that the signature must have been forged, for the reason that the Marylander mentioned had been dead several years. The stranger showed guilt in every feature, but Lincoln, suffused with that pity for the luckless that was ever his, cheerily observed:

"Oh, never mind that—never mind it! This is far more interesting. I would rather get a letter from a dead man than from a live one any day!"—Philadelphia Times.

Royal Bad Language.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it still remains a mystery how the chief English authorities in church and state ever succeeded in crowning King George I. Having come fresh from his native Hanover, the first monarch of the Brunswick dynasty was to his new subjects little better than a Melanesian from the south seas. Not a word of English could he muster, while the chief officials were almost equally ignorant of German. Latin, therefore, had to be resorted to as being the one possible medium of communication between them. A highly popular joke originated from these singular proceedings, which stated that an immense amount of bad language had passed between the king and his ministers on the great day.

The Giving of Tips.

Tips were always out of harmony with the independence and self respect of true Americans. Good pay for good work, with no unearned gratuities, in hotels, restaurants and everywhere else should be the custom. Tips are degrading both to givers and receivers, and the whole system of tipping is unsound and inexcusable. It cannot endure.

No club of any real distinction and importance permits the giving of tips within its jurisdiction, and the practice of distributing gifts for services which have been amply and even generously remunerated has no basis which is wise and wholesome. Never yet has there been an argument in apology for this abuse which was worth a moment's consideration.—New York Tribune.

About Waiting.

The old proverb that all things come to him who waits advances a very pretty and pleasant theory, but its literal interpretation makes it capable of great misconstruction, for if it is in one sense true its reverse is equally true. Nothing comes to him who waits. Nothing comes to him who waits and does no more. There is nothing in the world that is of any value that has not to be struggled for, and those who sit down and fold their hands, expecting fate and fortune to bring them what they most desire, will meet with the disappointment they deserve.

The Sense of Touch.

The sense of touch in man is most highly developed on the skin, but mucous or serous surfaces are also capable of conveying impressions. Some parts of the body are more sensitive than others and are usually devoid of hairs, as the tip of the tongue, the ends of the fingers and the lips. It will be noticed that these are so situated as to keep us conveniently informed of what is going on around us.—Chambers' Journal.

The Inevitable Result.

Nell—Just one month ago today Stella and I agreed to point out each other's faults without reserve.

Bess—And are you still doing it?

Nell—Oh, no! We haven't spoken to each other for twenty-nine days.—Chicago News.

CHARGES BY GARDENER

Not Intended to Be Taken Too Seriously

LECTURE FROM PRESIDENT

Forthcoming If Major Is Found to Have Wrongfully Accused His Brethren In Arms—Will Act as Balance to Waller and Smith Cases

Washington, July 29.—Not all the sensational features of the overhauling of the army in the Philippines in connection with recent stories of cruelty, etc., are over by any means. Major Cornelius Gardener will probably furnish the next example. The president acted promptly, when reports of misdoing were brought to his attention, backed by something which looked like evidence, and his treatment of the officers discovered to have been guilty of one or another offense has shown that he would not have anything crooked going on while he remained commander-in-chief, if he could help it. But he has not intended to have it understood by that fact that he takes any share in the general and sweeping assaults which have been made upon our military rule in the Philippines, which he believes to have been in the main as humane and unselfish as it is practicable to make military rule ever.

He is known to have been reading every bit of news which has come over here with regard to the substantiation of the Gardener charges, and when these appeared to flatten out at the investigation, he requested that all the official papers be sent to him as soon as they arrive in this country. If they confirm the stories which have got abroad here, that Gardener's original charges were not intended to be taken too seriously and were written more on impulse than with deliberation, he will be reminded that the first thing a man in his responsible position should do is to make reasonably sure of his facts before he accuses his brethren in arms.

It is not likely that the president will carry his discipline of Gardener past the point of a severe lecture by way of obiter dictum, but it will be intended for the benefit of the whole army, and will balance an account which is now rather lop-sided with the weight of the Waller and Smith cases. The president will endeavor to show that there is as much wrong in speaking ill of the army when it is not deserved as in helping do the things which bring discredit upon it.

It is still premature to say whether all this will be done. Everything depends on whether the official information bears out the unofficial. Meanwhile, Major Waller will have joined his regiment in the United States, so that he will be here to face on the spot whatever happens.

Chicago Merchant Kills Himself

Chicago, July 29.—A. M. Rothschild, until two months ago the head of the department store firm of A. M. Rothschild & Co., committed suicide yesterday at his home by shooting himself in the head. Acute insomnia, which probably caused temporary insanity, is said to be responsible for the deed. Rothschild retired from the management of the department store about two months ago on account of ill health. He was 57 years old.

Jews Lose Chief Rabbi

New York, July 29.—Chief Rabbi Jacob Josephs of the United Jewish Congregations, the highest official in the Orthodox Jewish religion in the United States, died last night of paralysis, aged 62. A remarkable demonstration was made outside his home when the death was announced, hundreds of Jewish men and women gathering outside the house to pray and lament their loss.

Firmin Forces Scooted

Port au Prince, July 29.—The army under General Jumeau, who supports the candidacy of M. Firmin for the presidency of Hayti, has been repulsed by troops under the command of General Colin. The gunboat Crete-a-Pierrot prevented a pursuit of the Jumeau forces, and General Colin's troops returned to Port au Prince.

Murdered While Under Arrest

Birmingham, Ala., July 29.—While on a street car under arrest, George Leonard was shot and killed last night by Hollis B. Parrish, a lawyer. The two had quarrelled a minute before and a policeman had just arrested Leonard. Parrish reached around the officer and shot Leonard through the heart. Parrish is in jail.

Penitentiary Workshop Burned

Leavenworth, Kas., July 29.—Fire destroyed the shoe factory at the state penitentiary last night. The flames were got under control after two hours' work. Loss about $20,000. Cause unknown.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS

Startle the People In California, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota

San Francisco, July 29.—Lompoc valley experienced a severe earthquake shock at 10:55 Sunday night. A violent shock lasted 30 seconds and was so severe that dishes, clocks and other articles were thrown from shelves. The people were stricken with terror and ran from their houses, some fearing to return, as other lighter shocks continued for several hours afterward. Another heavy shock was felt at 5 a. m. and one at 11 a. m. yesterday. A large water tank was knocked over, the earth cracked at many different places and the Santa Ynez river bed was slightly changed in places.

Meagre advices received from Los Alamos report that an unusually severe shock of earthquake occurred Sunday night, doing damage to oil property, estimated at from $12,000 to $15,000.

At Harris Station a fissure is reported to have opened, and from it a stream of water two feet deep and 18 feet wide is now flowing. A slight shock of earthquake was felt in Santa Barbara, but no damage was done.

Omaha, July 29.—An earthquake shock which was general over portions of Nebraska, western Iowa and South Dakota, occurred shortly after noon yesterday. The seismic disturbances were felt at a large number of town in the three states and lasted from 10 to 15 seconds. No serious damage has been reported thus far, although the shock was sufficient to rattle dishes and to affect bell towers in some places.

Miss Wackerman's Mishap

Buffalo, July 29.—Helen V. Wackerman, the beautiful young American girl who recently had such an unpleasant experience in London that her mind was impaired, was severely injured last evening. Fire engines responding to a call for a fire opposite the Wackerman home stopped at a hydrant directly under Miss Wackerman's window. Believing that the fire was in her house the young woman became panic-stricken and began smashing the windows of her room with her bare hands. The heavy pieces of glass severely cut her arms and face. She was prevented from jumping by her mother.

Further Religious Disturbances

Paris, July 29.—Francois Coppee, the author, and M. Lerolle, a nationalist deputy, who were arrested last week in connection with the anti-clerical rioting, addressed a great meeting which was held last night to protest against the government's action in the matter of the closing of the unauthorized congregationist schools. Coppee vigorously denounced the government. After receiving a demonstration, a counter-demonstration to Coppee occurred in the streets, but the police were able to maintain order.

Rodgers Goes to Philippines

Washington, July 29.—The navy department has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Rodgers announcing his departure yesterday from Yokohama for Cavite. He has been cruising in Chinese waters for several months past, and now will proceed to the Philippines, leaving Rear Admiral Evans the ranking American naval officer in the upper Orient.

Officers Deficient In Education

London, July 29.—The military authorities of India have discovered numerous officers who were recently commissioned in the Indian army to be so lacking in general education that it has been necessary to instruct and examine them in several branches of study before permitting them to attend the courses of garrison instruction.

To Commemorate Schley's Deeds

Baltimore, July 29.—A memorial arch is to be erected in this city in commemoration of the deeds of Admiral Schley. The plan is to raise by popular subscription a fund sufficient to pay for a handsome arch "in recognition of the services of Marylond's hero of the Spanish war."

A Million From Nome Diggings

Seattle, July 29.—One million dollars in treasure was brought by the steamship Roanokee, which arrived from Nome and St. Michaels yesterday. This is the largest shipment from the Nome diggings this season.

HELD IN $12,500 BAIL

Leading Figure In Coal Strike Charged With Libel

WEST VIRGINIA INJUNCTION

Forbids Officers of United Mine Workers Purchasing and Distributing Supplies to Feed the Strikers In That District

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 29.—J. F. Mullahy, secretary of the Stationary Firemen's association of Pennsylvania, was arrested here yesterday afternoon, charged with libel. Twenty-five complaints had been lodged against him by men who are now employed in various capacities by the coal companies in this section.

It was alleged that Mullahy had printed a circular containing the names of the prosecutors. He classified them under the head of "unfair workmen," and then, so it was claimed, posted them in conspicuous places throughout the region. Magistrate Pollock held Mullahy in the sum of $500 on each charge, which made the bail $12,500. The bail was promptly furnished by friends of the accused.

Secretary Mullahy has been very active in the strike. It is said that through his influence he has held 95 percent of the striking firemen firm. Engineers and pumpmen have gone back to work in large numbers since the strike began, but the firemen have remained out with the miners almost to a man. At strike headquarters, Mullahy's arrest on so many warrants is termed an outrage.

Enjoined From Furnishing Supplies

Charleston, W. Va., July 29.—Upon information made before federal District Attorney Atkinson yesterday warrants of arrest were issued for about 15 persons, charging them with contempt of court in violating the injunction issued by Judge Keller. Judge Keller yesterday issued an injunction against G. W. Purcell, a member of the national executive committee of the United Mine Workers; W. B. Wilson, national secretary; Chris Evans, national statistician; "Mother" Jones and five others at the suit of Gauley Mountain Coal company. It is in the same form as those heretofore issued. It was charged that Purcell, Evans, Wilson and the others were purchasing and distributing supplies to feed the strikers in this district.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 29.—Judge Jackson issued another injunction yesterday of the same general character as those for whose violation "Mother" Jones and others were tried. It was issued upon the application of G. Clinton Gardner, receiver for the Flemington Coal company, and is directed against 30 strikers and organizers.

Wilson Won't Heed Injunction

Indianapolis, July 29.—Secretary Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America, when shown the dispatch from Charleston, W. Va., announcing that Judge Keller had issued an injunction prohibiting him and other members of the miners' organization from purchasing and sending supplies to the striking miners in that district, declared that so far as he is concerned the injunction will not be heeded.

Coal Ready to Be Hoisted

Scranton, Pa., July 29.—Superintent Rose of the Delaware and Hudson admitted yesterday that his and other companies of this region have men engaged in cutting and loading coal and storing it at the foot of the shaft in cars ready to be hoisted when the companies see fit to do so. The work is being done by under bosses, company hands and the returned strikers, of whom each mine has a small quota. The companies have been doing this work secretly so as to avoid drawing the fire of the strikers. The Scranton board of trade is to consider a proposition to father a monster petition to the operators calling on them to arbitrate.

National Guards Will Be "Shy"

Washington, July 29.—According to present indications very few if any of the National Guard organizations of the various states will participate in the proposed extensive maneuvers of the regular army at Fort Riley, Kas., the latter part of September. Positive declinations to attend were received from the governors of Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Rhode Island, and 17 other states, the reason in each case being stated as lack of funds.

The Galician Disturbance

Elberg, Austria, July 29.—The strike in East Galicia of over 100,000 agricultural laborers, which developed into a rising against the landed proprietors of the district, is becoming more serious. Gendarmes attacked the strikers and were attacked by them in return. Crops and farms have been destroyed. Several peasants have been wounded.

An Indian Powwow

White Eagle, I. T., July 29.—One of the biggest Indian dances held in Indian Territory for years is in progress, having been started by the Poncas, with visitors from the tribes of the Osages, the Kiowas and the Otoes. Seven hundred tepees have been erected.

Cashier and Funds Missing

San Francisco, July 29.—William J. White, cashier of the board of public works, has disappeared, and it is officially announced that he is several thousand dollars short in his accounts.

Valuable Naval Acquisitions

New York, July 29.—A successful test was made at Sandy Hook yesterday of 10-inch rifles mounted on barbette carriages. Thirty rounds were fired in 42 minutes, breaking all records for round firing of guns of this calibre. The firing was conducted in three sets of 10 rounds each and executed by different gun crews. The first 10 rounds were fired in 14 minutes, the second in 15 and the third in 12 minutes.

The Case of Consul Bragg

Washington, July 29.—It is now learned that the Cuban government went a little further in General Bragg's case than was understood at first. It not only made inquiry as to the accuracy of the quotation reflecting on the Cubans, but complained of the consul general's criticism. The papers in the case are still before the president at Oyster Bay.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Thorndike Spaulding is entitled to credit for discovering a remedy for too many lieutenant governor candidates. He promptly started out as a candidate for the House, in Myers' old district, and the latter gentleman as quickly discovered that he didn't want to be lieutenant governor after all. Now the chances are that he will neither be representative from his district, or lieutenant governor, either.—Dedham Transcript.

☞Captain Putnam Bradlee Strong comes up with the old, old self-justification that he has been foolish and unwise, but that he has not been criminal. This is stuff and nonsense. There are some men with whom some foolish acts are criminal. Captain Strong and various of his performances may easily be classed in that category. —New Bedford Standard.

Reception.

About 150 Presbyterians met Monday evening in the hall of the Water street church to give a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bishop, who leave in a few days for England. Mr. Bishop is an elder of the church, Superintendent of the Sabbath school, and a leader in every good work. The members and friends of the church showed their appreciation of his work by doing him honor. The Rev. Dr. Todd presided, and an interesting program was carried out.

The choir sang several appropriate anthems and the Granite City quartette also rendered selections in their usual good style. Mrs. C. Hutt recited with good taste and animation, and Mr. Griffith, Miss B. E. Todd, and Mr. Bowman sang well several solos.

Mr. James Joss and Mr. Alexander Clark and the Rev. Dr. Todd spoke eulogistically of Mr. Bishop's character and work. Mr. Joss spoke of him as a Christian in business; Mr. Clark told of him as a fellow-laborer in the church; and the pastor spoke of him as a faithful man, a peaceful man, and a useful man. The pastor at the close of his address presented Mr. Bishop with a handsome travelling case, and expressed the good wishes of the church and congregation.

Mr. Bishop feelingly expressed his thanks for the surprise, hearty reception and useful gift. He spoke of the blessedness of the man at all times who serves the Lord; and how dear the interests of the church had been to him because he strove to do what he could, though it was but little. A reception was then given to Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, after which refreshments were served.

The choir then sang "Good Night," and Miss Todd led the company in singing "Will he no' come back again," and a most enjoyable social function was brought to a fitting close.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop and family go to England for the winter, and return in the spring.

—Five attachments have been filed against the Milton Water Company which aggregate $45,000.

FLOATING HOSPITAL.

Yesterday Was Quincy Day on the Ship.

Several Quincy Ladies as Guests.

Much Pleased and Ready to Raise Another $100.

Monday, says the Boston Transcript, was the heaviest day thus far this summer with the Boston Floating Hospital, and the trip, which was made possible through the beneficence of the Sunday school of the First Parish (Unitarian) of Quincy, was to an anchorage off Pemberton. The permanant wards are practically filled and Dr. Hasting's report covering Sunday and Sunday night shows that there are eight cases which are considered as dangerous.

It is an interesting sight to see the little patients in the permanent wards, just before the boat leaves the wharf for her day's trip. The nurses are much occupied in bathing or otherwise caring for many of the children while those already attended to lie quietly, some seeming to take in everything going on around them, while others appear to take little notice of anything. Many are content with a bottle of milk, while here and there is a child hugging a doll affectionately. There is noticeably little crying, among so many babies.

Sunday was uneventful. The boat was tied up at her wharf on the East Boston side, and there the parents of the patients in the permanent wards were allowed to visit their children in the afternoon hours. Dr. Hastings states that whereas two or three years ago the boat received and cared for about one hundred children for a period of seven hours, it now cares for sixty children for twenty-four hours or longer. On Sundays the wharf in East Boston is kept free from noisy or idle people who might disturb the children aboard the boat.

Monday the guests included Mrs. Horace F. Spear, Miss Edith Randall, superintendent of the Quincy school; Charles H. Johnson, assistant superintendent; Miss Georgianna Lane, Miss Elizabeth Faxon, Miss Jane Reed, Miss Patty Faxon, Miss Grace Spear, Miss Etta Prescott, Miss Minnie Packard and Eliot C. Johnson, all of Quincy.

Miss Grace Spear and Miss Minnie Packard, young girls, brought baskets full of fresh nasturtions and sweet peas. These, made up into little bunches, were intended for the mothers who brought children for the day's excursion only, in the day ward. Of these patients there was a larger number than Monday than at any other time thus far this season. Minnie Packard and her small sister gave J. R. Anderson, assistant manager, six dollars which they had earned through their own efforts in behalf of the hospital work.

The Monday Club of Weymouth gives the hospital trip today.

ECHO OF YEAR AGO.

An Interesting County Commissioner Contest Developing.

Practical Politics says, "Norfolk county will present a real county commissioner countest, which in a way will be an echo of the contest of a year ago, when young Shaw met his Waterloo under the Bowker banner, and Wright of Quincy, a late arrival from New Hampshire and a Democrat, was elected.

"Wright was elected for the year of the unexpired term of Commissioner Wadsworth of Milton, who had died in office. Now he is after the full three-year term which is to be voted for this fall.

"The conditions which brought about the nomination of Wright were unique. The old county machine had nominated Bowker, whose name had been tied up in county scandal talk, and this produced a reform sentiment in Brookline. Wright had been nominated by the Democrats, and the Republicans of the upper ten, under the name of Independent Republicans, took him up. They elected him, but it was not particularly because they admired Wright, although he is spoken of always as an honest and conscientious man, but because they were so afraid that Bowker might get in.

"The Democrats are all ready to nominate Wright again this year, for it has given them considerable prestige to have one of their own in the office, but it is conceded that the regular Republicans will have to make a straight party nomination and cannot very well take Wright, who is an out-and-out Democrat.

"The unknown quantity is the attitude of the Independent Republicans. It is not known whether they will stand by Wright if a regular Republican candidate other than Bowker, who is admittedly out of the field, will be named, or if they will hold true to the man they first put in.

"Their attitude, for or against Wright, makes all the difference, between his election or defeat. Because of this uncertainty there are three or four Republicans of straight party affiliations who are willing to battle for the nomination, and thus take their chances. Rich of Hyde Park, who was a candidate last year, is one of them, and Badger of Quincy is also willing.

In Norwood Sen. Fales would be very willing to drop the senatorial toga, which some of his constituents seem anxious anyway to drag from his shoulders, and take up the county duties, while it is generally conceded that Brookline may have a candidate to present. In this county, at least, there will be primaries worth watching."

Another Drowning.

Alexander McLean, a young man of 24 years, employed at the Fore River shipyard, and living at North Weymouth, was drowned in the Fore river about 4 P. M., Monday. McLean and a friend went out rowing on the river, and shortly after McLean, saying he was going to have a swim, plunged into the water. His friend soon heard McLean cry for help, and immediately rowed to the place, but was unable to find any trace of McLean. After dragging the river for about three hours, the body was found.

It is supposed that while swimming McLean was seized with cramps and was drowned before assistance could reach him. McLean was a native of Prince Edward's Island and unmarried.

Medical Examiner Jones of Quincy viewed the body, and then it was taken in charge by Undertaker Dunbar and removed to his rooms at East Weymouth.

LARGELY IN EXCESS.

$55,000 Not Enough for Ward Two Schoolhouse.

Mead, Mason & Co. Want $86,634.

All Bids Were Twenty Per Cent. in Excess.

Bids were opened Monday afternoon at the office of Commissioner Knowlton for building the new brick school building at Quincy Point. The amount appropriated by the City Council for the building was $55,000. Builders have said all along that the building could not be built according to the plans adopted for that amount and it was therefore not surprising that but four contractors submitted bids. These were all above the amount appropriated, the lowest figure being $11,000 in excess. It will therefore be necessary to change the plans or appropriate more money and it is probable that the plans will be modified. The bids submitted were as follows:

Julius Johnson and John Harkins,	$66,100
Deegan & Halowell,	66,799
Orne & Lawrence,	74,371
Mead, Mason & Co.,	86,634

OLD HOME WEEK.

Firemen's Muster the Great Attraction at Braintree.

The Old Home Week attraction at Braintree Monday afternoon was the firemen's muster in which eight hand engines participated for three prizes.

It was a close contest the plays ranging between 182 and 203 feet. The first four engines were remarkably close, 187, 183, 182 and 184 feet.

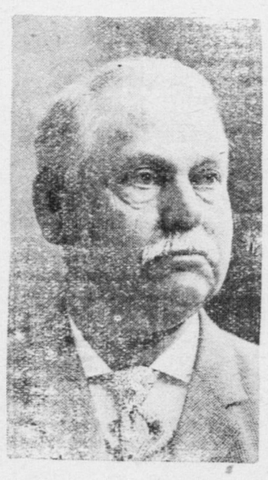

Then the Union made a spurt to 194 and the Defender went 3 better. The Cochatos had lots of rooters but dropped into the second class with 185 feet.

The Active the last to play took first money playing 203 feet, 5 and 1-2 inches. Thus the first two prizes go to Weymouth and the third stays with the Unions of East Braintree.

The summary:

	ft.	in.
Active, Weymouth,	203	5 1-2
Defender, East Weymouth,	197	9
Union, East Braintree,	194	5 1-2
Protector, Brockton,	187	10
Cochato, Braintree,	185	1-2
Conqueror, South Weymouth,	184	4
Butcher Boy, South Braintree,	183	1-2
Alabama Coon, Stoughton.	182	1 1-2

The judges were Chief George W. Cushing of Hingham, Chief Emmons White of Holbrook, William H. Hathaway, secretary of New England Firemen's League; Chief Richard Vanston of Stoughton, and Engineer Charles Leavitt of Hingham.

CHAIRMAN DRINKWATER.

The base ball game was a big attraction. The game was between the Braintrees and Cochato club and was won by the latter by a score of 13 to 1. Dresser, formerly of the American League, was pitcher for the Cochatos, and he held his opponents down to two hits while the Cochato made 18 hits off Barnsted, pitcher for the Braintrees.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Cochato,	0	0	0	2	2	0	5	0	4	—13

A band concert was given on French common from 6.30 to 7.30, and later there was a reception at the town hall. During the reception there was vocal and instrumental music and introductory remarks by Hon. Francis A. Hobart.

The address of welcome was by Col. A. C. Drinkwater, chairman of the Old Home Week committee.

Remarks were also made by Rev. D. W. Waldron of Boston, and benediction by Rev. F. W. Burrows.

It was expected that Capt. Geo. F. Wilde of the U. S. N. would deliver an address on "Our Navy," but he was unable to be present, and sent a letter of regret.

Lightning's Marks on the Body.

A curious and not uncommon effect of lightning is the formation of certain arborescent or treelike marks upon the body. By early observers they were believed to be due to the presence of neighboring objects, which were photographed upon the skin. Various explanations were offered by different authorities. Richardson has shown by experiment that the blood is the best electrical conductor of all human tissues and that these marks are merely the impressions of the blood vessels on the skin, due to the action of the lightning on the blood in the vessels.—Exchange.

Fear.

Fear causes more disease than do microbes, more deaths than famine, more failures than panics; it costs more than war, is always a failure and is never necessary. Fear weakens the heart's action, induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of autopoisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases.—G. F. Meacham, M. D., in Health.

The Parental Plot.

"Maybe," said the Washington maiden, with a bright blush, "they think they're holding a steering committee meeting."—Chicago Tribune.

A SOLEMN QUESTION.

One of the Pranks Artemus Ward Played Upon His Brother.

In the days when Cyrus Browne and his brother, Charles Farrar Browne, better known as "Artemus Ward," lived in Waterford, "the little Maine village that nestled among the hills and never did anything else but nestle," Charles delighted to play practical jokes on Cyrus. Charles came home one freezing night, says the narrator of the following prank in the Boston Herald, at an hour that would be thought early in a metropolis, but was not so considered in Waterford. The family were sleeping soundly in the warm comfort of their beds when the future showman halted under the window of Cyrus, and raised an alarm.

"Cy! Oh, Cy! Come out here, Cy!"

After a time Cyrus appeared at the window. "What do you want?" he demanded through the crack he had opened.

"I want you to come down!" with great earnestness. "I want to ask you a question, Cy."

"Oh, go 'way!" said Cyrus, his teeth chattering in the awful cold. "It's only one of your jokes."

"Really, Cy, it's a very important question!" persisted Charles with increased earnestness. "It's a solemn thing, and I want you to come down, Cy; I want you bad."

Finally, after grumbling and expostulating, Cyrus slipped on some clothes and came reluctantly downstairs and out into the arctic cold. "Now what in the world is it that you want?" he asked.

Charles came up close, laid his hands on his brother's shivering shoulders, and in that voice of plaintive solemnity which in after years moved so many people to mirth said:

"I want to ask you, Cy, if you think slavery is wrong?"

Only a Girl's Purse.

Poems and stories used to be written about the infinite variety of articles to be found in a boy's pocket. Girls do not have pockets—so much the worse for them—but the things they stow away in their pocketbooks would put a boy to the blush.

A girl emptied her purse the other day. "I have to clean it out," she explained, "every once in awhile, just as I do my bureau drawers." These are some of the things that were in it: Two one dollar bills, a fifty cent piece, two quarters, a five cent piece (lead) and ten pennies, a "lucky" Italian coin, a Japanese "pocket piece," two receipts, three bills, a parlor car check, four street railway transfers, five mutilated stamps, a pencil stub, matinee coupon, three keys, newspaper clippings and a cleaner's check for gloves. That was not at all an unusual case. Almost any girl can match it.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

P. O. SITE.

Largely Attended Hearing This Morning.

Only Prescott Lot Meets Requirements.

Others Too Expensive or Too Small for Government.

There was a large attendance of business men at City Hall this morning to meet Edward A. Crane of the Treasury department at Washington to consider what was the best location for the proposed government building.

Postmaster Hammond was elected to preside and among those present were: Ex-postmaster J. F. Burke, D. E. Wadsworth, H. L. Kincaide, L. M. Pratt, C. F. Pettengill, A. W. Stetson, Geo. W. Prescott, Lewis Bass, H. H. Faxon, Charles Crane, Walter Pinel, Elisha Packard, T. L. Williams, D. King, E. W. Sheppard.

Councilman Fallon, John Hall, H. P. Kittredge, ex-Mayor R. A. Sears, Assessor Thompson, F. Green, Edgar G. Cleaves, A. Keating, C. A. Spear, Richard Newcomb, Frank Drake, Chief Engineer P. J. Williams, Timothy O'Connell, John Page.

John Swithin, J. L. Edwards, H. T Whitman, Councilman Bass, W. W. Adams, F. W. Odiorne, Charles C. Hearn, G. W. Morton, W. M. Packard, Henry E. Emerson, J. H. Dinegan, Geo. H. Wilson, F. W. Tirrell, Andrew Milne, Frank Kemp.

Frank F. Prescott, Geo. H. Field, H. S. Nicoll, N. B. Furnald, F. A. Perkins, Dr. F. E. Jones, J. W. McAnarney, Everett Crane, John Harkins, R. F. Lofgren.

At the opening, Agent Crane stated that of the number of locations offered there were several not coming within the requirements of the government. The only proposition that did meet all the requirements were two of the three Prescott lots on Washington street.

The first speaker was Frank F. Prescott, who outlined his proposition, viz: The lot on Washington street between Canal and Wibird for $6,200; with the lot in rear, $8,200; the whole triangle bounded by Washington, Canal and Wibird streets for $17,200.

Lester M. Pratt thought that the meeting was to get views as to the most desirable locations. It seemed other matters should be taken into consideration. If appropriation was not sufficient it might be possible to increase it.

Mr. Crane said he stood ready to receive other proposals for sites. If not taken advantage of in two years the appropriation lapses.

M. Fisher, representing owner of the lots at the corner of Hancock street and Revere Road, and of a lot on Temple street was prepared to offer either site but if $12,000 was all that could be used, why they were out of the question.

George H. Field said it seemed to him that those who used the postoffice most were the granite men and South Quincy people. He would prefer office where it now is. It seemed to him that it should not be further north than the Brackett estate or south beyond the Packard lot.

Albert Keating said Washington street was the main street if we have one in Quincy. The business of the future will be near the water front. The Prescott lot would be as near South Quincy as the present location. He had 20,000 feet on the other corner he would like to offer.

Ex-Mayor Sears had given this matter considerable attention. When the matter was before the Congressional Committee there was one site that it had in mind. That was near the Public Library. The matter of the Fore River plant was also an important factor in getting the appropriation. If the location near the Public Library is too high the next best place seems to be the Prescott lot. The tend of travel is going east with the immense possibilities of our sea coast. The main street is to be Washington street. The centre will be south of us. Where the post office goes there is going to be the development of property. The people who patronize the office most are the granite men and those who ride.

The most of the granite men drive, and it will not hurt a horse if he has to go 800 feet further. There could be better lots than the Prescott lot but none that have been offered. Mr. Prescott has bonded property adjoining his own which he offers at the bond price. There will be no noises or smoke to interfere. Did not know as we could get a better place. The city would benefit in increase of values if building was located on Prescott lot.

Councilman Bass called attention to the lot on the corner of Washington street and Maple place. There are now two lots adjoining. This lot with a small section of the adjoining lot would be of sufficient size. The owners are ready to offer this and he was prepared to offer 15,000 feet on the corner of Washington street and Maple place and he thought owners would offer it for $12,000. It would be necessary to take some 5000 feet of the Nightingale lot. The price was very close to assessed valuation.

John W. McAnarney read a letter signed by the superintendent of the hull division, the assistant treasurer and chief draughtsman of the Fore River works, recommending the lot on the corner of Hancock street and Cottage avenue. He also read letter from the president of the Granite bank recommending the Packard lot.

Another element was that the storekeepers desire this lot. Washington street was in the extreme eastern section. All will agree there will be no chance of development east of Washington street. Therefore the future development of Quincy must be west of that street. The tend of growth has been north and south during the past ten years, and he believed in five years the centre would be near Hancock and School streets. We are not here to consider what is best for Weymouth but for Quincy.

Harry S. Nicoll, president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, had visited many of the granite firms during the past few days and all agreed post office should be on the main street.

Delcevare King, treasurer of the Quincy Real Estate Trust, could not see but of the lots offered, the Packard lot was the best. There was a large amount of travel on Washington street, but it was through travel. It was an undisputable fact that the business centre was on the west side of the church line.

Henry L. Kincaide, as a business man, had noticed that the great tend of travel comes from the south and west to the centre through Hancock street. Washington street was not on a main street. It seemed to him that an ideal spot was "The Hollow." He could not see why it should be put on a side street. Of the lots offered, the Packard lot was the best.

Other speakers were L. M. Pratt, Albert Keating, Councilman Fallon, C. C. Hearn, Charles Crane, J. W. McAnarney, T. L. Williams, John Swithin, R. A. Sears, D. E. Wadsworth, J. H. Dinegan, Councilman Bass, F. F. Green, M. P. Wright, Dr. F. E. Jones, H. H. Faxon, W. P. Pinel, A. Milne and ex-Postmaster Burke.

Some were for one lot, some for another, while others opposed all. Several other sites were also suggested including the Coddington street corner, Temple street corner, Maple place corner, Hancock hall corner, Briesler corner and the Nancy Brackett estate.

Before the meeting adjourned at 12.15 Agent Crane agreed to hold his report open two weeks, and in the meantime he would receive new proposals.

A more extended report of the arguments will appear tomorrow.

THE SIBERIAN RAILWAY

Hints For Travelers Furnished by an American Consul.

TOILET ARTICLES ARE NEEDED.

Daily Trains Are Run From the Pacific Coast to St. Petersburg—Only Thirty-six Pounds of Baggage Transported Free of Charge—Hotel and Railroad Accommodations.

In a recent report to the state department at Washington Henry B. Miller, United States consul at Newchwang, China, gives some information for the benefit of persons who find it necessary to travel over the Siberian railroad. Mr. Miller says that he is in daily receipt of requests for information in regard to the Siberian railroad.

Trains can be taken now at Vladivostock, Dalny, Port Arthur or Newchwang daily for St. Petersburg, the route being all rail, with the exception of twenty-seven miles across Lake Baikal. Only second class accommodations are to be had at the present time from the Pacific to Irkutsk, although first class trains are expected to be in operation in a short while. From Irkutsk fast trains equipped with dining cars, bath, barber's shop and library run thrice weekly to St. Petersburg, the time from that point to the capital being eight days.

Among the things Mr. Miller advises travelers to carry with them are their own blankets, pillows, towels and soap and as much hand luggage as possible, as baggage to the amount of thirty-six pounds only is transported free by the railroad. Mr. Miller also advises travelers unable to speak Russian to provide themselves with pocket dictionaries in their native tongue and Russian, as the train hands speak only the latter language.

A first class fare from Irkutsk to St. Petersburg is $62.57, the second class fare being $46.81. The sleeping car rates are $11.60 first and $7.37 second class from Irkutsk to St. Petersburg, while from the Pacific to London they are: First class $128.75 and second class $103. The time required for the trip from Japan or China to New York via Siberia is about the same as across the Pacific and the American continent.

In the matter of money, Mr. Miller says it should all be in rubles (50 cents gold) and kopecks (about half a cent gold). Money can be exchanged at Vladivostok, Dalny, Port Arthur and Newchwang. All travelers should be provided with passports vised by a Russian consul.

Trains from Tientsin and Peking make close connection daily with trains for St. Petersburg and Newchwang, the time required to make the journey from Peking to Newchwang being two days. Several steamship lines are operated between Japan, Shanghai and Chefu to Port Arthur, Dalny, Newchwang and Vladivostok.

There are no hotels at Port Arthur, and at that point travelers should stay on board their steamers while awaiting their trains. The hotels at Dalny and Newchwang are only fair.

There are a United States consul at Newchwang and a commercial agent at Port Arthur. Telegraph rates to London and other points in Europe are 30.3 cents a word and to New York 50.4 cents a word. The Russian rate is 7.7 cents a message, with an additional rate of 5.1 cents for each additional word.

VOLCANIC DUST FERTILIZER

Splendid Flowers Grown In Matter Emplied From La Soufriere.

The Kingstown (St. Vincent) correspondent of the Philadelphia Times says there is one remarkable fact in connection with the recent volcanic eruptions in the West Indies which tends to disprove the statement of certian scientists that volcanic dust is not a fertilizer—namely, that in the gardens of Kingstown, where volcanic dust has fallen many inches deep, there has rarely been such a splendid show of flowers. They have come out in a wonderful way, so that every one remarks it. It is recorded that after the eruption of 1812 the quantity of produce on the estate was unprecedented.

As illustrating how suddenly death came during the eruption it is stated that in some houses in St. Vincent people were found still sitting round their tables at tea. One man had a smile on his mouth and had evidently died with a word on his lips. Another had a pipe in his mouth and his hand outstretched for a match.

Novel Use For Missionaries.

A new phase of the missionary question is coming to the front, says the North China Herald. In the past the difficulty in this region (Fuchau) has been to find any one willing to identify himself with the hated western religion. But now from every side come requests from a large number of men asking to have a "teacher" sent to their town, with the offer of a chapel free. The requests are, without exception, made in the hope of getting the foreigner, or at least the "church," to take up their law cases.

Streets of Gold.

The streets of Ballarat, the famous Australian golden city, if not precisely paved with the precious metal, offer chances of treasure from time to time, says the Pall Mall Gazette. A scavenger, sweeping one of the street channels recently, found a pretty little nugget weighing an ounce. It was probably brought from one of the mines in the gravel used for the top dressing of the road.

Verdict In Cambria Mine Disaster

Johnstown, Pa., July 29.—The coroner's jury investigating the rolling mill mine disaster on the 10th inst filed their verdict yesterday. They find that the explosion was caused by some persons or persons, to the jury unknown, taking into room No. 2, sixth right heading, where gas was known to exist, an open lamp, using the same in direct violation of the mine rules and regulations of the Cambria Steel company.

Man's Greatest Enemy.

"Fatigue is one of the greatest enemies of the human race," says a writer in Ainslee's. "Modern physiology shows that it is the cause of nearly half and perhaps more of the several hundred catalogued diseases that prey upon man. In our age, with its high pressure, its hot and bitter competition and the unrelenting struggle for survival, its moral and physical ravages are steadily increasing. Cities, in which an ever larger proportion of our people dwell, are biological hothouses and, for some, furnaces, forcing development prematurely and encouraging late hours and excitement and consuming nerve and brain."

Corrected His Error.

With the Germans the absentminded college professor is a stock source of witticisms.

One of these deeply absorbed gentlemen, sitting on a rear seat, thought he knew a person sitting in front and was about to speak to him when, the stranger by chance turning a little, the professor saw that he was mistaken.

Nevertheless, touching him on the shoulder, he remarked politely:

"You will excuse me, but you are not the person I thought you were."—Philadelphia North American.

Spiteful.

"Yes," said the engaged girl, "Dick is very methodical. He gives me one kiss when he comes and two when he goes away."

"That's always been his way," returned her dearest friend. "I've heard lots of girls comment on it."

Thus it happens that they cease to speak to each other.

DEPENDS UPON AN "IF"

Hanna May Enter Presidential Race In 1904

FAIRBANKS ALSO ASPIRES

In Event of Widening of Breach Between President and His Party In Congress—Ohioan Holding His Peace and Awaiting Developments

Washington, July 29.—The latest political gossip represents Senator Fairbanks as arranging his political lines so that, if Mr. Hanna enters the convention of 1904 as a candidate for the presidency, he will do the same. This is based on the idea that what if fair for Ohio is quite as fair for Indiana.

The "if" in Senator Hanna's case is perfectly well understood by his friends here, and his program is as nearly complete as any forecast can be so far in the future. There has not been, up to this time, any friction between Mr. Hanna and President Roosevelt. Mr. Hanna has not asked the earth, and Mr. Roosevelt has not quarrelled with him for the mere sake of quarrelling.

There is always the possibility of a clash when they come to discuss the reappointment of some of the southern office-holders who were put into place by President McKinley at Mr. Hanna's instance, and in recognition of their services in the St. Louis convention of 1896. Not a few of these, unless the signs are most misleading, are liable to be dropped out when their terms expire, as Wimberley was, not because they are Mr. Hanna's appointees and clients, but because they belong to a class of politicians whom the president, in spite of all his efforts to cultivate a rare catholicity of taste in Republican human nature, has not yet been able to like.

Perhaps Mr. Hanna may feel the same way that the president does when the critical hour comes. He is a good bargain-keeper, and he would have turned the heavens and the earth wrong side out rather than miss giving those men the sort of compensation they had in view when they rallied around him at St. Louis. But he did not bind himself either legally or morally, then or at any time, to take care of them all their lives. He used his influence to get them the offices they aspired to; having succeeded, that seemed to wash the slate clean as far as he and his St. Louis debts were concerned; and as he could not prevent the change of presidents near the beginning of the second McKinley term, his beneficiaries cannot hold him responsible for what happens to them in the natural course of events, irrespective of what might have happened had Mr. McKinley lived.

Mr. Hanna knows his own mind pretty nearly as well as the people who are daily constructing policies for him, and he thinks that, unless some serious administrative errors later block the path, Mr. Roosevelt has the best chance for the nomination in 1904 of any of the possibilities yet mentioned. That being satisfactory to him as things stand, he would not raise a finger to interfere. To this extent he must himself be considered out of the preliminary race for position. But here comes in that perilous "if."

Suppose the breach which has begun to show itself between the president and his party in congress widens, instead of closing over? To stand by and see someone else bear down upon the prize and carry it off—particularly someone who would use his power to Mr. Hanna's hurt wherever possible—would not be tolerable for the senator, constructed as he is. He has got to be as big as any other man in every undertaking into which he enters. So it is always possible that he may, if he sees things going the wrong way as the time draws nearer for the convention, run up his flag as a candidate, merely to hold in check some others who would try to press to the front if the field were comparatively empty.

The widely prevalent idea that Mr. Hanna wants the presidency for his own sake is as far from the fact as the talk which has been heard from time to time about a cabinet office in store for him. It would take a locomotive in front and a regiment with fixed bayonets behind to force Mr. Hanna into the cabinet; such a position is absolutely foreign to his tastes, would have no attractions as a point of departure in party management, and could not even contribute to the gratification of a single ambition of his. He knows that he is not physically equal to the strain of a president's pother with detail. But he would like to be able to name the president, just as it would be pleasing to him to be consulted about any cabinet appointment. That is the only relation he cares to sustain toward either office.

Hence it can be seen why Mr. Hanna does not make his formal withdrawal from the field. First, he cannot tell yet whether or not he will be compelled to let his name come before the convention for the protection of the interests he has in charge; second, any premature announcement of that kind would release his hold upon an army of followers who are for him as long as there is a chance that he may run. These men belong to the class who people conventions and cast their votes in lumps. To turn them loose now would not do them any good, and might leave him in a sorry plight when he needed their aid to carry through his plans. So he simply holds his peace, and waits to see what the next week, or month or year will bring forth.

RIOT AND BLOODSHED

One Man Killed and Others Badly Hurt In New Jersey Primaries

Camden, N. J., July 29.—The Republican primary elections for delegates to the convention of the First congressional district of New Jersey were held yesterday in the counties which comprise the district. The candidates for the nomination are Henry C. Loudenslager, the present congressman, and J. A. Van Sant. The contest has been one of the most bitter ever held in south Jersey. John Morrissey was shot through the heart in this city, and "Joe" Goddard, the heavyweight pugilist, was probably fatally shot while electioneering at Pensauken. Another man was dangerously stabbed in this city and a fourth man received stab wounds near Merchantville.

Goddard was at a voting place in Pensauken township when he was shot. He was with a number of men who were travelling from one polling place to another. The pugilist got into a quarrel with a colored constable named Robert Washington. It is alleged that Goddard assaulted the constable with a baseball bat and the colored man, in self-defense, shot Goddard in the head.

Near the same polling place Constable Isaac Fowler, while in a fight, was stabbed twice. His wounds, though painful, are not considered serious. There was considerable trouble in Pensauken township and at Merchantville, and a number of persons were badly beaten.

The most serious affray occurred in this city. Each side had a crowd at the polling place and a general riot was started. When it was all over, it was found that Morrisey was killed.

Almost complete returns show that Loudenslager will have a majority of about 25 delegates.

Promises to Be Exciting

Sofia, July 29.—The Macedonian committee has convened a congress for Aug. 2 to elect a new president. The notorious ex-president of the committee, M. Saravoff, has returned here, after an absence of one year, as a candidate for the presidency. General Zontcheff, the actual leader of the committee, threatens to make revelations with regard to the alleged complicity of Saravoff in the kidnapping last year of Miss Stone, the American missionary, and other compromising affairs.

Cattlemen's Depredations

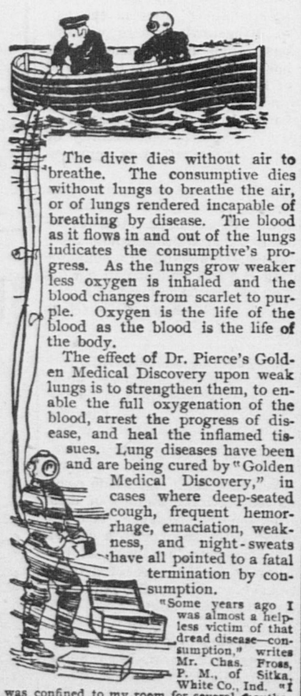

Grand Junction, Col., July 29.—On Saturday night 14 masked men appeared on the grazing ground of the Angora Range association, in Pinon mesa, where about 1000 goats were ranging. The three herders in charge of the goats were bound, while the masked men slaughtered more than 600 of the flock by shooting and stabbing them. The loss is estimated at $8000. Several other goat ranches in this vicinity have been threatened by the cattlemen.

Heavy Verdict Against McHugh

Belfast, July 29.—William R. Fenton, crown solicitor for the county of Sligo, obtained a verdict of $17,500 damages against Patrick A. M'Hugh, Nationalist member of the house of commons, here yesterday for libel. Fenton's case was that certain speeches delivered by M'Hugh and certain articles published in his newspaper, The Sligo Champion, had resulted in his dismissal from the position of solicitor to the Sligo county council.

At Salary of $100,000 a Year

New York, July 29.—The Herald prints a dispatch from Oyster Bay in which is revived the report current two months ago that Governor Odell has decided to retire from politics to engage in the railroad business. The dispatch says that Governor Odell will assume an executive office in the Union Pacific railway system, at an annual salary of $100,000, and that he has planned to remove with his family to Omaha.

The diver dies without air to breathe. The consumptive dies without lungs to breathe the air, or of lungs rendered incapable of breathing by disease. The blood as it flows in and out of the lungs indicates the consumptive's progress. As the lungs grow weaker less oxygen is inhaled and the blood changes from scarlet to purple. Oxygen is the life of the blood as the blood is the life of the body.

The effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery upon weak lungs is to strengthen them, to enable the full oxygenation of the blood, arrest the progress of disease, and heal the inflamed tissues. Lung diseases have been and are being cured by "Golden Medical Discovery," in cases where deep-seated cough, frequent hemorrhage, emaciation, weakness, and night-sweats have all pointed to a fatal termination by consumption.

"Some years ago I was almost a helpless victim of that dread disease—consumption," writes Mr. Chas. Pross, P. M., of Sitka, White Co., Ind. "I was confined to my room for several months; my friends and neighbors had given up all hope of my recovery, until one day a friend advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after I had taken the contents of the second bottle I began to improve. After taking six bottles I was, I honestly believe, delivered from the grave and entirely cured. I am now a strong and hearty man."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

A POSTOFFICE THIEF

Has Expectations Fulfilled So Far as Detection Is Concerned

Clinton, Mass., July 29.—Henry L. Burpee of Worcester, 24 years old, a clerk in the postoffice here, was arrested yesterday, charged with embezzling money from the postoffice department. He was locked up without bail, awaiting the arrival of United States officers to take him to Boston. It is alleged that he has taken $500, but the amount will probably exceed that.

One of Burpee's methods of obtaining the money, it is said, was to make a record in the local office of the issuance of a money order for a less amount than the order really called for, and then pocket the balance. Another method, it is said, was to make out an order in the name of a fictitious person in some neighboring postoffice and then go to that office and cash that order. In this way the inspectors claim that Burpee once obtained $100.

When confronted with the evidence of his guilt he showed no surprise and made a confession in which he said that he had expected to be caught some time before this. He was appointed July 1, 1901, under the civil service law.

Won't Work With Italians

Boston, July 29.—Five hundred tube workers in the employ of the American Tube company voted last night to suspend work, owing to alleged grievances which they want to have adjusted. The men had made demands on the company to be answered last night, but the company sent out a notice that they would give an answer to the men tomorrow night. The cause of the trouble, as the men claim, is that some 20 or 30 Italians have been put to work in the plant.

Ten Terrible Days In Hold

Boston, July 29.—After the Warren line steamer Sachem had made fast at her dock in Charlestown yesterday, 10 days out from Liverpool, a stowaway, Henry A. Ritty, was found in the hold. He had lived 10 days on a half a loaf of bread and without a drop of drinking water. His condition was pitiable and he was restored to consciousness only by careful treatment of physicians. He may recover. He claims to be an American citizen.

Not Satisfied With Increase

Fall River, Mass., July 29.—At a meeting of the Master Builders' association last night a committee was appointed to confer with a committee from the Bricklayers and Masons' unions tonight. The members of the union ask 45 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, which is an advance of 4½ cents an hour. They had been given an increase from 35 1-3 to 40½ cents, but were not satisfied.

Caught Scorching With Auto

Salem, Mass., July 29.—Leonard D. Ahl, a summer resident of Manchester, was in the police court yesterday on a charge of driving his automobile faster than the legal rate of speed in Manchester. Ahl is a member of the North Shore Automobile club, one of whose purposes it was announced was to check scorching and to bring the violators of road laws to justice. He was fined $10.

Railroad Charges Fraud

Boston, July 29.—Theodore W. Phinney was arrested yesterday on a warrant charging him with conspiracy to defraud the Boston and Maine Railroad company. The arrest is made in connection with three made Saturday. It is alleged that Phinney has defrauded the railroad company of $150 by the purchase of season tickets and the sale of coupons to travelling salesmen.

Nina Danforth's Mental Condition

Boston, July 29.—The Post says that it is semi-officially announced that Nina Danforth, who shot and killed Andrew Emery some weeks ago, is declared not to be insane by Dr. Utley, alienist for the state. The circumstances of the case, however, it is stated, make it likely that the girl will be sent to an asylum instead of being tried, owing to the critical state of her health.

Met Death In Water

Lynn, Mass., July 29.—George L. Bullens of Melrose, a Boston stock broker, became unconscious while in bathing at Nahant yesterday and although carried ashore he could not be revived. It is supposed that an attack of heart failure or acute indigestion, brought on by going into the water too soon after dinner, caused the accident.

Team Drivers Are Out

Hartford, July 29.—The general strike of the Team Drivers' union, which has been hanging fire for several weeks awaiting arbitration, which the Draymen's association has refused, was inaugurated yesterday. Pickets are active in their efforts to have drivers abandon their rigs.

Carnegie Sticks to Libraries

Richmond, July 29.—Andrew Carnegie has declined the proposition submitted to him by a special committee representing the Art society of Richmond to give the $100,000 he proposed to donate to a public library towards a fund for the erection of a great building to be the home of the fine arts in this city.

Many Princeton Men Dropped

Princeton, N. J., July 29.—The final reports of the June examinations at Princeton show that over 50 students are dropped. This is the largest number to be caught at one examination in the history of the university. A dozen athletes are in the list of failures.

Railroad Increases Wages

Cumberland, Md., July 29.—Officials of the West Virginia Central and Pittsburg Railway company announce a voluntary increase of wages to its employes. The increase affects all the employes of the transportation department, and averages 10 percent.

FULL SELF GOVERNMENT

Will Ultimately Be Granted Boers In South Africa

OLD TRADITIONS TO REMAIN

Chamberlain Says Surrender Promises Will Be Kept In Spirit as Well as In Letter—Conciliatory Address Applauded by Opponents

London, July 30.—Mr. Chamberlain's appearance in the house of commons yesterday was marked by a speech which won the applause even of such opponents as Henry Labouchere. Mr. Chamberlain dealt comprehensively with the past and future of South Africa. "We have no intention," he declared, "that the Boers should break with their old traditions. We desire that they should preserve all the best characteristics of their race and hope they will shake hands with us, thus securing prosperity in South Africa under the flag which protects different races and different religions." That sentiment was the keynote of the speech.

Dealing with the much discussed labor question, Mr. Chamberlain said he believed every inducement to labor should be held out to the blacks, but no scheme of compulsory labor would receive the slightest government support. There was no intention of packing the country with Britishers, but so much Transvaal land was lying idle that the colonists could only be made a great corn producing factor by bringing in British settlers.

The government, said Mr. Chamberlain, reserved to itself the important right in the new colonies to refuse to allow the return or to keep watch over persons who showed themselves inimical to good order and peace. "We are not going to allow the result of the war to be undermined," said Mr. Chamberlain, "by intrigues carried on by nominally constitutional means."

Regarding the future status of South Africa, the colonial secretary said the imperial government had established a crown colony in the strictest sense. The next step would be to add a nominated official element. Thereafter there would be an elected official element and then nothing but circumstances and time would separate the new colonies from full self-government, the ultimate goal of their ambition. That consummation would not be delayed, if for no other reason, because it might relieve the government of the tremendous burden of responsibility involved in the present situation, but all must understand that the government would not be rushed or hustled into any action which circumstances did not warrant.

The speaker said he was one of those optimistic enough to believe that the new colonies would reach the ultimate goal of their ambition much sooner than many persons now thought possible. So far as the government was concerned, the surrender promises would be kept in spirit as well as in letter. The government, he said, was bound both by honor and by interest to this course. There remained many questions concerning which experts must be consulted, and the taxation of mines must be settled, but he wished to say that nothing would be done to punish owners of mines, as had been suggested in many quarters. The government would do nothing to interfere with a quick revival of development of the country. Subject to that consideration, Mr. Chamberlain continued, no man was more anxious than he to recover some considerable part of the cost of the war from South Africa.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech evoked criticism of the financial features of the policy outlined for South Africa from Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, James Bryce and others. Mr. Bryce said he hoped the national scouts would not be used as police, but Mr. Chamberlain said he could not see why they should not be so employed, as he believed they would make admirable civil guards. Mr. Chamberlain also said he hoped the roys' judicial commission going out to South Africa would exercise the king's clemency in view of the large number of sentences imposed during the war.

Popularity of Boer Commanders

Cape Town, July 30.—The marriage of General Delarey's daughter to his secretary, Ferreira, occurred at the Dutch Reformed church yesterday. The approaches to the edifice were packed and the congregation cheered Generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey as they entered the church. De Wet was carried from the church on the shoulders of enthusiastic admirers. When the bridal party appeared the congregation arose and cheered until the minister threatened to stop the ceremony or clear the church.

GOLD TURNED INTO PENNIES

Bostonian Invested $2700 to Get Rich Quick and Got $9.97

Boston, July 30.—Frank Bornstein, 28 years old, was arraigned in the municipal court yesterday, charged with the larceny of 500 $5 gold pieces and four $50 bills, total value being $2700, from Bernard Bennett. Judge Bennett held the prisoner in $5000 for the grand jury.

The complainant is of the firm of Bennett & Cohen, second-hand clothing dealers. In court Bennett stated that Bornstein came to him with a scheme to get rich fast. Bennett claims that he was prevailed upon to furnish $2500 in $5 gold pieces, which he turned over to Bornstein, who promised him enormous profits upon the investment.

According to the complainant's story Bornstein arranged to have him witness the wonderful process of adding value to coin by changing a small amount of pure gold into a great many English sovereigns. Bennett states that the last he saw of his $2500 was when it was dumped into a can standing about one foot in height.

Acids were evidently placed in this can and the odor soon became so great that Bennett had to leave the room. When the alleged process was completed the complainant received a plaster cast object from Bornstein, and thinking it an infernal machine he conferred with the police. When the object was opened Bennett told the court that he found 997 pennies, but not a sign of his gold coin.

A Multi-Millionaire's Fall

Boston, July 30.—The Advertiser says: A lineal descendant of "Mad Anthony" Wayne of Revolutionary fame, W. Wayne Belvin, is lodged in the Charles street jail. His career in the world of finance has rivalled in celebrity that of his ancestor in military matters. He has been a multi-millionaire; he has put through schemes of which the figures confuse the ordinary mind; he has been presented to and amiably greeted by King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales. Now, though but 43 years old, Belvin is unable to raise money enough to extricate himself from a financial difficulty representing about $150. Belvin, it is alleged received from a prominent State street mining man a commission on some stock which he claimed he had sold, but which his principal refused to take up when the stock was delivered to him for payment.

Marlboro is willing to pay for the actual expenses, but claims that the bill presented is excessive and refuses to pay that sum.

ATTEMPTS TO RESUME WORK.

Vigorous Opposition from the Coal Strikers and Their Sympathizers.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 30.—President Mitchell will start this week to fill engagements he has to deliver addresses before United Mine Workers' assemblies in different parts of the anthracite region.

It is reported that the strikers are satisfied with the relief plan as carried out in the Wyoming region. The first instalment of the relief fund was not large and succor could be given to only the most destitute cases. But President Mitchell says when the money received from the assessment levied on the bituminous miners comes in there will be easier sailing for all concerned.

A crowd of 1500 men and boys prevented the resumption of work at the Wanke washery at Duryea yesterday. A number of men came down from Scranton to work at the washery. They were at once surrounded by a threatening crowd. The burgess was appealed to to protect the men who wanted to work, but he thought he would not be able to do it and he telephoned to Sheriff Jacobs. The sheriff sent four deputies to the scene, but when they arrived the mob had dispersed. The men who had been hired to work at the washery were badly frightened and when the train for Scranton came along they jumped aboard and returned to that place. A volley of stones followed them. The operator of the washery says he will not make another attempt to resume operations.

A thousand men, women and children assembled at the Mineral company's Cameron colliery at Shamokin last evening and hooted and cursed nonunion men as they quit work. A delegation of boys stoned several subbosses as they entered town. Chief Burgess Thomas and the police charged the crowd and put them to flight. The coal company officials say they will ask for troops if there is a continuance of the attempts to annoy the workmen.

Two crowds of strikers, numbering fully 3000 men, women and children, collected at all the Reading and Union company operations between Mount Carmel and Shamokin last evening and hurled stones and sticks at the nonunion men. Six of the latter were captured by the mob near Richards colliery and were badly pummelled.

On promising to remain away from the colliery until the strike ends they were liberated. Several scores of nonunion men remained at a couple of the mines last night, afraid to face the strikers who are picketed along roads leading into Mount Carmel.

Seven striking miners from Nanticoke were arraigned before Magistrate Brown here yesterday, charged with committing an assault on William Young, an engineer employed at one of the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal company. While on his way to work, Young claimed he was held up and that two of the defendants threw stones at him, one of the stones striking him on the head and inflicting a deep cut. The strikers were held in bail for trial at court.

Good Afternoon.

The stairway, used for over sixty years by the patrons of the Ledger and Patriot office, was removed this morning to assist in the remodelling of the building, which, like City Hall, has got to keep up with the times. For a few weeks our patrons may have some difficulty in finding the editors, although we are still doing business in the old quarters, but we trust they will overcome the obstacles and call as usual. The entrance for the present will be found midway of the building formerly used by Sanborn & Damon.

In a few weeks we hope to be settled in offices on the street floor, thereby doing away with climbing the stairs, thus enabling us to better accommodate our patrons.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Whiskey destroys balance, both mental and physical. It substitutes dreaming and foolish self-confidence for real effort. It presents all of life's problems and duties in a false light. It makes those things seem unimportant which are most important. It dulls the conscience, which alone can make men do their duty, in spite of temptation, and struggle on to success in spite of exhaustion. Keep away from it, and keep away from those who praise it. He who hands it to his fellow man is a criminal and he who hands it to a young man is a worse criminal and a villain.—New York Journal.

☞All pure coins have their counterfeits; the counterfeit of business is speculation. A man in business always gives value in return for his revenue, and thus performs a useful function; his services are necessary and benefit the community; besides, he labors steadily in developing the resources of the country, and thus contributes to the advancement of the race. This is genuine coin. Speculation, on the contrary, is a parasite fastened upon the labor of business men. It creates nothing and supplies no want. When the speculator wins he takes money without rendering service or giving value therefor, and when he loses his fellow speculator takes the money from him. It is a pure gambling operation between them, degrading to both.—Andrew Carnegie in New York Daily News.

☞A southern mill trades paper is impatient at the thought that unless a southern cotton mill is situated in the midst of the cotton fields there is no advantage in being near the source of supply. What, then, is the great advantage in having a mill in a southern State? The answer is easy—there is opportunity for child labor and cheap white labor generally in that section of the country, and there is where the benefit to the southern mill comes in. Make the same laws regarding labor in the south that we have in Massachusetts, and we should find the southern mill owner closing up his plant and moving to the north. Bad as conditions may be among mill workers in this part of the United States, they are infinitely preferable to the slavery of the children of the south who are doomed to early death and physical decay in the southern mills.—Brockton Enterprise.

—Incredible as it may seem, England has had even more inclement weather than we during the summer.

TO A FINISH.

The Outlook Shows Her Heels to the Hades.

The Quincy cup defenders Outlook and Hades made another try at a race Tuesday morning says the Globe, and in spite of a light and spotty breeze varying in direction from northeast to east, finished the 9 1-2 mile triangular course just inside the time limit of 3 1-2 hours, the Outlook winning by a comfortable margin.

The course was from the starting line off West Manchester to Southeast breakers buoy, a beat then to Anchor rock buoy, a spinnaker run, then a close reach to the finish line.

The start was made at 10.50. Neither boat had crossed the line when the handicap gun was sounded at 10.52. The Hades crossed the line first, with the Outlook 21 seconds behind her and to windward. There was the faintest breath of air stirring, just enough to give the boats steerage way.

The Outlook passed the Hades to windward before they had sailed 200 yards, and from that time she was never headed. At the first mark, Southeast breakers buoy, they were 2m 30s apart, the Outlook rounding at 10:55:30 and the Hades at 10:58:00.

Spinnakers were set for the run to Archers rock. The breeze, which had picked up a little on the windward leg, had died away again. The Hades gained on the Outlook and would have picked up more if her crew had not been slow in handling the light sails.

Archers rock was turned by the Outlook at 11:51:41 and by the Hades at 11:53:31, making the Outlook's lead 1m 50s, a gain for the Hades of 40s on the run.

It was a close reach to Hardys rock, which marked a bend in the course to the finish line. So close was it that neither boat could clear Eagle island, and had to make a hitch. The wind freshened a bit, and the Outlook drew away steadily all the way home, and crossed the finish line a winner by 8m, a gain for her of 6m, 10s, on the last leg, due to her holding a better breeze.

The victory was decisive, and showed that while the Hades is fast in light airs the Outlook is more than a match for her. Off the wind the Hades showed her only point of superiority in today's race.

The summary:

	Start	Finish	Elapsed Time
	h m s	h m s	h m s
Outlook,	10:52:00	12:32:00	2:35:00
Hades,	10:52:00	12:40:00	2:43:00

There was no race in the afternoon, and for the rest of the week only morning races will be sailed starting at 9.30.

BETTS AND FISHER.

Defendants in United States Circuit Court.

Boston papers report that Addie R. Keller of Bar Mills, Me., has brought a bill in equity in the United States Circuit Court against Frederick E. Betts, John M. Fisher, George E. Adams, Luther H. Bailey, Ella E. Bailey, Mrs. Annie H. Betts and Mrs. Luther H. Bailey. She alleges that she was interviewed personally by Betts and Fisher, and upon the strength of certain representations made by them, she intrusted $2,400 to Betts for investment. Subsequently she made frequent demands for the money, but they refused to return the same, she charges.

She further says that she was induced by Betts to release the firm of J. M. Fisher & Co. from liability for its debt of $2400, and to receive in lieu thereof stock in the Cobb-Everett Investment Company of the value of $2400. She avers that the stock was worthless.

She asks to have a Receiver appointed to take charge of the assets of the J. M. Fisher Company, and with the power to pursue the same in the hands of the Baileys, Mr. or Mrs. Betts or any confederate; also that the release be cancelled and her debt be reinstated and put in force. The case came before Judge Colt yesterday, and His Honor gave the defenders ten days to file affidavits. The complainant alleges that Mrs. Betts has bought a steam yacht and that her husband at present is cruising and occupying the same and is entertaining friends lavishly; also that Mrs. Betts has bought a large number of horses and is maintaining an expensive country seat in Quincy.

Hades a Failure.

The Manchester Yacht club members are of the opinion now that the Outlook will beyond all question be chosen to defend the Quincy cup, says the Boston Advertiser. The race with the Hades Tuesday morning seemed to decide the question satisfactorily, although there will be other races the rest of the week. The Hades seems to be a failure in her out and out catamarine type, and can not stand up under anything approaching a stiff wind. The racing will all be in light airs. On the other hand the Outlook is showing great form, and is racing in good time. A member of the Hades syndicate is authority for the statement that she is a failure.

CROWNINSHIELD.

Fined $20 for Assault on Yachting Editor McVey.

Because of the prominence of B. B. Crowninshield in designing one of the Quincy Cup defenders, his arrest and trial for assault on A. G. McVey, the yachting editor of the Herald are of interest to Quincy yachtsmen. In the Salem court on Tuesday Mr. Crowninshield was fined $20, which he paid in good humor.

The Journal reports Mr. McVey as follows:

"I have known Crowninshield since boyhood. I've seen him around in small boats, but in the last six or seven years I have known him very well to talk to. I saw him on the 23d of July in Manchester, on the wharf. He was on a boat ten or twelve feet from the dock. I was on the wharf."

"Did you say anything to the defendant?" asked Mr. Bartlett.

"Not a word," replied the witness.

Mr. McVey stood where he was for some time. He had some talk with a man on the wharf. Then he started to go to the train with Mr. Frank Cheever. A few men stood around, but he did not know them.

"On the way up the wharf," he continued, "I saw Crowninshield. I hadn't gone more than four or five steps when I turned to see where Mr. Cheever was and saw Crowninshield coming toward me like a wild man. He said: 'D—— you! d—— you!'

"I was afraid he was coming to strike me. I dropped a photographing outfit I carried and picked up a stick to defend myself. He jumped in front of me and kept sparring for an opening to hit me. He did not hit me then. I threw the stick down and stooped to pick up my rubber overcoat, when he came up behind me and struck me on the base of the brain. He reached around in front and struck me six or seven times all over my head. He left these marks (indicating several on his face and head). Some man came and took him off my back. I picked up the stick again to defend myself, but did not use it. I said to him:

"'I didn't think that you'd do such a cowardly thing, to strike an old man like me, 60 years old, and a sick man, too. It was a cowardly, brutal thing."

McVey said that at this point Mrs. Crowninshield came up and said something. But Mr. Moulton made objection and what she said was not repeated at that point.

"Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Crowninshield about your physical condition?" asked Mr. Bartlett.

"Yes," replied Mr. McVey, "about a year ago."

"What was it?"

"I told him that I was in poor health. He was in his office at the time. I had gone to get the news of the Lawson cup defender. I told him I had diabetes and would not be able to come and see him every day. I asked if he would not give what news he had to the young man I should send in my place."

"Were you ever ordered out of Mr. Crowninshield's office?" asked Mr. Moulton in cross-examination.

"No, sir," replied Mr. McVey.

"And you gave him no provocation for this assault?"

"No, I gave him personally no provocation."

"You say not personally. What do you mean?"

"I only answered insulting remarks made by his wife."

"What were the remarks?"

"She urged Crowninshield to throw me overboard into the dock and perhaps kill me. I replied to her that it would be better if he had thrown her overboard before he had married her."

Mr. McVey said he had heard Mrs. Crowninshield urge her husband to attack him twice before he paid any attention to them.

Elks Funeral.

The funeral of Joseph Robertson was held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence on Adams street and was largely attended. Delegations were present from Boston lodge of Elks, Gate of Temple lodge of Masons, St. Matthew's chapter Royal Arch Masons, John Adams council Royal Arcanum of Wollaston, and the Hotel Men's Association. The casket was surrounded by beautiful flowers.

The services were conducted by Rev. David L. Martin, and included scripture reading, short address and prayer.

The burial rites of the Elks were conducted by Exalted Ruler Edward McLaughlin assisted by Chaplain George Carruth. The Herbert Johnson male quartette sang during the services. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

OF MANY MINDS.

Relative to Location of Federal Building.

At Least Nine Sites Suggested.

The Hancock Street Men Well Organized.

Tuesday's Ledger reported at length the first part of the hearing before Agent Crane of the Treasury department, relative to location for the new Federal building. F. F. Prescott outlined his three proposals to the government offering the lots on Washington street between Canal and Wibird streets.

The Col. Packard lot was advocated by G. H. Field, Lawyer McAnarney, H. S. Nicoll, D. King and H. L. Kincaide. Ex-Mayor Sears and Albert Keating favored the Prescott lot. Continuing the report:

L. M. Pratt, a grocer opposite the estate of Col. Packard, advocated the Packard lot. He said the tendency of business was toward "the Hollow." Considerable of the business of the city came from the south and west. The Briesler corner was better located than the Packard lot, but was not large enough and not good shape. The Quincy avenue line was the most direct to the shipyard.

Albert Keating said government should locate for future, and for this reason he favored the Prescott lot.

Councilman Fallon, who owns property on Cottage avenue opposite Col. Packard's, favored the Cottage avenue corner. He said he spoke for West Quincy, where the growth was, and where the money was earned. It was absurd to claim that the corner of Washington and Canal was the business centre. There was no more desirable lot than the Packard lot.

C. C. Hearn said the business centre was between Saville and School streets. There were two classes who used the postoffice, the business men and the laboring men. The accommodation of the people should be borne in mind. The majority of the money order business probably came from the south and west. He favored the Packard lot.

Agent Crane wished to ascertain if the Coddington corner was a satisfactory one to all had the price been right.

Lawyer McAnarney said that for beauty and for sentiment it was an ideal lot, but not for the convenience of the public.

T. L. Williams, a jeweler opposite the Packard lot, said the drift of business was toward the Packard lot. It was the business section of the city. It was on the direct line of cars from West Quincy to Boston. H. L. Kincaide & Co. with business sagacity had located three stores opposite the Packard lot.

John Swithin asked for a rising vote as to preference, but it was not taken.

Ex-Mayor Sears said that at the time the committee went to Washington, the city was all but unanimous in favor of the lots at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets. Not until personal interests entered was there a change. The people want a Federal building without delay.

J. H. Dinegan spoke of land values by the Assessors. He claimed that Col. Packard had been offered from $1.50 to $3 a foot for his property. I would gladly give $1.50. It was offered to the government for $1.

Councilman Bass asked for area of Packard lots offered.

Chairman Hammond, prompted by Agent Crane, said the 12,000 feet offered for $12,000 would not be available as 19,500 feet were required and a corner lot.

Agent Crane added: I cannot consider the Packard lots, as only $12,000 is available.

Councilman Bass—I suppose then that the Packard lot is out of the question.

D. E. Wadsworth explained that one of the Packard propositions was for 150 feet on Hancock street and 130 feet deep; another 130 feet on Hancock and 150 feet deep.

Agent Crane interrupted saying that only one Packard proposition came within $12,000 and that lot did not meet requirements.

F. F. Green said the lot at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets was an ideal site for beauty, but we must build for service. I own a lot near the Packard lot and must admit that is the best lot. Quincy avenue was as near to the Weymouths as Washington street.

A letter was read from M. P. Wright saying that none of the sites proposed were desirable, but Packard lot was best. He asked consideration of four others: Briesler corner; Washington, corner Coddington; Washington, corner Temple, and the Dr. French estate.

Dr. F. E. Jones was in hopes that the Packard lot would be accepted, as the surroundings were now unsightly. It would result in the widening of Cottage avenue and a better connection with Foster street, and other improvements. The Edwards estate will soon be opened up giving another street.

H. H. Faxon would put the building where the travel was. He didn't imagine the city would get a public building. Government should suit the present and not the future. It was of no use to advocate the Packard lot; it was not the place. A suitable lot could not be obtained for $12,000. It was all nonsense to talk of Packard corner being worth $3 per foot. The Prescott lot was peaked all round and no kind of a place.

W. P. Pinel and A. Milne favored the Packard lot.

C. C. Hearn asked how the matter now stood.

Agent Crane said 12,000 square feet was not enough, and that the Prescott lot was the only one that met all requirements.

J. F. Burke, a former postmaster, was familiar with use of postoffice. Within the radius of 1,500 feet there were many beautiful lots. He invited attention to the Crane estate at the corner of Greenleaf and Hancock near the High school. It was a question of money and $12,000 was not enough. He would prefer to defer purchase that we may have a central lot. The Hospital property at the corner of Washington and Coddington can be bought, but he did not know about the Insurance Company lot. The Packard lot was out of the question. He would have the agent go back to Washington and report that enough money has not been appropriated.

C. C. Hearn asked how $12,000 compared with amounts appropriated for other cities of 25,000 population.

Agent Crane said he had none in mind. In New England land was usually higher than other parts of country.

Ex-Mayor Sears, from his experience on the Committee to Washington, thought it would be impossible to obtain an increase of the appropriation. It was difficult to get that as all cities are clamoring. Better take half a loaf and get the best lot possible for $12,000.

F. F. Green thought Congressman Naphen would work for more.

Charles Hammond said he had been notified that the Dr. French estate would be sold for $28,000.

Charles Crane said he would sell his lot on Greenleaf street for $12,000.

Councilman Bass asked what course the agent would pursue at close of hearing.

Mr. Crane—I have formed no opinion. He agreed however to hold back his report for two weeks and to receive in the meanwhile further communications.

Boston Women Assaulted

Boston, July 30.—Last evening two young women, Sarah Hambro, 18 years old, and Virginia Auernfy, were feloniously assaulted in Franklin park by a negro about 30 years old, who made his escape and has not yet been found by the police. The assaults were committed within a short distance of each other, and in each case the man was frightened away by people who came to the scene in response to the cries of the young women.

Three Young Men Drowned

Worcester, Mass., July 30.—Gustaf A. Bengtson, 22, his brother, Fred Bengtson, 24, and a cousin, Carl Bengtson, 19, were drowned in Lake Quinsigamond. No one knows how the drowning happened. It is believed, however, that one of the brothers was seized with cramps and his brother made an effort to save him. In the struggle both are supposed to have been overcome and the cousin is believed to have swam to assist them.

Double Fatality at Picnic

Belfontaine, O., July 30.—Rev. W. H. Leatherman, pastor of the Methodist church at Degraff, was drowned yesterday in trying to save Earl Nodham, aged 15, who went down with him. Thirty boys of the clergyman's church were on a picnic. Young Nodham went swimming and was seized with cramps and the minister tried to rescue him.

Conservatives Lose a Seat

London, July 30.—The bye-election for member of the house of commons to represent North Leeds resulted in the election of Rowland Barran, Liberal, who received 7539 votes to 6781 cast for Sir Arthur Lawson, Conservative. The loss of this seat has filled the supporters of the new Balfour administration with dismay.

HEN AND CHICKENS.

A Stolen Nest Causes a Neighborhood Row.

A black hen, claimed by Frank Fanning of East Milton as his property, was the cause of a case in court this morning and of hard feelings between neighbors. Frank Fanning was complained of by Walter W. Bates for the larceny of eight chickens.

It appeared during the evidence that early in the spring a black hen wandered into a barn adjoining Bates' house and began to lay eggs. After a time quite a number of eggs had accumulated in the stolen nest. The hen sat on these eggs and in time eight chicks appeared. Mr. Bates had watched the performance and when the chickens were hatched he took care of them and built a coop and undertook to bring up the chicks.

The Fannings claimed the hen belonged to them; that while the hen was setting she came home for food and that she finally brought home a brood of chickens.

Ten days ago early one morning the chicks disappeared from the Fanning coop to the Bates coop, and later it is alleged that by the aid of Frank Fanning the chickens came back. The result was a warrant for larceny.

The court found Fanning not guilty and ordered his discharge.

To the Cup Races.

The steamer Josephine which has been chartered to take the members and friends of the Quincy yacht club to the Cup races at Manchester next week will leave from Quincy Point, instead of Houghs Neck as announced. The change in the starting place was made necessary by the tides. The hour fixed for the start is 7 o'clock in order that the party may reach Manchester in time for the races, which start at 10 o'clock. Tickets for the trip are selling rapidly and if those intending to go have not already secured their tickets they should do so at once as the number is limited.

Whims of Famous Singers.

Mme. Scalchi was in a very sad way if she met any one who squinted, and she would go through a whole host of evolutions to rid herself of the evil spell.

Mario's foible was smoking. As smoking was forbidden at the theater, he would never sign a contract until the clause which made him an exception to the rule was inserted. He would have his valet waiting in the wings with a match and a cigar and would rush off the stage, take a few whiffs and then return to a tender love scene. The cigars that he smoked cost him half a crown, and he never more than partially finished one. Even the street boys in London knew him, and when they followed his carriage, cheering, he would have a handful of coins ready to toss to them.—Exchange.

The Sunday Horse.

A correspondent writing from Germany says one sees there many wagons designed for two horses, but drawn by but one. It gives the vehicle the appearance of being cut on the bias. "I inquired once why they did not have two horses, or else use shafts, and was charmed to learn that as keeping two horses was naturally more expensive people generally drove but one during the week and rented another horse on Sunday, when the entire family could drive out in style. It was a touching thought to keep the Sunday horse's place for him all week, but reminded one sadly of the vacant chair."

Out on a Foul.

"You have asked me to be your wife," remarked the wealthy "maiden lady." "Before I answer you please tell me one thing. Are you in favor of woman suffrage?"

"I am," he answered, thinking thus to win her.

"Then I cannot be yours," she said. "My husband must regard me not as his equal, but as a tender child whom he has taken to love and to cherish."—Chicago Record-Herald.

ALL REJECTED.

Proposals for New Registry in Excess of the Limit.

Bids were opened by the County Commissioners on Tuesday for the construction of the new building for the new Registry building to be erected on the Fisher Ames lot at Dedham.

Eight bids were received, all of which were rejected, on the ground that they were in excess of the sum of $200,000, the amount set by the act of the Legislature. The bids were as follows:

Norcross Bros. Company, Boston and Worcester—Entire work, using Stony creek or Oneco granite, $258,773; using Troy or Milford granite, $254,933.

Charles H. Dodge Construction Company, 23 Common street, Boston—Entire work, using Troy granite, $281,727.

McNeil Bros., 196 Freeport street, Dorchester—Entire work, $289,600.

Connors Bros., Lowell—Entire work, using Rockport, Deer Island or Milford pink granite, $295,140.

Angus McDonald, 95 Milk street, Boston—Entire work, $305,481.

Richardson & Burgess, Washington, D. C.—Entire work, $311,163.

C. Mason & Co. of Boston—Entire work, using Quincy granite, $354,797; entire work, using Rockport granite, $313,797; entire work, using Milford granite, $311,797.

Morrill & Whiton Construction Company, 35 Pleasant street, Boston—Entire work, using Quincy granite, $360,894; entire work, using Milford or Rockport granite, $298,894.

Quincy Point Schoolhouse.

Carpenters have said all along that the proposed school building at Quincy Point could not be built for $55,000, the amount appropriated for that purpose. Even with the hall taken out that amount would not be sufficient. As the amount appropriated did not include heating or furnishing the building, it would seem that the only thing to do is to appropriate an additional $15,000 or procure a new set of plans so that the building can be built within the amount appropriated. In either event it looks as though the building would not be commenced this year.

THE NEXT POPE

Will Be Cardinal Gotti If Present Pontiff's Preference Prevails

Rome, July 30.—Cardinal Gotti, prefect of the sacred congregation of bishops and regulars and of regular discipline, has been appointed to succeed the late Cardinal Ledochowski as prefect of the propaganda. This is the most important post in the gift of the pope and is universally regarded as indicating the pontiff's personal wishes as to the personality of his successor. Cardinal Gotti has long been considered the most likely of the cardinals for succession to the papal throne.

Condemned Murderer to Wed

Baltimore, July 30.—John W. Devine, colored, is to be hanged on Sept. 19. On May 19 he quarrelled with Mary Jones in the house in which they lived. He assaulted the woman, and she summoned the police. As Patrolman Donahue entered the house the negro shot and killed him. Mary Jones has visited the condemned man frequently, with the result that Devine has proposed marriage and the Jones woman has consented. Rev. G. L. Lane, a Baptist minister, says he will marry and baptize Devine at the same time.

French Admirals In Disgrace

Paris, July 30.—Two distinguished naval officers, Vice Admiral DeBeaumont and Rear Admiral Servan, have been summarily relieved of their commands by order of President Loubet. Rear Admiral Servan's downfall is attributed to sensational developments which led up to the recent sucide of Commander Barry on the cruiser Tage, while Rear Admiral Servan was aboard. DeBeaumont's discipline is said to be due to a recently published, but denied, interview severely criticising the minister of marine.

As to Teller's Candidacy

Cripple Creek, Col., July 30.—The Times prints a letter from Senator Teller to W. H. Griffith, chairman of the silver Republican state committee, in which he says, regarding his candidacy to succeed himself: "I do not desire the committee to take any action in the matter. I have carefully considered the question as to whether I ought to be a candidate or not, and I have determined to leave that question to the Democrats of Colorado in state convention assembled."

World's Greatest Trust

London, July 30.—The Daily Mail declares there is no longer any doubt that the three monster oil interests of Rockefeller, Rothschild and Nobel have entered into a working agreement. "Thus," says the paper, "without any publicity the greatest trust the world has ever seen has sprung into being." It was doubtless this combine, continues The Daily Mail, which induced the Russian government to issue invitations to an anti-trust conference.

No Bodies From the Tiber

Halifax, July 30.—Schooner Nettie M. G. has arrived from the wreck of steamer Tiber with a cargo of machinery, iron and other metals. The diver reported he saw no bodies. The steamer parted in the middle, and both parts then collapsed, the macahinery going to the bottom. It is possible some of the bodies may be held down by the decks.

Valuable Time Saved.

Slight injuries often disable a man and cause several days' loss of time and when blood poison develops, sometimes result in the loss of a hand or limb. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment. When applied to cuts, bruises and burns it causes them to heal quickly and without any maturation, and prevents any danger of blood poison. THE UNWRITTEN LAWS

Evidently Well Understood by Commander McCrea

AFFAIRS AT CAPE HAYTIEN

Reported by Him to Be In a Serious State—He Will Protect Foreigners and Will Prevent Bombardment by Belligerents Without Due Notice

Washington, July 30.—The following cablegram, dated July 29, has been received at the navy department from Commander McCrea of the Machias, which arrived at Cape Haytien Monday:

"Affairs are very disturbed at Cape Haytien. Unorganized mob in the city. Foreign consuls have been threatened. Will give protection on board. I will prevent bombardment without due notice."

The state department has no hesitation in fully approving the energetic and sufficient action of Commander McCrea in taking care of the foreign consuls and in preventing a bombardment without warning. The American and foreign interests in Cape Haytien are large, and an American captain is required by the unwritten law to look after the life and property of other foreign residents as well as Americans, in such cases. It is said that the rules of international law, as well as the dictates of humanity, require that proper notice be given before a bombardment, in order that women, children and non-combatants may leave the town and carry off their personal belongings.

The navy department feels that the Machias is sufficiently large for the work at hand at this point, though if there were more such small American gunboats in the gulf and Carribean a quieting and restraining influence would be exerted over these frequent rebellious outbreaks, involving violations of the rules of war and great suffering. However, there is no naval vessel, save those now actually engaged in such service as the Machias, within 1800 miles of the various seats of trouble in Central and South America and the West Indies.

The Machias is a vessel of 1177 tons, carrying eight four-inch rapid-fire guns and a crew of 11 officers and 143 men. While not many men could be spared for a landing party, the vessel undoubtedly could lie in the anchorage and cover the town with her guns. It is not believed that there is the slightest danger of an attack upon her by any of the Haytien gunboats, loyal or rebel.

The London county council has sanctioned large extensions to the tramway system of London, costing nearly $10,000,000.

Ready to Repulse Navy

Washington, July 30.—Acting Secretary Sanger returned to the war department yesterday, after having, in company with the officers of the army, made a tour of the forts forming the defenses of the eastern entrance of Long Island sound, which is to be the scene of the army and navy maneuvers. They found everything in excellent condition to meet the navy in the coming engagement.

Steamer Seized and Released

Halifax, July 30.—A dispatch from Charlottetown says that steamer Olivette was seized yesterday by the customs department on a charge of violation of the customs laws. It is stated that a person landed yesterday with a box containing 10,000 cigarettes. The agents here deposited a check and the steamer was released and sailed.

A Persistent Suicide

St. Joseph, Mo., July 30.—Charles Preble, a prominent farmer and stockman, yesterday tried to shoot hin self through the heart, but the bullet, the last one in the revolver, failed to strike a vital spot. He then leaped into a 50-foot well, but was taken out. Later he was found dead, hanging from a rafter in the barn.

Bound and Hanged Himself

Haverhill, Mass., July 30.—The body of Bernard Perkins, 70 years old, was found bound to a tree just off the Amesbury road yesterday. The man had evidently bound himself to a limb of the tree and swung into the air, hanging himself. The man was supposed to be insane, and no relatives can be found.

Won't Settle on Silver Basis

Shanghai, July 30.—The bankers' commission here has received information that Great Britain and the United States have abandoned their attempt to induce the other powers concerned to accept payment of the Chinese international indemnity upon a silver basis.

KING ABLE TO WALK

Official Announcement of Coronation Ceremonies on Ninth of August

London, July 30.—The latest and most reliable information indicates that King Edward's doctors were not mistaken in fixing Aug. 9 as the date upon which he could be crowned. The apprehension that King Edward would be unable to stand the strain of the coronation ceremony has been greatly lessened by the announcement that he is now permitted to use his feet and, with the aid of a stick, has done a little walking. Another telegram from Cowes, saying that nearly all the restrictions upon the king's diet have been withdrawn, has been welcomed as evidence that the recent ominous deductions were drawn without due allowance for the doctors' extreme cautiousness.

Those who drew inferences from the fact that the invitations to Westminster Abbey were not dated have had their fears dissipated by the proclamation published in The Gazette last night, fixing Aug. 9 as the date for the coronation, which is altogether more important than anything which might or might not have appeared upon the cards of invitation.

According to the present arrangements King Edward and Queen Alexandra will leave Cowes either Aug. 6 or Aug. 8 for Buckingham palace and will return to the royal yacht Aug. 18, when the entire fleet will pass before King Edward and salute him, thus making a second naval review. After his return to the yacht the king is expected to take an extended cruise to the northward and subsequently to spend some weeks at Balmoral.

Lord Mayor Dimsdale of London expects King Edward to visit the city the week ending Oct. 11, when a great luncheon will be held in the Guildhall, which is to be followed by a royal procession through the south of London. All these plans may not be carried out to the letter, but their arrangement is generally taken as insuring, so far as human foresight can be relied upon, the king's coronation for Aug. 9.

Last Year's Platform Will Stand

Des Moines, July 30.—The withdrawal of Lafayette Young of Des Moines last evening as a candidate for member of the committee on resolutions from the Seventh district is generally regarded as ending the opposition to the reaffirmation of last year's platform by the Republican state convention here today. The objection which had been made to the reaffirmation of last year's platform was directed almost entirely to the clause in the trust plank, declaring for "any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording shelter to monopoly." It was held by some that the clause was virtual admission of the Democratic claim that the tariff fosters trusts.

Lost Office by Marriage

Berlin, July 30.—The marriage of Privy Councillor Loehning to the daughter of a former sergeant in the German army has caused Herr Loehning's compulsory retirement from the chief directorship of taxes for the province of Posen. In a pamphlet, Herr Loehning relates that the highest administrative official of the province of Posen told him he had nothing to say against his finance, but that it was impossible for him to consent to the marriage of one of the highest officials of the province with a daughter of an ex-sergeant.

Clayton's Critics Answered

Washington, July 30.—The last charges against Ambassador Clayton, submitted to the state department by Senator Penrose in the shape of affidavits that he held mining stock in his own name, stand already denied by the ambassador, and the statement is made that the state department regards them as having been satisfactorily answered. The purport of the ambassador's statement was that the stock referred to was held by him in trust and did not belong to him.

Trial Prevented by Suicide

Rochester, July 30.—Charles Radtke, who was to have been arraigned yesterday on a charge of attempt at assault in the first degree by trying to administer a deadly poison to members of his family last week, made a rope of his suspenders, and, tying one end to the lattice-work of the door, made a slip-noose in the other end, slipped it over his head, bent his knees and slowly strangled to death in his cell.

Why Pope Won't Interfere

Berlin, July 30.—The Tagliche Rundschau asserts that the Vatican has refrained from protesting against the action of the French government in the matter of closing inauthorized congregationist schools because France has threatened the Vatican that President Loubet will visit King Victor Emmanuel of Italy if the pope interferes.

FOLDING ICEBOX.

Invention That Should Be a Boon to Travelers.

An article which should be of particular value for travelers and also for nurses who have charge of children has been recently invented by Mrs. J. B. Rogers of Lakewood, N. J. The invention relates to an icebox which may be folded up and packed away in a small space whenever desired. Our engraving shows the icebox set up in position for use.

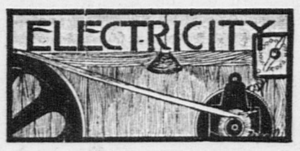

As described by the Scientific American, side leaves (A) and end leaves (D) are hinged to the bottom of a waterproof pan (B). A flanged top piece (E) serves to hold the leaves in vertical position, their upper edges being wedged between the flanges and blocks on the under surface of the top (E). A lid (F) covers the opening in the top piece, to which it is hinged, and is provided with a knob (G), by which it may be raised. A jacket (H) of thick felt covers the icebox, and a flap (K) of the same material covers the lid, the felt serving to prevent the entrance of heat from external sources. A grid (C) placed in the bottom of the pan (B) serves to hold the ice and permit proper drainage of the same. The pan is provided with a drain pipe, to which a rubber hose is attached for drawing off the water. When desired, however, this rubber tube may be removed and the drain pipe closed by a cork or stopper.

To fold the icebox the felt jacket is first removed, then the top (E) is taken off, the grid (C) lifted out and the leaves (A and D) folded over. It will be noticed that the side leaves (A) are hinged at a higher point than the end leaves. The purpose of this is to permit the side leaves to fold over and lie flat on the end leaves. The grid is now placed on the folded leaves and is covered by the top piece (E), thus forming a neat and compact parcel. When in position for use, there is ample room in the box for bottles or other articles to be kept cool, and it is therefore an accommodation which travelers will find indispensable.

Among the recent Rhode Island patents, says the Boston Transcript, is one covering an electric flytrap in which the flies are lured into the apparatus and then killed by a current of electricity. It is not explained whether or not the trap is capable of working havoc among mosquitoes at night when there are no flies to be electrocuted.

The fly killer is described as a frame made of wood or other insulating material. Sugar is used for bait. On the frame are positive and negative wires, forming grids on both faces of the frame. Every fly alighting on the grid for the purpose of getting a taste of the sugar is supposed to have his feet on at least two wires, and the current, passing through the insect, relieves mankind of the pest. The flies fall on a shelf composed of positive and negative wires, so that if the first shock was not fatal the second will put it out of their power to crawl over bald heads. When the shelf is covered with flies shocked to death, it is removed, and the dead and dying are dropped into the fire or the nearest pond, and the shelf is replaced and is ready for another quart of victims.

The inventor states that he had an electric trap in use last summer and that it was as fatal to flies as the death chair in a New York prison is to condemned criminals. The trap is connected with Narragansett 104 or 235 volt circuits, and every fly alighting on the wires and closing the circuit ceases to exist. Mr. Greene claims to be the first to utilize electricity for the destruction of flies. When the trap is out of order, due to the crossing of wires, an incandescent lamp is lighted, and when it is in working condition—circuits open—the lamp remains unlighted. A switch shuts off the current while the shelf is cleared of the accumulation of flies.

Makes Dolls That Walk.

Dolls that go to sleep and dolls that cry are plentiful enough, but a long felt want of the nursery has been a walking doll. Happily, this requirement seems to be filled by a contrivance just patented by Edmund U. Steiner of Brooklyn. It is a manikin whose stomach is occupied by a small machine which actuates the legs and causes the doll to perambulate, taking one step after another with gravity and equilibrium. Usually, however, it is expected to be led by the hand by the child mother. The mechanism employed is simple, cheap and practically indestructible.

Sponges of Rubber.

Novelty is shown in a sponge that has made its appearance. It is of Russian manufacture and resembles closely a dark brown sponge, but while it consists chiefly of holes whatever solid material there is of it is rubber. These sponges come in two sizes, oblong, with rounded corners. Whether, being made of rubber, they are less likely to form germ repositories than the genuine articles remains to be seen.

MOURNING AND FIGHTING

Got Sadly Mixed In Big Funeral Conducted by Jews

GOTHAM POLICE KEPT BUSY

Factory Employes Emptied Pails of Water Upon the Throng, Which Retaliated by Wrecking Windows—Hose Then Brought Into Action

New York, July 31.—The funeral of the late Chief Rabbi Jacob Joseph, head of the Orthodox Hebrews of the United States, which was held here yesterday, was the occasion of one of the most remarkable demonstrations ever witnessed in this city and led to a collision between the masses of Jewish mourners and the police.

The streets were packed with thousands of Hebrews, stores were generally closed and every point of vantage along the route taken by the funeral procession to the different synagogues was crowded.

Directly in front of the house where the body has lain in state for the last few days over 100 patrolmen kept the surging crowd from the entrance with considerable difficulty. After the services at the house the body was taken to each of the six synagogues on the east side, where brief services were held.

When the procession was passing the printing press factory of R. Hoe & Co., on Grand street, on its way to the cemetery in Brooklyn, employes of the factory emptied pails of water from the windows of an upper floor onto the spectators massed upon the sidewalk. Pail after pail, it was said, was emptied upon the throng. Then overalls and clothing soaked in water came down from above.

The angry populace, most of whom were Hebrews, retaliated by throwing minutes there was scarcely a whole pane of glass on the Grand street side of the factory. Then some one in the factory turned on a hose and played it indiscriminately all over the funeral procession. At one time as many as five streams were playing on the crowd. Drivers of mourning carriages whipped up their horses, trampling over citizens, and the stronger men trampled women and children under foot in their efforts to escape.

The police had in the meantime taken a hand in the trouble and were clubbing the people right and left. They were, however, unable to cope with the crowd and the reserves of half a dozen precincts were dispatched to the scene. It was more than half an hour before order was restored and the streets in the vicinity of the factory cleared. A number of arrests were made, among them being several employes of the Hoe company.

Three ambulances were summoned and the surgeons were kept busy for some time dressing the wounds of the injured. Several policemen also were injured.

Later in the day the persons arrested were arraigned in police court and fines were imposed in several instances. Bad feeling is said to exist between some of the employes of the Hoe company and the Hebrews residing in the neighborhood, of whom there are a great number, and this is said to have been the cause of the trouble.

The funeral procession did not reach the cemetery, however, without incident. As it passed through Williamsburg (Brooklyn) street, someone threw a heavy block of wood from the roof of a building into the line of mourners. The latter broke through the police lines and tried to get into the building. Threats of clubbing by the police finally restored order.

Forty thousand people were crowded in and about the cemetery at Cypress hills in an attempt to witness the services at the grave.

Didn't Know He Was Worth Millions

London, July 31.—Mr. Sutton, a well known London goods carrier, died recently. In 1900 the sworn value of his estate was $43,365. The deceased himself appears to have supposed that his estate was worth about $1,000,000 and he left a residuary estate in trust to build "Sutton's model dwellings" for the poor. The estate has now been resworn and it turns out to be valued at $10,479,250.

Castro Controls Situation

Willemstad, July 31.—All eastern ports of Venezuela have been abandoned by President Castro, all of whose forces and resources are being concentrated near La Victoria. Although there is much opposition to President Castro he still controls the situation, and a single defeat inflicted upon the revolutionists probably would render him the arbiter of the country's future.

MISAPPROPRIATED $120,000

Confession by Aged Ex-Treasurer of the Bowker Fertilizer Company

Boston, July 31.—With the announcement yesterday of the assignment of the Dudley hosiery mills at Newton Upper Falls came a report in financial circles that the books of the concern showed a misuse of notes of the Bowker Fertilizer company to the extent of $120,000 by Henry P. Coe of the hosiery mills, who also had been treasurer of the Bowker company.

The report affecting Coe's financial administration was confirmed last night by Frederick Higginson, who succeeded Coe as treasurer of the Bowker company three weeks ago, he stating that Coe had confessed to the officers of the Bowker company that he had taken money represented by $120,000 in notes. Mr. Higginson added that it was as yet impossible to learn from the company's books the exact sum lost.

R. S. Gorham, counsel for the company, said that no action had been taken against Coe, and that he did not know what the future would bring forth. Coe is between 60 and 70 years old and it appears that he did not profit personally by the transactions. He claims that all the money went to the Dudley hosiery mills, of which he was also treasurer.

The trouble grew out of the difficulty of borrowing money upon the Dudley mills paper and the ease with which the banks were persuaded to accept paper of the Bowker company. Coe used the Bowker company's credit for the benefit of the Dudley mills, concealing the transactions for some time.

Complaints Were Evidently Just

Somerville, Mass., July 31.—A settlement having been reached in the strike of the 450 men at the American Tube works in this city, the strikers returned to work today. The men left their places in a body because Superintendent Swan discharged William F. Dealey, who had been delegated by the rest to complain against an Italian who had used threatening words to Dealey, and the giving by the company to Foreman Kenney the right to hire and discharge employes. The company reinstated Dealey and removed Fofeman Kenney's power.

Long Will Be Chairman

Boston, July 31.—John D. Long has accepted his election of chairman of the Republican state convention. The letters of notification and acceptance waste no words and are as concise and [illegible] information that it is the "wish" as well of the vote of the state committee that the ex-secretary of the navy serve the convention, and the acceptance is framed apparently in view of that fact.

Dropped Into the River

Boston, July 31.—A part of the old Warren bridge near the North station fell into the Charles river with a terrific crash yesterday. It measured about 42 by 45 feet, and for some time had been undergoing repairs. Many of the piles and heavy supporting timbers had been removed in order to facilitate the work, and it probably is to this that the accident is due. Had it happened when the men were at work, fatalities might have occurred.

To Organize Trust Companies

Boston, July 31.—A corporation organized for the purpose of promoting trust companies, and known as the United States Bankers' corporation, having a capitalization of $6,000,000, has been formed in Boston. It is proposed to establish 40 trust companies in various cities of the United States. The New England cities included in the list are New Haven, Fall River, Lawrence, New Bedford, Springfield, Bridgeport and Hartford.

Pair of Alleged Badger Workers

Boston, July 31.—A woman who gives her name to the police as Theresa Rey, 33, and a man whom the police know as "Cheeky Ned" Hardman, are under arrest upon the charge of working the badger game upon a well known business man of this city. The woman, who is strikingly handsome, is believed by the police to be a professional badger, and Hardman, the authorities say, has a record.

"Prophet" Grieved at Parting

Boston, July 31.—A band of 13 pilgrims from the Holy Ghost and Us society of Shiloh, Me., sailed on the steamer New England for Liverpool yesterday, on their way to Jerusalem. Among them was Samuel Stanmore, the 6-year-old prophet of the society. The child was not accompanied by his parents, and he cried bitterly when the parting came.

Clement on the Stump

Manchester, Vt., July 31.—Percival W. Clement opened his campaign here last night. He spoke harsh words against the Republican organization, claiming that it and not himself was the real bolter. He said he stood on his own platform as a protest against the nomination of another by means he believed to be fraudelent.

Quarrel May Result In Death

Boston, July 31.—Two Italian coal shovellers employed in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Dedham, were quarrelling yesterday, when one of them, James Loat, struck the other, Raffaele Guinlan, on the head with his shovel, inflicting a wound which the doctors say probably will cause death. Loat escaped.

SYMPATHY WITH STRIKERS.

Will Resist All Efforts to Operate the Coal Mines.

Shenandoah, Pa., July 31.—A reign of terror, compared with which the scenes enacted during the riots of 1900 seem insignificant, holds Shenandoah in its grasp. Two of the borough policemen were shot, one perhaps fatally. Joseph Beddall, a leading merchant and cousin of Sheriff Beddal, was brutally killed, and upwards of a score of strikers were shot by police- Sheriff Beddal arrived from Pottsville at 7:45 o'clock with a posse of deputies. He has taken up his headquarters at the Ferguson Hotel and has asked Governor Stone to send the militia.

The trouble started about 6 o'clock last evening when Deputy Sheriff Beddal attempted to escort two non-union workers through the strikers' line of pickets. The workmen were dressed in their street clothes, but one of them carried a bundle under his arm and this aroused the suspicion of the strikers. The bundle was torn from him and when it was found to contain a blouse and overalls the man was taken from the deputy and beaten almost to death.

In the meantime Beddal opened fire on the mob which had gathered by this time and emptied his revolver. Two of the shots took effect, one man being shot in the leg and the other in the foot. The deputy and the other strike-breaker were now compelled to fly for their lives and took refuge in the Philadelphia and Reading railroad depot. The depot was soon surrounded by an angry mob of 5000, which was becoming more threatening and demonstrative every moment. Joseph Beddal was seen making his way through the crowd in an effort to reach his brother and the mob, divining that he was carrying ammunition to those inside the depot, seized him and beat him with clubs and billies into insensibility. He died en route to a hospital.

Shortly after this the entire borough police force arrived on the scene and escorted the deputy sheriff and his man to an engine which had been backed into the depot for that purpose. When the mob realized that their prey was about to escape, they surrounded the engine and the engineer was afraid to move. In a few moments, however, the police fired a volley, dispersing the crowd for a brief period and the engineer turned on full steam and got away with his men. Stones were now thrown thick and fast about the heads of the police, whereupon Chief John Fry gave the order to fire. At the first volley the mob fell back and several were seen to fall.

Their retreat, however, was but momentary. They returned and with revolvers, stones and even a few shotguns, they charged on the little band of policemen and made them fly for their lives. The policemen turned in their flight at short intervals and fired volley after volley at their merciless pursuers, but the mob seemed thoroughly infuriated and smoking revolvers seemed to have no terrors for them. When the Lehigh railroad crossing was reached a passing freight train blocked the progress of the police and two of them were caught and brutally beaten. One of them, Stiney Yacopsky, will die.

It is estimated that upwards of 1000 shots were fired and the wonder is that more fatalities did not result. More than 20 strikers, all of them foreigners, were shot, and at least two of them will die.

The following printed notice was posted by the mine workers all over the town last night:

"In view of the disturbances that have occurred in Shenandoah within the past 24 hours, in utter disregard to the teachings and principles of the United Mine Workers as an organization, and contrary to the explicit instructions of the leaders, we call upon all members assembled to aid the officers in good order. John Fahy, president district No. 9."

Governor Takes Prompt Action

Harrisburg, July 31.—Governor Stone has ordered the Eighth and Twelfth regiments and the governor's troop of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, in command of General Gobin, to proceed immediately to Shenandoah. General Gobin left here shortly after midnight in a special train and all the troops, the combined strength of which is 1500, will be on the ground before noon.

Soldiers on the Way

Sunbury, Pa., July 31.—At 12:45 this morning Colonel C. M. Clement of the Twelfth regiment N. G. P., received orders from Adjutant General Stewart at Harrisburg to mobilize his command, excepting the Lockhaven and Danville companies, and proceed to Shenandoah at once. The soldiers will reach there soon after daylight.

Fantastic stories have been written of magic mirrors in which the future was revealed. If such a thing were possible many a bright-faced bride would shrink from the revelation of herself, stripped of all her loveliness. If there is one thing which would make a woman shrink from marriage it is to see the rapid physical deterioration which comes to so many wives. The cause is generally due to womanly diseases.

Lost health and lost comeliness are restored by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures irregularity and dries weakening drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"It is with the greatest pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' have done for me," writes Mrs. Emma L. Bankes, of 1952 North 7th Street, Harrisburg, Pa. "They have done me a world of good. I had female weakness for six years; sometimes would feel so badly I did not know what to do, but I found relief at last, thanks to Dr. Pierce for his kind advice. I have this medicine still in my house and will always keep it."

If you are led to the purchase of "Favorite Prescription" because of its remarkable cures of other women, do not accept a substitute which has none of these cures to its credit.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Secretary Moody has taken the right resolution. He will weed out the shirkers from the Navy. There are not many, but there should be none. What's the use to this country of a sailor who can't sail?—Brooklyn Eagle.

☞No human being could bear to know all the sins and sorrow of the world around him. Nature blunts the sympathies, therefore, else the tender hearted would die of pain. From that which he cannot help, one has a right to protect himself. But woe to them who make this an excuse for selfish seclusion!—Christian Register.

☞Poor Ex-Governor Boutwell! He reminds us of the Pennsylvanian who continues even now to vote for General Jackson. We presume the good man Seminoles if he had thought of the time. As for Captain Jack and the other Modocs he would have clasped them to his bosom in a perfect frenzy of adoration! We wonder if he realizes that his George Washington Aguinaldo does not dare to show his head among the followers who so love him!—Waltham Free Press.

☞The Boston Transcript thinks that "Americanitis," that new word discovered by President Hall, leaves a bad taste. In whose mouth? Surely not in that of the fellow who has mastered it and knows by actual experience what Americanitis is. Most of the growlers and dyspeptics who are going about making wry faces over the situation are those who haven't even lisped the word, to say nothing of appropriated its inspiration, and are suffering from its lack. Americanitis will leave no bad taste, but will remove the jaundiced taste that already exists. — Haverhill Gazette.

Bankruptcy Petition.

A creditors' petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Mather Launch and Canoe Company of Atlantic, by C. F. Dodge of Boston; G. C. Coleman and E. L. FOURTH CUP RACE SERIES.

A Quincy Boat, the Flashlight Is This Time the Challenger.

The Outlook Selected As the Manchester Yacht Club Defender.

Twice, in 1898 and 1899, Quincy Yachts Defended the Cup, But in 1900 It Went to Manchester.

Now that the Outlook has been selected as the Manchester defender of the Quincy Yacht Club Challenge Cup, and the Flashlight of Quincy as a challenger, the cup race series of 1902 will be much the same as in 1898, boat against boat instead of three or four against a single defender as in 1899 and 1900.

As will be seen by the summary below the Quincy 21-footers, the Recruit and the Hostess, successfully defenued the cdp against all comers, but in 1900 the Hostess was forced to surrender it to the Lookout of Manchester, an "improved Hostess."

The Lookout having won three races in the series, secures the custody of the Quincy Yacht Cup Challenge cup for the Manchester Yacht Club, which now holds it. There were no Cup races in 1901.

Wednesday's trial race off Manchester between the Outlook and Hades, resulted in a decisive victo[illegible] ha selected by the Manchester Yacht club as the defender of the Quincy Cup.

The Herald reports the race as follows:

They started at 9.35 o'clock with the Outlook away in the lead and in the weather berth. With booms well off port both reached to Hospital Point light buoy, about four miles from the start.

Five minutes after the start, the Outlook had a lead of 500 feet. She increased this lead and rounded the first mark at 10-00-05. Here she was jibed to starboard, and on the port tack she reached to the second mark, the buoy off Gooseberry ledge, about four miles.

The Hades rounded the first mark at 10-03-32.

With the fair tide under them the pair reached over to the second mark in a light breeze of not over five knots' strength. The Outlook, as on the first leg, made a steady gain, so that when she was hauled around the second mark at 10:23:52 she was beating home just as the Hades passed the long buildings on Lowell island. The Hades rounded at 10:31:15 or just 7m. 23s. astern.

The third leg was to windward against the tide, with the wind strengthening all the way in. With both boats on the same tack the Hades fell down from the Outlook by nearly two points, and, at this, she did not at all forereach with Outlook.

The Outlook beat the Hades badly on the last leg, and made a fine showing to windward.

It has been held that the flat scow would fall off to the windward. That this is not so has been shown by the work of the Outlook in all her windward performances.

The Outlook had an easy win, and was nearly two miles ahead at the finish. So far as could be seen both boats were in like wind conditions, so that it was a fair test of the boats in light airs. Oh the last leg, even in the strongest breeze, the Hades made a poorer showing than in the lighter breezes.

The judges decided that there will be no more trial races, and the Outlook will be the defender of the cup for Manchester to meet the Flashlight.

The crew of the Hades admit that the Outlook is the faster boat.

WHITE HOUSE CHANGES

Entire Floor of Second Story to Be Raised.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE PREFERRED

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Use Historic Articles In the Remodeled Mansion. Plate and China Like Those of Former Days—Original Proportions of Famous East Room Will Be Retained.

Work on the White House is progressing satisfactorily. Colonel Bingham, who is supervising the improvements, returned to Washington from Oyster Bay the other day after submitting the latest suggestions for decorations to the president and Mrs. Roosevelt.

One feature which has claimed especial attention is lowering the ceiling of the east room, says the New York World. Popular opinion has declared that the original aspect of the famous east room should be preserved, and the president has given his word that vox populi will be respected. Architects were very desirous of making the ceilings of first and second floors correspond, as it would present a more harmonious sight when the grand stairway is carried to the living apartments. Had this plan been followed the stately ceiling of the east room would have been lowered at least six feet, and much of the grace of the apartment would have been lost.

The president has decided that the entire floor of the second story must be raised, since Mrs. Roosevelt has a decided objection to the steps which hitherto have been used in entering the east side of the mansion.

On the second floor the wide corridor will be extended throughout the length of the house, with chambers opening on each side. There will be three arches, the last just where the grand stairway reaches the sleeping rooms. This arch can be covered with drapery to give more privacy to the apartments of the president's family.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt will choose one of the new rooms for their apartment. Naturally they desire their names to be identified with the most important change in the White House since its occupancy—that of removing the offices from the dwelling place of the presidents.

Mrs. Roosevelt has not yet made a final choice for her best room, but has intimated that the present library will be suitable. It adjoins the former office of the president and his secretary, which will go to history as the "wailing place of the politicians" and will hereafter be the nursery and playroom for the children.

The library will be removed to the large room on the northeast corner, where the clerical force formerly had quarters. The room which the president and Mrs. Roosevelt have used since coming to the White House is the large sunny one on the southwest corner, around which clusters more historic interest than any other in the house. Long ago "Old Hickory" selected it because of the magnificent view of the river had from its windows. Here he hung the picture of his wife and with the fine hospitality of those times always insisted on giving this room to his guests, since he considered it the best and most comfortable in the mansion.

President and Mrs. Lincoln used this room, and in it little Tad died. It was Nellie Grant's room, and after her departure for England after her marriage it became the guest chamber. Julia Dent Grant, now the Princess Cantacuzene, the first granddaughter of the warrior president, was born in this room. It was Mrs. Cleveland's nursery and served a like purpose during the incumbency of President Harrison, when the McKee babies ruled supreme. Mrs. McKinley occupied the room which is now Miss Alice Roosevelt's, the northwest apartment. It is the only room in the house as then arranged that had a dressing room adjoining, and many times when President Roosevelt had guests little Ethel occupied a cot in this dressing room.

Mrs. Roosevelt has been giving her attention recently to furnishings for the new bedrooms. She will use all the old mahogany which she had stored for lack of space when she came to Washington. Some of this is of great value and dates back to the first mistress of the White House, Abagail Adams.

It is Mrs. Roosevelt's desire to give preference to historic furnishings rather than try new. She is adopting a like policy with silver. Whenever there is a remnant of old plate she is using it as a model for the new service. She has also made inquiries among relatives of former presidents to get designs of forks and spoons they possessed.

When society meets on the lawn next year and again enjoys the open air hospitality of the Roosevelts, it will take tea from cups like those Dolly Madison used and have spoons like those treasures Abigail Adams brought with her from Boston.

Filipino Colony For Texas.

Fifteen Filipinos have arrived in Caldwell county, Tex., just south of Austin, and will form the nucleus for a large agricultural colony which will be established there, says the New York Times. They come direct from the Philippines, and when they have made homes for themselves they will send for their families. They propose to introduce a number of Philippine agricultural products which they believe are adapted to Texas soil and climate.

Colored Man for Congress.

The Journal has discovered a new candidate for Congress in this district. It says: Hon. Isaac Benjamin Franklin Allen, formerly of the Governor's Council, recently a prominent official of the Public Buildings Department and the right hand man of Col. Milton C. Paige, recently Superintendent of Public Buildings, has announced himself as a candidate for Congress in the Tenth District.

Mr. Allen has been surveying the political field, and he believes that there is an opening for him in the Tenth, but does not venture an estimate upon the depth of the opening. He claims that there are no less than 2000 colored voters in the Tenth District, and with these he will have the balance of power.

Roof Fire.

The alarm from Box 21 at 1.07 this noon was for a slight fire on the roof of Francis Veazie's house on Granite street. The fire was probably caused by sparks from a passing locomotive.

The damage was slight. Unusually quick time was made by the central station and Wollaston apparatus. The central station combination reached the fire before the alarm had done sounding. The Wollaston apparatus was about four minutes in reaching Granite street.

Everett Valuation.

Everett is pushing Quincy in valuation. The assessors report a large increase in personal and real estate over that of any preceding year. The total valuation of the city is $20,136,400, against $19,366,250 last year. The increase in personal property is $113,750, and on real estate $656,400. The total personal property assessed amounts to $1,507,800, and real estate $18,558,000. The tax rate will be $16.90, an increase over last year of 30 cents.

A RAID FOR BEER.

But Not by the Quincy Police—A Hot Time.

The sequel to an Adams street beer case was enacted in the district court this morning, when Matthew McDonnell was fined $3 for willfully defacing a building.

The story, as reported, is that McDonnell and a party of friends had in their possession on Saturday one hundred bottles of bright sparkling beer with which they intended to have a good time on Sunday. That it might be safe from harm they hid it in the woods off Adams street.

Fred Edwards an Adams street coachman discovered the hiding place, and he was as happy as if he had discovered a gold mine. He lost no time in transporting the beer to his room in the stable. He was discovered by one of the faithful, however, and Sunday morning upon the assembling of the braves an attempt was made to get the beer back. A raid was made on the stable, and a warm time resulted. People in the house hearing the rackett telephoned the police, and McDonnell was arrested. In court he pleaded nolo-contendere and was fined $3.

NEW STORIES OF JOHN W. MACKAY.

Side Lights on the Great Financier's Character.

INCIDENTS OF HIS KINDLINESS.

How He Pleaded With President McKinley In Behalf of an Officer In the American Army—The Joke He Played on General Grant—His Generosity to an Impecunious Friend.

When a good man dies, he begins to live. With the death of John W. Mackay comes a flood of light on his character, says the New York Herald. His countless benefactions, the many people he cheered in dark hours, the unfortunate ones he set on their feet and made happy, will be heard from in the future and his good deeds told and retold as the years roll by.

Mr. Mackay began life in New York a poor boy, became a ship carpenter, sailed for California in a vessel he had helped to build, turned miner there, and after years of hard work with pick and shovel in the mines he struck the greatest bonanza lode of history and made millions; then he returned to the city of his apprenticeship and won another fortune in colossal business enterprises. During all these years Mr. Mackay never forgot his friends, and to the end of his life he gave money to the unfortunate and destitute with a generous hand.

An officer was about to be cashiered from the army for a very serious indiscretion committed while intoxicated. He had a wife and children depending on him for support. They were in straitened circumstances, and Mr. Mackay was so much concerned for their welfare that he made a special trip to Washington and saw President McKinley at the White House in the young man's behalf. The case was discussed for half an hour. The president sent for the papers, and they were gone over at length.

"I see," said the president, "that the man is charged with deserting his post when intoxicated, and his offense seems a serious matter. I do not see why the law should not take its course."

"But, Mr. President, this is an unusual case. The officer has a good record behind him. I have known him since he was a boy. I knew his wife when she was a child, left an orphan." Mr. Mackay continued pleading as for one of his own blood. He said he knew the man as a faithful, competent officer. His spree was the result of prolonged exposure, and he was tempted, like many another young man. Mr. Mackay assured the president that if he would not destroy the young officer's career he would become responsible for his future conduct. Mr. Mackay added, "To cashier a man from the army for an occasional spree would be to bar out men like Sheridan and others, indiscreet some time in their lives."

President McKinley said he would do what he could, if possible he would give the offender a chance to atone for his misconduct, but the officer was finally dismissed. Mr. Mackay was greatly disappointed over the news. To a friend he said: "I am going to see that boy through. I know all about him, know the kind of stuff he is made of, and I'll see that he gets a chance to make a career. His wife and children shall never suffer. Didn't I know her father when she was but a chick of a child and he was a hardworking man, honest and true?"

Mr. Mackay was fond of good acting and the men famous on the stage. Of John McCullough he had many reminiscences to tell. "I helped him out of a hole when he had come to the end of his money and knew not where to turn," he said. "It is one of the things I look back to with pleasure." A similar experience was related of Lawrence Barrett. Mr. Mackay prided himself upon aiding friends so quietly that the world knew nothing of it.

Hearing from a western friend two or three years ago of the sad plight of a Nevada family, Mr. Mackay said: "I knew Jim for years. He married the daughter of a friend of mine. I can see her now just as she was when a child, a little thing in a blue dress, running barefooted around the streets of Virginia City. Tell them that they shall never want for a dollar while John Mackay lives." And, putting their name on his "list," Mr. Mackay added, with a twinkle in his eye, softly and with great pride: "I have thirty or forty more families just like them, all deserving people. It's a pleasure to help them. What's money for, anyway, if you can't use it for a friend?"

It was understood by Mr. Mackay's close friends that General Grant received substantial aid in the way of a loan from Mr. Mackay during his financial trouble. Mr. Mackay's regard for General Grant and appreciation of his military genius amounted to a religion. He spoke of him with reverence. But Mr. Mackay understood General Grant so well and was so highly esteemed by him that when the soldier visited Nevada and was invited to inspect the Bonanza mines he playfully suggested that the general might not be able to endure the fearful heat, that almost made water boil, in the deep mines. General Grant said he could stand it, and as the car dropped into the blistering temperature Mr. Mackay signaled the fans to stop and closed the ventilation so that the general might experience the natural heat of the deep mines. The general burst into perspiration until he was drenched as by a hot shower bath. He made no protest, and soon the ventilating machinery started and the drafts were opened. Then it was explained to the general, and he thought it a fine joke.

The same experience was given Robert G. Ingersoll when he visited the Comstock mines. As the cage descended to the furnace heat at the bottom of the shaft Mr. Ingersoll said, gasping for air: "Privately, I always believed there was a hell somewhere, but I never dreamed it could be so hot."

One night at the Broadway hotel in New York, where the late John W. Mackay, the last of the bonanza kings of America, often made his headquarters, he sat at dinner with a couple of newspaper friends, when up bustled a bumptious broker full of exciting information of a tremendous deal about to play havoc in the security market, says a correspondent of the New York Times. Mr. Mackay was polite and listened, though he was frank enough to explain to the reciter that the chronicle did not interest him a bit; that he would be very, very sure to follow instructions and keep the matter confidential, when all of a sudden the point dispenser awaked to the fact that he was proclaiming all of his extraordinary "inside" knowledge in newspaper presence. He began to boil and bubble; what he had said was in strictest confidence; it must not be printed; he would hold any man responsible who dared betray him, and so forth, in more or less incoherent effervescence. But he was so ardently desirous of impressing Mackay that he could not restrain the flow of his confidence, and he kept on grinding out detail on detail, sandwiched continually with the remark:

"Mind you, I am talking confidentially—we are all gentlemen together—this isn't to be printed—I depend on your being a gentleman"—still on and on and on.

He wanted Mr. Mackay to sell Reading short; it was going all to pieces. Mr. Mackay seldom speculated, but in this case he listened without protest to the closing declaration of the broker that he intended to sell for Mr. Mackay's account a round block of stock the next morning.

"Now, you won't print this. This is all between gentlemen," vociferated the broker in farewell. "You won't print it, will you? You mustn't—you won't—will you?"

Some veteran newspaper men get used to insolence of this sort. This newspaper man was young enough not to have learned the lesson. Wherefore he answered:

"Print it? Certainly not—not unless I can corroborate it"—which soft response tickled John W. Mackay into roaring joyousness of laughter.

The next day Reading did not go down far, but when the short stock was covered there was a round five hundred dollar profit in it, and Bert Winsmore—newspaper youth then, broker now—treasures this autograph:

My Dear Boy—Here's a check I have indorsed to you for $52. Made it on that Reading I did not intend to touch, sold by my crank friend W. It was worth more than that to me to see the effect on him of your corroboration repartee. It will break his heart to see your signature. Yours, as Well says, "confidentially." J. W. M.

One day an impecunious friend who had formerly been prosperous slouched by Mr. Mackay on Sixth avenue, New York, ashamed to be seen in his shabby attire, relates a personal friend of the multimillionaire. "There goes a worthy case; no beat, that, but too proud to beg, not cheeky enough to borrow," observed Mr. Mackay, at the same time jocularly and familiarly hailing his friend by his nickname of former days. There was no escape for the other, and he reluctantly approached Mr. Mackay, who said, "I have been looking for you for some time."

"Why, what do you wish to see me about, Mr. Mackay?" the other inquired timidly.

"Why, Jim, looking over an account book of mine I found I had borrowed some $500 from you going on to forty years ago"—

"You don't say so!"

"And here's $50 on account, and come and see me tomorrow, and I'll pay you the balance."

As we moved on Mr. Mackay observed:

"He did me many a good turn in his day, and I am glad to do one for him now."

Roosevelt and His Subjects.

"What can I do for you?" asked President Roosevelt when he was recently intercepted on a walk at Oyster Bay, N. Y., by some reporters.

"Your subjects crave an audience," said one of the newspaper men, seeking to be facetious.

"Subjects!" exclaimed the president, with a trace of annoyance in his voice. "I seem to be the subject. You boys go on your vacations, and even that mighty potentate, the managing editor, can't reach you, but the president of the United States knows no such immunity. He is at all times a subject for interviewers, for photographers and for office seekers.

"But," added the president, his mood changing, "I seem to thrive on it. Now, fire away!"—New York Times.

Midsummer Thought.

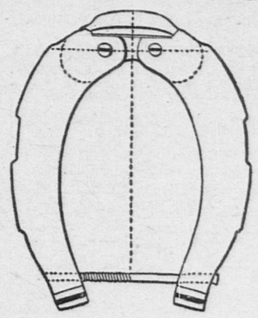

Midsummer's drifting slowly from the scene
With rosebud sprinkled o'er her polonaise,
And very soon the goldenrod will raise
Its nonexplosive lamp upon the green,
And then upon the zephyr crisp and keen
The thistledown will monkey with the haze,
While, like a Spanish omelet all ablaze,
The squash will sling its aureated sheen.
Oh, stay, that we for many days may fold
Our inner selves the while we gayly sigh
Around the peach, the berry and the lace
Embroidered cantaloupe of green and gold,
Or flit, that we may meet that tawny pie
Of which the gargoyled pumpkin is the base.
—R. K. Munkittrick in New York Times.

A NAILLESS HORSESHOE.

Invention That Will Be Appreciated by Lovers of Equines.

Ever since men began to shoe horses they have been using nails, but now a Cuban inventor says that nails are quite unnecessary, according to the New York Herald.

The accompanying picture shows the kind of horseshoe which he proposes to substitute for the one now in use. Its main feature is a plate to which the various shoe parts are pivoted and which is so constructed and arranged that it forms a protection and a support for the pivoted ends of these parts. Connected with the plate is also a mechanism for binding the various parts and keeping them in proper position.

Not a single nail is used when this shoe is put on a horse, as the plate suffices to keep the shoe firmly on the foot.

METALLIZING TEXTILES.

Russian Scientist Invents Method With a Unique Feature.

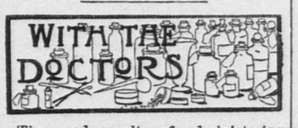

A method of metallizing textiles electrically which is said to afford the possibility of impregnating the thickest piece of cloth either thoroughly or only on its surface with any kind of metal has been invented by Dr. K. Donalowski of Russia, says Engineering. The object is attained by an electrical process of separation of the different salts from a given metal by accumulation of the separated metal in a cathode.

There can be used copper, iron, silver, nickel and any of the metals which can be separated from their salts by electrolytic action. The textile has to go through a preparatory treatment before ready for the process of metallization, consisting of impregnating the salt with a solution of the salt of a certain metal. After the cloth has been impregnated it is submitted to treatment with oxidized sulphur, which causes the metal to be separated from the solution in a sedimentary mass, which, being very fine, intrudes into the cloth, uniting closely with its fibers and settling down on its surface.

When the cloth is thus made ready, it is put into an electrolytic tub filled with a solution of the salt of the kind of metal which is to be coated upon it and brought in contact with the positive surface of an electrical device. The power of the current, as well as the contents of the tub, has to be regulated for each case respectively.

Where Men Hibernate.

To accustom themselves to hunger and to the absence of food the Russian peasants practice a sort of hibernation, says a curious note in L'Anthropologie. "As soon as the head of the house discovers that the quantity of rye on hand is not sufficient to last out the winter he arranges to limit its consumption. The whole family goes to bed and sleeps for the greater part of the next four or five months. In order to economize the animal heat and to limit as much as possible the necessity for food, all movement is restricted to what is absolutely necessary. The custom is called 'liojka' and is practiced by whole districts. Only the most imperative want is permitted to disturb the slumber, and immediately all is silent again."

The good results of administering potatoes in certain forms of diabetes are affirmed by a French physician, Dr. Mosse, who states that he has effected cures by this means. "M. Mosse thinks," says the Revue Scientifique, "that this treatment probably acts by alkalinization of the humors in the same way as the treatment by the alkaline mineral waters of Vichy. Besides this, potatoes contain oxydases and bring to the tissues ferments favorable to those oxidations that are habitually retarded in diabetic patients. The quantity of potatoes that should be taken by the invalid varies from two and a half to three times that of the bread eaten. But altered potatoes should not be employed. When jellied, they contain sugar. In too warm a medium they begin to sprout, and their germination also develops sugar as well as solanin."

The writer remarks that in the spring, when potatoes are scarce and not very good, potato bread may be used to advantage, although little known. This is prepared by mixing in proportions varying from one-quarter to one-third wheat flour with mashed potatoes. This food tastes enough like ordinary bread to make it palatable to persons who feel that they must have plenty of the latter. The use of the potato instead of bread deprives the body of certain useful phosphates that are contained in the latter, but this objection may be removed, we are told, by adding eggs to the diet, especially the yolks.

A STORY OF CÆSAR.

The Quality of Mercy as Exercised by the Great Roman.

Cæsar traveled with the retinue of a man of rank, and on his way to Rhodes he fell in with an adventure which may be something more than legend. When he was crossing the Ægean, his vessel is said to have been taken by pirates. They carried him to Pharmacusa, an island off the Carian coast, which was then in their possession, and there he was detained for six weeks with three of his attendants, while the rest of his servants were sent to the nearest Roman station to raise his ransom.

The pirates treated him with politeness. He joined in their sports, played games with them, looked into their habits and amused himself with them as well as he could, frankly telling them at the same time that they would be hanged.

The ransom, a very large one, about £10,000, was brought and paid. Cæsar was set upon the mainland, near Miletus, where, without a moment's delay, he collected some armed vessels, returned to the island, seized the whole crew while they were dividing their plunder, and took them away to Pergamus, the seat of government in the Asiatic province, where they were convicted and crucified. Clemency was not a Roman characteristic. It was therefore noted with some surprise that Cæsar interceded to mitigate the severity of the punishment. The poor wretches were strangled before they were stretched on their crosses and were spared the prolongation of their torture.—James Anthony Froude.

Man's Wonderful Stomach.

The human stomach possesses most wonderful powers of adaptation to circumstances. When Lieutenant Bligh and his eighteen men were cast off from the Bounty by the mutineers in an open boat, they subsisted for forty-one days on a daily allowance of one-twenty-fifth of a pound of biscuit per man and a quarter of a pint of water. Dr. Tanner in 1880 fasted for forty days, subsisting, it is said, on water alone, and Succi and other fasting men have since excelled this.

Kaffirs, North American Indians and the fat boy in "Pickwick" may well be quoted as fearful examples of voracity, but even their gastronomic feats are exceeded by the full grown Eskimo, who will daily eat twenty pounds of flesh and oil if he has the chance, while on the authority of Admiral Saritcheff a Yakut of Siberia has been known to consume in twenty-four hours "the hind quarter of a large ox, twenty pounds of fat and a quantity of melted butter for his drink!"

Tennyson's Tactlessness.

Several stories are told of Tennyson's thoughtless speeches. "What fish is this?" he once asked his hostess where he was dining. "Whiting," she replied. "The meanest fish there is," he remarked, quite unconscious that he could have wounded any one's feelings.

Yet his kindness of heart was such that when his partridge was afterward given him almost raw he ate steadily through it for fear his hostess might be vexed.

On one occasion Tennyson was very rude to Mrs. Brotherton, a neighbor at Freshwater. The next day he came to her house with a great cabbage under each arm.

"I heard you like these, so I brought them," he said genially. It was his idea of a peace offering.

PLATT AND ROOSEVELT

Have a Conference on State and National Politics

THE NOMINATION IN 1904

Will Be Sure to Go to the President to Succeed Himself, Barring Serious Contingencies—Odell a Candidate For Re-election—Woodruff Out

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 31.—"President Roosevelt will have a solid delegation from New York state to the next Republican national convention." This statement was made yesterday afternoon by Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York, after a conference with the president at Sagamore Hill.

Senator Platt was accompanied to Mr. Roosevelt's country home by George W. Dunn, chairman of the Republican state committee of New York. The visit to the president was made by appointment. After a cordial welcome by Mr. Roosevelt, luncheon was announced. During the two hours' conference which ensued both national and New York state politics were discussed, the discussion quite naturally revolving principally around state affairs.

Senator Platt comprehensively reviewed the political situation in both the national and state fields. He already had declared himself to be a supporter of Mr. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination in 1904, and he expressed the opinion that, barring serious contingencies, the president would be nominated to succeed himself. It was in this connection that he made the statement which is quoted at the beginning of this dispatch. Mr. Platt assured Mr. Roosevelt that perfect harmony existed among the leaders and among the rank and file of the Republican party in New York and that without doubt the entire Republican ticket would be elected this fall.

The story that Governor Odell might retire from politics to accept a handsome business offer was adverted to, but merely in the form of a denial of its authenticity. Governor Odell has had, it is understood, several offers during the past year or two to go into business in a way particularly advantageous to him. But all of them have been rejected. He is a candidate for re-election and will be nominated in September, it is confidently stated by Senator Platt.

Physically Mr. Platt looks stronger and better than he has looked for several months. To a representative of The Associated Press he said that he and Colonel Dunn had had a very pleasant talk with the president.

"The object of our visit to Sagamore hill," suggested Colonel Dunn, "was to discuss pending national matters with President Roosevelt and to inform him of the condition of the Republican party in the Empire state. Our interview was entirely satisfactory."

Discussing the political situation in New York state, Senator Platt said: "Perfect harmony exists among the leaders and among the rank and file of the Republican party in New York. President Roosevelt will have a solid delegation from New York state to the next Republican national convention. He will meet no opposition in his own state."

In response to other inquiries, Senator Platt said, after announcing the assumption, of course, that Governor Odell again would be a candidate: "The candidates on the state ticket will not be decided upon until the Republican convention meets at Saratoga in September. Of course the president has no candidate for lieutenant governor. He is urging the claims of no man."

Mr. Platt said that he understood Governor Odell, in a few days, would visit the president at Sagamore hill to discuss New York affairs with him. An inquiry concerning the political future of Lieutenant Governor Woodruff elicited only a shake of the head by Mr. Platt and the brief statement that Mr. Woodruff would not be chairman of the Republican state executive committee.

Aside from the visit of the senator and Colonel Dunn, the president passed a notably quiet day.

Iowans Endorse Roosevelt

Des Moines, July 31.—The Republican state convention yesterday named W. B. Martin for secretary of state, and made selections for auditor, treasurer, attorney general and minor offices. The only controversy was over the tariff and trust utterances of the platform and that was settled in the committee on resolutions in favor of a reiteration of last year's utterances, with an addition to the trust plank congratulating President Roosevelt on the inauguration of judicial proceedings to enforce the anti-trust laws. The national administration is strongly endorsed.

No Scramble For Nomination

Detroit, July 31.—The Democratic state convention to nominate a governor and state officers convened here yesterday and will continue in session until tonight. There appears to be a lack of competition for the nominations. Several prominent Democrats suggested for the nomination for governor have declared their unwillingness to make the run.

Loudenslager Renominated

Woodbury, N. J., July 31.—The contest in the First New Jersey district for the Republican congressional nomination ended in the selection of Congressman H. C. Loudenslager, who received 181 votes in the convention, against 123 for J. A. Van Sant.

REGARDLESS OF EXPENSE

Devery Gives Unique Outing to Further His Political Aspirations

New York, July 31.—Nearly 20,000 women and children were the guests of former Chief of Police Devery on a water picnic yesterday. Devery is a candidate for the Democratic leadership of the Ninth assembly district and the monster outing was a feature of the spectacular campaign he has been conducting. Men were excluded, and the six ship-loads of excursionists consisted only of women and children from the Ninth district.

It was the biggest excursion ever handled in this city and Devery was personally in charge. Ten physicians, a corps of trained nurses, life savers, an opera company, a vaudeville troupe and four bands were taken along and refreshments served in unlimited quantities.

The chief commissary of the expedition had 150 assistants and the list of supplies was as follows: One thousand pounds of roast beef; 1200 pounds corned beef; 1500 pounds of ham; two barrels of sugar; four tubs of butter; 20 barrels of potatoes; 20 crates of tinned tomatoes; 10 crates of raw tomatoes; 500 heads of cabbage; 250 pounds of coffee; 2500 large loaves of bread; clam chowder for 30,000 persons; 1500 pounds of fancy cakes; 5000 gallons of ice cream; 8000 quarts of milk; 250 boxes of soft drinks; 10 barrels of birch beer; 1400 bags of popcorn and candy.

Cuba Short of Schools

Havana, July 31.—Commenting on the estimates for public instruction for the coming year, which amounts to $3,917,000, the Neuvo Pais says that this amount only makes provision for half of the children of the island, or 160,000. Nevertheless, the estimates as they stand are more than Cuba in its present financial condition can meet, and the law making education compulsory should, in the view of the paper, be changed.

Austrian Laborers In the South

Chattanooga, July 31.—A large number of Austrian laborers are being brought into the Chattanooga and Birmingham districts from Pennsylvania. They are being placed in the various works and the rumor has it that they will eventually replace colored labor, the latter becoming unsatisfactory. There is room for several thousand laborers of the kind mentioned.

Not Pleasing to Frenchmen

St. Johns, July 31.—The colonial government has enforced the local laws against a number of French fishermen along the treaty coast for smuggling, selling liquor and other offenses. Detachments of armed police compelled payments of fines in most cases. This vigorous action has amazed the Frenchmen, but up to the present time there has been no official friction.

Severe Storm In Wisconsin

Lacrosse, Wis., July 31.—One of the most destructive storms in years is raging here. Railroads have been washed out in all directions and telegraphic communication practically paralyzed. Damage to crops will be serious. A tornado north of here did great damage to farm property. The storm is general over western Wisconsin.

Russians to Remain In Manchuria

London, July 31.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says the order for the withdrawal of the Russian troops from Manchuria has been rescinded, as that country is overrun with Chinese robber bands. Quantities of Russian goods in transit have been looted and two Russian merchants in Manchuria were recently burned alive.

Interference Might Injure Catholics

Rome, July 31.—It is said the pope has firmly resisted all pressure to induce him to interfere in the schools question in France. He is credited with saying that he feels any protest or action on his part would only make matters worse and might even menace the solidarity of the Catholic religion.

Boer Leaders Sail For England

Cape Town, July 31.—Generals Botha, De Wet and Delarey sailed for England yesterday. The boys of the Dutch schools dragged the carriages carrying the generals to the steamship dock, through cheering crowds.

King Takes Physical Exercise

London, July 31.—King Edward's progress continues to be in every way satisfactory. He slowly paced the deck of his yacht yesterday without any assistance and the exercise is reported to have done him good.

A LIGHT PENALTY

Likely to Be Imposed Upon the Slayer of Andrew Emery

Cambridge, Mass., July 31.—In connection with the case of Nina Danforth, the deformed girl charged with the murder of Andrew J. Emery of South Framingham, Attorney General Parker and District Attorney Sanders have had several conferences with counsel for Miss Danforth, and it is believed that the defendant will be tried on the charge of manslaughter. It is also probable that, in pursuing that course, the prosecution officers will suggest that, in the event of either a verdict or a plea to that effect, the penalty will be a very light one, and that, in determining the sentence, the period of her jail confinement while awaiting trial will be counted as a part of the sentence.

The alienists who have examined the dwarfed girl do not confirm the theory that she is insane, but it is conceded that she is weak, mentally as well as physically. It is not believed, however, that when she killed Emery her mental condition was not such as to enable her to realize what she was doing.

Tangle In Chicago Grain Pit

Chicago, July 31.—On the application of Waite, Thornburn & Co., one of the firms heavily short in the July oats option, a temporary restraining order was granted yesterday by Judge Chytraus in the superior court, prohibiting the continuance of a corner in new July oats and from bidding up the price of the cereal or calling for further margins. Default on 3,000,000 bushels of short new July oats, lawsuits, and action by the Board of Trade are seemingly the inevitable results of the granting of the restraining order.

Fear That Death Awaits Rogers

Brockton, Mass., July 31.—Mrs. Amanda White, a relative of Munroe Rogers, who is held here on a charge of arson at Durham, N. C., has received a letter from that city saying that when Sergeant Crabtree returned to Durham without his prisoner the feeling against Rogers became intense. Marshal Leach received a telegram from the Durham police yesterday saying that the proper papers had been made out and Sergeant Crabtree would probably be here today to serve them.

Missionaries Report Massacres

Pekin, July 31.—Dr. Canright, the American missionary, has telegraphed Mr. Conger that the missionaries in Sze-Chaen have made repeated demands upon the Chinese authorities for protection without result; that massacres of native Christians and the destruction of their property continues daily and that the missionaries themselves are in imminent danger. The foreign office repeats the assurances that the government has the situation well in hand.

Texas Lowlands Under Water

Houston, Tex., July 31.—Flood conditions in the Brazos valley continue to grow steadily worse. The river is again rising about Waco. The first water is now 100 miles from the gulf and the whole of the lowland is inundated. Railroad and wagon bridges are washed out and every stream in the state has more water in it than for years past. The people were given ample warning, so the loss of life is small.

Baseball Team In a Smashup

Binghamton, N. Y., July 31.—A band wagon which was conveying the Ilion baseball team to Suburban park yesterday was struck at a railroad crossing in Lestershire by a train and the driver instantly killed and six others injured, one seriously. Both horses were killed. Charles H. Lewis, the colored driver, had plenty of time to save himself, but stuck to his post.

Slipped From Our Fingers

Washington, July 31.—Probably the last chance the navy department had to secure a coaling or naval station in Havana harbor was lost by the action of the Cuban cabinet yesterday in authorizing the lease of the arsenal grounds. This was the site of the projected United States naval station, for which it was admirably adapted by its position and depth of water.

American Yachts May Enter

Berlin, July 31.—Emperor William has removed the restriction that the yachts entering the contest for his Cowes cup must be built in Europe. This race will now be open to members of any recognized yacht club in the world. It is understood that this change was made with the hope that American yachts would enter the competition.

Lacked Cashier's Signature

New York, July 31.—Bernard Maylan, arrested a few days ago for trying to deposit in a bank four $100 bills of the First National bank of Shelbyville, Ills., the bills not being signed by the cashier of the bank, was discharged in police court yesterday. The bills were good currency, being only irregular in not bearing the cashier's name.

Others Were After It

Rome, July 31.—Although it is generally approved, Cardinal Gotti's appointment came as a great surprise and is resented by a number of cardinals who hold prominent positions and who have been passed over.
